VOL. XXXVI. NO. 2.

WINCHESTER, MASS., FRIDAY, JULY 7, 1916

PRICE FIVE CENTS

DEATH OF NOTED INVENTOR.

U. S. Government Awarded Mr. Chapman Gold Medal.

On Friday, June 30th, Charles H. Chapman, one of the great inventors of this country, passed away at his home on Highland avenue, Winchester, Mass., where he has resided during the past thirteen years.

Having a strong constitution, by nature and of athletic build, Mr. Chapman was in robust health until last year when on July 21 he had a serious operation performed. Unable to rally from the effects of this severe shock he grew noticeably weaker during the past few weeks until the end came on Friday last. Mentally keen all through his illness he was able to the last to foster the interests relating to his inventions.

He was born 70 years ago at Groton, Mass., one of the children of John and Adeline (Babson) Chapman. At the age of 19 he was married on May 30, 1866, to Minerva Kittredge of Lunenburg, Mass. On May 30th of this year the Golden Anniversary of this happy wedded couple was celebrated at the Winchester residence, the husband's illness making it impossible for more than a family group to take part in the eventful occasion, but he was especially grateful to have his wish fulfilled that all his family might be present at this time.

Mr. Chapman is survived by his widow and five children: two daughters, Miss Alice E. (eldest), Mrs. Cora L. Farwell of Groton, and three sons, Charles H., Frank F. B., and Fred H. (youngest), residents of Winchester. His entire family was with him during the last days of his illness ministering to his comfort in every way.

The funeral service conducted by the Rev. L. W. Richardson was held at the home of his daughter at Groton, the many beautiful floral pieces expressing the affection and esteem felt for the deceased. The body was laid at rest in Groton Cemetery.

Mr. Chapman entered a cotton mill when a boy and learned the entire cotton manufacturing business. With unusual native gifts as an inventor his genius in this line found early expression, and while yet a minor he was offered a substantial fortune for one of his inventions. During the subsequent years he has made nearly twenty valuable additions to the list of inventions in the textile industry, among these the Needle Loom, Standard Spindle, Chapman Whirl Spindle and Eureka Spindle. These three spindles were purchased by the Draper Company of Hopedale, Mass., whose appreciation of the inventive skill of the deceased was fittingly expressed by one of the members of the company who acknowledged him to be the greatest mechanic with whom he had ever been in touch. For a number of years Mr. Chapman was retained by the Drapers with the mutual agreement that he would not perfect any improvements in spindles during this time.

For thirty years he was successfully associated in exploiting his inventions with the late Judge Levi Wallace of Ayer, Mass., between whom and him a strong bond of friendship existed.

One of the most important of Mr. Chapman's latest inventions is the Ball-Bearing Gravity Spindle, the English rights of which have recently been sold. Negotiations are now pending for the extended manufacture of this spindle in this country following its practical test for years in many mills where its great power-saving and yarn-improving features are destined to make a basic change in all spindle manufacture.

Mr. Chapman was a pioneer in the manufacture of ball bearings. His invention of the Double Ball Bearing is an acknowledged advance in the art. What has heretofore been considered an impossible feat by mechanics—a split ball bearing for shafting—has also been invented and tested out by Mr. Chapman, and patents granted.

The United States Government awarded him a special Gold Medal "as a great collaborator of patents," a suitable recognition of his genius. Only three of these medals have been awarded to Americans, Edison and Westinghouse being the recipients of the other two.

While in his teens the deceased served for a year and a half in the Civil War as a bugler in Co. B, New York Cavalry. In 1882 he purchased a farm in Groton, where for several years he bred fancy stock, and in his leisure moments developed his inventive ideas in an experimental shop built for the purpose. Mr. Chapman will be greatly missed by his many friends as his fund of gen-

WILLIAM A. KNEELAND.

CANDIDATE FOR REPRESENTATIVE.

Editor of the Star:—In view of the decennial re-districting of our representative district by which, as now seems assured, Ward 3 of Medford will be retained with Winchester, but Ward 6 will become a part of another district, our present representative, Mr. Lyman, as a resident of Ward 6, Medford, will no longer be in our district. Unquestionably it will be regarded by all as Winchester's prerogative, casting three votes to Ward 3's one, as it will, to select the next representative. I therefore ask of you the courtesy of announcing through the STAR that I will be a candidate for the Republican nomination as representative from our district at the primaries next September. This announcement is made at this time on account of the necessity under the law of taking out and filing nomination papers in the middle of the summer.

Yours very truly,
William A. Kneeland.

NEW REPRESENTATIVE DISTRICT.

Winchester will make up a new Representative district with Ward three of Medford, so it is said. It was hoped that Winchester in the re-districting would be granted a district of its own. The number of legal voters as returned by the Bureau of Statistics is 157,052 and the number required to be used as a ratio in computing Representative districts in Middlesex County is 3,272. The population of the County is 839,434.

Winchester has 2147 voters, which is not enough, and with Ward three's 755 in addition, the total for the district would be but 2902. So we will have to grow some more before Winchester reaches the goal. However, she will control the district by a big majority.

Another change, and one that is not likely to be relished, is that it will eliminate Luther B. Lyman, the present Representative from this district, as he is from Ward six. He does not like the reapportionment for that reason, as he was in line for reelection.

If the Commissioners should finally decide upon this change, there is a feeling that Winchester, having the largest number of voters should name the first candidate for Representative in the newly formed district.

On the first Tuesday in August the County commissioners will meet to divide the County into representative districts.

BASE BALL NOTICE.

No game here tomorrow. We go to Medford and play a return game with the new team there. This team is greatly strengthened since they played us Memorial Day, and will be still stronger tomorrow when they face us again. We leave here about 2:30 p. m., and will try and have a special car to take us to the grounds. You can reach the grounds by taking a car for W. Medford and taking the Everett car there. Also go by way of Stoneham and Middlesex Falls route, and the regular way to Winthrop Square. The grounds are on Fulton street and we hope a big crowd of rooters will follow the team.

WINCHESTER MILITARY COMPANY.

Next Drill will take place at the Town Hall this Friday evening, July 7th, at 7:45 p. m. There was a good attendance last week. The present membership of the company is fifty-seven.

eral knowledge, combined with native wit and unusual aptitude in story telling, made him a most genial host and welcome guest.

He had a great desire to live longer in order to perfect other inventions and to accomplish more but in his days of pain, would often say,

"God knows best."

"I know not what the future hath Of marvel or surprise. Assured alone that life and death His mercy underlies."

"And so beside the silent sea I wait the muffled oar; No harm from Him can come to me On ocean or from shore."

So this loving, husband, devoted father, genial neighbor and born inventor closed his earthly career, but the results of his inventive genius will long bear witness to his useful life in helping the world's work to a greater degree of efficiency.

THE FOURTH.

Continuous Rain Prevents Outdoor Observance.

The Fourth was one of the luckiest days of a very punky summer. The day marked the continuation of the almost incessant rain that has prevailed in this section for weeks, and that of the Fourth while not unexpected, nevertheless caused severe disappointment to the people. The children's entertainment was held in the Town Hall as announced that it would be. The hall was filled to capacity, which again proved that these entertainments have lost none of their fetching qualities with the children. There were many grown-ups present, and all present thoroughly enjoyed the numbers on the program. Previous to the opening of the entertainment Selectman Kerr released a number of air balloons, and it was great sport in watching the children trying to keep them floating in the hall. Flags and ice cream tickets were given to all the children at the close. It might be well to suggest that hereafter when ice cream tickets are given out that they be accepted in any store in Winchester where ice cream cones are sold. This would prevent congestion, as was the case this year, when the tickets were limited to one store.

The band concert that was to be held on Manchester Field in the afternoon took place in the Town Hall, the town bell being rung and the fire alarm whistle blown to announce this change in the program. Also the telephone was used to quite an extent, while Mr. Parker Holbrook went over the town in a placarded auto with a bugler announcing the concert.

There was a large attendance. The music was furnished by the Naval Brigade Band, D. A. Ives, conductor. The selections were excellent, even number being enjoyed. And the conductor was most liberal in meeting the requests of the audience.

The ball game between Winchester and Woburn was declared off. This feature was looked forward to with much interest and the postponement caused deep disappointment to many persons.

The display of fireworks also had to be omitted.

The postponed band concert and fireworks will be held on Manchester Field tomorrow (Saturday) evening at 8 o'clock.

The Fourth was very quiet in Winchester, more so than was the case last year, when it was a record-breaker for stillness. The rain may have had something to do with this, but not altogether as the boys have realized that the old-fashioned Fourth is a thing of the past. There was but one alarm for fire and this was on the night before. It was a real fire, but of slight consequence. There were no false alarms.

970 ICE CREAM CONES.

970 tickets for ice cream cones were given to the children at the July 4th entertainment at the Town Hall, and immediately after the show was over, Randall's ice cream store was besieged by 970 children, all eager to obtain their ice cream. For an hour the store was a busy place, two police officers aiding in forming the children in line entering at one door, and going out at the other. Mr. Randall served the cream from one entrance to the other using every available employee, and the crowd was taken care of with remarkable celerity and order.

The ice cream cones were made possible by the contributions of various citizens, the sum spent being wholly apart from that appropriated by the Town for the celebration of the 4th. Among those who contributed to this treat for the children were the following:

Geo. T. Davidson, Chas. Kendall, Geo. Hayward, E. C. Sanderson, F. N. Kerr, F. C. Alexander, L. S. Redding, A. H. Richardson, Cecil Cummings, J. C. Kerrison, F. M. Russell, Chas. J. Ramsdell, Frank Cummings, Andrew M. Hunnewell, Dr. W. H. Lowell, E. C. Starr, W. M. Smith, W. H. Breen, Fred Clark, George Davis, T. Price Wilson, Fred Scholl, Daniel Kelley, Albert D. Rogers, Mr. Skinner, Dr. Olmsted, Rufus Herrick, Parker T. Clarke, Arthur Cameron, S. S. Symmes, Frank Rowe, Arnold Whitaker, Mr. Eustis, N. M. Nichols, A. W. Rooney.

NELSON P. BROWN.

FOR DISTRICT ATTORNEY.

Several prominent lawyers in Winchester have announced their preference for Nelson P. Brown of Everett, as candidate for district attorney, among them Hon. Samuel J. Elder, Hon. Alfred S. Hall, Hon. Fred Joy, Roger H. Sherman, Arthur Thad Smith, John Abbott, Ralph E. Joslin, Charles F. Duth, George L. Huntress, George B. Hayward, W. Minot Hurd and others. Their principal reason for advocating his nomination is that from the time of his administration to the bar he has pursued the practice of his profession with strict adherence to the law, and has never suffered the attractions of political life to draw him from the pursuit of his profession. While holding the position of assistant district attorney for two years, he displayed unusual ability, courtesy and persistency as a trial attorney, and stands on his record in the administration of his duties. Middlesex County will be fortunate to secure him for the position for which his friends are seeking for him.

AUTO ACCIDENT YESTERDAY.

An automobile accident occurred at the corner of Washington and Forest streets yesterday morning at 7:30 when William D. Graham of 97 Franklin street, employed at the Puffer Factory on Swanton street, this town, was badly bruised by a collision with an automobile driven by Mr. Albert B. Sells of Glen road.

According to accounts of the accident three men on bicycles, including Graham, rounded the turn at this point on the left side of the road, meeting the auto without warning.

Mr. Sells was not traveling fast, but although he immediately applied the brakes and did everything in his power to avoid striking them, Graham crashed into his car. The other two men managed to avoid it.

Mr. Sells immediately took Graham to the Winchester Hospital, where it was found that no bones were broken and that his injuries consisted of bruises. His bicycle was badly damaged.

$1000 FROM JUNE BREAKFAST.

At a meeting of the directors of the Winchester Visiting Nurse Association held Wednesday morning, Mrs. William I. Palmer of the June Breakfast Committee presented the report of the recent breakfast—the most satisfactory ever given in the history of the Association.

According to the report no less than $966.74 was cleared from this year's breakfast. To this was added the gift of a check for $33.26, making the sum turned in to the Hospital an even $1000.

The number of tickets sold this year was 1392, and included in the money received was the sum of $30 cleared by the Sanborn Sisters' Camp outside the hall. Last year the sum of $920 was cleared.

THE FORTNIGHTLY.

The Civics Committee will be glad to receive gifts of discarded books, tennis rackets, balls and playthings of all kinds for use at the Chapin Playground. They need a chest of drawers or cupboard, either to be given or loaned. Tel. 1st-W, and the gifts will be called for.

The work of the Art Committee for the ensuing year will consist of a series of informal talks with illustrations upon "Design in Common Things" or "An Appreciation of Form and Color in Architecture, House Furnishings and Dress." These will be given in the High School drawing room by Miss Louise Clarke of Boston.

EIGHT HOUSES AT WEDGE-MERE.

Work was commenced on the erection of eight houses at Wedgemere last week. They are to be erected opposite the station on the vacant land at the corner of the Parkway and Bacon street as follows: two on Lakeview terrace, three on Lakeview road and three on the Parkway.

The houses are being built by the Old Colony Realty Co. of 30 State street, Boston. They will average from 23 to 25 x 44 feet in size and will cost from $2,000 to $10,000.

YOUR AFFAIRS AND MINE

One of the popular fallacies which is most slowly being overcome is the notion that a conscience and an ideal are hindrances to success in the world. So many have given the "wise wink" when they have heard men discourse on the things which pertain to honor, and have remarked behind their upraised hands that "such things don't go in business," that it has become in some circles a habit to regard all consideration of honor and of decency as a "blind" behind which certain methods contradicting these principles may be practiced. The Spectator has known men right here in Winchester in moments of dejection—dejection mostly due to their own failure to follow the course which leaves the conscience clean—say things like this: "By George, when my boy gets big enough, no more of this Sunday School stuff for him. I'm going to tell him that this is not a Sunday School world, and that if he wants anything he'll have to go in and get it, hook or crook." And there is just enough apparent success—apparent success, The Spectator says—resting on foundations not ideal and in proximity to consciences not responsive to plain distinctions of right and wrong, to make this view seem to be the "wise" or practical one. Of course, The Spectator realizes that it is pretty late in the day to read a homily on honesty, and it might not be the best use of space in The STAR to do so. And The Spectator is not going to do it. But if there are those amongst his readers who hold this "wise," "practical" view of conscience and decency, he hopes they will continue here a little, because he wants to say some things on the worldly success of the unworldly man. By unworldly man The Spectator means the man who takes his course not from the loose standards common in the world, but by those higher standards which every man has been cognizant of and which, whether they were given from above or are the long conclusions of human experience, are yet the highest standards we know.

All things being equal, an unworldly tendency does not diminish any Winchester's chance of material prosperity. We have too often put a meek face on a good principle; we have too often clothed righteousness in rags. True, righteousness will go in rags rather than wear silks as the badge of shame; but it has a principle in it which will not permit it to stay in rags very long. That goodness is sissified is a notion that the last 2000 years should have eradicated. That men of principle are more likely than not to be molly-coddles is another idea which shows equal ignorance of life and principle. If a census were taken you would find more good men rich, prosperous or in comfortable circumstances than bad men. The greater part of our continuous poverty is always connected with some sort of sin; and where destitution occurs once through the dead weight of uncontrollable circumstances, it occurs a thousand times through some form or controllable immorality. It is the lack of principle that loses out in making a physically comfortable life. It is the steady man who gets and keeps the job. It is the honest man whom people here in Winchester and elsewhere want to hire. It is the clean man by whom employers want to be represented. It is the temperate man who feels easiest in his position. It is the dependable man who comes to mind when promotions or increases of pay are on the docket. And, in more responsible business circles, it is the bank whose directors are men of known integrity of life, which gets the big business. It is the manufacturer whose word given man to man is as sound as his certified bond, who gets the order. And, in emergencies, it is the merchant who has always been on the square, who is given the lift which tides him over. There is no getting away from these things. The "wise wink" which seems to say that dishonesty is more successful in "big business" than it is in a corner grocery store, is a wink which betrays both the ignorance and the desire of the winker. For it is in "big business" where this mighty quality called Confidence is concentrated and is most sensitive, that men must live according to strict principle or else real business, for its own security, must rid itself of them. Honesty is not a business policy. Honesty was written into the laws of the universe before business was ever heard of. Honesty is a natural law, in contrariety to which disaster comes.

The fact is—and we come sooner or later to know it—we cannot do the work of the hour in the light of the hour. The unworldly man, the man of essentially unworldly mind, who can perform his worldly tasks in an unworldly spirit, has more light to walk by than does another whose eyes are limited by the dim suggestions of the superficial present. It was not in the light of '61 that Lincoln did the work of '61; it was in the light of all the Christian centuries. The unworldly man has a greater gain, too, in the enjoyment of this world, because he uses it without abusing it. Is it not wonderful that we enjoy this world only in the light of another world?—the world of law, the world of sentiment, of beauty, of principle. The man who is so much of this world that he seems little removed from stocks or stores or from the animals whose motive powers are instinct and appetite—does he enjoy this world? No; the capacity for enjoyment is not in him or if at all then limitedly. All that this world means to us we have learned in the light of another world—just as the mariner makes a way in the seas by reading the stars. The unworldly man has a greater gain, too, in the way in which he can withstand the unheralded shocks of life. Do you know that half the agonies of life's tragedies comes about because people have staked their all on the uncertainties and have never thought about the certainties? Yet men do that who put all their eggs in this uncertain old basket of a physical life. The only thing men know certainly about this period is that it is going to end one day. All the rest is uncertain—and they bet on the uncertainties. In the changes which nominally occur in life they find themselves utterly bereft; they have made no deposits in the world of principle, of hope, of the future. They can talk as they like, the worldly advantages of the unworldly type of mind—and The Spectator has suggested a hundredth of them—are far greater than those of the other type of mind.

LUTHER B. LYMAN TO HAVE SECOND TERM.

Luther B. Lyman of West Medford, at present representing this District in the Massachusetts House of Representatives, announces his candidacy for re-election. Mr. Lyman is a Republican and was elected last year to succeed Rep. Winfield F. Prime. In accordance with the usual custom arranged between Winchester and West Medford, which comprise the District, Mr. Lyman will receive a second term in the House.

In the re-apportioning of the District it is announced that Ward 3 of Medford (lying in West Medford) has been dropped, Ward 6 remaining.

PARKER-PHINNEY.

The wedding of Miss Irene Celestia Phinney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Phinney of 37 Huntington avenue, Rosindale, and Mr. Charles Winifred Parker, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph H. Parker of 15 Myrtle street, this town, took place last Saturday evening at the home of the bride's parents. The ceremony was performed by Rev. A. H. Johnson of the Clarendon Congregational Church of Hyde Park at seven-thirty.

The bride wore a wedding dress of ivory Georgette crepe trimmed with taffet over India silk. Her veil was fastened with a spray of orange blossoms and she carried a bridal bouquet of lilies of the valley and sweet peas. The only attendants were two little ring bearers, Miss Elizabeth Parker and Miss Elizabeth Phinney, sisters of the bride and groom, who were dressed alike in pink voile.

A reception followed the ceremony from eight until nine-thirty, which was largely attended by the many friends of the couple. The residence was attractively decorated with palms and roses, and the ushers included Messrs. J. Foster Cass of Hyde Park, G. Frederick Phinney, brother of the bride; Laurence Heinman of Ashfield and Wallace McElhiney of this town.

The couple were assisted in receiving by their parents. Following an extended wedding trip through Maine they will make their home in this town and will be at home to their friends at 6 Mason street after September first.

TWO EVENTS TO BE CELEBRATED.

Work is being pushed as rapidly as possible in putting the Highland Playground in condition for use and it is thought that by Labor Day it will be in condition for ball games. The diamond has already been staked out, and the work of leveling the ground and filling in the low spots is receiving the attention of the contractor Mr. James Fitzgerald.

The second improvement, the street across the pond, is nearly connected with Spruce street and will be in condition for the passage of vehicles in a few weeks. Pedestrians have generally forsaken the tracks of the steam road and are now using the new street in going to and from the centre of the town. Since the warm weather set in the amount of filling has fallen off greatly, but nevertheless some progress is being made.

On Labor Day it is proposed to celebrate the completion of these two improvements by a parade, fireworks and general rejoicing, by the residents of the northern part of the town. Indeed it is hoped to secure the co-operation of the people of the entire town. A meeting will shortly be called when committees will be chosen to arrange a program and other details, so that these two important events may be made memorable.

CANDIDATE FOR SENATOR.

Edwin T. McKnight, one of the foremost citizens of Medford has announced his candidacy for Senator of the Sixth Senatorial District. This is not the first time that Mr. McKnight has served in State politics, having been in the Legislature during the years 1906 and 1907 from Ward 21, of Boston, before taking up his residence in Medford. For the past two years he has been a member of the Republican State Committee and has also served in the Board of Aldermen for three years. Mr. McKnight has the support of the Republican party leaders throughout the district.

Woburn's tax rate will be $22.30, a decrease of $2.20 from last year, and Mayor Johnson says he believes this will be the largest reduction in the state. An increase of over $1,000,000 in real estate valuations, a decrease of $8,604.34 in the mayor's budget and a decrease in the state tax of $2260 are reasons given for the reduction. The total valuation in 1915 is $13,926,347, as against $12,923,854 in 1914.

There will be nothing doing in the line of hand concerts for the bands of the Fifth, Eighth and Ninth regiments this summer, say the members of the Metropolitan Park Commission. Inasmuch as many bandmen balked at going to Texas, the statement of the commission is generally regarded as a slap at the stay-at-homes. The commission announces that for the present the summer band concerts will be deferred.

Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Dearborn of Herrick street, and Mr. and Mrs. Maxwell of Bacon street, Winchester, enjoyed a motor trip to Camden, N. They report a good catch of trout, and a most attractive and pleasant time.

AUTO THIEVES CAUGHT.

Much Excitement in Wild Chase Through Center.

Winchester center was the scene of a lively chase and much excitement last Friday afternoon when officer Danahey intercepted three auto thieves in a stolen touring car, jumped on the running board when they refused to stop, was thrown off when the breaks were suddenly applied and then chased them until two were captured by some of the numerous citizens who aided in the affair.

Word was received during the forenoon of the theft of a Studebaker touring car from in front of the Somerville City Hall, and officer Danahey, who is stationed in the center, was on the lookout for it. At 3.15 he saw a car approaching at a rapid rate from Woburn. As the centre was crowded with traffic, the 3.15 train from Boston having just stopped, and as the car showed no signs of abating its speed, he held up his hand to stop it. As he did so he noticed that it was the stolen car, and when it passed him under increased speed he made a flying leap and jumped on the running board.

Even then the driver would not stop, but when in front of O'Connor's drug store he applied the breaks suddenly, throwing officer Danahey to the street. At the same time the three occupants jumped out and started to run. Danahey went after them and almost got his hands on one, but in running over the curb on Thompson street he got tangled up with the fellows legs and went down again.

One man ran through Purrrington place and Converse place up Mt. Vernon street. He was caught at the river by Thomas McGowan, but by twisting out of his sweater jacket got away. Arthur Cameron at the Town Hall saw him and succeeded in capturing him at the corner of Myrtle and Washington streets.

The other two ran down towards the playground, one being mixed up in the bushes at the entrance, where he was caught by John Nowell and John Holland, and the other running into Rangeley. It is thought that this man took a bicycle and made his escape, as Mrs. H. L. Cutter reported that a man appearing much exhausted had broken her cellar window when the police reached the scene, and a bicycle owned by Michael McCauley which was near the house was missing.

The two who were arrested were found to be boys, giving their names as John Hill, 16, of Hunting street, Somerville, and William Duffy, 16, of Somerville avenue, Somerville. They claimed to know their companion only by the name of "Kikie," and stuck to it that they knew no more about him.

It appears that the boys had no definite objective in view and had been riding about the country, evidently going through Arlington and Lexington to Woburn. In the latter place the stolen car was recognized by officer Sweeney, who ordered them to stop, but by crowding on power they flashed by him so fast that he could do nothing. When officer Danahey leaped on the machine in Winchester centre it was going at about 20 miles an hour. He was somewhat bruised by his encounter, cutting his leg and tearing his uniform, but it was owing to his plucky actions that the two were captured. They were taken to Somerville later in the day, where they are held for trial. It is said that Hill, who was driving the auto, had figured in a similar escapade in Cambridge earlier in the week.

TOWN IMPROVEMENTS.

Editor of the Star:

As a result of a few days spent looking over the various improvements, I found that work was almost started on the Playground at the Highlands, and that the appropriation was the only thing that seemed to be moving fast towards the finish. I inquired of a few of the taxpayers how they liked the new field, judging from the way it was outlined. Their answer was, that very few were losing any sleep over this park.

The widening on Forest street seems to be going along slow but sure, and when you stop to consider that the cost to the town will be about $3000, that the Bay State Railway Co. has the best end of the deal, they, no doubt, have at least thanked the four gentlemen who so kindly went to their assistance with this petition to the County Commissioners. This $3000 could have been more wisely spent, and better results obtained, if the officials had considered the wants of the people, by repairing some of the streets and building some sidewalks in this district.

The loaming of the park space on the Whitney lot is receiving some attention from the Park Board, Mr. Lane, and judging from the amount of money, he stated to me, it would cost, I came away feeling that money had very little value.

After our conversation, I think it will be safe to say, at this time, that the $1000 which was recommended by the Finance Committee, even if they spend most of their time in Boston, are as capable of judging work and its cost as some men who spend twenty-four hours every day looking over this work.

The different departments of the town, should at least file copies of the different contracts, so that it would be an easy matter for any man to find out the cost, and how this work is being done. This could be done without any expense to the taxpayers. The law in some cases require that public documents should be kept, in just such places. Certain hearings, even by the Town Council, are supposed to be kept by the Town Clerk, and governed by a vote.

The re-building of Mt. Vernon street looks to the average man a pretty expensive way of repairing a street, but when you stop and consider that there is a difference between building a new street and the word, "repairing," streets are constructed in a different manner, and I believe it would be a waste of money to do it any other way than it is being done. When finished, it will have a certain amount of stone in depth and width, properly bound, and there will be no excuse, that it is wearing out in parts. I believe that the stone and surplus taken from this work would be a benefit to some of the level side streets, in different sections of the town.

The town voted that all contracts should be published before let, and why it is not carried out, should be explained. No man should have that opportunity, of giving favors with any other people's money.

AUTO SKIDDED ON HIGHLAND AVENUE.

During the rain on Tuesday afternoon a Maxwell touring car carrying a Vermont number skidded while descending the hill near the Henry estate on Highland avenue and was smashed against the fence at the side of the road. The car was on its way to West Medford and contained a man, two women and a baby. According to the driver he was coasting. When about a third of the way down the hill the car suddenly skidded and turned completely around twice before it stopped. On each turn it struck the fence at the side of the road, and had it not been for this protection would have undoubtedly gone over the bank at this point.

The rear wheel was wrenched off and the axle broke; otherwise the car was not much injured. None of the occupants were injured, and the baby, which was asleep, was not even awakened. The Mystic Valley Garage took charge of the auto and had it in running shape in a couple of hours, but the occupants decided to continue their trip by electric.

EFFICIENCY IN CITY PLANNING.

The application of the slogan "Efficiency" to the municipal work of city planning for Boston is the plea made by Herbert J. Kellaway, president of the Boston Society of Landscape Architects, in a recent article in the Boston Advertiser.

Mr. Kellaway deals with the eighth National Conference on City Planning recently held at Cleveland—a convention of all "who are interested from a philanthropic, social, municipal, engineering, artistic and landscape architectural view, in the development of the cities and towns of this country." He points out the significant lead which Massachusetts has taken in creating municipal planning boards, and offers as an encouraging sign the fact that city planning has been made the subject of literary and educational propaganda; but declares that a great deal of the work remains undone—citing Greater Boston as an example of the unfinished city.

"There is yet a great problem of city planning to be solved in the Boston Metropolitan district," writes Mr. Kellaway. "It is easily seen by any observing public citizen that co-ordination is lacking. Highways widened in one community fail to be carried on in the next. Connections about the district are inadequate. A redistricting of the whole community should be studied so that manufacturing and business would be related to the supply of materials and the distribution of the product in the best and most convenient ways. The Metropolitan district needs a comprehensive city plan that will undertake the study of all the complex problems that relate to its building."

FORMER MINISTER CHANGES NAME.

We have received the following from Rev. Vincent Ravi, who was a former minister of the local Methodist church:

My name until now has been Vincent Ravi. On June 27, 1916, by and with the consent of the Probate Court in and for the County of Middlesex, it was changed to Vincent Ravi Booth. Booth is my mother's maiden name.

This change is made for two reasons:

1. My four children have behind them an interesting Anglo-Saxon tradition. On their mother's side they are descended from William Penn. Several of their maternal ancestors fought in the Revolutionary war. One was killed fighting for the independence of the Thirteen Colonies. One of them attained to the rank of major in the Continental Army.

On their father's side they are descended from a long line of Scotch and English ministers, physicians, merchants, sailors, soldiers. One of my first cousins, a captain of artillery, has recently been decorated with the military cross by the King in person at Buckingham Palace, for conspicuous bravery on several battlefields in Turkey. My mother is a Duff of Aberdeen, as well as a Booth; and that name is written large on many a page of Scottish history.

It is my wife's desire, as well as mine, that our children shall be identified as intimately as possible with this double Anglo-Saxon tradition.

2. The second reason takes me back eleven years to the moment when I swore allegiance to the American flag. I waited twelve years before taking this step, that I might take it without mental reservations, in all faith and honor. I immediately wrote to my father, who resided in Rome, asking him to have me recorded at the Italian Foreign Office as an American citizen. He wrote back: "You do not know what you ask. Were I to attempt to carry out your request, in all probability the Italian governments would expel you and never again allow you to enter the country. Of course you are at liberty to become an American citizen so as to enjoy the franchise. Thousands of foreigners living in America do that. But to divest yourself of your nationality and take on another,—that is simply impossible. No continental European power admits that such a thing can be done."

In reply I stoutly maintained that the United States is a sovereign nation, and a sovereign state always protects its people in the exercise of their international rights.

But to my dismay, I have recently discovered that the United States bows to the will of foreign governments in this matter. On April 2, 1915, the State Department ruled that not merely naturalized Americans, but their children, though born in this country, though they have never stepped beyond the boundaries of the land, though they are practicing attorneys at the Federal and State bars, and hold Federal appointments, and are members of the State militia, have "a dual nationality" and are subject to the jurisdiction of the country in which their father was born. If they go there and are punished for not having enlisted in the army at the age of twenty-one, or if they are held against their will for military service, the United States government is powerless to assist them or to redress their wrongs. This ruling has been enforced during the past year in a number of cases.

To remedy this situation for my family, in so far as it can be remedied, I am giving my children my mother's name. This recognized Anglo-Saxon name will conceal their remote connection with a continental European power. As they travel about they will have fewer questions to answer if their name is Booth. I know this by experience.

And, moreover, should they become the victims of aggression, and should the United States government continue to refuse them protection, even though they are sons and daughters of the American Revolution, on the ground that they have "a dual nationality," I doubt not that by establishing their connection with my mother's people in Scotland and England they could secure the protection of British consular agents. I also know this by experience.

Vincent Ravi Booth.

Saving Time or Saving Life?

Saving time sometimes means losing life.

A few minutes saved by walking on or crossing railroad tracks may mean your permanent disablement or death.

Five thousand, four hundred and seventy-one persons who crossed on railroad property in the United States in 1914 were killed.

Every life so lost is an economic loss to the community.

Trespassing on railroad property is forbidden because of the danger it means to life.

You can reduce this annual waste of human life by not trespassing on the railroad tracks and right of way and by urging others not to do so.

PRESIDENTIAL POINTERS

In the first four elections for president each elector voted for two candidates, the one receiving the largest number of votes was declared president and the one who received the next largest number of votes was declared vice president. At the election of 1804 a president and vice president were voted for separately and an amendment to the Constitution provided that the president and vice president could not be elected from the same state. To insure an election a candidate for president or vice president must have a majority of all the electoral votes cast, otherwise the election for president would be thrown into the house of representatives by states, each state having one vote, and for vice president into the senate.

What are United States troops in Mexico for?

The Boston & Maine Railroad is evidently on the eve of seeing better conditions financially, as the road is adding steel passenger coaches to its equipment.

Four inches of rainfall in seventeen days in June will probably stand as a record for some time. But having got to the end of June, it is reasonable to look for changed conditions.

Arlington had a special town meeting last week. Out of a registration of 2300 voters, less than 100 attended the meeting. Summer town meetings are a failure, no matter whether the articles are important or not.

Charles S. Baxter of Medford is likely to be selected as the manager of the Charles E. Hughes campaign in Massachusetts and may possibly exercise some supervision over the organization work in the other New England states.

Our green water flowing over the new dam at the corner of Main street and the Parkway presents a weird sight. It might almost appear as though the Town had made this costly improvement to care for its sewers.

After fining several defendants charged with creating disturbance on a street car, Judge Johnson announced Monday that hereafter such cases would receive jail sentences. Judge Johnson is to be commended for his determination to put an end to rowdiness on the electric cars.

It will be good news to the depositors of the Stoneham National Bank to know that its capital is unimpaired and that the bank has reopened for business. But the directors are certain to examine the books more carefully in the future. There is general failure to look into the daily life of men who hold trusted positions, where large sums of money are involved.

A Reading motoring party the other day had a somewhat unique experience when two of the ladies, stopping at a rose bush beside the roadside, were four times fired upon with a rifle by a woman coming out of an apparently abandoned house in the extreme outskirts of a town not a dozen miles west of Reading, and least concerned under fire was the lady nearest the gun-woman. This was an actual occurrence.—[Reading Chronicle.]

Hyde Park became a part of Boston a few years ago. Now read what the Hyde Park Gazette-Times says about the experience of Hyde Park people since the change took place.—“When we were a town, the voter's voice and vote had some influence with the elected and chosen town officials, but since we are part and parcel of Boston we have absolutely nothing to say as to what shall or shall not be done here, what becomes of our tax money or whether needed improvements and necessities shall be given due attention.”

Nomination blanks for the renomination of Senator Lodge are being circulated in town, and are being freely signed. The Senator is the oldest statesman in public life today and his retirement would be a misfortune. It is to be hoped that when election day arrives that Winchester will give him a record vote. It is reported that many Democrats who recognize his great ability, have signified their intention to support the senior Senator for re-election, no matter who the Democrats nominate for the position.

Over two years ago Senator Lodge in the United States Senate, said: “That the self-respect and dignity of the United States and the duty to protect its citizens and its international rights require that such a course be followed in Mexico by our government as to compel respect and observance of its rights.” This resolve was rejected by the vote of 47 to 36, the Democrats voting against it. “Is it at all likely, if the Washington administration had followed the statesman like advice of Senator Lodge,” says the Arlington Advocate, “there would have been occasion to summon forces now going to the front from our New England homes? Sometimes blunders are really crimes.”

Unless the railroad employees who are threatening to strike are willing to put their case out to arbitration then they will lose the support of the public. The railroads are willing to do this, but the employees are inclined to hold back and are threatening to strike if their demands are not granted. Such action would be a serious mistake, and entail untold hardship on the public. The railroads have proposed referring the question to the Interstate Commerce Commission, the best informed body of men in this country to arbitrate the grievance of the railroad employees. In the face of this offer backed up by public opinion, Chambers of Commerce and prominent men of the country the employees cannot afford to ignore this means of a settlement.

It is to be regretted that the two approaches to our town, viz: the Winchester and Wedgemere stations, are in such an unkept condition this year. We hope this condition will not continue. The first impressions of visitors are often the most lasting, and neither of these places are such in their present state, to convey the impression we feel sure our town deserves. Although the Winchester station has never been a building of particular pleasing aspect, when its grounds were kept up, the grass mowed and the shrubs trimmed, it was at least in keeping with our fine Common and playground, and prepared our visitor for the many fine estates, well kept streets and natural beauties of our town. Possibly the present state of affairs is due to an effort towards economy on the part of the Railroad. If so, we feel that the effort could not be carried out in a poorer way.

SALE A GREAT SUCCESS.

Last Monday evening, July 3rd, the Philathea Class of the Second Congregational Sunday School held a very successful sale and lawn party at the home of their pastor, Rev. Wm. Fryling, on Washington street.

The tables were in charge of the following ladies:

Cut Roses and Candy—Miss Mabel Swan, Belle Macdonald and Ethel Peterson.

Cake—Mrs. Bayfield Thompson, Mrs. J. H. Fields and Jessie Dearborn.

Lemonade—Misses Lillian Winn and Alberta Seagrave.

Ice Cream—Miss Florence E. Plummer, Mrs. Arthur Belville and Mrs. Chas. Wigglesworth.

Music was furnished throughout the evening by Miss Winn with her victrola and was greatly enjoyed by everyone.

Every table was sold out at an early hour and in every way this was the most pleasant and successful affair that the Philathea Class has held this season, but this was not due to the members of the class who worked hard for the success of the party, but also to the members of the church who so heartily cooperated with them in their efforts, besides many others who always show interest in the work of this class of young ladies.

TO BUILD BIG GARAGE.

Work was commenced this week on tearing down the large double house on the Kelley & Hawes property at the rear of Lyceum Building running through from Winchester place to Railroad avenue. This is the first step of the Kelley & Hawes Company in its erection of the largest garage in this town.

The new building will be of three stories and will occupy the entire lot between the present stable and the Lyceum Building. It will be equipped with elevators and every modern convenience; will have a large and commodious office, ladies' waiting room, etc., and will be strictly fireproof.

Mr. Fred C. Alexander of Lakeview road has received the contract and will push the building through to completion. The Swift-McNutt Co., now engaged in removing the present buildings, has the lumber for sale as advertised in another column.

MAY BUILD WITHOUT PERMIT.

Although it is reported that no permit as yet has been granted the Building Company engaged in the erection of the block of one story stores on Church street, the fact does not apparently interfere with the company's plans, for the work of digging the cellar and demolishing the old gasometer is going on rapidly.

There are apparently no new developments in the situation so far as the Arlington Gas Light Company is concerned, and it looks as though the Company will not buy back the land at double the price it sold it for, if the report is correct as to what terms the Building Company demands.

In the meantime it is interesting to see if the Building Company intends to go ahead with the work in defiance to the Town laws requiring a building permit.

FURTHER INFORMATION WANTED.

Editor of the Star:
I thank you for obtaining and furnishing the information concerning the United States Flag. Perhaps you can tell me this week why, after having been flown on the Common day and night, rain and shine, our Flag was removed on Tuesday and has not been flown since. I do not wish to be too critical, but the action does seem rather erratic.

Most respectfully,
G. A. R.

ELECTED TO REPUBLICAN TOWN COMMITTEE.

BASE BALL.

By “Mack”

In 1909 or 1910 Fielder Jones, Manager of the Chicago White Sox, had a pennant winning team, and they were known as the hitless wonders. Well, if Saturday's game with Arlington is a sample of the work our boys are going to do this summer, with the bat, they will have Chicago beaten seven different ways when it comes to not hitting. There are no better hitters on any team in this section than on our own and we fail to see why they do not deliver: of course it does not require many runs or hits to win with Henry in the box, but they should at least give him a chance for the game, he cannot do it all. We have been beaten in the two games that Wright has pitched, and it has taken 11 innings in both cases to do the trick, so you fans that know anything about baseball will admit we have got no false alarm for a ball team. Of course, you fans go to the field and watch our own players, but you will notice by the box score that while we do not hit the ball safe, we are hitting; that is, we do not strike out about one-half as much as the opposing teams. Therefore in due course of time our team is going to get started hitting and then watch out.

Let's say something about the game. It was marred by several injuries to the players; Ryan, the second baseman, suffering from a broken bone in the ankle. The rest of the players were painfully hurt but not serious. The game was too long drawn out requiring 2 1-2 hours to play it. The Arlington team is better than ever before, and they have got a great slugger in Lowe; Manley at short and Harber at third have greatly strengthened the team. We played good enough ball to win and had chances in nearly every inning, but the man at the bat failed to deliver and we lost the second time to Wright. We play a return game at Arlington, July 22.

Notes.

Percentage—600. Well we took a drop after all.

And don't forget, we cannot win all the time.

Arlington brought quite a crowd with them. And they are rooting strong for their team this year over there.

We play a game over in Arlington July 22, if everything goes alright with our schedule.

The Lead Pipe team lost to the Minute Boys Saturday, 2 to 1, but they batted Weafer all over the lot, while the Minute Boys failed to hit Tift to any extent, a poor throw by Harrigan lost the game.

They are telling over in Lexington what they are going to do to our team when they meet. Well, they had a chance to meet us but got cold feet and refused to play. We will play them any time they want for all the receipts or any way they want to arrange it. Come on Bill, trot out your wonders, put them against a live team.

Reading lost to Wakefield Saturday in the League game. Henry Mathews played right field for Wakefield, and was going to pitch the 4th of July game for them had they played.

We had fine weather on the Fourth for boat races on Manchester Field, but not a chance for a ball game. While on the subject of weather and while this has nothing to do with baseball, a few lines on the subject will do no harm and might wake up the officials. Here in Winchester were hundreds of young people and also hundreds of grown ups who had no place to go when once the rain started to come down; of course, the small children had the Town Hall entertainment and that helped them some. There is not a town of any size in this state but what has a small or large theatre of some sort where people may go and spend an afternoon or evening at a small cost. But if the intelligent people of Winchester want to enjoy such a thing they must take the trolley for Boston or some of the neighboring towns. If the officials of the town that have charge of granting licenses for such entertainments heard the remarks that have been passed within the past year they would wake up to the fact that there are more than one or two families to be considered when the welfare of the town is concerned. Think it over Messrs. Selectmen.

Well fans we did not get a change to play Woburn, and will take a game up later. Just a little news. All season long the Woburn team was supposed to be about as strong as they make them, why even up to Saturday when they went to Marblehead they were telling what they were going to do to the coast town boys. But they failed to do it, and say, if we can't beat Marblehead how are we going to trim Winchester? Well, let's “can” some of the players and get new ones, and they proceeded to do that very thing. Monday they “fired” five of the old players and hired new ones. Isn't that fair, and wouldn't it make you mad when you thought you had a great team and woke up and found out nobody else did? The writer says now and has said so in past years that Woburn has always made the mistake of changing players at the wrong time. Get your team early and stick to them, unless they are so “rotten” you have to let them go; and we doubt if any of the Woburn players are so very bad. Cheer up Ferdie. You will get yours.

FLOWERS FOR BOSTON.

All those in Winchester who have gardens are reminded that beginning Tuesday, July 11, flowers are sent into Boston weekly, for distribution in the congested parts of the city. Those from Winchester go to the North End Union, where with flowers from other suburbs, they are made up into gay bouquets and carried by the eager children to the sick and shut-ins.

Some one will be at the Winchester Station to receive the flowers every Tuesday morning during July and August from 8 to 9 o'clock.

Please bring your flowers, wild ones too.

BAD AUTO ACCIDENT AT SYMMES CORNER.

A serious automobile accident occurred before the 4th when a light Ford delivery car containing three men and a woman crashed into the tree at the corner of Sanborn street while travelling at a high rate of speed. In the car were Charles H. Roaks of 9 Prospect street, Woburn, Miss Jessie Dragan of 9 Prospect street, Woburn, E. L. Mason of 394 Massachusetts avenue, Boston, and William Quirk of Arlington street, Boston.

Roaks, who was driving the car, received several broken ribs and a deep cut on his leg, and Miss Dragan had both bones in her lower leg broken.

Officer Harrold was on Edgemoor road when he heard the crash shortly after eleven o'clock. Hurrying to the scene he found the car wrecked and its occupants lying nearby. He at once notified Dr. Sheehy and the police station and proceeded to render what aid he could to the victims. Miss Dragan was removed to her home and Roaks was taken to the emergency room at the police station where his wounds were dressed, after which he was taken home. The other two occupants of the car escaped with numerous bruises and a bad shaking up.

According to report the accident was caused by the excessive speed at which the car was travelling, it going so fast that the driver could not make the turn, and after running onto the sidewalk it struck the tree. The auto was badly wrecked.

Miss Marguerite Phillips of Fitchburg, Mass., was home for the weekend and holiday, July 4th.

Oriental Rugs

The unconditional statement that Oriental rugs will “wear forever” or even a life time, under heels, or with merciless cleansing methods is absurd. The wearing quality of even the poorer rugs is remarkable, but much depends upon the way they are used and the cleaning methods employed.

DO NOT CONFUSE ordinary carpet cleaners who employ MACHINE methods, with Oriental rug specialists such as Colgate Service, Inc., who strictly adhere to the NATIVE HAND processes. Our Newton Works, the most complete in New England, are open to visitors daily, except Saturday, from 9 to 5.

Since Evidence at Hand proves that serious changes are now taking place in the Oriental Rug Market of the world—greatly enhancing the values of certain classes of these rugs—it is most advisable that your rugs be examined individually and restored without delay.

NEWSPAPER MEN HAVE OUT-ING.

The annual outing of the Massachusetts Press Association was held in New York, the party numbering about fifty persons leaving Boston on the Metropolitan Line Steamer Massachusetts. This is one of the most beautiful steamers that sails Long Island Sound and it is also one of the swiftest.

The passenger agent of the line, H.
 H. Cudworth, and his wife accompanied the party.

After dinner, which was faultlessly served, in the fine dining saloon the entire party repaired to the upper decks in time to witness the sail through the Cape Cod Canal. It was a novel experience. The great steamer seemed to be almost touching shore at times as she moved slowly but surely towards her destination.

During the evening a concert was given by the regular orchestra and some of the talented members of the steamer's crew also entertained.

The Steamships Massachusetts and Bunker Hill are splendid examples of modern marine architecture. Many of their staterooms are constructed en suite with connecting bath and toilet facilities. All staterooms are most attractively furnished and equipped with the most modern sanitary fixtures. Inside staterooms are provided with electric fans. They have most attractive outside dining rooms on the Main Deck, a Hurricane Deck Cafe; are equipped for the burning of oil or fuel, and have automatic sprinkling appliances, wireless telegraphy, and all other modern facilities to insure security and comfort.

The adaptability of the Cape Cod Canal to vessels of the size of the Massachusetts and Bunker Hill is a monument to 20th century engineering skill.

The adoption of the Canal by the Metropolitan Line for its great vesroute always enjoyable, besides pro-

MELROSE B. B. C. 8—FOREST
 A. C. 0.

Owing to the fact that the East Boston team cancelled the game with us scheduled for last Saturday we were unable to arrange for a game on our home grounds, but early that morning we succeeded in closing up with the Melrose team who were without a game. Well, we went over there and got trimmed good and plenty and it being our first game for the season out of town, of course, the boys blew up and threw the one chance they have had to make a representation.

Errors and then some, that is the story. The score shows that we outbatted them, had seven left on bases, and Lawson had it on them all the time as they had only one earned run of the eight scored. Game was called owing to a heavy down pour, the last of the 8th there being two out at that time. The score:
 Innings 1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9 H R E
 Mel. B B C 2 1 3 0 0 0 0 2 6 8 1
 For. A C 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 8 0 10
 Base hits, by Wertzell, Lloyd 2, B.
 Brady 2. Two base hits, Wertzell for Melrose. Base hits, by J. Mc-Partland, Mathews 2, Hatch, Mc-Manus, P. McPartland. Two base hits, Hatch. Three base hit, McManus for F. A. C. Total for Melrose 6 for a total of 8. For the F. A. C. 8 for 11. Lawson struck out 2. Ferguson struck out 5, passed 2. Hit by pitcher, N. Brady by Lawson, Mc-Elhaney by Ferguson. Left on bases,
 F. A. C. 7; M. B. C. 1. Batteries,
 Lawson and Mathews for F. A. C.
 Ferguson, B. Brady for Melrose.
 Umpire, Harris.

Side Lights of the Game.

Now that the boys have had a good beating and showed themselves up, let us hope they have gotten all the poor stuff out of their system.

Hatch, who is playing first base for us, is putting up the finest kind of work and is doing some hitting; out of twelve times at bat he has made six hits, an average of 500 per cent.
 "Joe" McManus is also stinging the ball hard. "Jimmy" McPartland, Mathews, Hatch and McManus bat from the left side of the platter and they are all doing great work with the stick.

Stanley Lawson met with an accident in the fifth inning; on a hit to Hatch, he covered first, taking the toss for an out and in the mix-up he turned his ankle and for awhile we were afraid he was out for keeps but after having the ankle fixed up Lawson limped to the box and went at it again.

Melrose has a snappy team and while they beat us, we feel that our boys could make a better showing if we should play them again.

Deiter, a former Winchester boy, played third for them. He got four put outs and one assist during the game.

Owing to rain on the holiday the game with the St. Elizabeth's of Brighton, has been booked for the afternoon of Labor Day. The boys are in hopes that the new ball grounds at the Highlands will be in shape to use for Labor Day as this team from Brighton is one of the best that comes to Winchester Highlands.

SHOWER FOR MISS HARROLD.

 rold, who is to marry Mr. William Nostrom of Medford in September, was given a novelty shower by about 40 of her friends on Friday evening. The affair took place at the home of Mrs. Charles A. Farrar of Elm street. Miss Harrold was generously showered with all kinds of useful and attractive gifts and a most enjoyable evening was spent by all with music, games and refreshments.

THE UNITED STATES FLAG.

At the request of a subscriber we print the following information concerning the flying of the flag.
Although commonly called the "American Flag," the proper term is the "United States Flag."
There is a mandatory law on displaying the flag on school houses, viz. Chapter 232, Acts of 1911.
It is not customary to display the regular flag on stormy days; there is a storm flag made for bad weather.
The flag may be flown every day, but it is not now customary to display it on any Civil War victory dates.
Sunrise to sunset is the customary time for the display during the day.

Patriotic Flag Days in Massachusetts.

April 27th—General Grant's Birthday.
May 30th—Memorial Day.
June 14th—Flag Day.
June 17th—Bunker Hill Day.
July 4th—Independence Day.

The above are strictly Patriotic Days. Below is given a list of days on which the flying of flags is optional:

Labor Day.
Arbor Day.
January 1st—Emancipation Proclamation, 1863.
January 8th—Battle of New Orleans, 1815.
February 6th—Victory at Fort Henry, Tenn., 1862.
February 8th—Capture of Roanoke Island, 1862.
February 16th—Capture of Fort Donelson, 1862.
February 18th—Capture of Charleston, S. C., 1865.
March 6th—Victory at Pea Ridge, Ark., 1862.
March 9th—Battle of the Ironclads, Monitor and Merrimac, 1862.

July 3d—Destruction of Cervera's Fleet, Santiago, 1898.
July 1st—4th—Battle of Gettysburg, 1863.
September 17th—Victory at Antietam, 1862.
October 12th—Columbus discovered America, 1492.
October 19th—Battle of Cedar Creek, 1864.
November 7th—Capture of Port Royal, 1861.
November 24th—Battle of Lookout Mountain, 1863.
December 15th—Victory at Nashville, 1864.
December 21st—Capture of Savannah, 1864.
December 23d—Landing of the Pilgrims, 1620.

And Any Prominent Local Day.
It is suggested that on each of the strictly Patriotic Days teachers should explain to their pupils the historical event which it commemorates.

*On Memorial Day, or other similar occasions, flags should be displayed at Half Staff (or half mast), and on raising the flags on these occasions they should always go to the peak and then be dropped about one width of the flag. In striking the flag it should always be returned to the peak before being retired.

KITCHEN FOR FIELD HOSPITAL

Special Aid Society Acts on Request of Surgeon General—Appeal Made for Funds.

Acting at the request of Surgeon General Williams, the Massachusetts branch of the Special Aid Society is purchasing a field kitchen for the use of the field hospital, to be delivered as soon as possible. As a kitchen of the type desired by the surgeon general cannot be secured in this country, one has been ordered from Canada, which will delay its delivery. Sufficient invalid supplies to last the troops on their trip to the Border and for a week after their arrival were furnished by the society at the request of the surgeon general.

The officers of the field artillery have established a canteen for their men with money subscribed by the society. Efforts are being made to learn the wants of all the men in order that the most efficient aid may be given. The society acting through its emergency committee, is cooperating with the troop officers, and all the work being done is with the approval of the latter.

The entire stock of sewing kits of one of the local firms has been brought out and distributed, and urgent appeals are being made to all the branches of the society to make them. Little delicacies which may be easily carried by the men are being given and will do much to relieve the distress of the long train ride to the Border.

The work of the society is summed up by the officers of assistance to the governor, mayor, adjutant general and the Red Cross. The emergency committee is working with the governor's relief committee in aiding the families of men at the front. Lists are being compiled of all those persons who would care for convalescent wounded or who could furnish nurses for them. The chairman of the committee is Mrs. J. Montgomery Sears, 541 Boylston street. Contributions of money are desired for the general emergency fund, rather than for any special body of troops, or causes, as all may be helped immediately from that fund.

AMERICAN CHICLE COMPANY

THE CHANGE OF TIME.

He went back after a score of years to the haunts of his early days. But time had weighted the feet of him and altered his youthful ways.

Though the fields were there where he used to play, and the lanes where he used to run. Still threaded their way to the east and west in the light of the summer sun.

The charms he sought hadn't lingered there; with youth they had vanished, too. And he sadly thought, as he viewed the place, "It isn't the spot I knew."

The laughter he hungered to hear was stilled; though laughter of boys he heard. It wasn't the sort he had hoped to share, and it left his soul un-stirred.

And the kindly folks that he knew back there hadn't waited for him to come. And only the little gravestones remained to speak for their voices dumb.

Swift and harsh is the work of time, and this is the fate of men: Once they turn their backs on the scenes they love they are never the same again.

There is no age on memory's page; there always the young are young.

In the scenes that memory feasts upon no sorrowful dirge is sung. We hold our friends as we knew them all—strong, healthy and clean and gay.

And no sombre mourners stand and weep, or kneel at bier and pray. But who wanders back to the scenes he knew in search of the joys of old.

Will find but the silent marks of time and the path where the years have rolled.

Miss Pendleton's
PendantTragedy Turns to Comedy
When Lost Jewel Is Found.

By CLARISSA MACKIE

Anne Barlow went flying down the corridor to the door of Elsie Pendleton's room and knocked softly."Come in, Anne," murmured Elsie's sleepy voice.Anne obeyed, switching on the electric light as she did so and revealing to the girl in the bed a very forlorn little figure still clad in the charming white chiffon dancing frock that she had worn to the Hunters' ball a few hours before."What is the matter, Anne, dear?
Can't you sleep, or are you ill?" Elsie sat up in bed and rubbed her eyes."I am in such dreadful trouble, Elsie!" wailed Anne."Trouble?" echoed Elsie, now wide awake.Tears sprang to Anne's wide brown eyes.

"It's the pendant!"

"Aunt Rebecca's pendant?" gasped
Elsie. "Has anything happened to it?"

"Lost!" moaned Anne.

"You had it on when you came home.
You know we were admiring it as we came upstairs. Tell me about it, Anne, quick!"Anne seated herself on the side of the bed and brushed the tears from her eyes."You know it was perfectly dear of your Aunt Rebecca to insist upon my wearing the diamond pendant, because I have no jewels of my own, but I have been frightened all evening about it.
There has been scarcely a moment since she clasped the chain about my neck that I have not thought about it.
A hundred times during the evening my hand flew up there to see if it was safe. I am glad I'm poor, Elsie. I should be worried to death if I had jewels to care for!""I wore it home. You remember we were talking about it as we came upstairs. As soon as I reached my room
I took off the necklace and placed it on the dressing table. I was going to hide it under my pillow until morning, when I could return it to Miss Pendleton.""I was dreadfully sleepy and threw myself down on the sofa for a moment before undressing for bed. I could not have slept more than ten minutes, for I glanced at the clock before I lay down and the sound of the big hall clock chiming 3 awoke me.""My first glance was toward the dressing table. The pendant was gone!
Elsie, I have searched every inch of my room, and I cannot find a trace of it." Now Anne abandoned herself to the misery of the moment.Elsie got up and slipped into a dressing gown and slippers."Come, let us go to your room," she said practically. "Diamond pendants don't disappear without hands. Let us see what chance any one would haveAfter Elsie had voiced these suspicions of Rod Fairman Anne was too proud to tell her of the engagement and the plan to go west which would justify Rod Fairman in the sight of Miss Pendleton.In silence the two girls went down the corridor and knocked at Mr. Pendleton's door. When his bath robe form had appeared in the doorway he opened his sleepy eyes wide and asked hurriedly:

"What's the matter? House afire?"

Anne told him in a few words.

"The deuce! Becky will be cut up over this. Never mind, Anne, you couldn't help it, my dear. Run away and dress yourself, Elsie, and I will be ready in five minutes. I will arouse the servants, and we will make a search of the grounds. Don't tell Aunt Becky until after that. We may find it, and if we do it will save her a lot of worry and the rest of us several lectures."In fifteen minutes the men of the household were searching the grounds in the pale light of dawn while the two girls shivered on the veranda."Not the sign of an intruder," declared Mr. Pendleton as he returned with his coat and hat.

Rod Fairman smiled at Anne.

"I have an idea that Anne has concealed it and quite forgotten its hiding place," he laughed.That Anne had Rod Fairman's secret away, Elsie smiled and turned toward the doorway, and Anne with a glance at her lover hastened after her."I must tell Miss Rebecca," she said firmly.

"I will go with you," said Elsie.

Together the girls went up the stairs and knocked at Miss Pendleton's door which was next to that of Anne. While they waited for the elderly spinster to respond to the summons, the search party mounted the stairs so that when Miss Rebecca Pendleton flung wide her door and stood revealed in the bright light of the hall there were many witnesses on hand.Miss Pendleton in black velvet and diamonds, with her snowy hair dressed high on her massive head, was an imposing figure in evening attire. But Miss Pendleton as she now was, huddled in a gray flannel bathrobe, with most of her white hair back there on the bureau, was decidedly at a disad-vantage.She realized this in the same moment that the group of a dozen people com-prehended that there was something odd about Miss Rebecca's appearance—what was that hanging down from either side of her thin lips? Not two dark lines, but something that glistened and dangled on either side of her lips.

It was a platinum chain.

It was while they all stared at the dangling ends of the platinum chain that Miss Pendleton lifted one hand and opened her mouth at the same instant.When she closed her lips again the chain was gone, but the famous Pendleton diamond pendant was in her hand."What's all this disturbance?" she asked."Where did that come from?" gasped
Anne, pointing to the pendant.

Miss Rebecca blinked rapidly.

"Why, I was worried about it, knowing how careless girls are, and it's a good thing I went through the door that connects my closet with the one in Anne's room. Anne was asleep on the sofa and my pendant was on her dressing table. I simply picked it up and placed it in the safest place I knew about." Miss Pendleton smiled grimly at their astonished faces.

Mr. Pendleton gasped.

"My dear Becky, do you mean to say

Anne put out a protesting hand. Her sweet face was grave."Tell me what Will Devers said first."Elsie shrugged an impatient shoulder."He said that Rod had been speculating and was at rock bottom. He said not to be surprised at anything he did to recover his fortune.""And so you thought he might steal to get it back again? Oh, Elsie, you don't know him. As a guest in your house, you might give him the benefit of the doubt. I would rather believe that Will Devers took it!"

Anne's voice was shaking now.

Elsie put an arm around the trembling girl."I am sorry, dear," she said contri-tely, "but I don't know what to believe.
I am so afraid of Aunt Rebecca's anger. She is so eccentric, you know, and the pendant was the apple of her eye—an heirloom in the family and her most valuable possession. I was surprised that she offered it to you.""It was sweet of her—and to think I have lost it!" quavered Anne. "I ought not to have worn it, for I can never replace it."They were inside Anne's room now, and Elsie had closed the door."Where did you leave the pendant, Anne?" asked Elsie."Here on the dressing table beside my handkerchief and fan. It is quite useless to look further, dear, for I have searched every inch of the room. I have even turned up the corners of the carpet and shaken out the window curtains."In spite of what Anne said Elsie made a thorough search of the pretty bedchamber, with the result that she finally threw herself into a chair and held out despairing hands.

"Was your door unlocked?"

"Yes, and you can see that the dressing table is near the door. Perhaps some thief has followed us home and secreted himself in the house. Had we not better arouse your father and some of the men and have a search made?""There is nothing else to do," said Elsie wearily, "although a thief from outside the house would have had plentiful time to get away."

Anne's face flushed.

"Then you still consider that Rod Fairman might have succumbed to sudden temptation?" she asked haughtily.Elsie blushed furiously, and her gray eyes gleamed with resentment. Anne searched the face of her friend and read the secret written there.Elsie loved Rod Fairman, and it was pique that prompted her base suspicion of that ill advised but thoroughly honest young man."Let us tell your father, Elsie," said Anne gently. "We cannot afford to lose any more time.""Aunt Rebecca must be told also," said Elsie coldly."Very well. It is my place to tell her that through my carelessness her valuable jewel is lost," said Anne, now the calmer of the two.She could not tell Elsie now that she was engaged to Rod Fairman. It had happened that very evening, and instead of intimating that he would restore his fallen fortunes in some rapidly spectacular manner he had asked Anne to go west with him and begin life anew on the cattle ranch which was the only bit of property now left to him.After Elsie had voiced these suspicions of Rod Fairman Anne was too proud to tell her of the engagement and the plan to go west which would justify Rod Fairman in the sight of Miss Pendleton.In silence the two girls went down

dleton's door. When his bath robe

BASE BALL NOTICE.

IF. Get the if. Well, if it don't rain Saturday (tomorrow) we will have Woburn for an attraction, and that means the attraction of the year. We have been trying to get Woburn all the season but for some unknown reason they did not want to play us. Such was not the case in seasons past, they were more than willing then to play us. Well anyway they are coming down here Saturday, and that means a good afternoon's fun for the fans. Of course Woburn will be down in force and we expect our rooters to do their share. We will have extra chairs, but get down early so you won't get left on a seat as the seats are limited and there will be the biggest crowd of the year on hand. We will play our regular lineup but expect to see Woburn strengthened where they can. The reports say McMahon is pitching better this season than ever. Well, so much the better, if they lose they won't have any excuse, and neither will Winchester. Coady and Hardy will umpire, so everyone will get a fair deal all round. This will be a good place to remind those people who have not contributed to the association to send their subscription in as we can use the funds to good advantage. Come on, be sports, baseball costs money, and Winchester has a team no citizen need feel ashamed of.

BAY STATE MAY RUN EXPRESS CARS.

Announcement has been made that the Bay State Street Railway is contemplating running express cars to Winchester. The Road has taken the matter up and will make its decision within a few days. A franchise for running express cars to Winchester was secured in this town three years ago, to extend for a period of 10 years. Up to this time the Road has made no effort to avail itself of the privilege.

MID-SUMMER WEDDING.

Miss Deborah Winslow Hicks and Mr. Harold Miller Dorley were united in marriage at four o'clock Tuesday, July eleventh, at the residence of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Henry Hicks, 30 Prince avenue, Winchester, Mass., the Rev. D. Augustine Newton of the Congregational Church, Reading, officiating.

The bride is the daughter of the owner of the well known Hicks' restaurant, Boston, and of the Hicks' Baking Plant in Cambridge. She is a graduate of the Winchester High School, 1912, and has since been a special student in the class of 1916 at Boston University.

The groom is the oldest son of Mr. and Mrs. William Dorley, old residents of Fall River, Mr. Dorley, Sr., being a contractor and master builder in that city. Mr. Harold M. Dorley is connected with the Boston and Worcester Street Railway Co., as agent of the Electric Freight Department at its Boston Terminal, 529 Commercial street. He has been in this business since graduating at Fall River High School 1908. He belongs to the Malden Y. M. C. A. and to various fraternal social clubs.

The wedding guests included only members of the immediate families and a few close friends from New York, Connecticut, Worcester, Framingham, Newton, Malden, Cambridge and Winchester. The couple received several handsome checks—from each member of the firm of Dorley & Flores, Mr. Willard Pettet, wholesale business man of Fall River, Mr. George A. Graves of Boston, and others; also diamonds and household gifts from the bride's family and silver, cut glass, etc., from friends.

The bride wore an ivory silk with Georgette crepe and the groom's gift a beautiful cameo brooch surrounded by pearls and sapphires. The couple was unattended. The ushers were the groom's two brothers, Messrs. Norman and Everett Dorley and his two closest friends, Mr. Orville J. Schlick of Connecticut and Mr. Thomas B. Bowne of New York.

The immediate neighbors were bidden. Chief McIntosh and family, Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Woodbury, Mrs. and Mrs. Frank Winn, also Mrs. Charles Bacon and daughter, Miss Gladys Folts, and Worcester and Newton relatives of Mr. and Mrs. Hicks.

Mr. Frederick C. Lewis of Framingham, one of the general officials of the Boston & Worcester, with whom Mr. Dorley has been associated for eight years, was present. The house and refreshment table were attractively decorated.

After the first of September Mr. and Mrs. Harold M. Dorley will be at home, at 30 Prince avenue, Winchester.

HUGE BILLBOARD IN SQUARE. THE REPRESENTATIVE SITUATION.

Winchester's Civic Centre Receives Big Jolt.

If a building owner whose building abuts a town way in the centre, desires to have any work done thereon, or a contractor desires to do such work, our Selectmen require under the town By-Laws, that a bond of $1,000 be filed with the Town, where a sidewalk is obstructed.

If an owner desires to make any additions or alterations to his building in the centre he is required similarly to first obtain a permit from the Building Department.

Yesterday morning a Boston advertising firm commenced the erection of a huge advertising sign completely covering the upper part of the Laraway building in the square, raising his ladders from the sidewalk on Park street. He filed no bond with the Town and freely carried up his ladder and obstructed the sidewalk. When ordered to discontinue by the Supt. of the Highway Department, with whom such bonds are required to be filed, he simply removed his ladder and continued his work, all material having by that time been nailed in position or carried to the roof of the piazza.

Furthermore no permit was obtained from the Inspector of Buildings for the erection of the framework, which apparently clearly constituted an addition to the building. When ordered by the Building Inspector to discontinue the work the contractor refused flatly and completed the job.

It would seem as though our By-Laws should certainly be revised. For a building owner in the centre to have small repairs, painting, etc., done is almost prohibitive, the contractors in many instances refusing the work, rather than file the required bond, and in other cases only agreeing to do the work when the owner files the bond. We know of no other local property which has been altered or added to without the Building Inspector's permit.

While the Building Inspector may order the work stopped, he has no authority except to summons the offender into court. This will be done in regard to the parties responsible, for the sign which now lends its beauty to the complete dominance of Winchester's "civic centre."

NOTES OF INTEREST ABOUT WINCHESTER'S SCHOOLS.

Mr. Ralph B. De Lano of the science department in the High School, who has been sick, is reported as improving rapidly. The present prospect is that he will be on hand at the opening of school in September.

Panic bolts and door stops designed to avoid the danger of a crush at exit doors, have arrived and are being installed on all exit doors. They may be conveniently inspected at the Prince School building.

Mr. A. F. Powers has finished the wire, lath, and plastering in the basement of the Rumford and Wyman buildings and begun on the work at the Gifford.

At the hearing on Monday last before the special legislative committee considering this question, Superintendent Herron presented a written statement as to the steps which have been taken to protect the children in Winchester against danger from fire. The chairman of the Committee made the comment that this was the first definite list of suggestions given to the committee and ex-chairman Logue of the Boston School House Commission, said that if the things enumerated for Winchester should be done in all school buildings there would be no necessity for mandatory legislation.

Mr. Charles L. Curtis, the new High School Principal, has leased the house at No. 5 Wilson street.

Mr. Warren C. Johnson, the new High School teacher in English and History, has leased the house at No. 132 Mt. Vernon street.

THE REPRESENTATIVE SITUATION.

Editor of the Star.

It may be getting a little ahead of time to assume, as has been done, what the forthcoming make-up of our representative district is to be, since the County Commissioners, who are to pass upon the matter, will not announce the apportionments until after the first of August. If the district remains unchanged, or if it embraces Winchester and ward 6 of Medford, Mr. Lyman should unquestionably feel assured of the courtesy of Winchester's support of his renomination and reelection. If, however, Winchester and Ward 3 of Medford constitute the district, a relatively new slate will be presented and an opportunity offer itself for the consideration of certain general principles which might well be taken into account under the possible changed conditions. It would be more logical to postpone debating this subject until after the districts have been announced; but that announcement may come so late that very little time will remain before nomination papers are due, too late to weigh carefully the features which strike me as particularly worth while voting.

Both individuals who, according to last week's Star, are thus far seeking the nomination for representative are lawyers, and this is what suggests the present communication. Not that any one objects to lawyers as such; they are not only useful but also indispensable members of the community. It is likewise true that in nearly all legislative bodies the legal fraternity is disproportionately represented, whereas several other interests are lamentably under-represented, notably industrial and business interests.

CONFERENCE ON RIVER POLLUTION.

At the conference on the matter of improving the condition of the river, worse this summer than ever before in its history, held at the Town Hall on Monday evening, it appeared that the Merrimac Chemical Company has never received any communication from this Town regarding the matter. It has been reported for several years that the major portion of the contamination of the River is caused by refuse from this company's plant, although it is recognized that the Gela-tine factory and the tannery contribute also a large part. A further meeting is to be held on the matter at which officials of the Merrimac Chemical Company will be present.

The Selectmen should be commended for taking active steps in this matter. Apparently the river has now become practically an open sewer for several of the large manufacturing plants in this vicinity. Fish will not live in its waters and even the huge mud turtles, which ordinarily will survive long after all other life ceases to exist, are seen no more. An analysis of the water would be interesting and should be made.

YOUR AFFAIRS AND MINE

The practice of cataloguing men, and judging them as members of groups, rather than as immortal souls, is as dangerous from the intellectual as from the moral, political or religious viewpoint. For its effect is to narrow the mind, and utterly to destroy its poise. When these results are brought to pass all possibility of clear and correct thinking is gone. There are many influences that work in this same way—catchwords in politics, for instance. There are men right in Winchester who feel that they have reached an unshakable conclusion when they repeat some pet and current phrase—indeed, their whole political thought is in phrases. Even preparedness is now thus used by many who have never looked at facts as they are, or attempted to interpret them independently, and draw a sound conclusion from them. The same thing is true of many of the theories which we appeal to, to interpret historic events, or to solve present-day problems. A good deal of the writing about the war has been, practically worthless—and worse—because the arguments are framed to sustain preconceived opinions. It is not a question of guarding the mind against pressure from without—for here we are free—but of strengthening it against temptations from within. And that is no easy task, for it involves a study of the mind by itself. There must in all such cases be what Matthew Arnold spoke of as "a return" upon ourselves, such as Burke made on a historic occasion, and for which Arnold praised him and justly. It is hard to make this "return," yet it is a sad thing when a man is no longer able to do so. But the very effort is helpful, and, if persisted in, will prove to be successful. No education is worth much that does not confer on men something of this capacity—the power to hold judgment in reserve, and the willingness to submit theories and beliefs to the most rigid tests. There are many whose passion for certainty is so great that they are unable to accept a working hypothesis. This intellectual absolutism has wrought great harm in politics, society and religion. It certainly ought not to control our thought above our fellow men.

For they are, after all, men, before they are members of the social order, or of the various groups in which they are associated. What we have to deal with is human and individual thought and action and not group thought and action. The motive that inspire men, whether they live in Winchester or Africa, are much the same—love, hate, envy, hunger, greed, loyalty, devotion, the desire to get ahead, etc. Fundamentally, therefore, there is little difference. And when we seek to account for an action we must inquire, first of all, into the motive—and that is always a human motive—not a Winchester or an African motive. We read history, and note—often to our surprise—that men, under certain conditions, acted precisely as we feel that we should have acted under the same conditions. But we cease to be surprised when we remember that they were not men of the thirteenth or first century, but simply men. There have been few changes—some think none—in essential human nature. Therefore, though we should think of men as members of a great brotherhood, and not as members of scattered and separated groups. For it is through individuals and not through groups that human relationships must be maintained. The effect of the opposing theory is to put a premium on hate, and even on war. It is indeed disheartening to reflect on how men have been kept, or have kept themselves apart. The whole influence of civilization, if it is indeed civilization, must be in the contrary direction, in the direction of unity and kindness. There can be no such thing as human progress on any other line. The march of man across this earth has been difficult and painful. Whether it is to be triumphant or not depends wholly on the possibility of developing a spirit of true cooperation and helpfulness. Without these the issue is certain to be tragic failure and final and complete defeat. For the struggle has been, not only to make the earth a fit place to live in, but to make men fit to live in it.

One of the joys of reading history is the realization that one gets of the sense of the unity of the race. The men of old time toiled, suffered, fought and died, if not that we might enjoy the blessings that are ours today, at least as our brothers. And the student feels—or ought to feel—deep interest in them as members of the brotherhood that is still fighting, let us hope bravely, the old battle. And thinking thus one can easily see how deplorable a thing it is that there should be divisions in the army. So here again the thought of unity is brought close home to our consciousness. It ought to be one of the most powerful influences in human life. The great victories won for liberty, centuries ago, were won for us. It is for the men of today so to bear themselves that those coming after shall profit by their labors and sacrifices. What a record it is—that of the life of men in this world! It has its shameful pages—many of them—but it also has glorious pages. And there are few nations to whom we do not owe a debt. The reading of history also has the effect of broadening the outlook, and enabling the student to rise above local and parochial ideas and personal prejudices. For he sees that all men have fallen short, and that all have done great things. Therefore, it is necessary to judge men by what they have thought, done and attempted, by their aspirations and ideals, and not by their type or nationality. Only we must read sympathetically, and with a deep reverence for human nature. Unless we do, it would be better not to read at all, for the least important function of history is to communicate facts and dates. These are useful, of course, but infinitely more important is the knowledge of man that it gives, and the insight into motive that is derived from it. The admonition, "be ye perfect," is for all, as is the command to "love one another." There is none to fear that we shall move too swiftly in the direction of fulfilling these two commands. For the world, as we know it today, has a long way to go before it even makes a beginning in the work of applying them to the general life.

ANOTHER ACCIDENT AT WEDGEMERE STATION.

Another bad accident occurred at the dangerous corner of the Parkway and Bacon street at the Wedgemere station Sunday noon, resulting in Tony Fratus of 95 Court street, Lowell, receiving a bad compound fracture of his left leg. He was riding a motorcycle with a side car attached, and collided with an automobile owned and driven by Jason Russell of Somerville.

This is the third bad accident to occur at this place within a short time. According to reports it is difficult to tell who was to blame. Fratus had with him in his car Manuel Santos. In company with a number of other motorcycles he was out on a club run. According to reports he was on his right side. Russell was also on his right, but to turn Bacon street towards Church street he was obliged to cross the road. The motorcycle came down from the bridge and instead of taking the Parkway to the rear of the auto hugged the right curve, striking the auto squarely.

No one was injured except Fratus, although the motorcycle was badly wrecked. Doctors Putnam and Sheehy were summoned and the police notified, and the injured man was taken in the supply auto of the Fire Department to the Winchester Hospital. Here it was found that not a bed was vacant, and at the request of the injured man he was taken by train to the Lowell Hospital.

A big crowd collected at the spot following the accident and the Winchester police sent officers there to aid the Metropolitan officer. The supply auto of the Fire Department made a quick run to the scene and to the Hospital. Chief DeCourcy had just received two new stretchers the day before for just such an emergency, and he has had the auto equipped with iron supporting rods so that they may be hung in the car. In case of an accident the department can render very efficient aid. Mr. Russell was accompanied by his wife.

NOWELL AND BRADLEE THE WINNERS.

James Nowell and Abbott Bradlee of the Winchester Country Club captured the trophy in the doubles in the Mystic Valley Tennis tournament which opened a week ago Saturday. Last Saturday, after defeating every one who came against them, Nowell and Bradlee won the finals, playing Bray and Porter of Newton, 7-5, 3-6, 6-2, 9-7.

Nowell played a particularly brilliant game and the couple had been picked as the winners early in the tournament. Their opponents, Bray and Porter of Newton, played an excellent game but were clearly out-matched, getting only one out of four matches.

Adams of the Massachusetts Fish and Game Commissioners, Mr. Marshall W. Jones of the Winchester Board of Health, and Mr. Charles A. Lane of the Winchester Board of Park Commissioners, and after some discussion in which all took part, it was learned that the Merrimac Chemical Company had never received any communication from the town or any committee in regard to the pollution of the Aberjona River and its tributaries and of the company's plant at North Wilmington being the supposed cause for some of the trouble. Mr. William F. Oburg, Asst. Treasurer of the Company, was asked to have the president make an appointment to meet the Board of Selectmen at such time and place as would be convenient for him to investigate the effect of any discharge from the plant on the pollution of the Aberjona River and its tributaries.

Surface Drainage 1916 Waterfield Road: The Committee on Highways & Bridges were authorized to extend the drain which enters the Aberjona River from the settling basin on the westerly side of Waterfield road.

Pole Locations 1916 Wedgemere Avenue: On the application of the Edison Electric Illuminating Co. of Boston, and on recommendation of the Town Engineer and Inspector of Wires, it was Ordered: that the Edison Electric Illuminating Company of Boston be and it is hereby granted a new location for and permission to erect and maintain said pole in place thereof, with the necessary wires and fixtures thereon, upon, along and across the public way in said town named in its petition dated July 10, 1916, namely:

Wedgemere avenue, about 120 ft. south of Wildwood street, set and remove one pole.

Said pole to be of chestnut, and located as shown on a map or plan made by W. H. Cole, dated July 7, 1916, on file with said petition.

The wires on said pole to run not less than eighteen feet from the ground at any point. There may be attached to said pole not more than nine wires or cables.

To Soften Pecan Shells.

Almost all housewives know how very hard it is to crack pecan nuts. Pour boiling water over the nuts and allow them to stand tightly covered for five or six hours. The nut meats may then be extracted easily without a trace of the bitter lining of the nut. Use nut crackers and crack lightly all around the nuts. The work is quickly done and is not at all like the old tedious process of picking out the meats from the dry nuts. The meats nearly always come out whole.

Three Million Auto Tires made— —by GOODRICH, in year 1915

STUDY the Price-List publicly printed below.
Compare with the List-Prices of other Tires made in LESSER Volume.
Observe that competing Prices are higher in almost the exact proportion that VOLUME of production is smaller.
This, when Quality approaches the Goodrich Standard.
Cut our 1915 Tire Output (of 3,000,000 Auto and Truck Tires) to One-third, and it would still far exceed the Average of all Competing Makes or Brands.
But, that huge reduction in Volume MIGHT result in every Tire we made costing you One-third MORE than present prices.
They would not,—and could not,—be BETTER Tires, at this necessarily higher-cost to Us, and higher-price to You.
Because,—Goodrich Tires are not made "up to a price,"—nor "down to a price."

WE, first of all, make the BEST Fabric Tires that our 47-year Experience in Rubber-Working,—our huge Purchasing-Power, and the most Advanced Equipment, renders possible.
Then we let Cost fall where it will.
To that Cost we add a moderate, and fair, Profit for Ourselves and for our Dealers.
Then we let VOLUME rise,—as it will.
The more Tires we Make, the LESS each Tire COSTS us to produce,—and the less it costs YOU to buy them.
The more Tires we Sell, the less profit, per Tire, WE NEED, for dividends.
The more Tires we make, the better we KNOW HOW to make them,—the more we have at Stake on Quality,—and Satisfaction to Consumers.
And,—because of all this,—
—The BEST Fabric Tires that Skill,—Experience,—Good-Faith, and Maximum Volume, can build,—are now available to YOU at the VERY MODERATE Fair-List Prices here quoted.
Why pay more for ANY Fabric Tire?

INFANTILE PARALYSIS.

How To Guard Against Disease Now Epidemic.

Now that infantile paralysis has made its appearance in Massachusetts, following the outbreak in New York of the dreaded disease, some hints promulgated by the Boston health commissioner's department may not be amiss.

"Infantile paralysis is an acute infectious disease, and is to be feared not only on account of the great danger to life, but because in many cases where a patient survives it leaves him disabled for life. Permanent paralysis or greatly impaired functions of the arms and legs are the most common results. This disease attacks people of all ages, but the greatest incidence is always among children, especially those in the first half decade of life.

"Boston has been unusually clear of this disease, and whereas in epidemics the mortality reaches about 25 per cent, the percentage has been very low in this city. It is the earnest hope of the officials of the Health Department that epidemic infantile paralysis does not strike here. However, preparations have been made and the department is ready for any emergency. Instructions are issued, so that the people of this city may be on guard against the disease.

"The room used by the patient should be as nearly free from furniture as possible. Carpets and hangings should be removed before the patient is placed in the room. Toys and books used by the sick person should be thoroughly disinfected or destroyed after recovery or death.

"The sick room should be well aired several times daily.

"When practicable, one attendant should take entire care of patient, and no one else beside the physician should be allowed to enter the room. Cats, dogs and other animals should be excluded.

"Discharges from the nose and mouth of the patient should be received on cloths, which should at once be burned or immersed in a 2 per cent solution of carbolic acid.

"All cloths, bed linen and personal clothing which may come in contact in any way with the sick person should immediately be immersed in the carbolic solution before removal from the room. They should be soaked for two or three hours, then removed from the room and boiled in water or soap suds for one-quarter of an hour."

Coal celebrated the Fourth by going up 25¢ a ton. Indeed, it was a rainy and disagreeable day.

If by accident it should not rain Saturday afternoon Winchester will play a game of ball with its old time rival, Woburn.

Winchester's expensive civic center received a black eye this week. What's the use of spending money for improvements when they go to naught!

The tides of vacation travel through New England are increasing every year. And yet where is a better place to pass a vacation than right here in Winchester.

Don't go away this summer without making sure that the STAR will follow you to your vacation retreat. The home paper will add much to the enjoyment of your summer days off.

Jupiter Pluvius was the prominent feature at the exhibition of fireworks last Saturday evening. Indeed, he appears to be inclined to linger long in these parts, notwithstanding he ceased to be welcome some weeks ago.

The band concert on Manchester Field last Saturday afternoon, under the auspices of the Metropolitan Park Commission, gave the impression that all the musicians had gone with the troops to the Mexican border. The concert in the evening, given by the town, proved that this was not correct.

Reading is to be connected with the North Metropolitan Sewer via Stoneham and Winchester. It is said by a well informed person that it is only a question of time when this trunk sewer will have to be entirely rebuilt, so great has been the growth of population in this section. When work of this kind is undertaken but slight allowance is made for increase in population.

The citizens should go to Manchester Field and see for themselves the condition of the water of the Aberjona river as it flows through the Playground. The water is covered with a thick scum and when a canoe passes through the scum is pushed to either side of the boat, leaving in its wake a clear space of water. Every indication was that of a sewer passing through the field on its way to the Mystic Lakes. Where fish were abundant a few years ago no life exists now. When the lakes were used as a water supply by Boston, the ponds and streams north to the source of the supply were kept clean and contamination was not permitted. Since being abandoned by Boston there has been a great change. This was noticeable when the Metropolitan sewage commission put in an overflow pipe near Symmes grain store and allowed the sewage to enter the pond. It was an outrage and a menace to the health of Winchester, and all protests went unheeded. Since the additional sewer was built there has been no further complaint from that source, so far as is known. The trouble is now up north, and Winchester should make every exertion to have the nuisance abated. The town has already spent a large sum of money to beautify its water-ways, but this will be wasted if the ponds and river are allowed to be continued as sewage outlets—a serious menace to the health of the town. The Selectmen are taking action looking toward an abatement of the evil and all citizens should join with them.

Although the Town of Winchester has a very elaborate and much discussed set of building laws, it may interest citizens to know that the Inspector of Buildings is practically powerless to enforce them. His only authority in case of violation is to summon an offender into court. Work may continue although he orders it stopped; workmen may go off and leave a building whose wall may fall at any moment; the Inspector's only recourse is through the slow courts of law, and no matter how urgent a case may be he is absolutely without individual power. Several cases of this nature have recently occurred in this town. One was during the excavation of a cellar in the centre when the side wall of an adjoining building suddenly showed cracks and threatened to collapse at once. The Inspector ordered the contractor to shore it up. It was Saturday noon and a half holiday and the contractor refused. The only way the Inspector succeeded in protesting this wall and the adjoining property was to call on the State Police, who condemned the wall and ordered protective measures taken. They had the necessary authority and the necessary precautions were taken, and taken immediately. Another case was similar. A brick wall on a block in the center settled badly and threatened to fall following the digging of a trench along side of it. The Inspector could do nothing but call on the State Police. The wall was condemned; and after this it was repaired. A case occurred this week when the big advertising sign was erected on a flimsy piazza roof in the centre, clearly making an addition to the structure in opposition to the By-Laws. The Inspector ordered the contractor to stop. He refused and finished the job. All the Inspector could do was to summons him into court. In every other town which has effective building laws the Inspector is empowered to act. He need not sit idly by and see a wall which he knows to be unsafe fall and injure or kill; he may not order work stopped on disobedience of the laws and then have a contractor laugh at him. Our building laws may be the most complete and efficient of any town in Massachusetts, but they are lacking in the one most necessary essential, and this should be remedied. Either abolish the office of Inspector of Buildings, or else give him the necessary authority to act. As now he is a very useless official.

AUTOS CRASH ON PARKWAY.

Two heavy touring cars crashed together at the dangerous corner of Mystic avenue and the Parkway Wednesday evening. That none of the occupants were injured was due largely to the fact that both cars were heavy and withstood the shock, although one was pushed across the Parkway into the ditch at the side.

The cars were a Cadillac eight, owned and driven by Mr. E. A. Tutein of Lloyd street and containing members of his family, and a Packard owned and driven by Julius A. Trawick of Sheffield road. He was accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Russell B. Wigin and a child. No one was seriously injured although Mrs. Wigin was badly bruised and her clothes torn.

According to stories of the accident a Ford, followed by the Trawick car, was proceeding up the Parkway. When at Mystic avenue the Tutein car was suddenly encountered coming down from Mystic avenue. A high hedge obstructs the view either way at this point and neither car saw the other until both were close together.

The Ford was able to stop to allow the Tutein car to pass ahead of it, but the Trawick car turned out and ran by the Ford, meeting the Tutein car squarely. Both cars were quite badly damaged. The Packard had a spring broken and mud guards and running board ripped off and the Cadillac had its mud guards and running board smashed.

This place has been recognized as a danger point for some time and according to Chief McIntosh signs are to be erected at once warning motorists of its danger; one on the Parkway by the Park Commission, and another on Mystic avenue by the Town.

NOMINATION PAPERS.

As a candidate for election as Representative it gives me great gratification to find so many thinking voters in this town refusing to sign so-called nomination papers after the required number of signatures have been obtained. Though, of course, the signature on such papers does not oblige the signer to vote any particular way, yet such signatures are capable of great misuse, and in many cases are made without any knowledge or information as to other candidates in the contest. At the most, ten signatures would be ample to satisfy the requirements of the law.

STABBING WAS ACCIDENTAL.

The report that a man was stabbed at Beggs & Cobb's tannery on Tuesday turned out to be without much foundation. The police were notified of the rumor and investigated, finding that during a friendly scuffle between two men known as Constantine and Savena the latter was slightly wounded. The man reported that he had no grievance whatsoever and that his wound was wholly accidental.

BASE BALL.

Winchester Swamps Medford 10 to 1.

By "Mack"

We went to Medford Saturday, July 8th to fill the return date with that team; and from what our players did to the team that represented Medford we think that they must have been sorry that they invited us down there for the game. It was all over in the first inning, for before they managed to put the third man out our boys had batted around and had scored six big runs; and in the remaining 8 innings they managed to put across four more for good measure. The Medford manager did not think Donnellan was strong enough to hold Winchester, so he went after Willard, the Dartmouth pitcher, to pull the game out for him, but if Donnellan could not do any better than Willard did, he must be a pretty punk pitcher. Pete O'Neil, the Arlington Manager, recommended Willard to Medford as he had performed in some good games for his team; and the chances are he would be able to show to better advantage in another game. And do not for a moment think that Medford did not have a good team behind the pitcher, for they surely did, and they only made one error behind him while our fellows were making their slip-ups. At the bat they were helpless before Frye, and he held them to two hits; Duffy, the third baseman, getting both, and this same player looked to be a grand ball player. In last week's STAR we made the statement that there were men on the team that could hit, and Saturday they proved to the entire satisfaction of the fans that accompanied the team that they could deliver the goods. We were more than pleased to see the way the men stood up to the plate, and drove out the ball; out of the twelve hits off Willard only one was what could be called a scratch, and that was the hunt Linehan beat out down the first base side. All told we hit Willard for 12 hits with a total of twenty bases. How is that for hitless wonders? When it comes to a show down we feel as though our players are capable of doing as much hitting as the other semi-pro teams you read about. Watch the other fellows' score once in a while and see what they manage to do. And when we ask you to read the score we mean the hits, errors, stolen bases, etc. Of course you could not find the score of the game in Medford in the Boston papers. It looks very much as though the scorer was ashamed to send it in and we do not blame him. A number of fans asked the writer why we did not send the score to the Sunday papers, and for their benefit and others that do not understand we will say that when we play out of town the local reporter always sends in the scores; it has nothing to do with us. You always manage to see the score of the games played in Winchester. The Editor may cut down our stuff, so here's the score:

Notes.

Percentage—.666, still going at championship gait.

It was a tough day on the players, but they seem to do better work on a hot day than otherwise.

Medford had the best lineup of the year Saturday, but they were forced to disband after the game for the want of support.

The town gets a surfeit of ball when the High School is playing and it is difficult to arouse any enthusiasm for a semi-pro team. And by the way they only had three local players on the team, Early, Kinsman and Bradish.

That is not saying much for a town noted for its good ball players. We think if they confined themselves to local players and not try for such strong teams to play, they would get better results.

Henry notified Manager LeDuc that he would be unable to play so Frye had his chance, and he pitched a great game of ball. It being all the more remarkable as he had not done any pitching for over a year.

Blowers also warmed up before the game and he had considerable of his old stuff, but we did not have to call on him. And did you fans know Blowers was leading the team in hitting, with an average of .318?

Linehan was the chief slugger of the day getting two singles and a home run. The home run was a beauty over the fence but no one was on the bases at the time.

"Jack" Heavey played in center-field, and had a good day at the bat, reaching first base three times out of four, but was unfortunate to drop the only chance he had. Don't worry "Jack," even Speaker and Cobb can do that.

Waite played a great game at second and hit the ball hard. Now here is a player, that can field and run the bases in a first class manner. Saturday he stole second and third with ease. Personally we think he is the best second baseman that ever represented our team, not forgetting Bangs. Watch how smooth he works when you go down next Saturday.

Wingate was the hard luck man of the day, he hit the ball as hard as any one on the team, but not safe. It was worth the price of admission to hear him, chewing up Frye, and coaching him on the batteries. You cannot beat Wingate for a captain.

Now for some of the other teams. Tift won the first game for the Lead Pipe team, Saturday, shutting out the strong Gen. Electric team of Lynn. We may have this Gen. Electric team here later.

Bishop, the Lead Pipe Manager, is strengthening his team every chance he gets. He has got Charlie Flaherty signed up to catch and it is also reported that he has got Cote and Sullivan of the Medford team to play for him.

He was down here Monday after another game but Manager LeDuc said the fans would not stand for him playing Wakefield all summer, they wanted to see a few new teams. Later when they get going good we may take them on.

Reading beat Wakefield Town team in 11 innings. Henry Matthews of this town, pitched for Wakefield. The Wakefield manager removed him in the eighth when he was leading three to two, and the other pitcher, Martis, is credited with the loss of the game.

Arlington got "stung" again Saturday. They were booked to play the Somerville B. B. Club, but Somerville failed to appear, and they got a crowd of players among the spectators to make up a nine and gave the fans a game such as it was. This is the second time that the Somerville team has failed to be on hand.

Oh yes, we almost forgot to tell you about Bill Viano's Minute Boys. Well Saturday was supposed to be some day over in Lexington, and all the good citizens were due on the ball field for they were having a communities celebration, and a ball game was going to be one of the big events. The committee told Bill to be sure to get a good attraction, and they would stand the expense. Did Bill do it? Sure he did. He went and got a team called the Consolidated Gas Co. Did you fans ever hear of them? No. Well from the sample of ball they played, we think Bill must have got in touch with some summer kindergarten, for the game was a joke. Weifer struck out 16 of them. Bill for the love of Mike are you ever going to play a live team? Never mind about your reputation, give the fans in Lexington a run for their money.

Jack Heavey in one game .333.

Woburn beat Stoneham Saturday. The first game that Stoneham has dropped this season. McMahon pitched good ball allowing only 3 hits. "Johnny" Rogers and Walsh, a left hander from Roxbury, did the box work for Stoneham.

It is no use in saying, "We told you so," but it looks as though Valentine's Trolley League is going to blow. Medford was forced to disband, and we fail to see how they are going to carry along the schedule with three teams.

Here is what the Reading Chronicle says: "George Horrocks went down to Winchester to see what kind of team they had there." He reported to the Chronicle "we had a fair team and if it entered the trolley league would not come in last." When you want expert advice always get Reading for it. It is funny the "fans" over there didn't fall for it.

VACATION SCHOOL.

An appeal is made for pieces of cloth, worn out stockings or any material suitable for hooked or braided rugs. Mrs. H. L. Larrabee will be very grateful to all persons who are willing to contribute such materials. Her telephone is Winchester 464.

It is earnestly desired that more may visit the Vacation School and see the profitable work which is being done by many of our children, under the auspices of The Fortnightly. On Thursday mornings at 11 o'clock Mrs. Powers of Roxbury tells stories to the children in a most interesting manner, stimulating their taste for good literature. All who care to know more of this new feature of the work are invited to come to the Chapin School on Thursday mornings.

HOTTEST WEEK OF YEAR.

This has been the hottest week of the year. Opening on Monday, the temperature rose rapidly, Tuesday being a record breaker and Wednesday the worst yet. On that day the temperature in the centre on the north side of the gateman's shanty was an even 100 at 1.30. At the town yard it was reported as 127. However, all agree that the day was a scorcher. Yesterday morning opened at about 84 at 7 a. m., but clouds partly hid the sun during the day, aiding in holding the temperature down somewhat. Fortunately during the entire day and night Wednesday a strong southwest breeze aided in keeping the thermometer down, otherwise the large list of prostrations reported in Boston and surrounding places would have been much greater.

ELECTRIC STRUCK WAGON.

Martin Gillespie, a driver for C. H. Symmes was injured and the wagon and harness damaged, when an electric struck the wagon on Main street, near Cutter's hill Tuesday. The street car struck the rear end of the wagon with sufficient force to throw Gillespie from his seat to the rear of the wagon, and the harness was torn from the horse. The accident occurred in front of the Symmes grain mill, which is at the point of the sharp turn on the grade leading to Winchester centre.

Following the accident Mr. Symmes entered a complaint with the police, alleging that street cars pass around the curve and down the hill with too much speed. Mr. Symmes has been objecting to the speed for some time, but there was no accident until Tuesday.

Gillespie was not seriously hurt, and the horse escaped injury.

SUMMER SCHOOL.

The summer school in the Prince School building opened on Monday of this week in charge of Mrs. Anna
T. O'Sullivan, Principal, and Miss Mary H. Barr, assistant. The registration to yesterday, Thursday, is as follows:

Grade VI, Boys 6—Girls 7. Total 13
Grade VII, Boys 9—Girls 15. Total 24
Grade VIII, Boys 4—Girls 2. Total 6
A few more may be admitted, but these numbers are about all that can be accommodated. The regular program is as follows:
Mrs. Sullivan Miss Barr
8:00 Hist. 7
8:40—Gram. 8 Arith. 8
9:40—Eng. 6 Eng. 8
9:40—Arith. 7 Spelling
10:00—Recess Recess
10:30—Arith. 6 Geog. 7
11:00—Eng. 7 Geog. 6
11:30—Gram. 7 Hist. 8

The work in each subject has been carefully outlined to provide an intensive review of the work of each grade in the subjects noted and at the conclusion of the summer school term on August eighteenth, these pupils will have received an excellent preparation for the next year's work.

Since the summer school for regular school classes is an experiment in Winchester and the money available for the purpose is limited, it has been necessary to limit the attendance to the sixth, seventh, and eighth grades. If successful, it should be extended, as it doubtless will be.

In these sweltering days the school rooms are reasonably cool and the boys and girls appear to be applying themselves with commendable interest and good humor.

NO GAME LAST SATURDAY.

There was no ball game at the Highlands last Saturday owing to the failure of the out of town team to show up. This is the second time that this has occurred this season and while the manager of the Forest A. C. is doing all that he possibly can to secure games for Saturday afternoons and has his schedule filled up to Labor Day, there seems now and then to be a team who prove to be quitters.

We hope that our friends who have so loyally given us their support will not get discouraged, and it will be our aim to have a ball game at the Highlands on the Saturdays for the balance of the season.

CONFERENCE ON RIVER POLLUTION.

It appears that as a result of the conference a sample of the water has been sent to the State Board of Health for analysis, and the Merrimac Chemical Co., which maintains one of the most complete laboratories in the State, has offered to conduct further analysis.

At the coming conference with officials of this Company it is proposed to take samples of the water above and below the plant, as well as at other places along the river.
The control of the river pollution rests in the hand of the Fish and Game Commissioner, who was present at the meeting, and he has absolute power it is reported, to rectify any conditions which are proved to be a source of pollution.

The Merrimac Chemical Co. has assured the Selectmen that it will do anything which may be needed to rectify any pollution which may be occasioned by its works. It is said that since this company commenced the manufacture of chemicals for the European war many thousands of gallons of acid have been allowed to flow into the river.

It is the purpose of the Selectmen, who will be aided in every way by the Fish and Game Commissioner, to clean up the river by Fall. It is said that it will then be necessary for a winter's ice to form to rectify conditions, after which the river and ponds will be stocked with fish. In fact the only benefit which the pollution has achieved is in this connection, for it has been the means of killing all the carp, which are a menace to other fish.

It is said that the Metropolitan Park Commission has secured samples of the water in Mystic Lake which it will analyze to determine whether it will continue to allow bathing at Sandy Beach.

MRS. LUCINDA MCCONAGHEY.

Mrs. Lucinda McConaghey, who was killed in an automobile accident in Ipswich Sunday, was buried Wednesday afternoon in Wildwood Cemetery. Mrs. McConaghey was for many years a resident of Winchester and of late years had made her

MUCH DISAPPOINTED.

Rain Spoils Fireworks and Many People Get Wet.

The held-over display of fireworks from the Fourth advertised to be on Manchester Field last Saturday evening was a fizzle of the first order. It was all because of the rain. Indications at half-past seven were that the display would come off. There was rumbling of thunder and black clouds in the south, and it looked as though the storm would not hit Winchester. Special electric cars from Woburn and Stoneham were dumping their cargoes of humanity in the centre and the band concert had commenced. Hundreds of girls and young ladies in white dresses and holiday attire were on the Field, when without warning the clouds opened and old Jupiter Pluvius descended with all his old time reputation for muzzing up things generally.
The crowd made a rush for shelter and the trees being nearest were sought. But the trees soon began to leak thus compelling the crowd to seek more lasting shelter until the rain should cease. But this did not happen right away nor for some time after. The set pieces had been placed in position earlier in the evening and the rain coming so sudden prevented their being removed and as a result they soon became rain soaked and refused to burn. There were some bombs and rockets that were not very badly damaged and these were sent skyward as far as the rain would permit. The display was a dismal failure from start to finish, thus disappointing hundreds of people.

The band concert was pulled off, but the only persons to enjoy the music were the occupants of automobiles which were lined up in scores on the Parkway.

Some few persons who were fortunate enough to have umbrellas with them had the courage to linger and watch the feeble efforts of the fireworks to perform their mission. It is safe to say that there were many white dresses in the Monday morning wash. To make up for the great disappointment some persons are hoping that there will be a display on the evening of Labor Day.

STREETS FLUSHED IN CENTRE.

Many people remarked on the clean appearance of the centre last Sunday morning, but few knew that from 10 to 12 on Saturday night they were thoroughly flushed by the Fire and Highways departments. The trucking of the wet sand and gravel from the cellar on Main street at the bridge covers the centre with a coating of yellow dirt, which upon drying makes a very disagreeable dust. It was to remove this that the flushing was tried.

The flushing proved very satisfactory and will be repeated this coming Sunday morning at 4 o'clock.
During the week the Highway department has kept the centre well wet down with its watering carts.

A curbing has been laid along the west side of Converse place from Mt.

Vernon street to the Winchester Garage, much improving the narrow sidewalk. Old curb stones which had previously been removed from other streets were used.

Work will be commenced by the Highway department the first of next week on rebuilding the west side of Church street from the centre to Cambridge street. The east side has now been completed to the centre and up Mt. Vernon street as far as the Town Hall; a small portion of the northerly side of Mt. Vernon street also has been rebuilt.

Work will commence shortly on rebuilding School street. This short thoroughfare running from Church to Dix streets by the Prince school is to be narrowed down to an 18 foot roadway, the remaining space between the street and sidewalks to be graded into a grass space. The street is little used and in its rebuilding the unsightly hump is to be taken out.

NOTES OF INTEREST ABOUT WINCHESTER'S SCHOOLS.

Miss Florence D. Mandell, the efficient secretary in Superintendent Herron's office, has resigned to accept a similar position in Mt. Holyoke College. Her place will be taken by Miss Rachel R. Phelan of Medford. Miss Phelan is a graduate of Simmons College. Her parents have leased the house at No. 1
Rangleley and will move in August.

Principal Joseph H. Hefflon of the Wadleigh Grammar School, is now achieving distinction as a rose gardener. Those whom business or pleasure take to Myrtle terrace would do well to call on him.

During the summer vacation Mrs.
Jessie R. Talcott, teacher in the Wadleigh Grammar School, is taking twenty children to the Forsyth Dental Infirmary every Monday afternoon. Among our school children the problem of decayed teeth is being solved. This means healthier and happier and more efficient men and women later in life.

The new shrubbery on the High School lot have profited by the wet weather and will greatly add to the beauty of the locality.

The school gardens promise to be even more successful than in 1915.
An exhibition of which announcement will be made in due season, will be held in September. This work is being carried on by the Mothers' Association. Mrs. Charles H. Eastwick of Norwood street is chairman of the committee and Mrs.
Alonzo F. Woodside of Lebanon street, assisted by thirty-five ladies, is visiting the gardens, and directing the pupils' work. Mrs. Woodside attended the annual meeting of the National School Garden Association in New York City last week.

Rev. Martin D. Kneeland and family of Symmes road left by motor this week for East Stoneham, Me., where they will remain until September.

AMERICANISM.

People of Foreign Birth Lead Native
Born in Mass.

While so much is being said and written upon the subject of Americanism, the National Geographic Society comes forward with some figures concerning our foreign population and their sons and daughters that are particularly timely and authoritative. They bring out some striking facts concerning the make-up of our national body politic. The Society's bulletin on the subject is as follows:

"It is a fact not generally recognized that the foreign population of the United States together with sons and daughters of parents one or both of whom are or were of foreign birth constitutes a third of the entire population of the country.

"In a number of states the people of foreign birth or foreign or mixed parentage exceed in numbers those of native birth and parentage. This condition obtains in Massachusetts, where the foreign element by birth or parentage is twice as great as the element of unmixed native lineage. That state had, in 1910, 1,193,000 people both of whose parents were born within the United States, as compared with 2,221,000 who were either born abroad themselves, or had one or both parents born abroad.

"The same condition prevails in Rhode Island. That state has a population of 159,821 of native ancestry against 372,671 of foreign birth or lineage.

"In Connecticut we find a population of native ancestry aggregating 395,000, and of foreign birth or ancestry aggregating 793,000.

"In New York there is a population of native ancestry reaching a total of 3,230,000. Against this there is a population of foreign birth or foreign or mixed ancestry amounting to 5,715,000.

"The balance in favor of the population of foreign births or foreign ancestry, in whole or in part, in New Jersey is 425,000, the population of native ancestry amounting to 1,010,000 as against 1,435,000 in the case of the foreign element.

"Illinois also falls in the list of states where the population of full native stock is smaller than that of foreign birth or foreign or partly foreign ancestry. Its population of native lineage amounts to 2,600,000. Against this there is a population wholly or partly foreign by birth and ancestry of 2,925,000, a difference of 325,000.

"Michigan also falls in this class, with 1,500,000 wholly or partly of foreign birth and ancestry as compared with 1,224,000 of pure native lineage.

"Minnesota has nearly three times as many people born abroad, or with one or both parents of foreign birth, as she has of sons and daughters of native stock. Her population of foreigners and their children totals 1,485,000 as compared with 575,000 for the native element.

"Montana has 100,000 people of foreign birth and foreign or mixed ancestry, as against 162,000 of native ancestry. Wyoming gets the same column by about the same proportion. The state of Washington has 390,000 more of the foreign than of the native element, while California practically breaks even.

"Taking the statistics of the male population twenty-one years of age and upward for the entire country, it is found that only 48 per cent. of them are of straight, white native ancestry. The negro element adds 9.1 per cent. to this, and the remainder, 42.9 per cent., is represented by the men of foreign birth or the sons of foreign or mixed parentage.

"Taking the different states, we find some striking statistics. In the proportion of foreign birth or foreign or mixed ancestry to native, among the men of 21 years and upward, North Dakota takes first rank among the states with 79.9 per cent. belonging to the former class. Minnesota ranks next with 78 per cent., and Wisconsin third with 77.7 per cent.

"Approximately two-thirds of the men in Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, New York and Utah are sons or grandsons of foreign lands. In New Jersey, Illinois, Michigan, South Dakota and Montana the proportion ranges from 61 per cent. to 67 per cent., while in Nebraska, Nevada, Washington and California it is slightly more than half.

"In Utah it falls to 48.8 per cent., in Wyoming to 45.9 per cent., in Missouri to 29.7 per cent., in Kansas to 30.8 per cent., and in Oregon to 40.4 per cent.

TAKEN TO WINCHESTER HOSPITAL.

Gladys Peters, 14-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James A. Peters of 3 Common Street, Stoneham, was struck by an electric car in front of her home Friday and injured so badly that her left leg had to be amputated. The little girl is a deaf-mute, which was the reason why she did not hear the signal of the approaching car. The accident took place after the return from a picnic of the All Saints' Mission of Stoneham at Lynn Beach.

The car containing the picnic party had stopped in front of the Peter's home that Gladys might alight. She ran around the back of the car and started to cross the tracks. A Woburn bound car was coming in the opposite direction, and she failed to notice it. She was rushed to the Winchester Hospital.

WHITTAKER WITH ATHLETICS.

Walter Whittaker, the Tufts pitcher and former pitcher on the Winchester team, made his debut with the Athletics Thursday. He was touched up for three hits in two innings and hit one man, but only one run was tallied. He finished the game. It is possible the Somerville boy will be tried as an outfielder if he remains with the Athletics.

WHAT CAN A LITTLE CHAP DO?

What can a little chap do
For his country and for you
What can a little chap do?

He can play a straight game all through;
That's one good thing he can do.

He can fight like a knight
For the truth and the right;
That's another good thing he can do.

He can shun all that's mean,
He can keep himself clean,
Both without and within;
That's another good thing he can do.

His soul he can brace Against everything base,
And the trace will be seen
All his life in his face;
That's an excellent thing he can do.

He can look to the light,
He can keep his thought white,
He can fight the great fight,
He can do with his might;
Which is good in God's sight;
Those are great things he can do.

Though his years be but few,
If he keeps himself true
He can march in queue
Of the good and the great,
Who battled with fate
And won through;
That's a wonderful thing he can do.

And in each little thing
He can follow the King—
Yes, in each smallest thing
He can follow the King—
He can follow the Christ, the King.

THE AUTOMOBILE HEADLIGHT LAW.

The difficulties and dangers resulting from the prevalent use of dazzling automobile headlights, which troubled every motorist or other person upon the highways, had become not only a nuisance, but a real danger at the time the matter was taken under consideration by the state highway commission. For some time previous to the enactment of the present law, the National Highway Association had advocated the passage of regulations which would govern the use of automobile headlights and which would do away with the menace of dazzling lights.

When the present law was enacted most motorists felt that it was experimental, for, while the law may read clearly and specify exactly what automobile headlights are expected to do, it is quite another thing to arrange lights in conformity with this law. It has been said by some people that a good many motorists have disregarded the law and have not made attempts to arrange their lights in accordance with its provisions. I do not think this report can be verified by facts, for it is of greater benefit to the motorist to have safe and adequate lights than to anyone else. The danger of glaring headlights comes most commonly from the brightness of the light in its direct reflection, which results in making it almost impossible to see objects even a few feet outside of the line of the reflection. Again, it is even more dangerous for motor cars equipped with bright lights to attempt to pass each other without the greatest precaution.

In attempting to conform to the law motorists have experimented in many forms of lighting, differing according to the cost of certain kinds of light and the individual's understanding of what the law required. Among the methods tried were ground glass lenses or those frosted with various preparations intended to diffuse the light and to diminish the glare; special lenses of many kinds were put upon the market representing as many ways of complying with the law. In a good many cases a change of focus was considered adequate.

In cases of failure to comply with the law, there seems to be quite as much blame attached to the failure of the law to specify exactly what to do, as to lack of effort upon the part of motorists to comply with it. There can be no doubt that every motorist wants to help solve the problem of dazzling headlights, but at the same time there should be, apparently, further investigations and a study of those forms of lighting which will give satisfactory results.

It is not, of course, to be expected that the state will choose a few of the many forms of lenses which are on the market and say that these alone are acceptable and comply with the law, but there is an opportunity for experiment which will show exactly what certain kinds of lights can be expected to do. It would be of great benefit to motorists throughout the state and even more so to those coming from other states if there were announced certain forms of lights which are known to comply with the law.

Under the present conditions it may be necessary that a motorist has experimented with several forms of lighting, and then found that he is no more sure that he has complied with the law than when he began. If forms of lighting were standardized so that the motorist would know exactly what to do there would be far less difficulty in securing satisfactory compliance with the law.

THURSTON SEES VICTORY.

A complete victory for Charles E. Hughes throughout the Nation and the election of the Republican ticket in this State by a good old-fashioned majority are predicted by Chairman Edward A. Thurston of the Republican State Committee. Mr. Thurston wants the Hughes sentiment in every city and town in Massachusetts organized in such a way that the most effective work may be done in the Fall campaign for the success of all Republican candidates.

Mr. Thurston is filled with enthusiasm over the possibilities of Mr. Hughes as a campaigner. He says: "No one can listen to him and watch his facial expression without being convinced of his ability as a campaigner and he will make an appeal to the electorate of this country in the coming campaign which will be irresistible."

That Mr. Hughes has been received throughout the State with the greatest satisfaction by Republicans of every shade of opinion is indicated by the reports received by the State Committee.

Chairman Thurston claims that the row at Chicago over the Weeks candidacy for the Republican Presidential nomination has left no scars on the Republicans in the State and that he finds that everybody is willing to allow bygones to be bygones and forget what happened to Senator Weeks at Chicago.—[Practical Politics.]

Some seem to feel that anything which will put dollars into the pocket is proof of success, but it is not. The Pink Greek's Jest

How a Man Got Richly Paid
For Telling the Truth.

By WILLET STOCKARD
Copyright by Frank A. Munsey Co.

To his friends Newsome was known as the disinherited kid. He had been disowned by his father five different times, and upon the last occasion his father had sworn that he was through with him for all time.

But when the boy was arrested for the murder of one Mick Wamley and it began to look as if the case against him was a matter of life and death Mr. Newsome relented and did all in his power to save his son.

An acquaintance of Wamley's had gone to his room early one morning and had found Newsome there in a drunken sleep.

When the latter was awakened he arose, still a little unsteady on his feet, and went away, informing the other that he did not know of Wamley's whereabouts. A short time afterward Wamley's body was found under the bed with half a dozen wounds in the heart. A dirk was lying by his side.

A few hours later Newsome was arrested in his own room.

He denied at first that he had been at Wamley's for several days, but when told that three or four people had seen him when he left that morning he was forced to admit that he had spent the night there. He still insisted, however, that Wamley had not been there and that he had not seen him the night before at all.

Newsome persisted in denying the truth of the testimony of the others until he saw that his stand was utterly useless. Then he admitted having killed Wamley, but stated that it was in self defense.

He told numerous stories of the affair, in all of which he was trapped in some contradictory statements. Finally he confessed that he was dead drunk all of the day before and had no recollection of being with Wamley or of seeing him.

The defense had deplorably little evidence they could offer at the trial. The state, on the other hand, had more than it was considered necessary to use, more than enough for the jury to bring in a verdict of guilty after the first ballot. The prisoner was sentenced to death.

His lawyers continued to do their utmost. There was another trial.

And then when every recourse was exhausted, when even a father's frantic mind could think of nothing else to be done, when the last hope had succumbed, Mr. Newsome received a strange caller, a ferret faced man who gave the impression that he was a resident of the under part of the city.

"WILL YOU GIVE ME $5,000 IF I CAN SAVE YOUR SON?"

"Will you give me $5,000 if I can save your son for you?" he asked without preliminaries of any kind.

Mr. Newsome looked at him, surprised, but eagerly grasping at the least wisp of encouragement.

"Have you found out something about the case—some new evidence that will help?"

"Not a line, not a word," he answered, and then, after a pause of an instant, he added, "but I will."

"What do you mean? How will you?"

"Just you let me attend to all of that," said the visitor with a suave smile. "All you need do is to get the five thousand ready when I'm ready for it."

Leaving Mr. Newsome in the midst of a rush of questions, of entreaties and thanks, the other left and took a roundabout course toward the lower part of the city.

He entered a tenement in Elizabeth street, and went up to a flat upon the topmost floor, where his rap was answered by the appearance of a swarthy, and faced woman.

"I want to see your man Joe," he told her.

"He's very sick," she replied, but humbly led him into one of the inner rooms.

A man was lying on a bed beside the window opening upon a narrow inner court. The room was dark in spite of the fact that it was next to the roof. His face was haggard and covered with heavy beard, above the upper part of which showed a mark of red.

When the man was shaven one side of his face displayed a large patch of a light reddish color, a birthmark that had given him the name of the Pink Greek.

He looked up at his caller with slight interest.

"I'm mighty sorry to hear about it, Joe," the latter began, "but the croakers just told me that you'd pass in a day or two."

"Three days," the Greek interrupted snarlingly. "That's my business, ain't it?"

"I don't know. Probably it might concern your wife and your little kids."

"Then that's theirs. What's it to you?"

"Well, 'most everybody's alike in some ways, 'guns' and everybody else. When a man's wife has stuck by him, and he's got a lot of helpless little kids he's leaving behind, he usually can't help hating to go, especially when he knows they haven't got anything, and are going to get thrown out of the house in not more than a month or so."

The Greek made an effort to arise as he cursed the lawyer, railed at him for trying to torture a man who could not defend himself, threatened him and ordered him from the house.

"Now, now, Joe," went on the lawyer in a soothing voice, "don't fly all to pieces like that, because I'm your friend and I'm going to help you. I've worked out a scheme for us to get a thousand between us. I intended to split it fifty-fifty when I came down here, but I've got a heart, and—well, after I saw your wife and kids I decided to turn over nine hundred for them. The most of what's left will have to go for expenses I'll be put to in the case."

He hesitated and cast a significant look at the woman seated near the bed, but the sick man reassured him.

"She's all right," he said. "You don't have to be afraid to let her hear anything you got to say. Go on with it."

"Well, then," went on the lawyer, "what I want to say is this—you knew Mick Wamley, the gink they're planning to send that Newsome kid to the chair for croaking—you knew him and Newsome both, didn't you?"

The other nodded.

"I knew you did, and that's the reason why I came to you—that, and the fact that you'll soon be out of reach of the law, as you might put it. If you'll agree to what I'm asking of you, I'll promise that your statements won't be turned over to the authorities till after you're gone. What I want you to do is to say that you were the one that killed Wamley."

"Now," said the Greek's wife quickly, speaking with a foreign accent, "He didn't kill him. I don't want that he should say he did. The bumbinos—they're to be Americans. I don't want their father!"

"Now, just listen to me," interrupted the lawyer. "It won't hurt Joe's conscience to say what I'm asking him to, and it won't hurt his reputation. Everybody knows he bumped off that guy in Oliver street, and even the cops and the judge that turned him loose knew that he got the Italian on Centre street just after the gink snatched on him, although they didn't have evidence enough to hold him for it."

"Spring it, spring it," the dying man ordered. "You think I got all the time in the world to listen to you? Go on with the rest of it."

"I've got all the particulars of this Newsome case—everything that came up at the trial and a lot that didn't—so I can plot Wamley's movements every hour of the day and night before he was killed. I can dope out some story of a quarrel between you and him, and if you'll follow out what I tell you there won't be any chance for anybody to pick any flaws in the tale. He was killed the night of March the 16th. See if there isn't some way that you can remember where you were that night?"

"He was at home that night," the woman said. "He was sick. He had been in bed for two weeks."

"That was when this con was just beginning to get me down for the last time," the Greek explained. "She's right, because I remember when Wamley was killed. I hadn't been out of the flat for two weeks before then."

The lawyer pondered for awhile.

"People with your kind of sickness get a lot better every once in awhile for a little time, don't they?" he asked.

"I've been able to be up several times since then," the other answered. "I've been able to walk around a little."

"Good!" the lawyer interposed.

"We'll say that you got to feeling better that evening and got up and went out about town for awhile. Is there anybody that would know whether it was so or not?"

"Nobody but the wife, and she'll say anything I tell her," the Greek told him. "And you can get out," he went on to her, "and I'll tell you what I want you to do afterward."

"All right, we'll go over the story," resumed the lawyer.

They rehearsed it together at some length, the lawyer referring to his notes frequently, while the Greek in his own words gave an account of the affair that tallied with the known facts of the case.

"Good," said the former in conclusion. "I'll see old man Newsome right away, and you'll get the nine hundred tomorrow."

"Generous, ain't you?" the sick man interrupted. "I got to hand it to you for working out a stunt I never thought of myself, but Newsome's father is rich, and I know you're digging him for every dollar he'll stand for. You're welcome to every cent you can get out of him above what I want, but if I don't get five thousand you don't get a thing out of me."

The lawyer uttered a profane protest.

"Five thousand," returned the Greek. "Take it or I'll send somebody around to see the old man for myself."

The other started to continue the argument with him, but the sick man's temperature had risen alarmingly. He was deliciously set upon the amount named, and refused to listen to any attempt at a compromise. His caller was compelled to accede to his demands.

"Bring in the little bills," the sick man asked, "and you'd better come around early in the morning before this fever starts to coming up."

The lawyer returned to Mr. Newsome's residence and succeeded in getting the promise of an additional one thousand dollars from him.

The full amount was turned over to him early upon the following morning, and Mr. Newsome's representative and witnesses of the latter's selection were taken to the Greek's home.

They remained without for a few moments, while their escort spoke with the dying man, went over briefly some of the important points of the story, counted out the $5,000 in small bills, and turned them over to the man's wife. Then the others were admitted, and the Greek's confession was taken by a notary.

"WHAT MOTIVE DID YOU HAVE FOR KILLING WAMLEY?"

"I am the one who killed Mick Wamley on the night of March the 16th. I had been sick in bed for two weeks, but that evening I felt a little better and left the house about 9 o'clock. I walked by Dunn's cafe and saw Wamley and Newsome in there, and then I went on around toward Wamley's place and waited in an alley across the street until I saw him come home. Newsome was with him, and they were quarreling."

"I waited about twenty minutes after they'd gone in, and went into the building myself and sneaked up to Wamley's room. He was asleep when I got in, and I stabbed him six or eight times in all. I supposed it was. I rolled him under the bed then, and pitched the knife under there after him. Nobody saw me when I entered the building, and nobody saw me when I was leaving or when I came back home. I told the woman there to say that I'd been worse that day and hadn't been outside of the house at all. In case anybody came around asking about me, and she can tell you so herself."

The woman nodded dutifully.

"The courts couldn't find anything about Wamley's record, who he was or where he'd come from," went on the sick man. "I could have told them. His name was Rost. He was from the same place I'm from back in the old country. We had trouble about a girl there ten years ago, he and I. He runs away to this country. I follow him here a few years later. I'd sworn to kill him. I find him here, and that's all."

"If you came over here under oath to kill him how do you account for the fact that you knew him here and was with him frequently for several years without ever trying to get him?"

"I never got the right kind of chance I wanted. When I find him here he is a big man and has many friends. I make friends with him, too, and wait. And then when I find out I'm to die I know it's my last chance, so I get up the first time I'm strong enough and—"

The Greek spread his hands in an expressive gesture.

The sick man answered the few other questions asked him, supplied the necessary dates and names and completed the confession to the satisfaction of the others.

All of them left within a few minutes, with the exception of the lawyer, who remained for another word or two with the dying man.

"I got to hand it to you, Joe," said the lawyer, with the same look of admiration. "You are one swell witness. If I'd known you were that good I could have used you a dozen times in the last two years."

The speaker stopped suddenly and stared in astonishment, for the Pink Greek—was laughing!

It was a weird spectacle, the dying man who was laughing even while gasping for breath. It was only with an effort that he succeeded in controlling his mirth.

"Some graft!" he said in his low, gasping whisper. "Five thousand—for telling—the truth!"

Work on the new bowling alleys at the Calumet Club has been greatly hindered by the union organizations employed. The alley builders, it is reported, refused to start work while the building contractor's men were working. After this held up the work for some time the alley men now refuse to perform their work as the wood which has been prepared for the job is from a mill where a strike is now in progress. The alterations necessary for the two new alleys are completed and the ladies' locker and toilet room completed. The alleys will be greatly improved by the additions, providing every accommodation as well as six alleys. It is planned to hold a big opening on the new alleys in the early fall.

What are the outstanding characteristic features of this Commonwealth? Massachusetts is the fifth smallest State in area but the sixth largest in population, and indensity of population the second. Ours is essentially an urban and manufacturing population, as is seen from the following facts. Though sixth in population, Massachusetts is fourth in the value of manufactured products, and actually first in about a score of lines. For example, Massachusetts manufactures nearly as many boots and shoes as all other states combined; it is first in cotton and woolen manufactures and in the manufacturing of various kinds of machinery, and in a dozen other industries.

What is a reasonable inference from this state of affairs? The Massachusetts legislature will inevitably contain an abundance, a superabundance of lawyers, enough and more than enough to safeguard all the legal aspects of legislation. What is needed, and sadly needed, is a larger representation of other important interests. The two individuals mentioned would unquestionably prove themselves worthy, faithful, conscientious representatives; but they could not, in the very nature of things, exercise that superlative influence that might be exerted by a business man. Of course one would prefer a first-rate lawyer to a fourth-rate business man; but if it were possible to get first-rate business men, a few such chosen from various parts of the State would add to the value of our legislation all out of proportion to their numbers.

Was not Winchester an opportunity, and the man, to contribute its part toward increasing the effectiveness of the personnel of the State legislature? Such a man occurs to me; but I wish to say at once that I have not mentioned this subject to him and do not know whether he would consent to serve anyway. That, however, does not affect the theory involved, namely, the advantage possessed by a successful business man. The person I have in mind is Mr. Preston Pond, who was for many years the manager of a large concern doing the largest business of its kind in this country; a man now retired from business, but still at the height of his physical and mental vigor; who does not need the office for its salary or for its advertising advantages; who can devote his entire time and strength and experience to the performance of the duties of the position.

This is not a question respecting individuals or personalities, but one vitally involving theories and principles of government. What Winchester now has, or may have, is, in my opinion, a chance to strengthen the make-up of the legislature in a respect where strength is especially needed, in a field whose business interests are now too inadequately represented by the type of man so well exemplified in Mr. Pond.

MR. F. R. MILLER RESIGNS.

Mr. Frank R. Miller, Clerk of the Selectmen, has submitted his resignation to the Board to take effect August first, because of increased business responsibilities. Mr. Miller's resignation will be a distinct loss to the town. He has been a most efficient Clerk, attending all meetings of the Board and ably and systematically taking care of the constantly increasing clerical work. During the time that he has been clerk he has thoroughly systematized the business of the office, and it is safe to say that no town in this vicinity has a more up-to-date method of handling its correspondence and the records of the meetings of the Selectmen than has Winchester. Mr. Miller is a methodical man and likewise a thorough business man. He holds a responsible position with a prominent Fertilizer Company in Boston.

TRADERS' OUTING.

At the urgent request of many of the traders and their friends it has been finally decided to have the Traders' Outing at Canobie Lake, N. H., on Wednesday, August 9. Bass Point was chosen first, but it was thought that this resort having become so familiar and so near home another place should be selected. Last year the outing was held at Canobie Lake, but as there was a continuous down-pour of rain during the entire day, but little could be seen or enjoyed of the numerous attractions which this resort offers. The ride in the electric to the Lake offers one of the best scenic routes in the State. At the outing there will be baseball and sports of various kinds, boating, bathing and fishing and a fine time. Special cars will leave the centre at 8.15 prompt. Tickets can be procured of Mr. Hersey at the Hersey Hardware store and of other members of the committee.

BUILDING PERMITS

The following permits have been issued by the Inspector of Buildings for the week ending July 20:

Old Colony Realty Co., 30 State street, Boston: wood frame dwelling at corner of Lakeview avenue and Parkway, 25x44 feet.

Frederick S. Snyder, 350 Highland avenue: Alterations to porch at same address; wood frame play-house at same address, 10x15 feet; wood frame wagon shed at same address, 15x60 feet.

Mrs. Frances T. Dinneen, corner of Webster street and Highland avenue: Brick and cement garage, 10x16 feet.

BATHING NOT STOPPED.

Contrary to reports circulated the first of the week that bathing had been ordered stopped at Sandy Beach at Mystic Lake by the Metropolitan Park Commission, such is not the case. Or at least the children were still allowed to go in bathing there yesterday, the officials in charge having had no orders to the contrary.

Many of the children have been forbidden by their parents to go into the water, and it was said on Monday that the beach had been closed. Evidently the analysis of the water which the Commission had taken last week showed nothing harmful.

NO EVENING BAND CONCERTS.

In a communication to the Selectmen, who had requested that some of the band concerts be given in the evening, the Metropolitan Park Commission reply that they could not see their way clear to make such a change as the contracts with the bands had already been made, but that they would give the matter consideration next year.

Evening concerts would be more popular with the people who cannot attend in the afternoon, and no doubt the change will be made next year.

SELECTMEN'S MEETING.

Clerk Miller Severs Connections With the Board.

July 17, 1916.
The Board met at 7.30 P. M., present Messrs. Davidson, Kerr, Hayward and Sanborn.

Through Car Service to Harvard Square: Notice was received from the Public Service Commission on the petition of citizens of Winchester that a hearing on the matter of establishment of through car service between Winchester and Harvard Square, Cambridge, would be held at the Commission's office, 1 Beacon Street, on Monday, July 31, 1916, at 10.30 A. M. A copy of this notice was also received from the Clerk of Selectmen of the Town of Arlington. Mr. Kerr made a report on progress made by him in the matter.

Aberjona River: A letter was received from N. B. Crosby, President Mystic Side Improvement Association, acknowledging receipt of invitation to attend the conference of July 10 relating to the condition of the Aberjona River, and stating that the matter of the pollution of the Mystic Lakes was first brought to the attention of the Association through one of its committees, and that they had enlisted the services of their representative, Mr. Bitzer, who had given much of his time to the matter and consequently was very familiar with all its phases, that Mr. Bitzer had been delegated to represent the Association at the conference and from his report of the meeting they believed the matter would be prosecuted to a successful culmination. The Association expressed its readiness to co-operate at all times with the towns and organizations interested in the subject of securing a discontinuance of the pollution of the stream.

The Chairman reported that a conference with the Merrimack Chemical Company at their Woburn works had been arranged for July 27, at 2 P. M.

Licenses 1916 Explosives and Inflammables: After due notice and hearing, and on the recommendation of the Chief Engineer of the Fire Department, William E. Schraft, 81 Church Street, Winchester, was licensed to store gasoline in an outside tank and pump of a capacity not to exceed 175 gallons on Arlington Street subject to the payment of the usual fee of $1. and subject also to the approval of the Chief Engineer of the Fire Department.

Moving Buildings Railroad Avenue: The Kelley & Hawes Co. was granted permission to move their express office building on Railroad Avenue to a temporary location on the Price lot on the same avenue, the occupation of this lot by the building referred to to cease January 1, 1917.

Licenses 1916 Common Victuallers: The application of Nicola Mandello for a license of this class refused July 10 was reconsidered and after discussion a license was issued to him to cover the occupation of the premises 63 Swanton Street to May 1, 1917, unless sooner revoked.

Band Concerts: A letter was received from the Metropolitan Park Commission in response to a letter from this Board stating that they could not see their way clear to make changes in the time of concerts given by them during the present season as the contracts had already been made, but that the matter would be given consideration next year.

BAPTIST NEWS.

The Union Services for the next three weeks will be held in the Baptist Church and conducted by the pastor. Nine addresses will be given during these three weeks upon the general subject, "The Christ of Today." On Sunday morning the subject will be "The Changeless Christ," and on Sunday evening, "His Gospel of Good Cheer." On Wednesday evening the third address, "The Unsearchable Riches of Christ." To all these services everyone is most cordially invited.

The delegate of the Young People's Society to the Northfield Summer School for Women's Foreign Missionary Societies held this week is Miss Mildred Frances Bartlett. With her at this Conference also are Miss Ethel McLean and Miss Helen McLean.

STUART BISHOP.

Was a Former Well-Known and Respected Resident.

Stuart Bishop, a respected and well-known resident of this town for the past 44 years, passed away on Tuesday after an illness of five years. He was 74 years of age.

Mr. Bishop was widely known among Winchester residents. He was born at Hatley, P. Q., and was the son of Mary (Henry) and Nathaniel Bishop of Barre, Vt. Coming to this town when a young man, he entered the employ of the Boston & Lowell Railroad as assistant agent at the Winchester station, his brother Henry acting as agent. He worked for the railroad for many years, later taking the position as Custodian of the Schools for the Town. He had charge of the Schools for about 10 years, including also the Unitarian Church, which he cared for an even longer period.

Mr. Bishop was stricken with a paralytic shock five years ago, and a day from the time he was first stricken. Following the shock he rallied and improved, and for two years was able to be out of doors and about, but for the past three years his condition had steadily failed and by a recent shock he was stricken with blindness.

He is survived by his wife, who was Miss Flora Scribner of Washington, Vt., and by two daughters, Miss Edith L. Bishop of this town and Mrs. E. N. Willis of Dallas, Texas. He was a member of long standing in the Unitarian Church and was a Mason, being a member of Pentucket Lodge of Lowell and of the Woburn Royal Arch Chapter.

The funeral services were held yesterday afternoon in the parlors of the Unitarian Church and were conducted by Rev. Joel H. Metcalf, the pastor. There was an abundance of beautiful floral offerings, sent by the many old friends of Mr. Bishop, and the services were attended by representatives of the Masonic Order.

The burial was in the family lot at Wildwood Cemetery.

During the services the hymns "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere" and "The Homeland" were sung by Mr. T. N. Shufelt of the church choir. The honorary pall bearers were members of Pentucket Lodge.

BILLBOARD CASE IN COURT NEXT WEEK.

The case of the Town against Frank Donahue of Malden, foreman of the Donnelly Bill Posting Co., will come up in the Woburn court a week from tomorrow, Saturday, August 29th.

Donahue was engaged in erecting the huge billboard on the Laraway building in the centre last week Thursday and was ordered by the Inspector of Buildings to stop work under the charge that he was violating the building laws by making an addition to a building without a permit. Donahue refused to stop the work and completed the job. Under our building laws the Inspector has no power to enforce his order, and was compelled to stand by and see the work completed. He did, however, summons Donahue into court.

The case came up Tuesday, but as Mr. Donnelly of the Bill Posting Company was away, a continuance was granted until a week from tomorrow.

IN THE HAYFIELD AT 90.

Varnum P. Locke, one of the oldest residents of the town, observed his 90th birthday at his home on Cambridge street Monday. There was no formal celebration of the event and Mr. Locke went about his work during the day much as usual, although he was visited by many friends. He was out in the hayfield with the men. He is in splendid physical condition for a man of his years, eats and sleeps well and his mind and memory are exceptionally clear.

He was born in South Woburn, July 17, 1826. This part of that town was later set off when Winchester was incorporated. He is the last of a family of 10 children, his parents being Jonathan and Betsy Locke. He is one of the family from whom Lockes Hill on the west side of the town is named. His wife was Miss Elizabeth C. Hutchinson, also a native of South Woburn. They had four children, two sons and two daughters. All but one son are living.

PLAYGROUND TEAM PLAYS WEDNESDAY.

The Manchester Field Playground team will play its first ball game with an outside team next Wednesday when it will meet the team from the City Field Playground of Somerville.

NO STORES ON WEST SIDE.

Syndicate Purchases Gasometer Lot to Sell for Residences.

Negotiations have been completed on the so-called gasholder lot on Church St. and papers were passed this week whereby the lot becomes the property of a trust composed of a company of West Side gentlemen who will have the lot cleaned up at once and placed on the market for sale for residential purposes.

The Board wishes to state at this time that during the recent discussion regarding the disposition of the lot, some criticisms were made of the Arlington Gas Light Company which were decidedly unfair to the officials of that Company and which we desire to correct. In the course of the negotiations for the repurchase of that property, we inquired regarding the various steps leading up to its sale by the Gas Company in the first instance, and we are satisfied that no one connected with the Company had any knowledge whatever until some time after the agreement and sale was executed that the purchaser was to use the property for a commercial development. On the contrary, it was understood that the purchaser was contemplating the erection of a residence. We found the officials of the Arlington Gas Light Company ready and willing to co-operate with us in our efforts to preserve this section of our town as a residential district, and feel free to say that without their help it would probably have been impossible for us to accomplish our purpose.

Board of Selectmen.

MARGUERITE LEVERING AYER.

"We live in deeds, not years; in thoughts, not breaths; in feelings, not in figures on a dial. We should count time by heart throbs. He most lives who thinks most; feels the noblest, acts the best."

On the 29th of June there went out from our midst one whose years had numbered only half the allotted scriptural span. But in those thirty-five years she had lived intensely—a life measured by deeds and heart throbs—not by calendars and clocks. Marguerite Levering Ayer, born in Cambridge, May 12, 1881, was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Rowell Woods. Before her marriage to Mr. William F. Ayer, she was a member of St. James Church, Cambridge, under Rev. Dr. Edward Abbott, and since then of the Church of the Epiphany, Winchester. She was a member of the Abigail Adams Chapter of the D. A. R. of Boston and of the MacDorville Club, also of a small musical club in Winchester, where she will be deeply missed. In her home town she had many friends and was especially loved by her fellow-workers in the St. Barbara Committee of the Woman's Guild, in the Episcopal Church. She served as treasurer of this group for several years, and her loyalty, enthusiasm, and untiring energy in furthering good works, will be an inspiration to every member for higher aims, and greater achievement. Her generosity and thoughtfulness for those less fortunate, her spirit of courage and cheer, in spite of ill health, her impulsive warm-hearted nature have left a stamp upon the lives of all who knew her.

It is the earnest hope and purpose of her immediate family that the influence of her life shall live, not only in the hearts and lives of her friends, but that it may find expression in some more permanent form. To this end her mother is planning with the Winchester Hospital Committee the endowing of a room to her memory. It is hoped that her friends and co-workers in the St. Barbara Committee will co-operate with Mrs. Woods in making this memorial room a place of hopefulness and cheer and sunshine; a place where the courage and unselfishness of the one in whose memory it is given shall be so pervasive that one must instinctively feel that "She being dead, yet speaketh."

BODY IN RIVER.

Remains of Grace Parkhurst Found This Morning.

The body of Miss Grace L. Parkhurst of Green street, Woburn, 36 years old, missing from her home since Wednesday night, was found this morning floating in Black Ball Pond about 50 feet from the shore at the rear of the Christian Science church.

The body was discovered at 7.20 by Henry Maguire and an Italian who were walking on the path which borders the pond. It was in an upright position with the head and shoulders out of the water.

The police were notified, and by aid of the boat kept at the rear of the station for just such an emergency, the body was recovered by Patrolman Donaghey and John J. Flaherty of the Fire Department. The remains were badly decomposed, it being said that the whole body was of a copper green color similar to the color of the water.

Miss Parkhurst left her home at 7 o'clock Wednesday night to post a letter and had not been seen since. All day yesterday Boy Scouts and others searched the shores of Horn Pond and beat the woods between Woburn and Winchester in hopes of finding some trace of her. It is said that she had been in ill health for some time and that the heat of the past few days had depressed her.

It is thought that she wandered into the pond from the shore near where the body was found. How the woman travelled from her home in Woburn to this town without being seen is a mystery.

NO INFANTILE PARALYSIS IN WINCHESTER.

Reports were circulated about town yesterday afternoon that an Italian child had died on the Plains of infantile paralysis. The report was absolutely unfounded.

The facts of the case are that Raffaele Ficocello, the seven year old daughter of Antonio Ficocello of Swanton street, a well-known Italian grocer, was taken ill last Saturday and last night was in a very dangerous condition. Dr. Richard Sheehy is the attending physician. He states that the child is afflicted with a form of meningitis, but that it is not in any way infantile paralysis.

The case has been very carefully watched and as late as yesterday a specialist from the Carney Hospital visited the patient. A trained nurse is in attendance and every effort is being made to save the little one's life.

MRS. FRANK W. HODGDON.

Mrs. Edith M. C. Hodgdon, wife of Rev. Frank W. Hodgdon, who was formerly pastor of the First Congregational Church of this town, died at her home at Glen Rock, Malden, last night of pernicious anemia. She was 49 years of age and was born in Duxbury, her parents being Andrew C. and Christiana (Soule) Chick.

The funeral services will be held from the residence on Sunday afternoon at 3.30. The burial will be at Duxbury.

Midshipman Arthur S. Adams entertained Midshipman C. Withers of Washington, D. C., and Midshipman H. H. Smith of Springfield, Mass., at his home on Mystic avenue over Sunday.

YOUR AFFAIRS AND MINE

After two thousand years of Christianity and centuries of striving to realize the democratic ideal—and with some measure of success—it is still extremely difficult for men to think of humanity as a whole, or of individuals apart from the little groups to which they may perchance happen to belong. Men, as we see them, are not men, but Republicans or Democrats, capitalists or laborers, natives or foreigners, Gentiles or Jews, blacks or whites. And when we find a flaw in the character of any one of them we attribute it to the whole group, and assume that it is to be traced to membership in that group, quite forgetting that it is shared by thousands and perhaps millions of men of all groups, and common to them all. There is, The Spectator, would point out, danger in thinking of people in the mass—the danger of falling into a mushy universalism in which real and vital differences are ignored, and the sense of personality lost. But the safeguard is, not in dealing with men in smaller masses—which yet may be very large—but as individuals. It is not enough partly to break up the mass—we must do it wholly if we are to reach fair and just conclusions. It is as great a mistake to attempt to estimate men in groups or blocks as it would be for The Spectator to write in phrases rather than words. In each case the method is vicious—as is the result reached. There is, of course, such a thing as humanity, but most of us here in Winchester and elsewhere have little to do with it, our dealings being with men. The group judgment is rarely accurate as applied to the mass, and almost never so when applied to the individual. There are, it is true, racial and group differences, and men do take color from their associations. But these differences are insignificant as compared with the likenesses between groups—and it is these latter that ought to be emphasized if we are to be true to Christian teaching and democratic philosophy. And we must be true to these, since loyalty to them means loyalty to truth. There can be no clear thinking on this subject on any other basis.

Whitman brought Christianity and democracy together thus: "What Christ appeared for in the moral-spiritual field for human-kind, namely, that in respect to the absolute soul, there is in the possession of such by each single individual, something so transcendent, so incapable of gradations (like life), that, to that extent, it places all beings on a common level, utterly regardless of the distinction of intellect, virtue, station or any height or lowliness whatever—is tallied in like manner, in this other field, by the rule of democracy that men, the nation, as a common aggregate of living identities, affording in each a separate and complete subject for freedom, worldly thrift and happiness, and for a fair chance for growth, and for protection in citizenship, etc., must, to the political extent of the suffrage or vote, if no further, be placed in each and in the whole, on one broad, primary, universal, common platform." The difficulty is in thinking of men as equal through the common possession of a soul, so completely equal as to make it impossible to classify them by differences that seem to us vital, but that really are of minor importance. We cannot control our likes and dislikes—may we are entitled to them—or free ourselves from our prejudices, which indeed may be more than prejudices. Lots of people here in Winchester have—as Charles Lamb had—"imperfect sympathies." It is through these sympathies that we select our friends, and discriminate among them. Lamb did not like Quakers, Jews, Scotchmen, or negroes, but he admitted that he was a "bundle of prejudices—made up of likings and dislikings—the veriest thrall to sympathies, antipathies." And he said: "In a certain sense, I hope it may be said of me that I am a lover of my species." He certainly was. But he did not permit his likes and dislikes to embitter his soul, cloud his judgment, or blind his eyes to the dangers likely to flow from them. He never sought to impose them on others. Rather he apologized for them, and perhaps regretted them. The very title of the essay, "Imperfect Sympathies," is condemnatory of his attitude.

This drawing of lines, setting up barriers and shutting the door of opportunity in the face of any child of God ought not even to be thought of. There is no end to the process when it is once begun. The Greeks characterized as barbarians all who lived beyond the borders of Greece. The Jews were quite as scornful, for were they not "the chosen people?" And today the whole civilization of India is based on a rigid caste system. While in our own free, enlightened and democratic country there are many people who hate the Chinese and Japanese, and, what is more, would control their political action by that hate. Is there not something of the caste system underlying the whole spirit? If there is we must get rid of it, or else prepare to reconstruct our political system on some other basis than the Declaration of Independence. Surely it is the duty of this people to try to live up to the level of the institutions of which they are so justly proud. We smile at the old prejudices of the Greeks, Jews and Romans. We are amused—when not irritated—by the enormous claims which certain German writers today are making for their own country, its civilization, institutions and "kultur." Yet we, at least as individuals, are guilty of the same arrogance, since when we depreciate others we by implication and inference assert our own superiority. All men need today—as they always have needed—broader views, juster judgments and much more perfect sympathies—and more humility. And these are hard to come by, but the effort is well worth while. "Who art thou?" said St. Paul long ago, "that judgest another man's servant? To his own master he standeth or falleth." Indeed, in the opinion of The Spectator there is no more noble preaching of the gospel of toleration and charity than that contained in the chapter of the epistle to the Romans from which the above words are taken. It is a doctrine that greatly needs to be inculcated at the present time. For there are divisive forces at work in this country that, unless checked, will operate disastrously.

SANDY BEACH CLOSED.

Owing to the condition of the water of the river which flows through the town and empties into Mystic Lake, the Metropolitan Park Commission has ordered that the children's bathing place, Sandy Beach, on the north shore of the big lake, be closed indefinitely.

With the closing of this place Winchester children have no place to swim except the small beach on the west shore of Wedge Pond. This place is comparatively clean, owing to the fact that Wedge Pond is largely fed from springs and clean water. There is, however, no supervision over the children bathing there.

It is to be regretted that with such a fine place as Sandy Beach within its borders the children of the Town cannot enjoy the water this hot weather, but it appears to be a wise precaution on the part of the Park Commission to close it, for the water certainly does not appear fit for human beings to go into, and already several stories are heard of conditions affecting some of the children who have visited the beach which would seem to prove the fact.

BY-LAW DISAPPROVED.

Town Clerk Carter received notification on Monday that Attorney General Henry C. Atwell has disapproved the town by-law passed at the April 17th session of the March town meeting.

The vote passed and the by-law was as follows:

Voted, That section 11 of Article VIII of the By-Laws be amended by striking out the first two sentences and substituting therefor the following:

"Every building for habitation or occupancy shall have such number of water closets, but in no case less than one for each tenement, as the Board of Health may from time to time require. Every building where persons are employed shall have such number of water closets, but not less than one for each fifteen employees, and such separate accommodations for different sexes, as the Board of Health may from time to time require."

LEBANON STREET SPRING.

The Selectmen are to place a bubbler fountain at the foot of Lebanon street, corner of Washington, tapping the well-known spring at that place. This will be appreciated by many persons. The water flows in cold and scores of families were in the habit of using it for drinking purposes. The old fountain was discontinued when the law required individual drinking cups or a bubbler.

On Monday evening of last week the Selectmen of Winchester held a special meeting in their office at Winchester, to discuss the alleged pollution of the Aberjona river, which has its course through that town and flows into Mystic lakes. They had in conference at the session, Representative Jacob Bitzer and ex-president of the Middlesex Sportsmen's Association, N. J. Hardy, both of Arlington; also, a representative of the mills which are said to turn deleterious matter into the river at a point some distance from Winchester. The meeting was amicable in all respects and will doubtless lead to devising some method whereby the alleged nuisance will be abated. It is the desire to stock the lakes with fish, but it is not feasible to do so till the waters are rid of all chemicals. [Arlington Advocate.]

NEWSY PARAGRAPHS.

Monday afternoon on a Woburn electric car from Boston the conductor after the car had left Winthrop square, Medford, proceeded to collect the fares. When he came to a man and woman, the former who had the appearance of one who was extremely fond of liquor, told the conductor to "take his name" in lieu of the two fares. Much to the surprise of the surrounding passengers, the conductor took from his pocket a writing pad and pencil which he handed to the man. He passed it over to the woman and it is presumed wrote his name on it and handed it back to the conductor, when the incident appeared to be closed. Is this a new rule for those passengers who cannot pay fares?

THIEVES AT COUNTRY CLUB.

Thieves visited the Winchester Country Club house Monday night and secured quite an assortment of loot including $26 in cash. The break occurred some time after eleven o'clock at night and is thought to have been the work of boys or someone familiar with the club.

The officer used by Harry Bowler, the instructor at the club, was broken into by breaking the glass in a window beside the catch. A camera valued at $40, a rifle and case and two watches were taken. Going to the rear of the newly constructed portion of the club another basement window was broken by the thieves at the foot of a flight of stairs leading to the cigar stand on the second floor. At this place cigars, cigarettes and money were taken. This place was thoroughly ransacked by the thieves in their search for money, charge slips, golf balls and other contents being piled about indiscriminately in their search.

The Winchester police were notified early Tuesday morning and at once began work on the case. The Country Club house is within the limits of the Town of Arlington and the police of that place are also working on the case.

BROKE ARM AT PLAYGROUND.

Paul Quigley, twelve years old, received a bad fracture of his left arm at the Playground on Manchester Field Saturday afternoon during the ball game. The boy attempted to vault one of the posts used to hold the ropes around the ball diamond, and in so doing his trousers caught as he went over the top, causing him to fall heavily on his arm. The fracture was a bad one, the forearm bone being broken in two places. The accident occurred at the back of the grand stand and was witnessed by a Metropolitan Park officer, who took the boy to the police station where he was taken in the automobile to the Winchester Hospital.

The afternoon was one of the worst that Instructor Leland and his assistant, Miss Reed, have experienced for some time. The number of children who used the apparatus was so large that it was impossible for them to properly supervise them except partly, and several narrow escapes from accidents occurred. Two foul balls from the base ball game went among them, one little girl being pulled out of the way by a bystander just in time to escape being hit and the other ball being caught by Inspector Leland at the swings. One child was struck by a swing and knocked down. It is estimated that there were about 4,000 people at the field during the afternoon.

No less than 150 persons enjoyed the truck ride given by John E. Redmond Branch, I. N. F., last Sunday afternoon to Canobie Lake, N. H. The start was made from in front of the Foresters rooms at the corner of Main and Park streets at 1.30, the party returning at 10.30. A short stop made at the Lake and also a stop in South Lawrence, owing to a break in the feed pipe on one of the autos. The ride was held under the direction of a committee composed of Messrs. Timothy Murphy, Thomas Kane and Andrew Dalton.

OUR FUTURE STATE.

The following, an original poem written by Mrs. Frances Sullivan for the last meeting of Santa Maria Court, D. of L., is printed upon the request of some of the members who were unable to attend the meeting:

They tell us that the deeds we do—however good or bad—
Are recorded by an angel on a great big writing-pad.
And then he strikes a balance on what our records tell.
And some of us get Heaven—and some of us—do not.

Now I wonder if that angel knows this Isabella crew,
And if he takes us separately to give each one her due:
For if he takes us one by one, our chances will be slim,
But if he takes us as a whole, we all may wriggle in.

I wonder if that angel always gets our records straight.
If he ever makes an error or gets twisted on a date;
Perhaps it might be policy to jot our virtues down—
For fear he may not give to each her shining, jeweled crown.

Our Regent is a splendid one,—of this there is no doubt—
No Angel would record her faults, if he ever found them out;
We hope, if she's allotted a special throne of grace,
She'll speak for us—her sisters—or save us each a place.

Vice-Regent has been wedded—for better or for bad—
May his virtues be recorded upon that Sacred Pad!
Her hope of Heaven's mercy depends alone on him,
If he wins through to glory she knows that she'll get in.

Our Prophetess may prophesy, old Moses out of fame,
Unless the jealous Angel writes "taboo" against her name;
Historian has our sins and crimes all labeled in her book:
(We hope to heaven she'll burn it—if not, we'll get the "hook!")

The Treasurer has hopes of bliss, but sometimes gets the blues,—
For the D. I. Guild is on her trail in noiseless rubber shoes;
We hope the Secretary'll mark our unpaid dues O. K.
There is a time to stretch the truth—that time is Judgment Day.

To our Monitor we doff our hats, and so will Gabriel,
She'll make a lovely angel,—she acts the part so well!
The Sentinel will get a job with Peter at the Gate:—
And God help any sister who is half an hour late!

Our Organist will be employed as leader in a band,
They always welcome singers to that dim and distant land;
They'll give to Sister Coty of golden seats her choice,
For the Angel will be "tickled" when he hears her glorious voice.

The Lecturer, endowed by one angelic disposition,
Will ride her goat, with ease and grace, past Peter's inquisition;
Trustees will surely need a lift, or maybe a wheel-barrow,
They have such huge dimensions—and the Gate is mighty narrow.

Our Sewing Circle won't get there by making "bloomer" things,
For the latest style in Paradise at present time is—wings;
Yet if the "Poor" Committee thinks to corner all the "pickin's", There'll be a battle royal, and some most ungodly "lickin's."

Though the Sick Committee tends the sick, (the Angel knows of that.)
Yet it never sent a token when the Reaper took my cat;
We wish that Lil and others wouldn't dance that queer Tan-go—
If the Angel ever hears of it, we'll never get a show.

Our brides will be unhappy; in that heaven up above
There'll be no time to spoon or to construe the verb "to love";
Perhaps the kindly Angel, when he hears their woeful story,
May ship them to a warmer clime—maybe to Purgatory.

The workers at the Garden Feast are sure of getting passes—
The Angel can distinguish them without the aid of glasses;
But Mrs. A—will be quite lost without her occupation—
They say we won't wear pockets—hence there'll be no more donation.

The members of the D. I. Guild will not be leading numbers,— There'll be such heat in their retreat as may disturb their slumbers;
We Suffragists will have no chance

Help us to HOLD DOWN— Tire Prices

TIRES, and GASOLINE, "make the Wheels go round!"
A Car in the Garage COSTS as much as a Car-on-the-Road, but it pays no dividends, on the Investment, so long as it STAYS in the Garage.

The VALUE of the Car,—to its Owner,—narrows down, in the ultimate, to the precise number of Hours he USES that Car, yearly.

If a $2,000 Car be owned for, say, 4 years (then sold for $600.) there has been $1,400 of Car-Value absorbed by the Owner,—equal to, say, $350. per year. If then, that Car be USED 913 Hours in the year, it would cost him but 38 CENTS per Hour, for Car-Use.

But,—if he used it only HALF that number of Hours, yearly, the Car would cost him 100% MORE for every Hour he used it.

How MUCH he uses it will depend,—to a considerable extent,—upon the PRICE of TIRES and GASOLINE.

This was one of the reasons why we (Jan. 31st, 1915) inaugurated the Goodrich "FAIR-LIST" Propaganda against High-prices, and Padded-Price-Lists, on Tires.

It is a further reason why we NOW keep our own Goodrich Prices DOWN to the very moderate "Fair-List" figures here quoted.

BBETTER Fabric Tires are NOT made, and cannot be made,—at ANY price,—than are produced by The B. F. Goodrich Co.

A 15%, to 50%, higher price could well be justified for these same Tires, by fair comparison with other Tires sold at 15% to 50% higher prices.

Will you help your own interests (present and future), by further expanding the Sale of that Tire which demonstrates its Intention, through LOWERING the Cost of its Tires to you, with every INCREASE in its Volume?

Will you thus endorse, and support, the Goodrich Policy which automatically PREVENTS OTHER Makers from forcing UP the Market on Tires?

Compare Goodrich Fair-List prices, here quoted.
Bear in mind that NO Fabric Tires,—at ANY price,—are "better,"—no House more Fair, and LIBERAL, on proper Adjustments.

THE B. F. GOODRICH CO., Akron, O.

Goodrich "Fair-List" Prices

30x3	Ford Sizes (Safety-Treads)	$10.40	34x4	(Safety-Treads)	$22.40
30x3½		$13.40	35x4½		$31.20
32x3½		$15.45	36x4½		$31.60
33x4		$22.00	37x5		$37.35

NOTICE.—These Tires are as perfect as Fabric Tires can be made.
But, should any dissatisfaction whatever arise, with any Goodrich Tire, its Owner is invited, and REQUESTED, to take the matter up promptly with us,—the Makers.
He will find that Fair, Square, and LIBERAL treatment will always be extended, on all proper adjustments.

to get a single look in,
We'll have to go 'way down below where every one is cookin'.

Our Social Chairman, E. T. C., will take a sporting chance
Of paralyzing Peter with a calm and steady glance;
When once within the portal she will make that host "get busy,"—
The angels may be short o' breath "akeeping up with Lizzie."
She'll rout old Adam and the boys from their long stagnant ease,
She'll blow around among the saints like a western cyclone-breeze,
She'll monkey with their politics—revise their rules again;
She'll reinstate proud Lucifer—and probably raise Cain.

In spite of all, I'm hoping that her efforts to do good
May receive the Angel's sanction, may be rightly understood;
For although she's made me hustle to fill this paper's space,
I know that Heaven without her will be a joyless place.

Now as for me, I'm worried—as, perhaps, are some of you—
About the clothes we will not wear; and the stunts we'll have to do;
We'll have to play on harps and lutes through long Eternal Day;
They don't serve pie, they don't serve meat, we'll have no strength to pray.

I've never learned to play the lute, you've never played on harps,— We'll make an awful mess, I think, of flats and also sharps;
The drinks will all be spirit-less, the bread will be unleaven,—
It seems to me that most of us were never made for Heaven.

GOES AS NURSE TO BORDER.

Mrs. William H. Mobbs, wife of Lieut. Mobbs of Company G, of Elmwood avenue, left Monday for Texas to join her husband. Mrs. Mobbs was accompanied by Mrs. Charles H. Robbin of Plymouth, wife of the Captain of Company D, 5th regiment.

Immediately following the outbreak of the trouble at the border for which the Massachusetts troops were called, Mrs. Mobbs offered her services as a Red Cross Nurse and her proffer of assistance was accepted. Mrs. Mobbs will enlist in the Red Cross attached to the Fifth regiment if there are hostilities at the border.

PRESIDENTIAL POINTERS

The ninth presidential election in 1820 came during the so-called "era of good feeling." Five new states took part, making 24 altogether, with 235 electoral votes. President Monroe had no opposition and received every electoral vote but one, that of a New Hampshire elector, who cast his vote for John Quincy Adams. Three electors died between the general election and the meeting of the electors. Vice President Tompkins was re-elected, receiving 218 of the 232 votes cast.

A hunter's license has been issued to President Wilson. Is it possible that he intends to go to Mexico?

Of course we are now assured that meat prices will be no lower. But the question is, how much higher?

Medford appears to have a real political Mayor. They say that he gives more time to politics than he does to the duties of the office, and that he desires to be the whole thing.

Indications are now that the Teutons are beginning to experience troublous times, and the worse they are the sooner this needless war will be over.

It is only necessary to criticize President Wilson to get the editor of the Boston Post real mad. Certainly both he and the Post will have a great deal to explain between now and November.

Some time in the future the Aberjona river, where it runs from above Cross street south will have to be cleaned out. The river is gradually narrowing and being filled in with silt which causes the water to flow onto private land.

Just think what a mass of material the Public Service Commission will have to wade through regarding the Bay State Railroad hearings on six cent fares, between now and the first of September! Hearings have been held for almost a year.

First he was too proud to fight. Then he confessed that for the good of a man's soul it was occasionally necessary to knock the man's block off, and that his fists were always doubled for the purpose. Recently he confessed that he was in a fighting mood. Now he seems to be undecided. Well?—[Medford Review.]

Our Inspector of Buildings is in a position similar to that of a police officer, hired to enforce the laws but forbidden to make an arrest. How long would such an officer be able to maintain order? How long will our Building Inspector be able to enforce the building laws? And why create our elaborate building laws without giving someone such power?

Because of the alleged pollution of the waters of the Upper Mystic Lake by acids from a chemical company, the Metropolitan Park police have closed the popular Sandy Beach bathing resort. This beach which was the mecca for hundreds of Arlington, Winchester and Medford children will not be reopened until the cause of the pollution has been removed.

The Selectmen are to be commended for their action in taking active and immediate steps towards cleaning up the river. For a long time the public at large has felt that the Town was powerless to do anything in this direction. It remained for the Selectmen to prove that far from being powerless the Town could command every power necessary, to remedy the conditions. Apparently the River has received little actual consideration. It is interesting now to learn that in the recent dredging operations conducted by Coleman Bros., almost every man who worked on the job had blood poisoning following a cut or scratch where the wound came in contact with the water. The rock and cement apron at the over-flow on Mystic Lake is covered today with a brick red deposit by the water, presenting an unusual sight. These things should make even an analysis unnecessary to prove that something is radically wrong with the water, to say nothing of its appearance and smell as it passes through Winchester.

The shortage of paper has compelled the Star, for the first time in its history, to use a different grade of stock. Conditions are rapidly reaching a point where procuring any kind of paper will be more important than price. For almost two years the cost of paper has been increasing until now it has soared to more than double what it was eighteen months ago. All newspapers are being affected. The real shortage is expected next winter.

Base ball fans comment on the fact that the local team is just about two months behind its opponents in the game this year, having played but a scant half dozen games up to the present time, the middle of the season. The contention that it is unfair to bar the town team from Manchester Field on Saturday afternoons until the High School team is through using the field seems to carry weight. The High School boys have the opportunity to use the field every afternoon in the week; the town team but one—Saturday. When that is withheld until almost the first of July it proves a big handicap. Owing to rain on almost every day that the town team has been allowed to use the field this year, it has had but few opportunities to play together this season, as of course the chief desire of the management is to secure games at home for the entertainment and pleasure of the Winchester people. The High Schools games on Saturday afternoons attract but little interest among the people as a whole and it is to be hoped that on another year the rule reserving the field for their individual use will be changed.

When the Village Improvement Association was in existence, the present sign conditions in the centre would not have been tolerated. The watchword of the Society was "Build up Winchester!" The Selectmen have always been mindful in this direction, but it must be remembered that the Improvement Society had over three hundred members and an untold force of public opinion to back up their suggestions. There was strength in and back of this organization which no resident or outsider could override as was done last week when a huge advertising sign was placed in the square. It is well to call to mind that we have seen no such conditions in the centre of any city or town in this section as at present exists in the heart of Winchester. And yet these outside places have not exerted themselves to the extent that we have to create a beautiful civic centre. The first look at a town is said to be a strong factor among people in deciding upon a place where to reside. What can be the opinion of the thousands of people who pass through Winchester in the trains, electric and automobiles daily?

"WE GIVE OUR SONS."

Such our proud cry—a vain and empty boast
Love did not ask so great a sacrifice;
The first reveille found you at your post
You knew the cost; clear-eyed you paid the price,
Some far clear call we were too dull to hear
Had caught your ear.

Not ours to urge you, or to know the voice
No stern decree you followed or obeyed;
Nothing compelled your swift, unerring choice
Except the stuff of which your dreams were made;
To that high instinct passionately true,
Your way you knew.

We did not give you—all unasked you went,
Sons of a greater motherhood than ours,
To our proud hearts your young brief lives were lent
Then swept beyond us by resistless powers.
Only we hear, when we have lost our all,
That far clear call.

Fuss and Feathers.
"Some men use big words," said Uncle Eben, "de same as a turkey spreads his tail feathers. Dey makes an elegant impression, but dey don't reppresent no real meat."

BASE BALL.

By "Mack"

The Woburn Times ask "what will be Mack's alibi in the Star this week? And the fans around town have been asking, "what are you going to say this week in the paper?" Well we have no alibi to offer, and of course we have got to say something so here goes. The Winchester Base Ball Team has been in existence for nearly five years now, but in all that time they have never put up such a rotten exhibition as they showed last Saturday with Woburn. Whether the crowd had any thing to do with it or whether it was bad base ball that had to be gotten out of their systems, we are at a loss to say. Of course there were one or two contributing causes in the general bad run of the game. In practice Linehan had his finger split and that did not help the rest of the team any, so when Linehan started the bad work it seemed as if every one of the team had to out do the other in throwing the ball around. But take it all in all we will have to take our hats off to Woburn for they furnished us with the surprise of the season. And not only that but they showed us several weak spots on the team that will get immediate attention. Woburn had the strongest team on the field that ever represented that city. They had a strong infield, an extra strong outfield and the batting does not have to be mentioned for you fans know what they are capable of. Of course our team is not so very bad, but at the same time the Woburn team could beat our own five games out of six if they played the kind of ball they did last Saturday. While the players on our own side did a lot to help make the game a farce Bill Coady "kicked" in with two or three raw ones that helped to swell the total of runs for Woburn and we feel very sure they did not need any outside assistance from any one. Dave Henry pitched a great game of ball considering the support accorded him, and any other pitcher would have thrown up the job in disgust with such backing. The score says the Woburn team hit him for 8 hits, but several of these hits were chances to make a put out. Dave, we take our hats off to you as a pitcher. Well now that you have got our story we will give you the score:

IN ANSWER TO "MACK."

Editor of the Star:
I would like to say for the benefit of the Winchester fans that the Minute Boy Team of Lexington will play Winchester any time that the management of the Winchester team is willing to give Lexington an even break on the games.

For the past three years Lexington has given Winchester the morning game on Labor Day and has taken their team away from home to play Winchester in the afternoon. Now we feel that we are entitled to an afternoon game; and any Saturday that other dates do not conflict, we will gladly play Winchester in Lexington and give them a return game in Winchester at a later date.

As regards the calibre of the teams we are playing, some of them were good enough to play and defeat Winchester but, because we defeat them, "Mack" says they are no good.

If "Mack", instead of crying around about having to force Woburn into a game, and "panning" the teams and managers of surrounding towns, would devote some of that time to doping out how to inject a few hits into that team of "Hitless Wonders" that he helps manage, I feel quite sure he would gain the heartfelt thanks of the Winchester fans.

William Viano,
Mgr. of The Minute Boys.

SELECTMEN'S MEETING.

Clerk of Selectmen: Frank R. Miller Clerk of Selectmen, submitted his resignation to take effect if possible August first owing to the fact that because of increased business responsibilities he could not give the required time to the duties of the office. The matter of appointing a successor was deferred to July 24.

Converse Place: The Dean Garage Co. asked permission to install a swinging gasoline pipe on the side of their building to swing over the sidewalk for the purpose of filling gasoline tanks in automobiles without laying hose over the sidewalk. Photographs of the device were shown to the Board and permission was granted subject to the approval of the Inspector of Buildings and the Chief of the Fire Department, the apparatus to be kept inside the building when not actually in use and to be constructed substantially in accordance with the photographs submitted to the Board and returned to the petitioner.

New Street Wildwood to Church Streets: A conference with the Planning Board, Messrs. Pond, Dean, Rowe and Currier being present, was held on the subject of a proposed street to run from Wildwood Street to Church Street substantially along the line of the old canal. Mr. Hinds submitted a plan showing the approximate location of such a street and estimated that to fill and construct it of gravel to a width of 50 ft. would cost between five and seven thousand dollars. It was suggested that property owners might be interested to construct such a street and present it to the town, or if not, then perhaps to stand a portion of the cost of construction. Mr. Rowe suggested that continuation of Calumet Road in its present direction might be preferable. The matter was referred to the Town Engineer to prepare a definite plan showing details of line and grade, etc.

New Street from Westley to Swanton Streets: The Town Engineer submitted a plan of a new street to run from Westley Street to Swanton Street between Nelson and Washington and practically parallel with Washington Street, the layout and construction of the same being recommended by him in order to dispose of the annoyances incident to the existence of the Holton drain and other surface drainage problems which have been the cause of dissatisfaction in the neighborhood for some years. The matter was discussed with Messrs. Pond, Dean, Rowe and Currier of the Planning Board who were present, and the Town Engineer was instructed to make further plans and estimates.

Raymond Street: The Town Engineer recommended that Raymond Street be continued in its present direction to Florence Street parallel to Harvard Street. The matter was discussed with Messrs. Pond, Rowe and Currier of the Planning Board who were present, and the Town Engineer was instructed to make a plan showing the street in detail and also to show a continuation of the street next south and running parallel to Raymond Street to extend from Florence Street to Chester Street, the Planning Board and the Selectmen to examine the location on the ground Friday, July 21, on the arrival of the 4.44 train from Boston.

Hemingway Street: A letter was received and referred to the Supt. of Streets from F. M. Stilson, 37 Hemingway Street, stating that when that street was repaired quite a quantity of earth was left opposite his house and all along the street, and since the grass had grown on it it made an unsightly appearance, and asked that it be removed.

Bacon Street: A letter was received from the Metropolitan Park Commission stating that the Board had carefully considered the letter of the Selectmen dated May 31 asking that changes be made in the entrance to Mystic Valley Parkway at Bacon Street near Fenwick Road, had decided that it was inadvisable to make any change at this time at this point because they understood that the Selectmen were considering a change in the lines of Bacon Street incident to building a bridge to replace the present culvert over the river; that it seemed better to postpone action in regard to the matter unless the plans for the bridge had already been decided upon; that although the Commission had no funds at present available for making such a change, it would, however, permit the town to have it done at its own expense if it was desired to do so.

Adjusted at 10.05 P. M.
FRANK R. MILLER,
Clerk of Selectmen.

BRITISH GALLERY.

Their Offensive Against Germany Extraordinary.

"If historical associations inspire to brave deeds, the British forces in their offensive against the Germans along the Somme River should be heartened to extraordinary acts of valor by the thought that they are fighting in Picardy," says the war geography bulletin of the National Geographic Society, issued in Washington.

"This ancient province of France, now divided into four departments—the Somme, Oise, Pas-de-Calais, and Aisne—has two battlefields whose very names quicken the pulse of Englishmen, for it was at Crecy that the Black Prince won his spurs, and at Agincourt that Henry V, commanding his yeomen with their cloth-yard bows, utterly overthrew the flower of French chivalry.

"Picardy is a treasured name in romantic literature and in French history. It had a literature of its own in the 12th century and its soldiers were among the most valiant in France, being known as the Gascons of the north.

"The province was a natural battleground for the French and English during the Hundred Years' War, for its shores extend along the North Sea and the English Channel, from the River Aa, above Calais, to a point below Dieppe. Fifteen miles north of Abbeville, one of the principal cities of Picardy, is Crecy where until late in the 19th century there still stood the old windmill from which Edward III of England in 1346 watched his beloved son, the first prince of Wales, at that time only 16 years of age, triumph over Philip of Valois. On this occasion the English were outnumbered four to one, and they wrought terrible havoc among the enemy, the losses of the vanquished being variously estimated at from 10,000 to 30,000. One of those who fell in this fight was the chivalrous John, king of Bohemia, who although blind led a heroic charge for his French ally. Some historians trace the Prince of Wales' crest of three ostrich feathers and the motto 'Ich dien' (I serve) to this battle, the Black Prince adopting them from the fallen John in memory of the event.

"Less than 20 miles northeast of Crecy is Agincourt, where the English archers, nearly 70 years later, after letting fly their clouds of arrows against the heavily armored nobles, attacked them with hatchets as they floundered helplessly in mud. Five thousand Frenchmen of noble birth, including their commander d'Albret, constable of France, fell in this battle while the estimate of English losses was astonishingly low, some chroniclers giving only thirteen men at arms and a hundred foot-soldiers.

"Several towns of Picardy—Amiens, Soissons, and Beauvais—owe their names to the ancient tribes which inhabited this section, known as Belgica Secunda, when the Romans maintained armed camps along the valley of the Somme. In the third century Christianity was introduced, St. Quentin, from whom the important town 20 miles east of Peronne gets its name, was martyred at that time.

"Picardy was the heart of Merovingian France in the fifth century, for Clovis named Soissons as his capital, while Charlemagne designated Noyon as his principal city, and the lesser Carolingians in turn similarly honored Laon.

"By the treaty of Arras in 1435 the royal towns of the Somme valley were ceded to Burgundy, but 42 years later, after the death of Charles the Bold, Louis XI regained them. During its brief eras of peace the province thrived as a center of the weaving industry, Flemish immigrants having introduced the art."

Value of Punctuality.

The Woman's World appeals to women generally to follow the example of business women and cultivate the virtue of punctuality. "One of the lessons," it says, "the business and working woman has learned is to be prompt. Managers of large establishments tell us that as a rule women are more punctual than men. There has been a notable improvement in the punctuality of the home, due mainly to the influence of modern business."

Right or Wrong Number?

The right way to call a telephone number is to consult the telephone directory, get the correct number, and then call for that number, clearly and distinctly, when the operator answers your signal. If you do not ask for the correct number you will be connected with the wrong number.

Have you ever noticed how the mind plays queer pranks with numbers in transposing figures? It will readily transpose 1468 into 1648, or 6426 into 6246.

If memory only is relied upon, there is always a likelihood of error, and valuable time is lost in correcting such errors.

If an old memorandum containing a number is used, there may have been a change since it was written or printed, therefore the telephone directory should be consulted whenever you wish to talk.

There can be no time saved by guessing—“nears” don't count; every wrong number call is an economic waste to the subscriber as well as to the company.

The wrong way creates annoyance to the person who is called by mistake; the right way saves delay and annoyance in completing your message, and it creates a high grade of service for you and for others.

If you cannot find the name in the telephone directory, ask for the “Information Operator” at the desired Central office. Her records are complete and up to the minute; she knows every new subscriber's number, every change of location as well as of number, and will start you right with the desired information.

CONTROL OVER STREET RAILWAY FARES.

That the general control over street railway fares in Massachusetts is vested in the Public Service Commission under the provisions of chapter 784, Acts of 1913, is the recent decision of the Supreme court of the Commonwealth. The test case, which led to this important decision, was brought by the town of Arlington against the Bay State St. Ry. Co.

It appears that one of the clauses in the original location granted by the selectmen of Arlington in 1897 to the Arlington & Winchester St. Ry. Co., now a part of the Bay State system, contained a provision that the rate of fare should not exceed five cents.

Chief Justice Rugg, deciding the case, stated that it was one of statutory interpretation. “The Act of 1913,” he said, “clothed the commission with full power to require safe reasonable and adequate service to the public from all common carriers as well as to regulate charges, rates and fares so as to enable the carrier to receive a fair return for the service required.”

THE COUNTRY WEEK.

The Country Week department of the B. Y. M. C. Union (48 Boylston Street, Boston) is carrying on its fresh air work for the 42nd summer and will again make use of “Bonnie Bairs” at Cohasset through the co-operation of the Bonnie Bairs Association and Rev. Howard K. Bartow.

For forty-one consecutive summers The Country Week has been giving country vacations to city children and many thousands have shared in its privileges. It was a pioneer in this child-saving work, and still holds the leading place in it. Last summer its beneficiaries numbered 1,721, mostly children, while advice and assistance were freely extended to many more.

The “Bonnie Bairs” Establishment is situated in Cohasset, within twenty miles of Boston, and with its combination of shore and country advantages affords a splendid opportunity for recreation and recuperation for the little folks spending their two weeks' holidays there.

Rambling in the woods in search of treasures, playing games in the fields surrounding the cottages, and picnicking on the beach are just sufficient to satisfy the most exacting. What must they mean to those deprived of the pleasures of the country the greater part of the year?

The opportunity for implanting correct habits and instructing the children in simple household duties is not neglected. The work will be carried on by an efficient staff under the direction of Miss Harriet T. Johnson, as head-worker, with assistants, a trained nurse, and a kindergarten worker who will entertain the little ones with stories and games while a kindly loaned victrola will add to the indoor entertainment and friendly neighbors have promised country drives. This year the responsibility and expense connected with the use of “Bonnie Bairs” must be borne by The Country Week.

The success of last year when 17 mothers and 125 children had a two weeks' outing in groups of 30 at “Bonnie Bairs” leads the managers of The Country Week to anticipate a pleasant and profitable vacation for as large a number this season as the funds will permit.

GIVE THE BABY A CHANCE.

Bad air, bad milk, over-crowding, poverty, dirt, ignorance, heat—these combine in summer to kill the city baby. It seems as though the brunt of the cities' sanitary sins were focused on the baby. The baby didn't ask to come, to live in a hot, dark, air-tight tenement, to be fed on dirty, half spoiled milk, to be pestered with flies and mosquitoes. He is not responsible for any of these conditions and it is his right that he have fresh air, clean surroundings and decent food. The United States Public Health Service issues free of charge to all applicants a bulletin on “The Summer Care of Infants.” It should be in the hands of every mother.

SATURDAY'S GOLF.

Handicap against the M. G. A. rating was the card at the Winchester Country Club Saturday. Although there was a large field of entrants, only 11 turned in their scores: R. V. Bean, 2 down; J. L. S. Barton, 2 down; H. T. Bond, 3 down; E. A. Bradlee, 4 down; G. W. Bouve, 4 down; W. G. Page, 4 down; W. H. Mason, 4 down; S. T. Hicks, 4 down; H. V. Hovey, 6 down; N. L. Cushman, 7 down; B. K. Stephenson, 7 down.

RURAL HEALTH.

“The estimated economic loss which our nation suffers each year from typhoid fever and malaria alone aggregates $928,234,880, leaving out of entire account the sorrow, the unhappiness, the misery, and the inefficiency which follow in their train.” Senator Joseph E. Ransdell of Louisiana today addressed the Senate on the subject of “Rural Health—America's First Duty.” “The greatest asset which our country can have,” said Senator Ransdell, “is the healthy American citizen, and valuable as it may be to increase the health of live stock and vegetation, it is of far greater importance that we throw every possible safeguard about the health of the man who is responsible for that live stock and vegetation. Over 900 million dollars lost every year! A sum which is sufficient to put our country into a state of preparedness equal to that of any nation in the world, enough money to give us the largest navy afloat and the most efficient army which the world has ever seen, is annually offered up as a sacrifice to two diseases which are entirely preventable. Enough money to pay the annual expenses of every college student in the United States is absolutely thrown away every year.” Senator Ransdell estimates the grand total loss from typhoid fever at $271,932,880 per annum, and the loss from malaria at $694,904,750 per year; the total per capita loss from these two diseases being $9.46. By comparative estimates it was shown that the United States Government appropriated $5,016,175 for the investigation and prevention of the diseases of man.

WINCHESTER-MEDFORD REGATTA.

The Regatta which was to have been held at the Winchester Boat Club on July 4th, and postponed to July 8th, will now be held on Saturday, July 22, at 2.30 p. m. The races will be mostly novelty events, and appropriate prizes and cups will be awarded the winners. Considerable effort has been made to make these races a success, and it is hoped that the members of both Clubs, and their friends, will all attend.

RAILROAD WAGES

Shall they be determined by Industrial Warfare or Federal Inquiry?

To the American Public:

Do you believe in arbitration or industrial warfare?

The train employees on all the railroads are voting whether they will give their leaders authority to tie up the commerce of the country to enforce their demands for a 100 million dollar wage increase.

The railroads are in the public service—your service. This army of employees is in the public service—your service.

You pay for rail transportation 3 billion dollars a year, and 44 cents out of every dollar from you goes to the employees.

On all the Eastern Railroads in 1915, seventy-five per cent of the train employees earned these wages (lowest, highest, and average of all) as shown by the payroll—

	Passenger		Freight		Yard
	Range	Average	Range	Average	Range	Average
Engineers .	$1641 3224	$1931	$1585 2992	$1783	$1303 2178	$1543
Conductors	1553 3004	1831	1552 2901	1642	1145 1991	1315
Firemen .	951 1704	1128	933 1762	1109	752 1633	935
Brakemen .	957 1707	1141	862 1521	973	834 1635	1085

The average yearly wage payments to all Eastern train employees (including those who worked only part of the year) as shown by the 1915 payrolls were—

	Passenger	Freight	Yard
Engineers	$1796	$1546	$1384
Conductors	1724	1404	1238
Firemen	1033	903	844
Brakemen	1018	858	990

A 100 million dollar wage increase for men in freight and yard service (less than one-fifth of all employees) is equal to a 5 per cent advance in all freight rates.

The managers of the railroads, as trustees for the public, have no right to place this burden on the cost of transportation to you without a clear mandate from a public tribunal speaking for you.

The railroads have proposed the settlement of this controversy either under the existing national arbitration law, or by reference to the Interstate Commerce Commission. This offer has been refused by the employees' representatives.

Shall a nation-wide strike or an investigation under the Government determine this issue?

MODERN THEATRE.

Bearing the reputation of being the most comfortable theatre in New England, the beautiful Modern Theatre, Boston, continues to purvey to its hosts of patrons with the greatest photo program presented in any playhouse in the east. Here are presented for the first time the products of two of the greatest film producers in America, the William Fox Co., and the Paramount Picture Corporation. These are what are called first-run features. The advantage of presenting this kind of program is obvious in that there is no risk of any patron attending and having forced upon them pictures that they have viewed before, which condition obtains generally in other theatres. The system of ventilation is complete enough to thoroughly air a theatre five times as large as the Modern, and as a result of this the heat of summer is never felt within its walls.

MILLY'S PRIZE

Despite the Trick of a Rival, She Proved a Winner

By CLARISSA MACKIE

Milly Fenwick danced triumphantly around the kitchen table, whereon reposed the four loaves of bread which she had baked for the Little River fair. Big loaves they were, browned delicately without, snowy white and sweet within—perfect loaves of perfect bread.

"You silly child," smiled Mrs. Fenwick as she bustled into the room and caught Milly in the midst of her gay dance.

"Mother, did you ever see such beautiful bread?" challenged Milly, stopping breathlessly to implant a kiss on her mother's soft cheek.

"Never but once before," said Mrs. Fenwick, with a twinkle in her eyes.

"When was that?"

"Years ago when I baked my first loaves for the fair."

"Mother! And of course you took first prize?"

"Yes, I did—and I bought my wedding gown with the money."

Milly blushed furiously.

"Well, of course you were engaged to father, but I'm not engaged to any one, but I know what I shall buy with the first prize money if I get it."

"What shall you buy?" asked Mrs. Fenwick indulgently.

"Chickens. Yes, I truly am going to raise chickens and see if I can't make money enough to pay off that little scrap of a mortgage on the place."

"Dear child," sighed Mrs. Fenwick, "it would be the biggest blessing in the world if you could. It would be such a relief to your father. That little balance of $200 has worried him for five years, and he cannot seem to get ahead so he can pay it off. It has been such a bad year, and he has had to hire so much help because of his illness."

"You can't say anything that I have not already thought of," protested Milly as she buttered the crusty loaves and tossed a white napkin over them.

"I'm only afraid that Sadie Lownes will carry off the prize. She certainly is a good cook."

"She can't make handsomer loaves than those," asserted Mrs. Fenwick proudly.

"Well, we will see. I'm going upstairs to get ready, mother, and then I'm going to take the bread over to the tent," said Milly. And she flew out of the room with a whisk of her pink and white skirts.

"It's too bad for Sadie to carry off first prize in everything," mused Mrs. Fenwick as she stepped briskly about her tasks. "Every year she's carried off prizes for baking and fancy work, and I declare if she hasn't carried off the biggest matrimonial prize as well, for folks say she is engaged to Frank Barlow. I never could understand why it was that he stopped coming to see Milly all of a sudden. He seemed to think a lot of my girl, and I'm afraid she liked him too well."

When Milly Fenwick reached the big tent where the annual county fair was

"Please don't touch it," said Milly. "I shall open it presently."

Sadie pulled up a corner of the snowy towel and peered under. "Bread!" she cried, her black eyes snapping with excitement. "Do you know that we're the only competitors for the bread prize? Everybody else has gone in for cake."

"Indeed?" asked Milly indifferently.

Susan Brown laughed sharply.

"Funny, ain't it?" she giggled, "but my brother heard Frank Barlow say that he didn't think any woman ought to get married till she could make a perfect loaf of bread. There's ma calling. I must go," she ended hastily as Sadie's eyes shot sparks of fire.

Milly's pretty color went with the sickening wave of disgust that swept over her.

"I've a good mind not to exhibit my bread," exclaimed Sadie vindictively. She had another reason for being nettled—her own bread had come from the pans heavy and unwholesome looking, and her glance at Milly's loaves had revealed the unquestioned superiority of the latter's bread.

Milly picked up her basket and moved toward the table.

"I shall exhibit mine," she said evenly. "It is quite well known that I am not a contestant for anything save the Little River prize."

That was the meanest thing Milly Fenwick had ever said, and she regretted it instantly. Not only did the scowl of anger spread over Sadie's narrow face, but there was another listener. Frank Barlow was passing at the moment, and his gray eyes met Milly's with a puzzled expression in their cool depths.

Sadie called him to assist her at another table, and so Milly was quite alone when she arranged her beautiful loaves of bread on the table which had been arranged in the form of a snowy pyramid on which were placed canned fruits, jellies, jams, pickles, cakes and needwork of every description, for every woman and girl in Little River made it a point to enter something in the competition for domestic prizes.

Milly placed the card bearing her name in the proper place among her four handsome loaves and then went away to join her friends at the other end of the tent. It was a busy afternoon and evening, and it was not until closing time that Milly found time to go and take another look at her precious loaves.

To her delight the judges were grouped around her exhibit, and she overheard several flattering remarks.

"It's my bread, mother," she whispered, pinching her mother's arm.

"I want to see it, dear," said Mrs. Fenwick as the judges moved away.

For a long time Milly Fenwick and her mother stood there and stared at the four big loaves of bread that bore the card of Sadie Lownes. Milly Fenwick's name was on the three little soggy loaves piled near by.

"Milly, that's not Sadie's bread," cried Mrs. Fenwick indignantly.

"I know it, mother. Please don't say anything now. Come away," whispered Milly nervously, and she drew her mother aside as Sadie Lownes came to the table with her hand in Frank Barlow's arm.

"There, Mr. Barlow! What do you think of that for prize bread?" asked Sadie daintily. Her eyes shot an impudent glance at Milly's scornful face.

"I declare, Frank," she added in a lower tone, "Milly Fenwick acts so mean and jealous about this bread of mine! Really it makes me feel quite uncomfortable!"

Frank Barlow said nothing, but his eyes followed Milly's graceful form as she accompanied her mother from the tent. When he turned toward Miss Lownes' animated face there was a stern look about his mouth that made the frivolous Sadie quite uneasy.

Frank Barlow was the most well-to-do young farmer in Little River, and marriage with him meant a life of comparative ease for his wife. The Barlows were the moneyed people of Little River, and Sadie Lownes was ambitious.

"You haven't said that you admire my bread," chided Sadie.

"This is the finest bread I have ever seen," said Frank gravely.

"There! I am complimented!" cried Sadie. "Come! Take me home, Frank. I'm tired to death! There goes Mitt Roberts. I suppose he's going home with Milly."

Frank winced, and he did not notice that Mitt Roberts was accompanying silly Susan Brown to her home and that Milly Fenwick drove soberly home with her parents.

The Fenwicks decided to say nothing about the change Sadie Lownes had made in the cards, and Milly winced more than once at the sly laughter of her acquaintances when they examined the hard little loaves that bore her name.

But she did not speak to Sadie Lownes. She passed that brazen young woman with contemptuous eyes, in which slumbered a resentment that would not be banished. The winning of the prize meant so much to Milly Fenwick, while to Sadie Lownes it meant nothing save the good opinion of Frank Barlow, for she had carried off first prize in jellies and cake as well as bread this year.

On the last day of the fair the prizes were awarded. Everybody had made the rounds of the tents, and they knew that Sadie Lownes had carried off first prize for the finest loaves.

Milly Fenwick was there, pale and silent. Her mother, indignant at the duplicity of Sadie Lownes and, recognizing the futility of trying to prove that the cards had been changed, had stayed at home, but Milly, aware that her absence would be attributed to jealousy because she had not won a prize, was there.

"Mitt Roberts said your loaves would make good anchors for his boat," giggled Susan Brown in Milly's ear.

"Please don't touch it," said Milly. "I shall open it presently."

Sadie pulled up a corner of the snowy towel and peered under. "Bread!" she cried, her black eyes snapping with excitement. "Do you know that we're the only competitors for the bread prize? Everybody else has gone in for cake."

"Indeed?" asked Milly indifferently.

Susan Brown laughed sharply.

"Funny, ain't it?" she giggled, "but my brother heard Frank Barlow say that he didn't think any woman ought to get married till she could make a perfect loaf of bread. There's ma calling. I must go," she ended hastily as Sadie's eyes shot sparks of fire.

Milly smiled. A lump came into her throat as Frank Barlow, accompanied by Sadie Lownes, came around and paused by the domestic table. Several of the judges were there, and one of them had just congratulated Sadie on taking the first prize for bread when a little old colored woman pushed her way through the crowd.

It was Aunt Hepsey Spencer, who worked for the Lowneses.

"I jes' had ter come an' see whufore dat chile took de fust prize fer dem little measly nubbins of bread!" she cried excitedly. "I wanter know ef dese yere Little Ribber housekeepers kaint make bread dat'll beat dem pesky little nubbins!" It will interest canoeists on Mystic Lake to learn that the outlet pipe at the "Aqueduct," long a source of discomfort to all passing from the middle to the upper lake, will soon be removed. This pipe has long offended everyone with its overpowering odor. Investigation by Chairman Davidson of the Selectmen led to the discovery that it is an air or overflow vent used in siphoning the sewage under the lake. It is to be plugged up and opened into the nearby manhole.

BIG CELEBRATION PLANNED.

To Commemorate Recent Great Improvements in Town.

There has been no time in the history of Winchester when so many improvements have been made and completed or nearing completion as has taken place in the last two years. And these improvements have all been extensive and some of them costly, but they will all prove to be of great benefit to Winchester in all the years that are to come. The best of all is that these improvements, many of them are being enjoyed by the present generation. Contrast present conditions at the old mill site on Main St. with those that prevailed a few years ago, and all will agree that the money expended was worth while. To go back further, how many recollect the tannery and tenement house conditions on Manchester Field where has grown up the splendid playground, one of the best in the State and which is frequented by so many people, both old and young.

Then there is the clearing out of the river on Manchester Field and the dredging of Wedgemere Pond which is now going on.

Again there is the street across Black Ball pond to the Chapin school district, which has been a very expensive undertaking thus far, and which will be found of so much benefit to the people in that section of the town, and which will be the means of saving life by removing the necessity for walking on the tracks of the steam railroad in going to and from the centre of the town. This street will improve the entire neighborhood, it will increase real estate values and cause the residents to take more interest in their surroundings.

Then there is the strip of land purchased by the town last spring bordering the other side of the pond with entrance at the Christian Science Church and to be connected with Nelson street and with the street across the pond, the whole, when completed, will make one of the prettiest drives and walks in town. This pond can be made beautiful and no doubt will as time goes on. It needs to be relieved of the accumulation of silt from its bottom and the shallow places on the borders filled in. And when this is done one of the favorite places for mosquitoes and menace to health from malaria will be removed.

Then there is the mill pond between Main and Mt. Vernon streets which will soon be put in order.

And now comes the playground at the Highlands. This will be partially open to sports by Labor Day. When completed this section of the town will have a playground equal to Manchester Field.

All these great improvements have taken place within two or three years. To take into account all that has been done, it is proposed to have a jubilation on Saturday, Sept. 2, in which the cooperation of the entire town will be asked. To this end a meeting was held in the general committee room in the Town Hall last Friday evening and the entire matter was gone over. To dedicate the Highlands playground it was suggested that there be a game of base ball by the Highlands team, sports and prizes for the children and perhaps a band concert all in the afternoon. Fireworks in the evening on Black Ball Pond on a large float and a band concert. This location is an excellent one for the display as it can be seen from the entire shores of the pond and from the new street. This will be commemorative of the street across the pond. After the fireworks it was suggested that there be an exhibition of illuminated canoes on the river which passes through Manchester Field. This is to mark the dredging of the river and the clearing of Wedgemere pond. Here, too, the band will be present. For the handsome new bridges on Main street and Waterfield road, electric light effects are proposed.

So, it will be seen the layout is quite extensive and takes in the locations where all the improvements are made or in the making. The entire details of the celebration are in the rough as yet, but will probably assume shape at a meeting to be held in the general committee room in the Town Hall this evening. To take fitting recognition of these important improvements the citizens will be asked to heartily cooperate to that end, and the whole town will be included. Let all take heed and make this event a red letter day in the history of Winchester. At the meeting last Friday evening about fifteen gentlemen were present, but the activities of many citizens are to be asked for, as numerous sub-committees are to be selected. Mr. James J. Fitzgerald is

TAX RATE $18.40.

Appropriations at Special June Meetings Responsible for Raise.

Notwithstanding the vote at the first session of the annual town meeting last March, Winchester's tax rate for 1916 will be over $18. It was announced this week that the rate would be $18.40.

The Town voted at its first session of the annual meeting this year to limit its appropriations to an $18 rate, this being adhered to during that meeting. But at a special meeting held last month appropriations were made which boosted the rate 40 cents a thousand.

This year the assessors were obliged to cross off, for various reasons, more than $700,000 of last year's personal property. Despite this fact the personalty shows an increase of $183,800, from $4,983,225 to $5,167,025. Real estate shows a gain of $118,525, from $13,864,225 to $14,282,750. About $20,000 in real estate was also crossed off, due largely to Town purchases, including the Cutting Estate, Washington Street yard, etc. The polls this year total 2731, a gain of 116 from the 2615 of last year.

The total valuation of the town this year is set at $19,449,775.

The amounts of the town appropriations and the other taxes this year are as follows: Town grant, $396,129.20; State tax, $29,120; Metropolitan sewer tax, $13,892.98; Metropolitan park tax, $6386.41; county tax, $18,792.35; State highway tax, $760; Charles River basin tax, $1793.26; fire prevention tax, $218.58; total, $467,992.78. Of this sum the revenue to be received during the year from various sources is estimated at $109,000, leaving $358,992.78 to be raised by taxation.

BASE BALL TOMORROW.

Tomorrow, Saturday, we play the strong Malden All-Stars. This team has lost but one game this season, and that one to the Converse Rubber Co. last Saturday. Two weeks ago they did what we could not do, and that is, beat Arlington, although the score was close. Ray Somerville is doing the pitching, with "Connie" Murphy of Dartmouth behind the bat. The rest of the team is equally strong and we look for a good game from them. Tift will do the pitching for Winchester as Henry is through for the season, he is going to play at Attleboro with one of the teams there. Henry gave Manager LeDuc his word that he would "stick" with the team for the summer. Now you see how much of a word ball players have got. No wonder the big league teams tie the players to an ironclad contract. Well Tift is coming back and it is up to him to deliver as well as the players behind him. They have got to get started pretty quick for the season will be soon over. We think there is a change or so that might be made to the advantage of the team but will wait until Saturday's game is played before saying anything on the subject. As for Tift it is a personal matter with the writer and he will refrain from discussing the whys and wherefores of the arrangement. Anyway come down and give him a welcome. Show your sporting blood.

LOOK OUT FOR YOUR LIGHTS.

The Winchester Police, in common with the police of other places, have started in to enforce the auto light law which went into effect last January. The Mass. Highway Commission has issued a circular letter to all police departments requesting that steps be taken to enforce this law. The Winchester police have made already several arrests, and yesterday morning a Melrose man was fined $10 in the Woburn court for not complying with it.

Small car owners should pay particular attention to the law, especially that portion requiring lights of sufficient power to throw 150 feet. It is said that many of the lights on the small cars will not throw this distance.

EDWARDS—HOUSE.

Miss Flora B. House of this town was married at Woburn on Wednesday evening to Mr. Moulton Edwards of Lowell by Rev. H. H. Jones of the St. John's Baptist Church. The only attendant was the groom's brother. The couple will make their home in Lowell.

MR. LEWIS PARKHURST SURPRISED.

His Business Associates Greet Him at Country Club.

A surprise party to Mr. Lewis Parkhurst in celebration of his sixtieth birthday was given on Wednesday evening, July 26, at the Winchester Country Club by about one hundred of his business associates, partners and friends. Not until the company launched forth into the rollicking song which opened the formal festivities was Mr. Parkhurst aware of the true nature of the occasion. Until that moment he had believed that the sole purpose of the gathering was a farewell dinner in honor of Miss Charlotte F. Hill, for over twenty-five years cashier for Ginn and Company, of which firm Mr. Parkhurst is business manager and treasurer.

Early in the evening the Athenaeum Press band, made up of employees of the large establishment where the books of Ginn and Company are manufactured, gathered on the lawn of the Winchester Country Club and played during the time the guests were assembling. A buffet lunch was served in the newly remodelled hall of the Country Club at seven o'clock.

Following the lunch a poem in commemoration of the event was read by LeRoy Phillips and addresses made by Dr. Thurber, head of the Editorial Department of Ginn and Company, Mr. Plimpton of New York, senior member of the firm, and others of Mr. Parkhurst's partners and friends who had come from Chicago, and other cities for the occasion.

The presentation of various gifts followed. Employees of Ginn and Company's Boston office and the Athenaeum Press presented Mr. Parkhurst with a handsome fly rod, and the partners of the firm gave him a beautiful gold watch.

MRS. REBECCA S. PATTEE.

Mrs. Rebecca S. Pattee, widow of Lewis C. Pattee, died Monday night at her home, 53 Church street, in her eightieth year.

She was born in Enfield, N. H., the daughter of Uri and Fanny (Sawyer) Perley and received her education at Kimball Union Academy, Meriden, N. H. In 1858 she married Mr. Pattee of Canaan, N. H., where they made their home until 1867 when they removed to Lebanon, N. H., continuing their home in the latter town until coming to Winchester in 1889.

Mr. Pattee actively identified himself with the interests of this community and was one of its most valued citizens until his death in 1903.

For many years Mrs. Pattee was a regular attendant at the Unitarian Church and was vitally concerned in its affairs until her last illness which for a period of eight years she bore with great patience and fortitude.

She is survived by a son, Fred L. Pattee, a daughter, Alice R. Pattee, and a grandson, Harold T. Johnson, all of Winchester; also two brothers, John Q. Perley of Riverside, Cal. and Dr. I. N. Perley of Lebanon, N. H.

Rev. Joel H. Metcalf conducted the funeral service on Thursday at 2 p. m. at her late residence. The burial was at Mt. Auburn.

REQUEST FOR MOTOR CYCLE.

8th Regiment Medical Department Needs One Badly.

President Arthur W. Dean of the Calumet Club has received the following letter from Mr. Leonard F. Cutter, father of Dr. Irving T. Cutter of this town, which is self explanatory:

To the Officers and Members of the Calumet Club of Winchester:

The Medical Department of the Eighth Massachusetts Regiment of Infantry, National Guard, U. S. A., is in urgent need of a motor cycle with car attachment.

This department has the medical care of some fourteen hundred men now on the Mexican border at Camp Cotton, El Paso, Texas.

At the head of this department as Surgeon is Major Irving T. Cutter of Winchester, who has been Vice-President and Treasurer of your Club. I and I know that the patriotic and loyal members will be only too glad to contribute to this worthy object.

I would suggest that a committee be appointed to solicit contributions and that the Treasurer receive them, and also that an appeal be made to the citizens in general and that the matter be mentioned in the local paper.

It would seem fitting that the whole amount necessary, $350, be raised in Major Cutter's home town, and for this reason I am appealing to you first.

As the matter is urgent I would greatly appreciate an early reply.

Yours very truly,

(Signed) Leonard F. Cutter.

Waverley House, Charlestown, Mass., July 19, 1916.

In connection with the above appeal President Dean of the Calumet Club has appointed a committee of five members, made up from friends of Dr. Cutter, to take up the matter and act for the Club. This committee is under the chairmanship of Mr. Danforth W. Comins, and includes the following:

Danforth W. Comins, Maurice C. Tompkins, J. Churchill Hinds, H. J. Olmsted, Edward B. Smalley.

The committee received its appointment on Monday but owing to the absence of several of its members from town, no action has been taken to date.

STOLEN WHEEL RETURNED.

Michael McCauley received his bicycle yesterday morning which was stolen from the Cutter house in Rangeley recently. At the time the wheel was stolen three men were stopped in the centre as they were riding through in a stolen auto. Two of the men were captured and the third ran into Rangeley, took the wheel and escaped. He was recently arrested by the Somerville police and upon his confession the wheel was recovered and returned to Mr. McCauley. The man was known only as Kiko.

It is said that following their arrest the other two men were respectively fined $30 and given a sentence in the Industrial School at Sherburne, the latter appealing and remaining out on bonds. The gang has since stolen three automobiles and broken into several railroad stations. Kiko and one other have been arrested, the third man being still at liberty.

FOREST A. C.

Owing to a mix-up on the part of the management of the Gilchrist Co.'s team there was no game last Saturday but they are coming out the afternoon of August 12 and as they seemed to have quite a ball team the game should be one of interest.

The Hayes Class, one of the fast teams from Dorchester, are coming next Saturday afternoon to play the Forest A. C. and if it don't rain this team will surely be here. Last Saturday this team trimmed the Stoneham B. B. and we understand that the Hayes Class have a battery that show up as good as any of the teams around Boston.

PLAYGROUND BALL GAMES.

The Playground base ball team will play a match this Friday afternoon with the newboys team of Richardson's store.

The game to have been played with the City Field Playground of Somerville Wednesday was not run off owing to the bad weather. It is probable that this game will be played here next Wednesday afternoon.

A WINCHESTER BOY AT CAMP.

Gives His Experiences of a Week Spent at Amherst.

Heading the list of many attractive prizes which were offered last summer to Winchester boys and girls who carried on School Garden Work under the auspices of the Winchester Mother's Association, was the prize of "A week at the Boy's Camp at the Massachusetts Agricultural College at Amherst."

The winner of this prize was Edward MacDonald of 30 Oak street, Winchester. He graduated from the Wadleigh Grammar School last June at the age of 12, and hopes to enter High School in the fall. Upon his return from camp last week he gave a most glowing account of his experiences there, and since it will greatly interest boys and girls as well as many good friends of School Gardens, including the generous Winchester citizen who contributed this splendid prize, young MacDonald has been asked to give a detailed report of his trip and his stay at camp, which appears herewith.

"I started from home at 12.30 to catch the 12.50 train for Boston. When I got there I had to wait a half hour at the North Station. When I was boarding the train I saw a boy dressed in a Scout suit and he looked as if he was going to Amherst so I asked him and he was. We talked all the way together. At Waltham North another boy got on who was going there too. His name was Edgar Perin. We passed large fields and a long tunnel and a large, slopy lawn. At the bottom of the lawn there was a water works place.

JERE A. DOWNS TAKES CHILDREN TO CAMP.

Few hosts could really entertain a happier group of guests than did Jere A. Downs of the firm of Hayden & Stone, when he acted as the fairy god-father to 100 poor children from the crowded section of the West and North ends of Boston Thursday afternoon. Mr. Downs, with the aid of special cars, automobiles and the very popular conveyance, the farm wagon, transported the youngsters from the hot city to the Salvation Army camp at Canton. The Fresh Air camp is situated at Ponkapoag. The old-fashioned farm houses are surrounded with acres of green fields and woods. Since the Salvation Army has made it the summer headquarters for its poor, numerous tents and portable houses have been put up to accommodate tired mothers and children. A large swimming pool provided plenty of sport for the small boys, an open air gymnasium and playground furnished fun for all. Thursday the party included the 100 children invited by Mr. Downs and about 90 mothers. A picnic lunch was followed by games, and just before dusk the entire party was conveyed back to the city, every little tot tired but very happy. Adj. Annie Eastman and Ensign Lena Chaffe were in charge of the camp activities.

THROUGH CARS TO HARVARD SQUARE.

We know that there are many residents of Winchester who desire through cars to the Harvard Square subway via Arlington. And many of them, on account of absence from town, will be unable to attend the hearing before the Public Service Commission at its office, No. 1 Beacon street, Boston, Monday forenoon at 10.30. Through cars would be of great convenience to the people and the only wonder is that this accommodation has been so long delayed. As the elevated and Bay State railroads are disinclined to come to an agreement on the matter of through cars, although they admit the request of the people of Winchester to be just, therefore the Commission should now settle the long delayed matter by ordering through cars.

The citizens are again urged to attend the hearing and by their presence much will be accomplished toward the desired end.

Virtue and Riches.

"I cannot call riches," says Bacon, "better than the baggage of virtue. The Roman word is better, 'impedimenta,' for as the baggage is to an army so are riches to virtue. It cannot be spared nor left behind, but it hindereth the march, yea, and the care of it sometimes loseth or disturbeth the victory."

"A man dat argues jes' foh de sake of talkin'," said Uncle Eben, "is like an engineer dat uses up all his steam blowin' de whistle."

YOUR AFFAIRS AND MINE

A notable tribute was recently printed to Arnold Bennett as a realist. The burden of it was that Bennett was a realist largely because he recognized that life was ruled by conventions, and was clear-eyed enough to see that it was best that it should be. In other words, his people "play the game" according to the rules, and even when they do not win are happier for having worked under limitations which are inherent in life itself. But there are larger questions than these involved, and one of them is the attitude of men toward life, which of course cannot be what it ought to be unless there is a knowledge of what life is. In matters such as this the poets are a great help, especially those mighty souls that have claimed for themselves no exemption from the law of duty. There are a half dozen lines in Browning, which must be presumed to reflect his views, though they are supposed to be spoken by a worldly and cynical bishop:

The common problem, yours, mine, every one's,
Is not to fancy what were fair in life
Provided it could be—but, finding first
What may be, then find out how to make it fair
Up to our means; a very different thing!
No abstract intellectual plan of life
Quite irrespective of life's plainest laws,
But one, a man, who is man and nothing more,
May lead within a world which (by your leave)
Is Rome or London, not Fool's-paradise.

"Life's plainest laws" must be obeyed and revered if life itself is ever to become beautiful and sublime. There is thus a realism in life as well as in literature. Those "plainest laws" are for the most part conventions—those very conventions that are so hateful to our radicals—mostly young men and women—who say with Omar:

Ah Love! could you and I with Him conspire
To grasp this sorry scheme of things entire,
Would we not shatter it to bits—and then Remould it nearer to the heart's desire!

The world, of course, could not get on without its revolutionists, but it gets ahead mostly through the efforts of those who are content to work in harness, and to bear out their share of the common burden. Rules are of necessity fetters—else they would not be rules.

A Winchester dominie once upon a time declared that there is no activity of life in which men are not expected to achieve certain results under restrictions—often exceedingly severe—which govern the activity. The weakest football team ever organized could beat the strongest one that ever existed if the former were permitted to break all the rules, while the latter was bound by them. The same thing is true in politics—using the word in its larger sense. In this country the very liberty of the people is to a large extent the product of restraints and limitations. One man is free because another man—or the government—may not do certain things. The same thing is true in religion. We are accustomed to think of Christ's commands as positive—as indeed they are. But to tell a man that he must do this is to tell him also that he must not do that. Hate of one's neighbor is more completely excluded by a commandment of love than by a direct prohibition of hate. Men in this life are therefore, hemmed in on every side—the universe is so ordered. And as it is meant that they should realize their best self to the fullest extent—that also being a law of the universe—it must be that they can most surely do this by recognizing the validity of the rules, and working gladly under them. Any realization of violation of the rules must always be a realization of one's worst self. For it involves the breaking of relationships—a sort of treason to them—to which a man must ever be loyal if he hopes to build up a fine and strong character. There are many things not forbidden by the law of the land which are nevertheless dishonest and despicable. The fact that they are not forbidden by the law does not make them permissible. There is still great virtue in "Thou shalt not." For it is almost always thus that conscience speaks. It is significant that those who scorn the "shalt not" almost invariably depreciate and belittle conscience in the interest of what they are pleased to think of as larger liberty. What they see is, not life in its reality, but a ghastly—or silly—caricature of it. In other words, they are not realists. Nor are they in any proper sense idealists, since their ideals have no relation to life.

"The law," said Dr. Johnson, "is the last result of human wisdom acting upon human experience for the benefit of the public." There is much law in the world that was never enacted by a legislative body, and there can be little doubt that the great man was thinking of this, as well as of statute and common law when he used the words quoted above. Some people here in Winchester, to take one case, pretend to be very scornful of what others say. And yet "what people say" makes up public opinion, which is the most powerful force with which a man can collide. Mere gossip, and petty and silly criticism may well be despised. But broadly speaking most of us care very greatly what others say and think of us, and it is well that it should be so. Probably this feeling has had more to do with improving both the methods and the manner of public service corporations, and with purifying business generally than all the reform legislation that has been enacted, which latter would have had little value or effect had it not embodied preexisting moral judgments. It is not well, therefore, to affront public opinion. It is the only force, outside of natural forces, that operates of itself. Sometimes it is and often it seems to be tyrannous. But without it social and individual degeneration would be swift and terrible. We have seen during the present war how easy it is for men to sink back into barbarism. This is because the tone of public opinion has itself been debased and lowered. With the old restraint removed men are free to do many things forbidden by them, and they very promptly do them. And this is quite as true in times of peace, as we see in every period of political and public demoralization. To be emancipated from the influence of public opinion is not to be free, but enslaved. The experiment has often been tried, but the result has invariably been lamentable failure. There can be no other result as long as men live in organized societies. Public opinion is nothing more than a rule or law imposed by such societies. It is, in short, the social conscience, and it has a way of asserting itself with great imperiousness. It is, on the whole, best for every Winchesterite to obey.

SWITCH BOARD AT POLICE STATION.

A private switch board is being installed at the Police Station this week by the telephone company which will probably be in use by tomorrow. At present the Department has 10 telephone call boxes in various parts of the town, the officers being required to call the Station from them at various hours when on duty. These calls have all had to go through the central telephone exchange. With the new switch board the calls will go direct to the Police Station, and if an outside call is made the Sergeant on duty must make it through the central exchange. Two trunk lines are to be placed on the board in addition to the 10 boxes. When the installation is complete the old number of the Police Department will be changed.

CARD SHOWER FOR INJURED DEAF AND DUMB GIRL.

There is a very popular girl convalescing in the Winchester Hospital, according to C. A. Fickett, a conductor, on the Boston & Maine Railroad, who says that up to Saturday 138 postcards had been received at the hospital by Gladys Peters, the little deaf and dumb girl whose leg was amputated after having been run over by an electric car in Stoneham on July 7.

Mr. Fickett is conductor of the train in which the little girl rode daily to school in Boston, and he is responsible for the sending of many of these postcards, having requested passengers who ride on his train, and who know the little girl, to send cards. Gladys Peters takes great pleasure in looking over the cards and reading the names of the senders. [Boston Globe.]

MIRRIAN RAPHAEL FIOCIELLO

Mirian Raphael Fiocciello, aged 6 years, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Antonio Fiocciello of Swanton street, died last Friday morning after an illness of five days. The cause of the child's death was streptococcal meningitis, which is not connected with the much dreaded infantile paralysis in any way. Rev. Francis E. Rogers of St. Mary's Church conducted the services, which were held on Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. The interment was in Calvary cemetery. Six boy friends acted as pall bearers and twelve little girls in white dresses and veils walked in front of the hearse.

According to figures given out by Arlington assessors this week that town has increased its number of buildings this year by 293.

A young Italian was so intoxicated on a Woburn car coming from Medford, Tuesday night that he was put off by the conductor just below Symmes Corner. The man stopped at every house he came to asking directions, thereby frightening a number of the residents. The police were notified and he was taken in the auto to the station. He was sober enough to remark as he got into the auto "Well I'll have a nice ride now, anyway."

Much attention was attracted through the centre, Tuesday and Wednesday by a black and white dog said to be a Gordon Setter. The animal contained a larger portion of white and black, and as it had apparently developed a strong liking for the river, this color had assumed a strong green, and the sight of this green, white and black dog trotting through the center was wiser to say the least. During his early appearances on Tuesday the submerged line along his back where he waded through the water was very clearly marked, but with subsequent wadings this became very irregular and the animal was nearly a straight green and black.

One hundred poor children went to the Salvation Army fresh air camp, located at Canton, Wednesday, this being made possible through the kindness of Jere A. Downs of the firm of Hayden & Stone, who will meet the expense of the day. Besides the extra days' outing at the camp Col. Gifford is now arranging for the fifth group of poor children and worn out mothers to spend two weeks at the camp.

The annual Old-Home Sunday service will be held July 30 in the Burlington Meeting House that has crowned the hill at the center of the town since 1732. Rev. S. W. Adriance will take part in the exercises.

Mr. John Conley of Washington street has returned to Brockton after a two months vacation.

Mrs. Nellie Carron and daughter Elsie of Roanoke, Va. is the guest of her sister, Mrs. Mary Sullivan of 62 Nelson street.

Arlington Boom Lowers

Tax Rate 50 cents

The Arlington board of assessors yesterday announced the town's 1916 tax rate at $21.30 on each $1,000, a decrease of 50 cents over the 1915 tax, caused principally by gains totalling nearly $2,000,000 in real and personal estate. The total valuation is now $19,289,659, of which $16,306,167 is in real estate, and $2,983,492 in personal property. Real estate gained $1,426,638 and personal property $565,661 during the past year.

The building boom was the chief cause of the real estate increase. During the past year, 293 buildings were erected, valued at $1,260,173. The number of poll-tax payers increased 10 per cent, to 4515, and the town grant is the largest on record, $352,383.48.

Winchester Tax Rate is

The Highest Ever

Winchester tax rate for the ensuing year will be $18.40 a thousand, the highest ever levied in that town. This jump of 40 cents over last year had to be taken in spite of the fact that the increase in real estate values amounts to $418,545 and in personal values to $183,800.

The budget for the coming fiscal year is $169,092.75. To meet this, there are the usual revenue of $109,000, the balance of $358,092.75 to be raised through taxation of real and personal property. This latter sum will be levied from $5,167,025 personal and $14,282,750 real property.

The Planning Board of Arlington has recommended that the building line act be adopted in that town, as Winchester has already done. The Arlington Advocate says:

"We believe that this act provides a means for making necessary widenings with the least expense to the town and the least hardship to the owners of property. It will be observed that the imposing of a building line does not take away the right to use one's land except for building purposes. Lawns, shrubbery, walks and fences may be kept irrespective of the building line. It is hardly more than a notice to the owner that some time in the near or distant future a front strip of his land, varying from a few feet to forty feet, depending upon the necessity, may be taken for highway purposes, and until that time the strip is to be kept clear of substantial structures which would be costly to remove. There is nothing new in the principle of the act. A set-back restriction is very commonly found in residential property of good class. In many of the streets of Winchester there are such setbacks. The only difference is that instead of being a private restriction and enforceable only by the owners of lots which are affected, thereby, it becomes a public regulation enforceable by the town. The act has been adopted in the cities of Boston, Cambridge, Lynn, Medford, Newton, Quincy, Revere, Springfield, Woburn, and in the towns of Brookline, Dedham, Milton, Norwood, Watertown, Winchendon.

Prize Package of Age.

Statistics have been furnished to prove that the college girl spends 87 per cent of her money upon necessities as against 8 per cent for pleasures and luxuries. With the face and figure of a Venus and the thrift and common sense of a Griselda, the college girl of the present is going to be the prize package of the age.

Recipe for Longevity.

A nonagenarian advises the reading of newspapers and keeping youthful company as a recipe for longevity. He believes in lengthening life by refusing to grow old. There is much sound philosophy in this theory of keeping young, for, even if it does not lead to the century mark, it makes every moment of life worth living.

HELP IN COOKING.

July 21, 1916.

Editor of the Star:

Dear Sir:—Miss Gertrude Lingham, who has completed two entire years' work in cooking in the Framingham Normal School, tells me that she would like to help the women who are earnestly striving to encourage education for the home in Winchester. I have suggested that she write a series of articles for the Star.

She is now working out a series of menus and taking a special course in growing, canning, cooking, and serving fruits and vegetables. She could write a series of articles extending to two or three months.

It appears as if Winchester has not entered into this work thoroughly, and I feel that the articles would be appreciated.

Sincerely yours,

W. H. D. Meier.

State Normal School.

P. S.—Miss Lingham is a young woman of unusual ability. She will give your readers something good.

CANNING AND JELLY MAKING RECIPES.

From the Framingham Normal Summer School.

The following menus and recipes are sent from the Framingham Normal Summer School, where they have been worked out, and used.

Day's Menu.

Breakfast—Ice Melons, Dropped Eggs on Shredded Wheat, Bran Gems, Coffee.

Dinner—Broiled Butterfish, Dutchess Potatoes, String Beans, Dressed Lettuce, Cherry Pie.

Supper—Baked Southern Corn Bread, Cinnamon Toast Squares, Currant Jelly, Lemon Sherbet.

Recipes.

String Beans.

String the beans, cut into one and one-half inch pieces, and wash in two waters. Cook in sufficient boiling salted water to cover until tender. Drain, season with salt, pepper, and butter. Milk or cream may be added. Serve hot.

Canning String Beans.

Examine and wash jars and covers thoroughly. Sterilize jars, covers and rubbers. Have covers tied in cheese cloth and placed with jars on racks in kettle, and cover with water. Boil old jars 20 minutes and new jars 3 minutes. Pour boiling water on rubbers and drain. Pick over and string the beans into thirds and wash in 3 waters. Blanch beans in cheese cloth bags in boiling water 15 minutes, then plunge in cold water. Blanching sets color, removes objectionable acids and the softened beans are more easily packed. Pack blanch beans in sterilized jars to within 3-4 inch from top. Add 2 level teaspoons salt to each quart jar of beans and fill nearly to top with water. Fit on rubbers and covers and place first clamp nearly to center of jar. Place jars on rack in kettle with water to cover. Cover kettle and boil jars moderately 2 hours. Remove from boiling water avoiding contact with cold surfaces or drafts. If rubbers have "blown" from under covers, substitute a freshly scalded rubber. Clamp covers when jars are cool enough to handle, pushing first clamp to center of cover and lowering second clamp. Cool, label, and store in cold, dark place.

Currant Jelly.

Examine jars and covers, wash thoroughly and sterilize. When sterilized put shavings of parowax in each jar. Pick over and stem currants, and wash in 4 changes of water. Put currants in kettle with water to cover. Heat slowly until all juice is extracted. Turn into cheese cloth placed in colander over bowl. Press juice through. All cheese cloths used should be wrung out of hot water and the juice be kept hot. Press juice through a second cheese cloth. Pour this juice into a double cheese cloth and allow to drip through. Measure juice and allow to boil 5 minutes. Measure an equal quantity of sugar and heat through. After juice has boiled 5 minutes add the heated sugar. Simmer gently until jelly is formed. Test by pouring 1-2 tablespoon of juice on a cold plate and determine if of a syrupy consistency and a coating of jelly forms on top. Pour hot jelly into the prepared jars up to 1-3 inch from top. The parowax will melt, rise to top and harden. Cool jars, place on covers, label and store, when firm, in a dry place. Second and third extractions may be made from the pulp left in the cheese cloth by heating it with water and pressing and straining through cheese cloths. These extractions may be added to the first extraction.

HICKS BEATEN.

Winchester Country Club Golfer
Loses Amateur Championship.

In the 36-hole final for the State amateur golf championship played on the links of the Wollaston Golf Club Saturday, Jesse P. Guilford of Woodland was the winner over S. T. Hicks of the Winchester Country Club, 10 up and 9 to play, in one of the most uninteresting finals that ever was staged in Massachusetts for so important a title.

Guilford led by 5 up in the morning and won the first five holes straight in the afternoon, to become 10 up. From then on interest lagged in the gallery, which was a mere handful of people, and only contained H. L. Ayer as a state committeeman or official representative.

Guilford was not playing phenomenal golf, but Hicks was not good enough to hope to compete with the former New Hampshire State champion. Hicks deserves great credit for reaching the final and the fact that he did not win the title is not news, as he expected defeat himself, just the same as all the clubs in the State who entered the Windeler shield contest on the first day expected and saw The Country Club win it and then withdrew practically their whole outfit.

A most unsatisfactory finish to a most unsatisfactory tourney as a whole sums up this year's championship.

Guilford was approximately 77 for his morning half, and looked a certain winner with a lead of 5 up. He started off in the afternoon with a win at the first hole without putting out, as Hicks, after nearly reaching the first green in two, was short in 3 and 4 and missed his putt for a 5 coming back. Guilford was within holding distance for a 4, having gotten on the green in 2.

Hicks threw away the second hole, where Guilford topped his second after a long drive. Hicks was just off the green in 2, but only managed to just get on in 3. He took three putts and Guilford was 7 up.

Both were just off the green at the short third hole, where Hicks was short of the hole in 2 and missed a not easy putt for a half in 3.

Hicks' tee shot at the fourth was on the fifth tee, while Guilford was straight up the ally. Hicks was a trifle short on his pitch, while Guilford, after landing his ball in precisely the same spot on the side of the steep bank, short of this terraced green, had the good fortune to have the ball kick up hill, and this gave him the chance to win the hole in 4 to 5.

A ball out of bounds, a third shot to the rough, a hard place to play his fourth from, and a missed putt cost Hicks the fifth. Guilford was in real trouble from the tee, but recovered nicely, and was over the green in 3.

A rock in back of Guilford's ball after two fine long swipes to the sixth cost him this hole. There was a question as to whether he was in a hazard or not, but with a delicate lead of 10 up he did the only thing he could do under the circumstances and played rock and all. His attempt to dig granite in Quincy was not a success, and after he had sent his fourth shot kiting over toward the old quarry in Milton where they used to load granite at the end of the first railroad in America, he sent his caddy after the ball and gave Hicks the hole. It was the only one the Winchester player won in the afternoon, and he showed his appreciation by halving the next two holes in 5 and 4.

The players shook hands on the short ninth, where Hicks drove the green, overran his approach and was nearly stymied playing his third, as Guilford had driven to the edge of the green and nearly holed his approach. Hicks failed to drop his curling 6-foot putt and Guilford was the new State amateur champion then and there. Their A. M. cards:

PRESIDENTIAL POINTERS

The Democratic national convention of 1912 was held in Baltimore from June 25 to July 2, Alton B. Parker being temporary, and Ollie M. James, permanent chairman. Forty-six ballots were taken, Champ Clark leading till the thirtieth, when he was passed by Woodrow Wilson. On the tenth and seven following ballots Clark got more than half the votes cast, but as two-thirds are necessary in a Democratic convention, he was finally defeated. Other prominent candidates were Judson Harmon of Ohio, Oscar W. Underwood of Alabama and Thomas R. Marshall of Indiana. Marshall was chosen as the candidate for vice president on the third ballot.

"Winchester's tax rate highest ever," is a heading taken from a Boston paper. Yes, but think of the things we get for it.

Winchester's new tax rate is $18.40, said to be the highest ever, but if that's Winchester's highest ever the taxpayers are lucky. [Boston Globe.]

A special Legislative Committee is considering uniform State building laws. There certainly should be uniformity in building laws, which would prevent much confusion and misunderstanding.

There is every indication that Boston is to retain its pneumatic postal service. For several weeks the use of the tubes has been in serious danger of discontinuance owing to the hostile attitude of Postmaster-General Burleson.

It is to be hoped that there will be generous co-operation in the plan to celebrate Winchester's achievements. They are many and big and worthy of being taken notice of. No town in the State has done more than has Winchester towards the joys of living.

It looks as if the opposition to the return of Senator Lodge to his present position would not be serious. Many Democrats, as well as Republicans, have signed his nomination papers. It would be poor policy to deprive the country of his eminent services.

A great deal yet remains to be done towards a free passage of canoes from Mystic Lake up the Abenaki river to Manchester Field. Conditions under the tracks of the Boston & Maine railroad at Wedgemere and at Bacon street bridge are extremely bad and hazardous.

A few years ago Sandy Beach on Mystic Lake was closed as a bathing place owing to the polluted condition of the water. If it has ever been any worse than it is today, appearances are very deceptive, and we wonder if the Metropolitan Park Commission has had any analysis made this year.

Sunday was the 100th anniversary of the birth of Charlotte Cushman, America's great actress, concerning whom parents and grandparents of the present generation have often alluded to as a Bostonian of renown. All who have seen her obelisk in Mount Auburn cemetery have been greatly impressed by the simplicity of the monument. It bears only her name; yet that is sufficient.

The County Commissioners will give a hearing on the apportionment of Middlesex County into Representative districts at their office the first Tuesday in August. While this is an important matter it is supposed that the attendance will be composed almost entirely of those personally interested in the matter. The general public do not care much how Winchester is apportioned and who it is to be associated with.

Residents who desire through cars to the Harvard subway are reminded that there will be a hearing before the Public Service Commission Monday, July 31, at 10.30 a. m., at its office No. 1 Beacon street, Boston. A large attendance and verbal expression will accomplish the desired end, otherwise there will be no through cars. Don't leave it to one or two men, but attend the hearing and assist.

It is noticeable that the grass and shrubs about the Railroad property in the centre are receiving no attention this year. No one can speak of OUR "trim little station." It would pay the Selectmen to have this place cared for, just to create and shape the opinions of your visitors who enter by this gateway. It is said that first impressions are lasting. Our station with its tall dead grass and untrimmed shrubs, followed by our billboard centre, cannot leave a memory we would properly like to have our visiting friends take away with them.

"We hurrah for the boys as they go by for the front," says the Waltham Free Press-Tribune, "but how many of us think of the wives and mothers left behind? They go to the trains which carry their loved ones away and as the trains move off they turn their heads aside and brush away the tears and, almost mechanically, go home to take up the burden of keeping the family together. They do not have the excitement which comes from the succession of new scenes, the active preparation for service, the cheering of the multitudes; they bear the cross in the desolation of home. The women are the ones who need a sympathizing word and grasp of the friendly and helpful hand."

Manager Dearborn of the Highlands ball team has had hard luck this season with his games. He was disappointed last Saturday for the third time running by the visiting team not showing up. For teams to take on games and then either not show up or give notice that they will not appear at the last moment, too late for a manager even to notify his own players, is a pretty mean proposition. Manager Dearborn has shown much patience and has done a great deal of work in managing his team this season. He deserves much commendation. It would seem that it might be a good idea for papers to black-list these teams which use its columns to solicit games and then fail to play them without reason or fair notice.

Some years ago during one of our spasmodic uplift movements, a number of waste barrels were placed in different parts of the centre. For several seasons they were maintained and used. We do not remember now having seen any for several years. Perhaps our town has grown so clean and is so careful of its waste papers that they are not needed. If this is the fact it is not apparent, for notwithstanding the constant work of two men about the centre every day, waste paper is quite in evidence. One place which certainly should have such a waste barrel is Manchester Field. Not only is this place used daily by over half a hundred children, but numerous grown-ups visit the place, many to eat their lunch. The waste paper here is very noticeable, and a receptacle for it is badly needed. Perhaps those who were interested in the first movement for waste barrels will again take the matter up. It appears to need the attention of someone.

Bulldog as Mascot.
A western university fraternity adopted a bulldog as its mascot. He proved he understood the duties of that office when he gave an alarm, which saved 24 of its members from death by fire. It is understood he is to have a life job.

When Moving Rugs.
In packing rugs, when moving, sprinkle with powdered alum and fold a few moth balls in when rolling them. Then, if not used, immediately, as is sometimes the case, there is no danger of their being destroyed by pests.

Wouldn't Be Missed.
A Russian count, testifying in his divorce suit, stated that he rises ordinarily about noon. He could stay in bed all day, no doubt, without disgracing the business world.

Fated.
Mrs. Outlate—"What became of the cuckoo clock?" Outlate—"The cat ate it."

BASE BALL.

By "Mack"

We played a return game with Arlington Saturday and were beaten 3 to 1. But that score does not tell the story. It was one of the best games played this season and it was a shame to have it marred by miserable umpiring. The Association in Arlington should be able to secure as good a man for umpire as others do and it requires only the use of a few dollars more to do it. They have a good man in "Jack" Dale over there but the men in charge over the team think $3.00 too much to pay for a competent man. This man Sullivan was paid the magnificent sum of $1.50 for his services, which sum, in our opinion, was $1.50 too much. He is said to be a book agent by occupation, he should stick to that job and cut out umpiring in the future, for what he did not know about calling balls and strikes and decisions on the boys would fill several volumes of the books he is supposed to peddle, and in the future when we play Arlington we will find out who is going to handle the game before we play with them. It is not fair to visiting teams or spectators to have a game spoiled by poor work of the man in charge. The Malden All-Stars played them a week ago and while they beat Arlington they said it was not the fault of the umpire that Arlington did not win the game, but do not hand it all to the umpire. When the two runs were scored Wingate was the indirect cause of the scoring. With Nix on first, Cleary laid down a bunt in front of the plate which McQuinn got to Wingate for a forceout ahead of the speedy runner, but he let the ball get away from him and two men were on with no one out. The next man, Harber, hit a grounder which Wingate also fumbled as the runner from second base passed him, this filled the bases with no one out. McGovern, the next man up, drove to Wingate and he made as fine a play as could be seen on any field, catching the runner at the plate for a force out, but Mr. Sullivan, the umpire, after calling him out decided that Arlington needed the game and proceeded to hand it to them right there. Then to show the beautiful system of scoring they use over there they decided to give McGovern a hit and they gave Cleary a hit on his bunt after Wingate dropped the throw. All together they got 4 hits off Henry while we got five from Wright; Henry got 6 strikeouts and Wright only one. We also drove out seven long flies to the outfield while Arlington got two. Take the game as a whole we played better ball than Arlington did and with any sort of a fair deal and even break we would have won. Now a few words on the ball team: we have got right here in Winchester the best team that ever represented the town on the field, and all they want is encouragement, not "knocking." It is alright to criticize a team when they play as they did against Woburn but when they are out working for everything in sight as they did in Arlington they should be accorded the support of every fan in town and all the encouragement they can get. Our team in Arlington was full of fight and "pep" and a continuance of such spirit will soon put us in the winning column once more. If there is anything that makes the writer tired it is to hear some of those fans "knocking" from one week end to the other, and remember, as Bob Dunbar says, "every knock is a boost." Anyone can use a hammer but it takes a soldier to carry a gun. We could say a few more things in this column but the Editor might class it as unfit for publication so will give you the score as it should be:

NOTES

Percentage 500. Even break; not good, but still on the winning side.

On third we have Claude Davidson, the Brown third baseman, and he put up a nice game. He is the fighting type of ball player that fills in on any team. Saturday will be his only game with us as he goes to Attleboro next Saturday for a series of games with the next town.

Jim Linnehan was full of life and "pep" all the afternoon and worked hard for a win. He was forever cheering up Hevey when things were not breaking right.

The Arlington fans got after Mr. Ump, he was so raw in his decisions, especially the one on Hutchinson at first base. There was no cause for his decision there whatever. It was a funny sight to see the whole Winchester infield drop when he called the runner safe.

The Reading Chronicle says about the game at Winchester when their team was beaten 22 to 2: "All teams have a reversal of form, when nothing seems to go right, but watch out for them when they meet Wakefield tomorrow." That is standing up for a team with a vengeance. The other towns are the same way. You fans should see the local papers that cover the games and then you would feel like saying "Well we have got some team here after all."

Tift won his game from Reading Saturday, although they hit him hard. Leo Halloran, the Boston College star, pitched for Reading. Halloran is one of the few pitchers who has beaten Tift this season. He should have won with any kind of support.

The Wakefield town team got away with the game from Stoneham and leads in the trolley league. Some league that; only three teams playing in it.

Marblehead beat St. Johns, C. C. of Cambridge. Davis pitched his usual good game. Here is a player that is the property of Connie Mack, but for family reasons he refuses to play league ball. He filled in as pitcher and outfielder for two seasons in Philadelphia and could easily make the team if he wished to go back.

Pere Marquette dropped a game to Winthrop. This team is not winning so many games since it lost Wright for a pitcher.

Queen Quality lost to Manchester, as they failed to do anything against Grover. This is the same team that beat Reading so badly a week ago.

When you hear a lot of fans and near experts talking about a team not hitting, quietly ask the above experts what team in the semi-pro ranks are doing any hitting; and when we say hitting we mean going with double figures against the opposing team. Take the Sunday papers of July 23. We find four teams among all the strong semi-pro's setting 10 or more hits. There are numerous times during a game when the opposing player makes an error, but the "kids" that do the scoring will hand their own team a hit. So here is where there is a chance for figures to lie.

Now after the above item we wish to state for the benefit of Mr. Viano (he might feel offended if we called him "Bill") that when "Mack" writes his story for the STAR he is merely doing it for the pleasure of the readers of this paper, and any time the readers do not wish to see or read what we are sending in they can notify Mr. Wilson and we will do our best to eliminate anything that is or will be offensive to the readers of this column. When we write these notes and stories of the game we are merely doing what other writers of base ball are doing in their columns; that is giving the other fellow a dig when he needs it, and we will continue to do so unless we hear otherwise as stated above.

Any man that is connected with base ball should be able to stand criticism. He should take it with a smile and let it go at that. If every manager would take the advice of all the well-meaning people that come to him, he would be obliged to have a new team each week. And in conclusion we have an idea that this article in last week's STAR was inspired by a local fan. That has been the opinion of a number of fans this week. As far as the Minute Boys are concerned there is no vociferous demand here in Winchester for them, as a good many of the fans think they are over-rated. They have only played four good games this season, and managed to win two games. Nuf ced.

We are not "panning" other teams in this column. We, as "Bill"—excuse me, Mr. Viano—says, make a comment on the game or team as we and others writers have a right to do, and if that is "panning" we will continue to "pan" all summer. "Bill," you better get your base ball out of something besides the War Cry!

A WINCHESTER BOY AT CAMP.

At the depot at Amherst we were met by a guide whose name was Rufus Cushman. He took us to the camp on the college grounds. When we got there we all shook hands with Capt.
Smith and Colonel Parsons. At 5:50 we went to supper. About 8:00 we made our beds on the camp cots, then we had an exhausting pillow fight, a shower bath and went to bed. The next morning we got up at the sound of a bugle at six o'clock and had a shower bath. Then we raised the flag over the drill hall and then went to breakfast. When we came home we had a chapel meeting in our camp tent, and then we went to a lecture on eggs and how the baby chick is hatched. When we got back to camp we had a quiz on what the prof. told us. Then we prepared for inspection by making our beds and putting our tents in order for the day.
This was very important because our inspector had very good eyesight and could find the minutest thing that was out of order. When perfect we were marked 100 and given the honor flag.
Our tent had the honor flag once.
Our ward was marked 99.5 one day because of a feather out of place.

At 12 we had dinner. When we got back we were told to rest on our bunks until 1:45. Then we had a ball game. At 6:00 we had supper and later we had a pillow fight and a shower bath and went to bed. Next morning it was the same as the day before until 8:25. Then we had a talk on base ball by Prof. Hicks, and a stock judging contest. Three milk cows were tied in the arena and we were told to pick out the one that we thought best. I picked out the fattest cow and the one that had the most milk in her udder but she was the worst one.

At 6:00 we had supper and after supper we had a play where the boys took part. At 9:15 we had our shower bath and went to bed. Next morning we followed the same program with shower bath and flag raising and breakfast until 9:15 when we had a lecture on birds, then a quiz, and then we prepared for inspection. At 12 we had dinner and then rest hour from 1:00 until 2:00, and then a ball game with the town team. We won.
At 6:00 we had supper and a pillow fight and a shower bath and went to bed. Next morning, Sunday, we got up at 6:00 and had a shower and had breakfast and went on a hike. We took our lunches with us. At 5:30 we returned and had supper and then we had a talk on Good Standing. Then we had a shower and went to bed.
Next morning, Monday, we followed the same program until 8:25. Then we had a lecture on seeds. Then we went home and prepared for inspection. Then dinner at 12 and then rest hour and then we had a ball game and then we had supper. After Husbands Outclass Riches.

A census taken in a co-educational institution disclosed the fact that the dear girls were more interested in securing husbands than riches. Another demonstration, obviously, of the fallacy of the higher education.

Dream of Procrastinator.

Dillydally (a chronic procrastinator)—"I dreamt last night that I—er—ah—proposed to you. I wonder what that is a sign of?" Miss Lingerlong (desperately)—"It is a sign that you have got more sense when you are asleep than when you are awake."

supper we gathered wood for a bonfire. I was putting a barrel on my shoulder when I saw a lot of bees coming out. I looked in the barrel and there was a bee hive in it. I dropped it and ran. At 7:30 we had the bon fire and we roasted marshmellows. At 9:30 we had a shower and then went to bed.

We followed the same program
Tuesday until 8:25. Then we had a lecture on insects, and a quiz, and then we went home and had a corn judging contest. Then we prepared for inspection and then we had dinner, and rest hour after dinner, and then we had a ball game. At 6:00 we had supper and then we had circus practice and then we had a shower bath and went to bed. Next morning after breakfast, at 8:25 one of the professors gave a lecture, with moving pictures, on pigs. The pictures were about a boy who got interested in pigs and asked his father for money to buy one, but he wouldn't give him any so the boy went to work and earned the money. When he had earned enough money he bought the pig and he took good care of him and at the County Fair he got a prize of $125.

Then we were taken down to a shop and shown all kinds of farming implements. Then we went back and prepared for inspection and had dinner and then we had a rest hour.
Then we had a track meet. I came second in the 100 yard dash, second in discus throwing and second in hurdling.

At 6:00 we had supper and then we had our last meeting. Some of the boys made speeches. Next morning we left Amherst for Boston on the 6:05 train.

The boys in the camp were very nice and were full of fun. Their ages were from 12 to 17. I had a very good time and coming home to Winchester I weighed four pounds more than when I left for Amherst the week before.

I should have said that the last night at camp we had a circus at which there were a number of people. We all had our part. I was in a Paul Revere race and took part in the double elephant walk. We ended with the camp yell which is:

Ya—ee, Ya—ee!
We are the boys of Mass—agie!
Are we in it? Well I guess!
Boy's Camp, Boy's Camp, Yess!
Yess! Yess!

Edward McDonald.

PRISONERS OF WAR

In Former Times They Were Held as Virtual Slaves.

HAD TO EARN THEIR LIBERTY.

Then the System of Ransom Arose and With It Cruel Abuses and a Lawless Traffic in Captives—Rules That Govern Civilized Nations Today.

The prisoner of war in our day is the subject of an elaborate code of rules drawn up at meetings of The Hague peace conference. No property must be taken from him except arms and military equipment. He must not be kept in close confinement if that can be avoided, and if possible his parole must be accepted. He may be set to any work for which he is reasonably fitted—although officers are not bound to work—but he must be allowed a similar standard of life and credited with a similar scale of pay to that which obtains among the soldier-artificers of the conquering nation.

When set free the cost of his maintenance will be deducted and he will receive the balance in cash. He may be shot when trying to escape, but if caught alive he must not be punished except by curtailment of his liberty. These are a few of the many rules by which all civilized nations are now bound in regard to their prisoners of war.

Among savage men the destiny of a prisoner was to be eaten, massacred in cold blood or tortured for sport, until it dawned one day upon some primitive political economist that a live captive had labor value, and so arose the institution of slavery. Among free peoples like the Teutons, war prisoners were the only slaves allowed, and they might in time earn their freedom. This idea of commutation became the custom of medieval Europe, applied as "prize money" to ships and "ransom" to individuals. All officers could claim the right to offer a reasonable ransom, which went into the pocket of the captor. Sometimes officers would ransom a whole troop of their men.

Kings or great captains were ransomed by their nations. Richard the Lion Heart had a woeful time of it until England ransomed him from the Emperor Henry. King John of France, taken at Poitiers by the Black Prince, was held by England to ransom until the Duke of Anjou came as hostage while John went to raise the necessary cash. King David of Scotland, captured by Queen Eleanor, never persuaded the thrifty Scots to pay the whole of his ransom and became a dependent as a consequence.

In Froissart's engaging chronicles you may read how bands of mercenary troops quarreled with gallant and impetuous commanders, whose only object was the destruction of the enemy. The mercenaries were out to take prisoners and trade in the ransoms. This traffic gave rise to infinite abuses, including torture and all manner of dishonesty. Sir John Falstaff—Shakespeare's Falstaff—was notorious for an extensive and unscrupulous traffic in ransoms. Yet it was not until during the eighteenth century wars that an agreement to end the custom was come to between the European commanders. Even then it lingered on in practice until the eve of the Napoleonic wars, when it was swept away for the newer idea of exchange of prisoners, rank for rank.

One great change brought about by the new system was that the prisoners became a state care and responsibility. Whether this change made for greater humaneness of treatment depended in part upon the conquering nation, but even more upon the individual governor or jailer. This may be seen in the varying accounts we have of the conditions of prisoners of war in England during the long struggle with Napoleon. Lincolnshire's fens make good centers for a military compound. George Borrow, in "Lavengro," has given a terrible picture of the conditions at Norman's Cross prison, in the fen district. "Rations of carrion meat," he writes, "and bread from which I have seen the very hounds occasionally turn away were unworthy entertainment even for the most ruffian enemy, when helpless and captive."

In these prisons the inmates made various articles of commercial utility, such as straw plait, which were bought of them by dealers for a miserable sum, the proceeds procuring them a few trifling comforts and the luxury of tobacco, or affording the bribes necessary for the smuggling out of letters.

More tolerable was the fate of those settled on parole in such towns as Chesterfield, where they endured actual confinement under guard only at night, being free within certain bounds during the day. In many cases, as time went by, prisoners who had won the confidence of their guards became virtually free in all respects, starting workshops as cabinetmakers, etc., or teaching drawing, music or French to the children of the well-to-do. Their geniality and politeness soon made them very popular with the blunt and serious Derbyshire folk, and quite a number of them married and settled down in the Chesterfield district, where the traces of this settlement may be seen both in local names and in olive skins and other features.—Philadelphia Ledger.

HER HUSBAND'S OFFICE.

A Story For Wives Who Just Drop In During Business Hours.

"Will you please," asks a secret sufferer, "write something about wives who make unexpected calls at their husbands' offices? I am not guilty of anything, but I think that even the most innocent of men suffers acutely when his wife visits him at his office. There is no way for me to make my wife understand this unless I appear boorish and brutal. Can't you say something about it? Many wives read your column."

Yes, friend, says the Cleveland Plain Dealer. We will put it in the form of general propositions, hoping thereby to step on no individual toes. We hold these facts to be proved:

That no husband ever wants his wife to call on him at his office during business hours, except upon his invitation.

That no wife can know how she upsets his routine, disorders the mental processes that go on during those hours and subjects herself to the gossip of his office mates.

That there is no easy way to make a wife see this.

We proceed from these truisms to a few observations.

A lovely creature breezes into her husband's office just because she happens to be passing. She says:

"Now, don't let me disturb you a minute—I know you are busy. Dearie, what good does that desk light do you at that angle? Don't you know you will ruin your eyes? What a mess your desk is in! Look at Mr. Officemate's—how neat it is! Well, just let me stick this little package in your lower drawer and you bring it home with you when you come."

"Well, I must run along, for you're busy. Come out to the elevator with me, dear. I want to speak to you. Who is that disreputable looking man who is waiting in the outer office to see you? Why, it's a perfect disgrace to have such callers!"

"You have an appointment with him? How can you make an appointment with such a creature? Well, goodby, dear. Get your shoes shined before you come home—you look awfully sloppy."

And if husband protests against that call her eyes fill with innocent tears and she says:

"Why, I wasn't there five minutes, and you weren't working at anything when I came in! And men call on you and stay half an hour! Of course I'll never come again. Are you ashamed of your wife?"

The Bethlehem Music Festival.

The Bach festival at Bethlehem is one of the most interesting events in musical production in this country. "Musically Bethlehem, Pa., is the most remarkable town or settlement in the United States." In 1780 Bethlehem had an orchestra, probably the first in the United States. In 1901 the Bethlehem music festival was marked by the first performance in America of Bach's complete Christmas oratorio. Bethlehem has been called "The American Oberammergau" and "The American Balmuth." The music festival is held each year.—New York Times.

Trebizond and Polo.

Polo probably came to us indirectly from Trebizond, where the Kakak-median, or Pumpkin square, was the site of a medieval polo ground. The game found great favor with the nobles of Trebizond and was played on horseback, much in the same way as modern polo. It produced intense excitement among the spectators, rivaling that of the hippodrome, possibly because it was dangerous as well as fashionable. Polo caused the death of one emperor of Trebizond—John I., who was killed by a fall from his horse.—Westminster Gazette.

Died Same Date, Not Same Day.

While it is true that Cervantes and Shakespeare died on the same date, they did not die on the same day. Shakespeare died Tuesday, April 23, 1616; Cervantes died Saturday, April 23, 1616. The explanation lies in the difference between the calendars in use at that time in England and Spain. As a matter of fact, Shakespeare outlived Cervantes by about ten days.—London Observer.

The Word Vaudeville.

The word "vaudeville" sprang from Vaux de Vire, the name of a hamlet in the picturesque town of Vire, in Switzerland. In the fifteenth century this town was the home of Oliver Basselin, the author of witty drinking songs. One of the best known of these songs was a merry dissertation on the author's red nose.

Insatiable.

Clarence had wearied his mother with a lot of questions. Finally, she exclaimed: "Clarence Briggs, if you ask one more question you march right off to bed!"

Clarence pondered. Then he said: "When pa asks where I will him be sent to bed, too?"—Exchange.

Right or Wrong Number?

The right way to call a telephone number is to consult the telephone directory, get the correct number, and then call for that number, clearly and distinctly, when the operator answers your signal. If you do not ask for the correct number you will be connected with the wrong number.

Have you ever noticed how the mind plays queer pranks with numbers in transposing figures? It will readily transpose 1468 into 1648, or 6426 into 6246.

If memory only is relied upon, there is always a likelihood of error, and valuable time is lost in correcting such errors.

If an old memorandum containing a number is used, there may have been a change since it was written or printed, therefore the telephone directory should be consulted whenever you wish to talk.

There can be no time saved by guessing—"nears" don't count; every wrong number call is an economic waste to the subscriber as well as to the company.

The wrong way creates annoyance to the person who is called by mistake; the right way saves delay and annoyance in completing your message, and it creates a high grade of service for you and for others.

If you cannot find the name in the telephone directory, ask for the "Information Operator" at the desired Central office. Her records are complete and up to the minute; she knows every new subscriber's number, every change of location as well as of number, and will start you right with the desired information.

GIBRALTAR FOR FLORIDA.

England Once Offered Spain the Great Rock in a Trade.

You know that for everlasting stability and stubborn resistance there is nothing in the world like Gibraltar. Did you ever hear of a curious little bargain, which was never consummated, but in which that great rock at the mouth of the Mediterranean figured as part of the price? It had to do with an important part of our own country, and yet it is seldom mentioned in any of our histories.

The impregnable fortress was fought over by the Spaniards and the Moors for two centuries, and it came in for the keen interest of Oliver Cromwell, who thundered at the British the fact that if they ever hoped to become the dominating sea power of the world they must control the Mediterranean from Gibraltar. This great necessity was never lost sight of, but a suitable pretext did not arise until the war of the Spanish succession, when England and France were at each other's throat for the mastery of Europe.

Under Admiral Sir George Brooke the British fleet made an unexpected attack on the Spanish defenses and captured Gibraltar in 1704. Presently the English shelled the town. That was long before the digging of the Suez canal by the French and the Egyptians, and the cost of maintaining the rocky fortress appeared to be out of all proportion to its worth. When Spain was approached by Napoleon for the purchase of Florida as a blow at England from the western theater of the Anglo-French war, England offered Spain to trade Gibraltar for Florida. Had the trade taken place England would not now be undisputed mistress of the sea.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

SCOOPING UP WATER.

How a Fast Train Fills Its Locomotive Tank Without Stopping.

Mr. Cecil J. Allen, chief of the civil engineers' department, supplies in the Great Eastern Railway Magazine some interesting facts on "the picking up of water" by trains at full speed on long journeys. Locomotives, he says, are exceedingly bibulous creatures. The engines of one large British railway alone consume some 12,500,000 gallons of water per annum. An express engine under normal conditions of running will consume from thirty to thirty-five gallons of water for every mile covered, taking a general average. On such a journey as that made by the "Cornish Riviera Limited Express," of the Great Western railway, from London to Plymouth, 272 miles—the longest daily nonstop run in the world—some four tons of coal are consumed against an average of no less than forty tons of water.

The troughs, Mr. Allen explains, have usually a length of just over a quarter of a mile and are laid perfectly level in the center of the "four foot." Water is taken from them by means of a movable shovel shaped "scoop" under the tender, which is lowered into the trough as the train passes over it at full speed. The sharp edge of this scoop cuts off, as it were, the "top layer" of the water, which is forced up into a large vertical pipe and delivered through a mushroom head or an elbow at the top of the tender into the water tank. As soon as the water gauge on the tender indicates that the tank is full the scoop is raised again. According to the speed at which the train is traveling, it is possible to lift from 2,000 to 3,000 gallons in about fifteen seconds.—Westminster Gazette.

When a Lady's In the Case

Yacht and Fishing Smack Race For Love, and Both Win.

By DAVID WATSON
Copyright by Frank A. Munsey Co.

The Daybreak slipped out of muddy Albemarle canal in tow of her polished mahogany launch just as an omnivorous fog sifted in from Hampton roads. Commodore Keelson's trim schooner yacht was on the way via the inside route from his leafy winter home at Ortona, Fla., to his cool summer retreat at Rivermouth, on the Maine coast.

Needless to say the owner was not aboard.

Captain Martin Gale, her fat little sailing master, wasn't going to cry baby at a little fog, especially as he was his own boss for the time being. So he pointed her down the ship channel through a thick weather bedlam of whistles, horns and bells, into which her own patent hair raiser boomed its own doleful contribution.

"WHAT DO YOU KNOW ABOUT JENNIE HILBERT?" HE DEMANDED.

Off Hampton while the skipper was debating with the mate whether to anchor inside Old Point or to keep on up the bay two large spurs loomed in the smother straight ahead. An instant later, with two helms rolling vainly hard over and two anchors rumbling down under foot, the yacht had side-swiped the stranger with a bump that made both craft reel.

The funny part of it was that Captain Gale, bellowing an impotent warning through his megaphone, had instantly recognized in the other vessel a Gloucester fisherman commanded by an old townsman of his, whom he had not seen since he gave up fish killing for the lure of blue broadcloth and the grip of a brass bound wheel.

In fact, the recognition was mutual. But the greeting of brawny Captain Andrew Sponson of the White Sea lacked some of the spontaneous cordiality called for by a five years' separation. He looked overside and took stock of damage, then remarked:

"What do ye think ye're doin'?" Sponson's churlishness should be explained lest he make enemies. In the month since the White Sea had come south with a fleet of sealers to convey the seething shoals of mackerel on their annual jaunt up the coast from Hatteras she hadn't made enough to keep her crew of eighteen in shoelaces. All this didn't look much like Sponson's getting married in June to the finest girl in Gloucester, and here he was with another repair bill on his hands.

"Sponson was allus as full of sass as an egg is of meat," Gale assured his mate loudly as the vessels drifted apart and swung to their anchors.

The peaceably disposed Gale later boarded the fishing schooner in his gig for a chat with his old shipmate. But Sponson, brooding over his lean son and with his crew of huskies discussing afresh "the White Sea's luck," was not a very cheerful companion.

"I'm hoodooed, that's the long and short of it," he declared. "I caltate I couldn't have found room between Fort Monroe and Wolloughby beach to git by your hooker."

"All there is to it, Andy," said Gale sympathetically, "you've got to git a decent vessel. How in Sam Hill do ye expect to git around with the rest of the fleet in a rusty old trap that can't git out of her own way, let alone nobody else's?"

"You wouldn't by no chance want to sail that flat bottomed catamaran of yours with the White Sea, would ye?" he inquired with elaborate politeness, waving an eleven inch hand toward the port hole which framed the handsome Daybreak, dim in the fog.

"By golly, I'd like to oblige ye," said the gold braded yacht captain, "but we're takin' things easy this trip, goin' up the inside route."

"All the more reason why ye can spare a little time," jeered Sponson. "Think up a better excuse than that. Owner won't let ye, truth was known."

"Well, I don't mind givin' ye a go out here in the mornin' in the mornin', if it's clear," conceded Gale.

"Bah!" snorted the misanthrope.

"I don't mind admittin' to ye that there's only one thing I'd like to do now more than wallop this old box of yours, and that is—"

"To git enough to eat for once!" finished Sponson sententiously.

"—and that is to drop into Gloster and set down into that easy chair in the northwest corner of Jennie Hilbert's parlor," continued Gale confidentially, overlooking his host's rudeness.

"What do you know about Jennie Hilbert?" he demanded. "It jest happens that me and Jennie Hilbert—Why, man, you jest keep out of Jennie Hilbert's parlor!"

"My poor fellow," said Gale, "I'm afraid your hard luck's gone to your head. Now, if I took ye anyways but a joke, I could show ye somethin'—and dinged if I don't!"

He tore open his ample blue coat and yanked a fragrant wad of pink envelopes from a tight breast pocket. A faint perfume filled the smoky cabin. While a pudgy fist guarded the precious documents Sponson was allowed to gaze for a brief instant at the magic words:

"Your ownest Jennie."

"You got anything you want to perduce as evidence ag'in' that?" demanded Gale triumphantly.

As if in a daze Sponson drew out another bundle of letters in identical stationery and Gale stared at the fateful line:

"Always your own Jennie."

"I don't bite for a cent!" sniffed Gale. "The writin's different."

"The perfumery ain't," said Sponson, with something like a groan, "and it's easy enough to change handwritin'."

"Oh, have it your own way, ye big leg and arm factory!" said Gale warily. "We won't have to fight about it. She'll tell ye where you kit off fast enough when ye git back to Gloster."

"You pile out of here or we will be fightin' about it!" shouted Sponson.

"Well, I must be gittin' back aboard. What time do ye caltate to git out of here in the mornin', Sponson—that is, allowin' it clears?"

Sponson appeared not to have heard for a moment. Then he said absently: "Oh, not till the tide ebbs—8 o'clock, I caltate, allowin' it clears."

"Well, good luck! Sorry we couldn't fix up that little race," said Gale, seemingly anxious to heal the breach.

As Sponson was ostensibly only going out to the grounds again to dog the mackerel there seemed no reason why her crew should have got her under way so stealthily when the silvery moon rays leaked through the first rift in the clouds about midnight.

And as Gale was avowedly going home leisurely through the canals there seemed no excuse why he should have followed the Gloucester man to sea so feverishly when the anchor watch routed him out and apprised him of her departure.

The inference is that Captain Gale and Captain Sponson "knew" each other of old.

Four days later the schooner-yacht Daybreak boiled in past rocky Montauk Point wing and wing before a southwesterly gale.

She certainly hadn't passed the last few days in "dawdling among the lily pads." The planking was gone from her bulwarks amidships, and the stanchions stood up lonely.

Captain Gale regarded the wild sky dubiously, shook his head, consulted his barometer again and ordered the reefed mainsail lowered.

"I hate like the deuce to go in," he said, "but I caltate the Vineyard will be plenty good enough for us tonight." The mate, with an arm in a sling, agreed promptly.

But as the outer jib was downed off West Chop preparatory to joining the fleet of comfortably anchored shipping in the capacious haven Gale unceremoniously snatched the canvas covered spyglass from the mate and squinted through it up the harbor.

"By the great hook block," he fumed, "if there ain't that staidsted plug of Sponson's in there to an anchor! Where in the name of the gods and little fishes did he drop from? Well, this harbor ain't big enough to hold us both tonight, that's all! We'll run over to Hyannis, and then we'll have a thirty mile start on him when the weather gits straightened out again!"

Of course Gale had no right to risk his owner's property so recklessly, and Sponson, though he owned the White Sea, was hardly within the bounds of common sense in leaving a potential season's catch 500 miles behind and racing madly northward.

It all goes to prove once more John Gay's two-hundred-year-old assertion, "When a lady's in the case you know all other things give place."

The contemptuous eye of Captain Andrew Sponson had seen the maneuvers of the yacht, which he had believed hundreds of miles astern. Though his sails were hardly furled he got the White Sea under way again and deftly ran out of the crowded harbor under head sails in pursuit of his fleeing rival.

Next morning, if the glass of the marine observer at Highland Light could have bored the thickness of the furious easterly storm which lashed the sands beneath him, it would have revealed the wallowing schooners Daybreak and White Sea, nearly abreast, heading resolutely across Massachusetts bay under balance reefed lower sails.

The marine observer, too, hardened though he was, would have marveled at thought of their night's experience in the wild gale which had razed off Cape Cod since early in the evening before.

The course of each was laid for Eastern Point and Gloucester, sixty miles to the north.

The yacht's spindling topmast had finally succumbed, and the last shreds of a ruined foretopmast flaked straight out from the masthead, but the loss of this top hamper was a blessing rather than anything else.

Gale appeared to realize that his was a losing fight. In such weather the fisherman was at her best, and the battle across the bay would be a long one.

"NO, ANDY, NO—WELL, JUST ONE!"

Storm demons seemed to shriek in the tense rigging. And then, without warning, a screaming squall snapped the White Sea's main sheet. Sponson knew that it should have been replaced long ago, but his schooner was already in debt.

The great boom shot off against the lee rigging like a catapult and buckled at the impact with a terrific crack. The White Sea drove into a trio of small Niagaras as she came to reluctantly at Sponson's more reluctant command, and the crippled mainsail speedily whipped itself into streaming ribbons. A storm trysail was bent on the main gall, but in a few minutes it went the way of the mainsail.

The skipper bitterly realized that he was out of the race. He was a fool to have expected anything more than the beastly luck which had chased him all the spring. Perhaps he was even ready to believe what Gale had said of Jennie. At any rate, he led a mad attack on the snarl of thrashing spar and tortured canvas and as promptly staggered back and collapsed unconscious on the flooded deck.

Blood oozed from his thick, dark hair and stained the bronze of his square cut face as they carried him to his bunk.

"The White Sea's luck," said the crew resignedly.

Then Big Len Gunnell, the seine heaver, took charge. The wreckage tied up beyond further mischief, the plunging White Sea, her bravado suddenly wilted, was put broad off before the gale.

To windward the Daybreak, ignorant of a possible tragedy and gathering new hope from the fisherman's misfortune, dipped the ragged yacht ensign at her main peak in heartless adieu and went on.

Around the knuckle of Cape Cod foamed the fisherman, and after a long beat under foresail and jib she thankfully let go both anchors in Provincetown harbor.

A doctor was lashed aboard immediately. Back with him came Big Len, bearing a crumpled Gloucester paper which told joyfully that the missing mackerel had "struck" again in great quantities off the coast of Nova Scotia.

The crew started a cheer, which was promptly squelched.

"Now, shut right up, every mother's son of ye!" ordered Big Len. "Skipper ain't in no condition to listen to no such kiylin'! The galoot who lets another yip out of him goes over the rail, feet, head and stummick! Understand?"

The crew did.

Early next morning a small boat, with a comely middle aged woman and a fluffy haired, brown eyed girl, came alongside, the latter feathering her oars with the touch of a man-of-war's man and making her landing undismayed by an admiring crew.

"Darnation!" grumbled Big Len. "Ain't I got enough on to my mind already? Here's the Widder Hilbert from home and that pretty young one of hers chock on top of us! And women folks aboard a vessel is jest plain nuisance!"

He tried to entice the cook aft to do the honors, but the cook knew a thing or two and made himself scarce. So it was the perspiring seine heaver who took their painter and meekly ushered them below, repeatedly assuring them in answer to frantic inquiries that the skipper merely "had the bark rubbed off."

"My land, Andy Sponson," began the relieved Mrs. Hilbert, restored to her housewifely self with a jump at the good news, "why don't you tidy things up a little bit?"

"Why, Mother Hilbert, aren't you ashamed?" expostulated the girl, who, with eyes shining, was on her knees at the edge of Sponson's bunk. "If you aren't nice I'll tell Andy all about you and Captain Gale! No, Andy, your temper will go up! No—well, just one!"

Big Len Gunnell, the seine heaver, backed out of the cabin and went on deck, where he took long, deep breaths of the bracing salt air.

TRADERS' ANNUAL

ALL ABOARD!

Big Crowd Will Go to Canobie Lake Traders' Day.

It is expected that the largest crowd which has ever attended a similar event will go to Canobie Lake next Wednesday on the annual outing of the Winchester Traders'. The Committee in charge has completed its arrangements and the day promises to be one of fun and pleasure for everyone, both young and old. The program is probably without exception the most attractive ever prepared.

Special electric, going to the Lake without change, will leave the centre at 8 a. m. Everyone intending making the trip is urged to be on hand and take the early cars, that the program may be opened on schedule and that all may have opportunity to participate.

Aside from the special program, boating, dancing, theatre, bowling, swings, merry-go-round, etc., for the children; fish and chicken dinners, and everything to be found at a first class summer resort may be indulged in.

The event of the outing will be the base ball game between teams made up from the married and single traders. This will be played on the special ball diamond at the Lake, said to be one of the best in the State. The two teams are to be captained by J. Chris. Sullivan for the Married Men and by John Piccolo for the Single men. Players are requested to see their captains at once for positions on the teams.

Following the ball game the following sports will be run off, for which most attractive prizes have been purchased:

- 50 yard dash for girls.
- 100 yard dash for Traders.
- 100 yard dash for boys.
- Hop, step and jump for Traders.
- Hop, step and jump for boys.
- Potato race for married ladies.
- Potato race for boys.
- Potato race for girls.
- Broad jump for traders.
- Watermelon race for boys.
- Doughnut race for girls.

Prizes are also to be awarded to the lightest man, the heaviest man, the oldest man and the oldest lady present at the outing.

In addition to the list of firms making donations and agreeing to close for the day as published last week, the following should be added: Bowser & Bancroft, cloth for signs. Herbert J. Darley, 1-2 doz. photos. Pease Bros., painting signs. Mason, Sanborn and Ramsdell, signs.

Cluquot Club Co., ginger ale. Far & Lane Co., $2.00. F. MacDonald, $1.00. LeDuc, $1.00. & Hawes Co., $1.00.

Be sure and obtain your tickets early that the committee may make ample provision for everyone. This important. Tickets may be obtained of the Hersey Hardware Co., Sullivan's Barber Shop and of the Committee.

Practically every store in town will close during the entire day with the exception only of the drug stores, which will close from 8 in the morning until 6.30 in the evening. Housewives are warned to make their purchases early on Tuesday to insure prompt delivery and to avoid being caught unprepared.

SIGN MAY COME DOWN.

Billboard Case Continued Until August 11.

The case of the Town of Winchester against Frank Donahue of Malden, foreman of the Donnelly Bill Posting Co., which has already been much continued in the Woburn court, was again continued when it came up yesterday morning. This time it appears however, that the continuance will result in the removal of the big billboard on the Laraway building in the centre, for Mr. Harvey of Malden, counsel for Mr. Donahue, intimated that if the case was continued to allow Mr. Donnelly of the bill posting company to return from his vacation, he might confer with Inspector Maurice Dinneen of this town towards its removal.

It appears now that the sign will be removed within a short time, for it is reported that besides not complying with the by-laws of the Town and being unsafe, the big billboard is not built within the requirements of the Fire Prevention Commission.

Beyond asking for continuance of the case after stating that perhaps the matter could be arranged between the Inspector and Mr. Donnelly, the defense did not present its side of the case, and a continuance was granted until Aug. 11th.

THE WATER PROBLEM.

Aberjona River a Sewer for Manufacturers.

A visit of inspection was made Tuesday afternoon to the Merrimac Chemical Co. and the New England Manufacturing Co. at North Woburn, for the purpose of ascertaining the cause for the discoloration of the water of the Aberjona river as it passes through Winchester and the killing of fish life in the river, ponds and Mystic Lake.

The inspecting party included Selectmen Davidson and Kendall, Fred N. Goodwin, deputy fish and game commissioner for Massachusetts, President Hardy of the Middlesex Sportsman's Association and others.

They were met at the offices of the Chemical Co. by officials of the concern, who were very courteous to the inspectors and apparently opened up everything likely to lead to the contamination of the water. The Aberjona river has its source at the plant of the Chemical Co. and here an opportunity was given to see the kind of water that enters the river. It may be said here that the New England Manufacturing Co. is supposed to be a separate concern from the Chemical Co., although some of the officials serve both companies. The two plants are separated one from the other by a high board fence on top of which is strung barbed wire. Special policemen are stationed at all the entrances to the plant, and every employee wears a numbered button as a proof that he is a workman. Not to have this mark of identification means summary ejection from the grounds.

When the party reached the drains that enter the head of the river, two inlets were seen, one from the chemical plant, the water of which was rather muddy looking, while the other was discharging a large amount of an inky black compound. This latter flow does not come from the plant, but from a patent leather factory, situated about a half mile in a westerly direction, and which has been piped that great distance to the river. Samples of both waters were taken, and the low surroundings in which there was considerable water was inspected.

THE ALBANY'S OF CAMBRIDGE.

For the afternoon of August 5th the Forest A. C. will have for opponents one of the strongest teams from Cambridge. We understand that the Town Team will play at Woburn and if possible the Forest A. C. game will be played on Manchester Field. This is bound to be a game full of interest as our boys are putting up pretty good ball games having lost only one game of the seven played this season. "What's the P. C. Mack?"

CARD OF THANKS.

Mr. and Mrs. Ficociello wishes to express their appreciation and thanks for the kindness of their friends in their recent bereavement.

THROUGH CAR SERVICE.

Arlington Vigorously Opposes Petition by Winchester.

At the hearing before the public service commission Monday, Arlington residents opposed and Winchester residents urged the petition for through cars from Winchester, via Arlington, to the Harvard square subway station, over the tracks of the Bay State and Boston Elevated systems.

For some reason Arlington opposed any connection with the Winchester cars. Some time ago the officials of that town said that they would not object to linking up the two roads, but for some reason or other, that was not clearly brought out at the hearing, strong opposition has developed notwithstanding the Elevated and Bay State roads were inclined to look favorably on the project and although counsel for the two roads were present they took no part.

Selectman Howard said that the matter should be deferred until Arlington built a proposed new street running from near summer street on Mystic street through to Massachusetts avenue at the new high school and Town Hall. This proposition did not meet with favor from the Winchester gentlemen present as it would divert the cars to the northern part of Arlington and much increase the running time to Boston. Mr. Hendrick, town counsel for Arlington, claimed that the Winchester cars took care of the travel only in a few country villages. This caused smiles over the rooms in classing Winchester, Stoneham, Reading and Woburn as country places. He also submitted statistics collected by three Arlington policemen, under orders from the selectmen, showing that 52 per cent. of the passengers on the cars are Arlingtonians. The arguments put forth by Arlington were extremely weak and failed to bring out a really strong point in opposition.

Town Counsel Dutch appeared for Winchester. Mr. W. L. Tuck, who has been persistently in favor of through cars spoke first. He was followed by Mr. Preston Pond, chairman of the local Planning Board, Mr. John H. Carter and Mr. Charles Herriek. Town Counsel Dutch also reviewed the case and questioned the Arlington witnesses in the hope of bringing out some valid objection to through cars. As the Public Service Commissioners were thoroughly conversant with the entire situation, they having ordered a linking up of the two roads in 1914, they were not inclined to hear further testimony from the Winchester people present.

This hearing was held because Arlington was not officially notified of the hearing held in July 1914, although representatives of that town attended the hearing. The commission has taken the matter under consideration and will give their decision in a few days.

Among those present from Winchester were Town Counsel Dutch, Selectmen Davidson, Kerr and Kendall, W. L. Tuck, P. E. Fitzgerald, H. A. Emerson, Preston Pond, J. H. Carter, D. W. Pratt, Charles Herriek, E. H. Stone, Vincent Farnsworth, T. P. Wilson and H. F. Hunt.

IMPROVEMENT CELEBRATION.

Plans Under Way for a Big Winchester Boost.

Plans are now assuming shape for a big celebration of Winchester's recent great achievements, on Saturday, Sept. 2. The different committees are now preparing for the event and are arranging the details for a fitting recognition of what the town has done in recent years in the way of improvements. Such a celebration is unique in that we do not recollect of any other city or town observing such an event. It may be that their improvements have not been so extensive, or far reaching in their effects as in the case of Winchester. The improvements certainly have been wonderful, and many towns would hesitate before spending so much money to obtain them. But fortunately the town has had the advice and liberal assistance of the leading citizens and business men in carrying out and planning for the development of the town. The whole secret is that Winchester has been managed on business principles. The desire to make this one of the best residential towns in the Metropolitan district dates back to the time when the Village Improvement Association was first formed. This organization laid the foundation for Winchester's present popularity as a residential town. And from those early days the various boards of Selectmen have given their hearty co-operation.

As to Winchester's standing among bankers and financial concerns it can be said that no city or town in the state can borrow money at a lower rate. That is a good feature, and shows the faith the men of money have in our ability to make good. Years ago when the town spent a large amount of money toward clearing out the old buildings and the purchase of the land for Manchester Field, some Woburn men in talking of our extravagance, predicted bankruptcy for Winchester. Well, this did not come, although the town has spent over two hundred thousand dollars on other improvements since then and will probably spend as much more in the next few years.

BASE BALL TOMORROW.

Tomorrow we go to Woburn, and play the team there. This will be the last game out of town until Labor Day. Manager LeDuc will probably stand pat on the team as it played Saturday with one exception, and if he can fill that spot he will do so; he has got lines out for a good man and expects to have him by Saturday. At this you will not see such a joke game as the first one. Every one come up and root. There will be plenty of seats up to 3.15, but after that the chances are slim.

THANKS TO MANY FRIENDS.

Editor of the Star:
We wish to thank you, and through the columns of the Star, the many kind friends who sent 400 post cards, books, dolls, flowers, etc., to our dear little Gladys, while she was in the Winchester Hospital, where all the attendants were so very kind to her. Pity, and love was in each message. Our hearts are too full of gratitude to you all, to find words to express our feelings to you.

Gladys is at home, and is quite comfortable, and enjoys the gifts from her unknown friends. We must leave it to our Father to bless you all.

ARCANUM FISHING TRIP.

The committee on the annual fishing trip of Aberjona Council, Royal Arcanum, under the chairmanship of Harrison A. Hatch, announced yesterday that the event will occur this year on Tuesday, Aug. 29th. The party will go to Swampscott by special electric and embark on the well known schooner "Letter D". Complete details of the trip will be announced later upon the final arrangements being made by the Committee.

YOUR AFFAIRS AND MINE

Last week The Spectator had something to say about life's limitations. We will now have something to say about conventions. There are many things which society—the thought is not of mere fashion—has decided may not be done, and always, if we could but know, for good reasons. After a time these conventions may become silly and useless, and like the law they cease when the reason for them ceases. They are plainly laws, within the Johnsonian sense, and we may therefore truthfully say of them that they are the "result of human wisdom acting upon human experience for the benefit of the public." Gradually they harden into customs, and so become laws and restraints. Without them society could not possibly exist. What is fitting generally means simply what is customary. There is many a man right here in Winchester, for instance, who would not hesitate to violate a traffic ordinance, who would not think for a moment of wearing a straw hat to town meeting in January. The custom that would thus be set aside is trifling and trivial, but it is for that reason all the more valuable as proof of the strength of mere customary law. Customs gradually die out and disappear, but the point is that at some time during their life there was a reason for them. Conventions that survive in vigor at any particular time always have great social value. Therefore it is never well to scorn or flout them. Almost ever are they mere arbitrary restraints, but things which organized society has found valuable and helpful. Else they could not have come into being—could not have lived. Unconventional is, within limits, very delightful, while the merely conventional man—or woman—is almost always a great bore. We do not realize how vast is the volume of conventional law. Armies and navies have often been ruled by it more even than by the formal regulations—as when men say of a certain thing "it is not done." Why not? Surely not because it is in violation of the articles of war, but rather because it has been agreed that the thing is wrong, though it might be technically permissible. Here certainly is a conventionality of which all right thinking Winchesterites will approve. There are other instances that might be given, but perhaps this will suffice.

Customary law—or convention—is a great force in human life, and, like all law, it is a restriction on it. Our time is fortunate in having such a man as Arnold Bennett to impress this truth upon us, as he does in most vigorous fashion. This great and all-pervasive law is assuredly one of the "rules of the game." There are others, one of the strongest of which is ancestry, as apart from mere heredity in its physical manifestations. There is a spiritual power that comes into a man from a long line of honest, truthful, hard-working and God-fearing forbears. Respect and reverence for them and their memory make it impossible for him to do a mean or base thing. Here is a restraint from which surely no one would wish to be free. Instead it is to be welcomed—is something to be proud of and thankful for. But it is a severe check on what many seem disposed to think of as freedom. There is also a spiritual ancestry through which men are directly related to God, the author of righteousness. That relation men have defined as religion. The question is, not one of doing this thing or not doing that, but of being true to the life of the divine family. Here is another one of those relationships in which freedom is realized only through humble submission to the restraint which the relationship imposes. The prodigal was "free" when he said: "I am no more worthy to be called thy son." But he was not free in the true sense till he was restored to membership in that family which it was his shame to have dishonored and disgraced. So the restraint is inherent in the ambition to be worthy of one's ancestry, whether it be earthly or spiritual. There are few people, it is believed, who do not feel it, and not many who do not submit to it. It is not mere sentiment that operates in this case—much less sentimentality—but rather a sense of honor, and noblesse oblige. These influences again lead a man to say "it is not done." The renunciation is voluntary and most natural. Otherwise it would not be renunciation, since we cannot be said to renounce what we are forced to give up.

Finally, every blessing or advantage that comes to a man imposes a limitation in the nature of responsibility. The more one has received the larger is the return that one is expected to make. This is recognized even in the administration of our rude, human justice. More is demanded of the man who has had a chance to know what is right and wrong than from one who has had no chance. Education, books, pictures, wealth—all these are by everyone recognized to be held in trust. An account must be rendered—and to society. The young man on whose college education his father has spent hundreds and, perhaps thousands of dollars must, if he has even the rudiments of a conscience, feel that he is under a solemn pledge to make some return, not only to the father, but to the social order. There ought to be many things which he cannot and will not do, which would be perhaps permitted in another less favored. This was recognized in the spiritual sphere by the apostle, who said that those who had found the way of righteousness and had wandered therefrom were more to be blamed than those who had never found it. The conclusion is that life is little more than a bundle of restraints, and yet every one of them makes for the only freedom possible to one who lives in association with others. There are many who are ambitious to recast society—and, if they are wise in their aims, we may wish them well. But for the average human being the problem is one of making life sweeter and nobler as it is now lived. This is a much humbler task, it is true, but it is one of extreme difficulty. There is many a man who has helped greatly, and is held in honored remembrance, simply by doing his work honestly, and in honorable observance of the rules. This cannot be said of all the rebels and revolutionists. One other limitation The Spectator may mention in closing, and that is personality. From that no one can by any possibility escape. For it is through limitation that personality defines. And within the personality, there must be harmony between the different parts of the nature.

MRS. WILLIAM MOBBS LIVING AT EL PASO.

Company G boys at the Mexican border are situated so comfortably that their mothers, wives and friends would not worry could they but drop in and see them, according to Mrs. William H. Mobbs, wife of Lieut. Mobbs of Company G, who is now at El Paso with her husband.

"Could mothers, wives and friends of the boys but look in on their cosy, clean quarters, and to see how comfortably situated they are, they would do but little worrying," Mrs. Mobbs writes.

"Our boys are doing duty at the Smelter, which is situated on a very high hill, overlooking a Mexican village, where pigs, cattle, sheep, horses and donkeys are quartered in the same houses with the humans. Lieut. Mobbs is officer of the guard and patrols the Mexican district with men on different guard positions."

"Rather interesting, but very quiet just now. No bullets like a great many newspapers speak about; but rather quiet, peaceful people just now. The boys are in fine health, and none has been sick since coming here."

Lieut. and Mrs. Mobbs have a cozy bungalow at El Paso that has "all the comforts of home" and they are enjoying the situation hugely, according to their friends.

HOSPITAL PAPER BURNED.

A great quantity of waste baled paper, the result of the collection during the Spring and Summer for the benefit of the Winchester Hospital, was burned and ruined at the old Blank Tannery on Lake street in a fire early Sunday morning. The alarm from box 41 was rung in at 1:30. It is thought that the fire was set. A large portion of the basement was used to bale and store the paper, and what of this was not burned was covered with water when the fire was extinguished. There was a hot blaze, but little or no damage was occasioned outside of the loss of the paper.

He was taken in custody on Washington street. When the case was called in court Diauco asked for a continuance and it was granted. Bonds were placed at $200.

While transferring a load of hot tar used to cover the streets from the supply wagon to the spraying wagon at the Wadleigh School last Friday noon one of the men was quite badly scalded about the arm and face. It appears that in some unexplained manner some water had found its way into the tank of the spraying wagon, and as soon as the hot tar struck it the sudden formation of steam forced a quantity out through the top opening, spraying everything close by. The man's burns, although painful, were not serious.

PUGNACIOUS SWANS.

The pair of big gray swans which have a nest on an island in the Charles river opposite the Water-town arsenal have become so vicious in their attacks on the occupants of passing boats that the metropolitan park police have decided they must go.

The male has already been transported to Mystic pond, Medford, where he will be joined by his mate.

The swans are the survivors of a quartet of the birds which came to the locality four years ago. One strayed away and one was so badly injured by mischievous boys that it had to be shot. The two that remain have sought solace in bringing up a family of four little ones. The female, and lately the male as well, have become so belligerent in their attitude toward canoeists and others who pass near their home, however, that they have become a nuisance.

Three weeks ago the female attacked a lone and peaceful sculler, tipped him over and forced him to launch his shell again 100 yards upstream to avoid further attack. Lately traffic past the island has come to an absolute standstill under the rigid blockade maintained by the birds. Members of the Harvard Boat Club have abandoned all attempt at passing.

APPRECIATED BY PARENTS.

The STAR printed last week a story about a postcard shower received by Gladys Peters, the little deaf and dumb girl whose leg was cut off by an electric car in Stoneham July 7, and who has been convalescing in the Winchester Hospital. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James A. Peters of Stoneham have sent the Boston Globe a letter expressing their appreciation, a part of which reads as follows:

"We wish to thank you and the 300 friends who kindly sent postcards to our little daughter, Gladys, while she was in the Winchester Hospital. We feel the Globe did much to make her case known. She arrived home Sunday and is resting quite comfortably."

VALUABLE CALF TAKEN FROM BARN IN WINCHESTER.

Mrs. L. A. Morton of Holton street, is very much incensed over the loss of a calf which was taken from the barn at her place one morning last week. For supplying the demand for milk from her customers in Winchester, Mrs. Morton keeps eight or nine cows at all times.

Friday morning she made her usual early visit to the barn for the purpose of milking. She found that some one during the night had tied a rope to the horns of a fine Jersey cow, presumably in an effort to take it away, but the animal becoming fractious and stubborn, was left standing in the middle of the barn. The two day old calf was there at that hour of early milking.

Mrs. Morton says she returned to the house after milking but on making a return visit to the barn a short time after, she found that somebody had taken the calf and carried it away. All efforts to locate the calf or the method of removal failed and the police in Woburn and Winchester were notified.

THE THREE "C'S" OF CARING FOR MILK IN THE HOME.

Keep Clean, Cold and Covered are Recommended.

The three "C's" for the proper care of milk in the home, according to the dairy specialists of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, are:

Keep milk. Clean—cold—covered. Milk is a highly perishable food and the length of time it will remain sweet and safe, especially for children, depends, the specialists say, almost entirely upon the constant care it receives from cow to consumer. Milk passes through three agencies—the producer, the dealer, and the consumer. If the first two have done their part, clean, safe milk will be delivered, thoroughly chilled, to the consumer. The consumer's responsibility begins the moment the milk is delivered at his doorstep.

Even in the case of bottled milk, however, the consumer must see that the bottle is not left out in the heat for a moment longer than is necessary. Milk should be delivered and kept at a temperature of 50 degrees F. or lower—the colder the better. At such temperatures bacteria develop very slowly and milk undergoes little change until consumed. A slight rise in temperature above this point, however, permits bacteria to multiply rapidly and brings about rapid deterioration of the milk, which may render it unfit for ordinary use and make it highly dangerous for babies and little children. For this reason bottled or other milk should not be allowed to remain in a warm place, as on a sunny porch or in a hot kitchen, for a moment longer than is necessary.

Delivery of Milk in Hot Weather.

In hot weather the best plan is to have the milkman put the milk directly into the refrigerator, because at that time of year milk can not be kept properly without ice. If a refrigerator is not available, provide a small box containing ice, and if it is obtainable, provide some tight container with insulated walls that keep the heat from getting rapidly to the cold milk. A home-made fireless cooker is admirable for this purpose, especially if partially filled with ice. In the absence of any of these devices, arrange with the milkman not to leave the milk in the sunlight, but to put it in the coolest, shadiest place around the house.

Handling Milk in the Home.

In handling milk around the home, do not pour it from one vessel to another until it is to be consumed. Do not let the bottle of milk remain out of the refrigerator a moment longer than is necessary. Keep the milk covered, using paper caps or an inverted tumbler on bottles, or storing it in covered utensils. Any household utensil that is to be used as a vessel for keeping milk should first be cleaned thoroughly and scalded.

Before opening a bottle of milk, wash and wipe the neck and outside of the cap with water and a clean cloth. The little depression on the top of the cap may collect dust or water and any milk that leaks out may attract flies. Lift out the cap with a pointed instrument, so that the outside of the cap, which may be contaminated, will not be pushed down into the milk. Each time the milk is to be poured from the bottle it is a wise precaution to wash the neck as described.

Milk in a Refrigerator.

The refrigerator where milk is stored should be cleaned regularly, especial care being given to keeping the drip pipe free and clean. The ice rack also should be cleaned and any place where food is kept or milk stored should be scalded occasionally with sal-soda solution. The refrigerator, even though cold, may quickly be contaminated by a few drops of spilled milk, or by small particles of food. No matter how clean the refrigerator, milk should never be kept in an open vessel. As milk absorbs odors easily, such food as fish, cabbage, or onions should not be kept in proximity to it.

Clean Empty Bottles.

As soon as a milk bottle is emptied, rinse it thoroughly with cold water. Do not return dirty bottles and do not use milk bottles except to hold milk. Returning dirty bottles to the milkman may mean that a few days later either you or your neighbors will get contaminated milk. Milk bottles should never be taken into a sick room. In case of infectious or contagious disease, all bottles should be boiled thoroughly and should not be returned to the dealer without the express permission of the attending physician. Such diseases easily can be made epidemic through disregard of this precaution.

Where There Are Children.

Care of milk, important for all, is a vital necessity in a home where there are children. It is absolutely essential to the safety of babies. No intelligent mother will leave to an ordinary servant the task of caring for or preparing the milk for her baby. Mothers of small children should get from their own physicians, explicit directions for the proper handling of milk and for cleaning and sterilizing nursing bottles. Pamphlets on infant feeding may be obtained from the municipal milk stations or health officers. Milk for babies can not be kept too cold, and too much care can not be given to keeping it clean and covered.

Further information on this subject may be had by writing to the U. S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C., for Farmers' Bulletin 413, "Care of Milk and Its Use in the Home."

FRIEND AND $18 MISSING.

The Somerville and Billerica police are searching for a glib young man who, according to Miss Delia McKue, a maid in the home of Geo. B. Davis of Calumet road, surreptitiously removed $18 from her pocketbook while she and he were enjoying an outing at Pinehurst Park, Billerica, Saturday. The only clue to the identity of the thief in the possession of the police is the fact that he answers to the name "Frankie," and that his suavity is a predominant characteristic.

The incident was closed when Probation Officer William P. Jones of Somerville loaned Delia 25 cents to return to her friends in Billerica. She had gone to the Somerville police station to lodge a complaint against "Frankie," who, she believes, is a resident of that city.

Early Saturday afternoon the girl started on a week's vacation. She went from Winchester to Medford, and there boarded a car for Billerica. Shortly after the car left Medford square, "Frankie" approached and smilingly raised his hat. Delia had a bowing acquaintance with him, so she returned his greeting and he sat down beside her. When the car reached Pinehurst "Frankie" suggested a visit to the places of amusement.

Before they alighted he suggested that if Delia had any large amount of money in her pocketbook she had better let him carry it, for it was a well known fact that there were thieves aboard. Delia surrendered the pocketbook. The man removed the bills and handed her the change, 15 cents. He bought her an ice cream soda, in payment of which Delia now thinks he changed one of her bills.

Suddenly he saw some friends with whom he had important business. He excused himself, saying that he would be right back. When at six o'clock he did not return, Delia took counsel with some other amusement seekers and went to Somerville, where she told her story to the police.

NORTHEASTERN COLLEGE.

Northeastern College, the official opening of which is announced in this issue, is not a new institution but a new title applied to a group of schools established and conducted by the Boston Young Men's Christian Association, and which for over twenty years have been doing a mighty piece of constructive work for the men and boys, not alone of New England, but of the South, West, Canada and many foreign countries.

Over 40,000 have been in attendance and have gone out into life well equipped to meet the requirements of modern civilization, lawyers, accountants, engineers, chemists, architects, designers of steel bridges, engines, ships and heads of big commercial and industrial plants all over the country comprise an alumni, which bears witness to the great results accomplished by these schools. Now they are united more closely, incorporated as a college, and enter upon an epoch of expansion and improvement which will be worthy of the past. Over 100 men will comprise the instructing staff and the buildings and equipment compare most favorably with the best schools in America. Northeastern College will be a near approach to a State University and with its low tuition, broad flexible program and wealth of opportunity will continue in an ever broadening way its work in the enrichment of the lives of men.

WINCHESTER GIRL WILL STUDY DRINK PROBLEM.

Miss Amy Woods of Winchester has been engaged by the Boston Associated Charities, in its poster campaign against alcoholism, to make a country-wide survey of the number of cases due to drink now being carried by charitable institutions.

Special effort also will be made to determine whether towns without saloons carry less wreckage from alcoholic beverages.

The results as applied to Boston will be circulated widely throughout the city. In short, it is a plan to unearth the story of drink and its costs in Boston and elsewhere.

CANNING SWISS CHARD AND BLUEBERRIES.

Recipes from Framingham Normal Summer School.

Written by Miss Gertrude Lingham

Swiss chard deserves the popular use into which it has come in some sections. A few Swiss chard plants will give a plentiful supply of a vegetable that is valuable in the diet on account of its cellulose structure and mineral salts. If canned, chard may be served in the winter when a fresh vegetable is needed.

Swiss Chard Greens

Pick over and wash the chard. Put in kettle, cover, and heat through gently. Add salt, and allow the chard to cook in its own juices until tender. Season with salt, pepper and butter. Serve hot.

Creamed Swiss Chard Stems.

Pick over and wash chard. Separate leaves from stems. The leaves may be used as greens as well as the whole chard. Cut stems into 1 1/2 inch lengths, put in boiling water to nearly cover, add salt, and cook until tender. Prepare a white sauce, adding some of the liquid drained from the chard stems. Add the cooked chard, heat through and serve.

Canning Swiss Chard

1. Examine and wash jars and covers thoroughly.

2. Sterilize jars and covers, boiling old jars 20 minutes, or new jars 3 minutes, and scald rubbers by pouring boiling water over them and draining.

3. Pick over and wash chard. The leaves and stems may be canned separately. Cut stems in even lengths.

4. Blanch chard in cheese cloth bags in boiling water 10 minutes, or leaves separately 3 minutes, then plunge in cold water. Blanching eliminates objectionable extractives, reduces bulk, and sets color.

5. Pack blanched chard in sterilized jars up to 3/4 inch from top.

6. Add 2 level teaspoons salt to each quart jar of chard, and fill nearly to top with water.

7. Fit on rubbers and covers, and place first clamp nearly to center of covers.

8. Place jars on rack in kettle with water to cover.

9. Cover kettle and boil jars moderately 1 1/2 hours.

10. Remove from boiling water, avoiding contact with cold surface or drafts. Substitute a freshly scalded rubber if a rubber has "blown" from under a cover.

11. Clamp covers when jars are cool enough to handle, pushing first clamp to center of cover.

12. Cool, label and store in cold place.

Canning Blueberries

Canned blueberries are prepared for use in pies and puddings.

1. Examine, wash, and sterilize jars, covers, and rubbers.

2. Pick over, stem, and wash blueberries.

3. Pack blueberries in sterilized jars, pressing firmly each layer with silver spoon. When jar is half full add 2 tablespoons sugar and 1 tablespoon boiling water, press compactly, then add more berries, packing to 1-2 inch from top. Add water nearly to top.

4. Fit on rubbers and covers, and place first clamp nearly to center of cover.

5. Place jars on rack in kettle with water to cover.

6. Cover kettle and boil jars moderately 10 minutes.

7. Remove, and push first clamp to center of cover.

8. Lower second clamp when cool enough to handle.

9. Label and store in cold place.

Applicants must have reached their 18th birthday, but not their 43rd birthday, on the date of examination, and must be citizens of the United States. Male applicants must measure not less than 5 feet 4 inches in height in bare feet. No male applicant who passes the examination will be eligible for appointment either as clerk or carrier who does not weigh at least 125 pounds without overcoat and hat. It will be inadvisable for male applicants whose normal weight is less than 125 pounds to enter the examination. Female applicants are not required to be of any specific height or weight.

Each applicant will be required to submit to the examiner on the day of examination a photograph of himself taken within two years.

NEW REPRESENTATIVE DISTRICT.

The statement in the STAR several weeks ago, that Winchester and Ward 3 of Medford would make up a new Representative district was officially confirmed by action of the county commissioners the first of the week. The old district was composed of Winchester and Wards 3 and 6 of Medford. The latter has now been dropped, and this will exclude Representative Lyman from again representing this town in the Legislature. The new district has 2902 voters. Already there are many candidates, both in this town and Ward 3, for Representative.

PRESIDENTIAL POINTERS

At the eighth presidential election in 1816, 19 states took part with a total electoral vote of 217. There were only two candidates, James Monroe, Republican, and Rufus King, Federalist. Daniel D. Tompkins ran for vice president with Monroe, while there were several candidates for vice president on the King ticket. Monroe and Tompkins received 183 electoral votes against 34 for King and a scattering vote among the vice presidential candidates.

Counsel Jackson for the Bay State electric railroad says that it is six cent fares or else public ownership of that railroad. The public are not yet ready to buy a lemon.

Reading women have offered to that town eleven and a half acres of land for a public park and $1500 for its development. There is lots of public spirit yet.

Winchester has not as yet acquired a sufficient number of voters to form a Representative district. When the next apportionment is made, ten years hence, there will be plenty of voters and some to spare.

The Community Club House project has been abandoned for the present. Such a house would be of distinct advantage to the social life of Winchester in a great many ways, and it is to be hoped that the project will take on new life in the near future.

Sunday was the most peculiar day of the year. It continued until nightfall with a weird yellow tinge, vividly bringing out the green foliage and grass, and especially during the morning was very dark, it being necessary to use lights in many houses. During the afternoon the sun could be seen as a round copper ball, but could not penetrate the haze enough to cast a shadow. Many people looked for a heavy rain, but the day was apparently fair. In the evening when the sun set the effect was very beautiful. The effect is said to have been caused by the big forest fires in Quebec.

Winchester is fortunate in having on its Board of Selectmen two such men as Mr. George T. Davidson and Mr. Charles E. Kendall. The latter is retired from business and therefore gives practically his whole time to the services of the town. While Mr. Davidson is in business in Winchester, yet it is safe to say that one half his time is freely given. Both of these gentlemen are thorough in their work and are not at all backward in ascertaining facts and securing first hand information. This is seen to quite an extent in their determination to ascertain the cause of the impurities of the water of our river and ponds.

What is the reason for Arlington's opposition to through cars to Harvard square? Up to the present time they have not given any. Some of the residents of Mystic street are afraid that they may be brought into the five cent fare zone of the Elevated. But it will be a long time before such a thing happens, as is shown in conditions at Medford where the Elevated declines to continue cars to Oak Grove Cemetery in that city which is on the direct line to Winchester. Arlington will not be allowed to stand as a buffer to the detriment of the people of Winchester. And we think the Public Service Commission will so decide.

Conditions along the Aberjona river from its source to well into the limits of Winchester are bad, very bad. And that is why the river water is but little better than sewage. It is a serious problem that confronts the town and one that will grow worse continually if not attended to. Lack of sewers or filtering basins to the north is responsible and as a result all manner of filthy water finds its way into the Aberjona river. It is a State problem; it is too big for Winchester to handle alone. And vigorous steps must soon be taken to that end. State authorities in the past have not done much to improve conditions when it is remembered that the Metropolitan Sewer Board authorized the entrance of sewage from its pipes into the pond at the rear of Symmes grain store. The matter will have to be carried higher up—to the Legislature.

FOREST A. C.—HAYES CLASS 1

There was a ball game at the Highlands last Saturday afternoon and a pretty classy game at that. Our boys were right on the job all the time and there were several very pretty plays pulled off that kept the visitors from crossing home plate. Only once did they score, this was the result of two singles by Erb and Brown, H. Porter being hit by a pitched ball and an error by Lawson. Erb trying to score from third was caught at the home plate by a short throw to Loftus and a quick return. Porter scored on the error. But after that only one man reached second, H. Porter on a 2 base hit, but that was as far as he got the next batter striking out retiring the side. Lawson struck out the first five men up and in the third the first man up went out on an easy hit to McPartland who threw to Hatch at first for the out. The next two up struck out. In the fifth there were three strike outs with Porter's double coming after two were out. Some pitching Lawson, when you are up against a team who have not lost a game this season and you fan 16 of them. The visitors put up a good game and are as clean a lot of ball players as you will find playing the game. Games like that played Saturday are worth seeing and it wouldn't hurt some of you fans to give us the "once over" now and then. The score:

Things that Happened.

In the first innings after "Branan" went out Mathews got to first on an error of second baseman, then he stole second and third. Loftus got a free ticket to first and then stole second, up comes Hatch with his war club and "bing" a clean two base hit to right center and two runs cross the platter. "That a boy" Hatch.

"Red" McManus made 2 of the 4 runs. "Red" is good wherever you play him.

Jimmy McPartland, sometimes called "Bram" is always full of "pep", he covers a lot of ground around second, is a sweet batter and as lead off man usually gets on somehow. Brown, who played short for the visitors got five assists, made two hits, a single and a double and scored the only run. E. Porter, the Hayes Class back stop, looked good. He also hit a single and a two bagger.

BASE BALL.

Winchester Again Comes Back in the Game.

By "Mack"
We had the Maiden All-Stars for an attraction last Saturday, and with Tift pitching they did not have much of a chance. They were a combination of good hitters and poor fielders. Somerville pitched good ball until the fourth inning, when his support went to pieces and Winchester scored four runs, and in the next inning added two more for good measure. After that, Tift lobbed the ball and made his fielders work, but there never was a time when the game was in danger. It is remarkable how the boys play ball behind Tift. They seem to have more confidence and go after the game as though they cannot be beaten. If they play as good a game at Woburn Saturday, there may be a different story to tell when you get next week's STAR. Tift got a great reception from the crowd and that is as it should be. No matter what your personal feelings may be, all we want is a winner in this town, and when Tift proceeds to deliver them we have got to hand it to him. Just a word to some of the weak-hearted fans around town. You fans do not hear any of the fans from Woburn, Arlington, Lexington, or other towns coming here and telling you what a great team you have got, do you? No far from it; they are always telling you what a great team they have got and what they are going to do to Winchester. And you fellows, if you have got the least bit of sporting blood in you, should do the same thing. Remember you live in Winchester and what is good enough for Winchester should be good enough for you.

Notes.
Percentage .555—when you pass the 500 mark it looks better.

"Buddy" Ryan has been batting in the last five games at a .375 clip. He is now leading the team with an average of .343.

Duffy, the new man on third base, was captain of the freshmen team at Holy Cross last season. The reports from them say he was one of the finest young players seen at the college in years, and John Norton, the captain of the college team, says, he will easily make the team this season. He looked good Saturday anyway.

Sweeney was a visitor at the game Saturday and is slowly recovering from the broken nose.

They had a lively time at the game in Lexington Saturday, Arlington winning by a shutout 3-0. The Minute Boys getting only 2 hits off Wright. Will some of you experts tell us how this fellow Wright gets away with the stuff he pitches? But he does, and you have got to give him credit for it.

Both O'Neil and Viano should put a brake on their autos, or there is liable to be an accident at one of the games. Boys, a hint is as good as a kick.

You fans get the STAR next Friday and whether we win, lose or draw in Woburn, you will find a column full and probably more in reply to some of the articles that have been appearing in the local papers of other towns. If the writer did not know any more about writing baseball then some of these fellows, he would never write again. But wait, we will show you some facts and figures that cannot be disputed.

PLAYGROUND LOST IN TENTH.

In a ten inning game with the City Field Playground at Somerville Tuesday afternoon the Manchester Field Playground nine lost by a score of 4 to 3. The game was remarkably well played and was finished in the surprisingly short time of 1 hour and 15 minutes, less time than many of the quick games played by professional teams.

Both teams played good ball. McMannus did the pitching for Winchester, having 13 strikeouts, while Gifford, who pitched for the City Field had six.

The lineup of the teams was as follows:

PLAGROUND BOYS TO SEE BRAVES.

The Manchester Field Playground boys will go to Boston next Tuesday afternoon and see the game between the Braves and Pittsburgh. This day is observed by the management as Playground Day for the boys of Greater Boston. Supervisor Harold Leland of Manchester Field has obtained permission to take as many boys as he wishes to the game, and he announces that all who desire to attend should meet at the Field at 12.30.

SAY A KIND WORD WHEN YOU CAN.

What were life without someone to cheer us.
With a word or a smile on our way—

A friend who is faithfully near us, And heeds not what others may say.

The bravest of spirits have often Half failed in the race that they ran.

For a kind word life's hardships to soften, So say a kind word when you can.

Each one of us owns to some failing, Though some may have more than the rest;

But there's no good in heedlessly railing 'Gainst those that are striving their best.

Remember, a word spoke complaining, May blight every effort and plan, Which a kind word would help in attaining.

So say a kind word when you can.

Oh! say a kind word then, whenever 'Twill make the heart cheerful and glad.

But, chiefly, forget it oh never,— To the one that is hopeless and sad.

For there's no word so easy in saying: So begin, if you have not began,— And never in life be delaying

To say a kind word when you can.

SHARKS.

Fish Preeminent for Their Size and Differ in Disposition.

The tragic depredations of man-eating sharks along the Atlantic seaboard lend an especially timely interest to a communication from Dr. Hugh M. Smith, the foremost American authority on fishes, addressed to the National Geographic Society.

"When giant fishes are mentioned most people will at once think of the shark, among which, indeed, are found the largest fish now existing," writes Mr. Smith. "Of the many species of sharks noteworthy on account of their size there are about half a dozen which are preeminent. These differ much in their disposition, some being as harmless as doves and others the incarnation of ferocity.

"The sleeper shark (Somniosus microcephalus), whose scientific name fits it so admirably, appears to have developed its body at the expense of its brain, for it is a sluggish, stupid glutton, about six times as long as an average man. At home in the Arctic regions, it sometimes makes visits as far south as Cape Cod, the British Isles, and Oregon. It is most often observed lying quietly on the surface, apparently dozing and easily approached, but at times, when hungry, it rouses itself and fiercely attacks whales, biting huge pieces out of their sides and tails, and when feeding on the carcass of a whale which has been killed by hunters it is so voracious that it permits spears and knives to be thrust into it without seeming to take any notice.

"One of the most prodigious and perhaps the most formidable of sharks is the 'man-eater' (Carcharodon carcharias). It roams through all temperate and tropical seas and everywhere is an object of dread. Its maximum length is 40 feet. While there are few authentic instances of sharks attacking human beings (prior to the recent tragedies), there have undoubtedly been many cases where sharks simply swallowed people who had fallen overboard, just as they would swallow any other food. How easy it would be for a man-eater to devour a person whole may be judged from the finding of an entire hundred-pound sea loin in the stomach of a 30-foot shark on the California coast. A certain man-eater 36 1-2 feet long had jaws 20 inches wide, inside measure, and teeth 2 1-2 in. long. This may have been the 'great fish' of the scripture narrative, and it is possible that at that time much larger man-eaters existed than are now known, as shark teeth with cutting edges five inches long have been found on the seabottom, and these are believed by naturalists to have belonged to sharks not long dead. The phosphate beds of South Carolina yield very large fossil teeth of a shark which was related to the man-eater of the present day; judging from the comparative size of these teeth, Professor Goode thought that sharks 70 or 80 feet long must have been common.

"Many years ago a Norwegian bishop in a learned paper brought to the attention of the scientific and theological worlds a shark which he attempted to prove must have been the 'great fish' that swallowed Jonah. This was the basking shark (Cetorhinus maximus) known also as the elephant or bone shark, which is an inhabitant of the polar seas, but occasionally strays as far south as Virginia and California, and in former years was not rare on the United States and British coasts. The species has the habit at times of collecting in schools at the surface and basking in the sun with its back partly out of water. It reaches a maximum length of 50 feet and is exceeded in size by only three or four animals extant. Provided with small teeth, it feeds on fishes and floating crustaceans, and is not of a ferocious disposition. It is dangerous only by virtue of its great bulk and when attacked its powerful tail easily demolishes boats. In former years the basking shark was hunted for its oil on the coast of Norway and Ireland; it was also harpooned on the shore of Massachusetts in the early part of the last century, and as many as 12 barrels of oil were sometimes obtained from the liver of one shark. There are many records of basking sharks 25 to 38 feet long from the coast of New York, Massachusetts, and Maine, but the species has not been common in our waters in recent years.

"The largest of all fishes, the largest of all cold-blooded animals, and the largest of all existing animals, with the exception of a few species of whales, is the whale shark (Rhineodon typicus), originally described from God Hope, but now known from India, Japan, South America, Panama, California, and various other places, a small specimen having been obtained on the Florida coast a few years ago. This shark has a very broad and obtuse snout and an exceedingly wide mouth armed with numerous minute teeth; the dark-colored body is marked with many small whitish spots. The species is stated to attain a length of 70 feet and is known to exceed 50 feet. Notwithstanding its immense size, however, it is harmless to man unless attacked, and feeds on the small creatures for which its teeth are adapted. Its huge bulk makes it dangerous in the same way that a whale is dangerous. Years ago it was reported that the sperm-whale fishermen at the island of Saint Denis, in the Indian Ocean, dreaded to harpoon a whale shark by mistake, and stories are told of a harpooned fish, having by a lightning-like dive exhausted the supply of rope which had been accidentally fastened to the boat, dived deeper still, and so pulled a pirogue and crew to the bottom."

In last week's STAR an outline of the improvements made during the past few years were given and how it was proposed to celebrate them. The plan practically remains the same, which is in brief: to dedicate the new playground at the highlands with a game of base ball, sports and prizes for the children, a band concert and, if it can be arranged, a prize drill by companies of the militia from Woburn and Stoneham. To mark the new street across the pond, illumination along the street and around the pond. The question of having fireworks on a float in the pond has not as yet been decided upon, the fear being expressed that the attendance will be so large that there will be danger of children falling into the pond and accidents on the tracks of the steam railroad to people who are certain to gather there.

On Manchester Field in the evening it is proposed to have a band concert, moving pictures and in all probability the display of fireworks will be held there. There will also be a display of decorated canoes by members of the Winchester and Medford Boat Clubs.

An effort will be made to have an automobile parade of decorated cars. The parade will start from the vicinity of Wedgemere, pass along the Parkway to Main street to Railroad avenue, thence over the new street across the pond and then around the pond to Mt. Vernon street—destined to be one of the prettiest shore drives in Winchester. Illuminations are to be an important feature—around the pond, at the two new bridges and the entire length of the river on Manchester Field. It is also proposed to ask the business men to decorate the fronts of their buildings.

Committees are actively at work on these features and will consider others that may be suggested. The celebration will probably last until eleven o'clock at night, but as there will be something doing all the time, this will not be objected to as the next day being Sunday, the people need not arise so early in the morning. It was estimated that $1500 would be required to fittingly carry out the celebration. This will be raised by contribution, and canvassers will shortly cover the town. Already considerable money has been promised, and it is hoped that everyone will contribute their mite and assist personally in making this the greatest event ever held here and show that Winchester is on the map with both feet.

Last Friday evening another meeting was held in the General Committee room in the Town Hall and was attended by nearly twenty-five very enthusiastic gentlemen. The entire situation was gone over thoroughly and it was voted that the Chairman, Mr. James J. Fitzgerald, appoint the chairmen of the different committees and they in turn appoint others to serve with them, the whole to form a general committee.

Mr. Fitzgerald has appointed the following as chairmen of the various committees: Finance—Mr. Preston Pond. Lighting—Mr. James Hinds. Music—Mr. Charles A. Lane. Fireworks—George Barbaro. Canoe Parade—Mr. Charles S. Tenney. Parade—Mr. John F. O'Connor. Sports—Mr. Henry F. Dearborn. Publicity—Mr. T. P. Wilson.

Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Carlton and Frank and Loretta Carlton are at their cottage at Weymouth shore.

Elbridge B. Page is at the Hotel Boylston, Marblehead Neck.

WINCHESTER RECRUITS AT MALDEN.

There has been a recruiting office opened up in this district with the Malden Armory as headquarters. The district includes the cities and towns of Malden, Winchester, Medford, Everett, Melrose, Arlington, Stoneham, Wakefield and Woburn. Enlistments for any organization of the National Guard now serving on the Mexican Border, as well as for the United States Army, will be received at this office.

Mr. Allen Richardson of the Richardson News Company, left last Saturday with a friend on a bicycle trip through Maine. The pair expect to be away a fortnight and will make Ocean Park, Me., their headquarters.

The alarm of fire from Box 41 Tuesday morning a few minutes after eight o'clock was for a blaze at the lumber and coal yard of the George W. Blanchard Co. on Main street. The fire was in a good sized hay shed. Sparks from the Woburn shifter, which was working on the track near the shed, evidently blew over and caught the roof. When discovered the fire had just reached the inside. Prompt work by the Fire Department quickly extinguished the fire with little damage.

PLAYGROUND BOYS WIN FIRST GAME.

The Manchester Field Playground team won its first game of the summer last Friday afternoon when it defeated the Richardson Store News Boys by a score of 13 to 6. The features of the game were the batting of McMannus, who made three hits, and the fielding of McKenzie. The Playground boys started out with four runs in the first and were never headed by their opponents.

HORSE WAS OVERCOME.

When a funeral procession en route from Chelsea to the Jewish Cemetery in Montvale was about a mile from the cemetery on Washington street Monday, one of the horses on the hearse stumbled and was unable to rise. While the driver was debating what he should do another hearse was seen approaching from the cemetery.

After some talk the casket was transferred to the second hearse and the procession proceeded on its way. A dray was secured from the stables of a neighboring contractor and the fallen horse taken to the field at the corner of Washington and Westley streets. After a rest of a few hours the beast had recovered sufficiently so that he was able to get up without assistance and was later taken back to his owner's stable.

PROBATE AND OTHER COURT NEWS.

Nathan H. Reed of Winchester has filed a bill in equity at East Cambridge against the City of Somerville, Edward C. Booth, Mary Alice Tufts and Andrew M. Kidder all of Somerville. Reed is the owner of four houses and land which adjoins the Glen street playground in Somerville. Men and boys playing baseball on the city playground and also on land owned by the other three defendants, have done considerable damage to his property, he alleges. Broken blinds and windows and trespassing on his property are a daily occurrence. So great has been the danger and discomfort from baseballs which are batted about, Mr. Reed declares that his houses are untenable. He asks for an injunction restraining the defendants from permitting the use of their lands for such things that will cause injury to the dwelling houses. He also asks the court to award him damages.

EDISON NEWS SERVICE.

Electric Cooking is Cheap and Simple.

Some people still have a notion that it is expensive to use an electric range and do all their cooking by electricity. More than a thousand families in the territory served by the Boston Edison Company do not find it so. Records of cost show that it averages about 75c per person per month—even in families where all of the cooking and baking is done by servants.

In one family of five persons, in Greater Boston, four of whom, including the maid, had three meals a day at home (and entertained guests several times) the cost for electricity for all the cooking averaged about 60c per person per month for the first two months the family had the electric range.

These figures, of course, do not include any charges for the guests entertained during that time. So much for the economy of electric cooking.

Some housekeepers still have a notion that it is hard to learn to cook on an electric range. The best answer to this is that the thousands and more housekeepers in Greater Boston who are using electric ranges have not found it so.

Servants take to electric ranges like ducks to water. You do things on an electric range just the same as on any other range, only better and easier. You get heat on the electric range by simply turning a switch. Each switch is marked for high, medium or low heat, and you regulate your heat the same as you do on any other range, only the regulation is much more perfect and more easily controlled.

Electric ranges are built in all sorts of styles and shapes nowadays to fit every size and shape of kitchen; all sizes of families.

During the month of August the Boston Edison Company is having a special sale of a new electric range called the Thermax. This is a portable range, that is, it is light enough to be lifted around by hand from the table to some out of the way place in the pantry when not in use, or even lifted off from the table and set down on the floor underneath completely out of the way. It has two heating units with complete regulation for the high, medium and low, and for a family of two, three, or even four, it will do all of the cooking and baking. This range regularly sells for $20, but, during the month of August only, this range will be sold at $15, $3 down and $2 a month, for six months, without any interest charges whatever. The person who buys on the easy-payment plan will get the range just as cheaply as the person who pays cash.

For these ranges a special wiring circuit, which, by the way, is inexpensive, is required. This is put in so that the housekeeper can have the advantage of the low cooking rate of a trifle over two cents per kilowatt hour. The extra wiring will also be furnished the housekeeper on the easy-payment plan.

One often hears the expression "Housekeepers should not let habit interfere with improving their methods." This applies particularly to electric cooking. It is the up to date, simple, inexpensive way, and every one should know all about it.

In each Edison Light Store during August a special demonstration of this new low-priced electric range will be going on.

SPECIAL GIFT OF $5,000 TO WELLESLEY HOSPITAL FUND.

This was made by our fellow-townsmen Mr. Joseph T. Brown, of Longfellow Road, from a fund left by the late Andrew C. Slater, Mr. Alfred C. Vinton of Winchester, the co-trustee, concurring with Mr. Brown's judgment that this hospital work of Wellesley comes within the purpose for which this fund for public benevolences was bequeathed. The gift is to be known as the Andrew C. Slater Memorial. The principal is to be added to our permanent Hospital Fund, the income to be available for our hospital cases as needed.

Mr. Slater was one of the old East Indian merchants, of the firm of John T. Coolidge & Co. He lived on Marlboro street and in Manchester until about ten years ago when he went to live in Newton. He died there some four years ago at the age of eighty-nine. Mrs. Slater was a daughter of Samuel Leeds. They had only one son, who died twenty years ago and the only relatives left were cousins. Mr. Brown was a friend of Mr. Slater for thirty years, and Mr. Vinton a friend and his attorney. The fund from which this gift of $5,000 is made to Wellesley was left by Mr. Slater for distribution among public benevolences at the discretion of his trustees, Mr. Brown and Mr. Vinton.—[Wellesley Townsman.]

The Winchester Hospital, it will be recalled, was handsomely remembered.

WHAT HAPPENS IF YOU LEAVE NO WILL?

The law steps in. Regardless of the needs of heirs, it settles absolutely how your money shall be divided. It says, for example:

A married man leaving widow and children. The widow receives 1-3 and the children 2-3 of his personal estate.

A married man leaving widow and no children. The widow receives 1-2 of his personal estate and 1-2 goes to his parents.

Bachelor. His personal estate is equally divided among his brothers and sisters.

Distressing results from the neglect to make a will very often follow.

SELECTMEN'S MEETING.

July 31, 1916.

The Board met at 7.30 p. m., present Messrs. Davidson, Kerr, Sanborn and Kendall.

Through Car Service to Harvard Square. Mr. Kerr reported that the hearing before the Public Service Commission on July 31, at 10.30 a. m. on a new petition for this service was attended by Messrs. Davidson, Kendall and Kerr of the Board, by Chairman Pond of the Planning Board, and by numerous citizens of Winchester. After a statement by Mr. Tuck as petitioner, the case in favor of the petition was conducted for the town by Town Counsel Dutch who called on Messrs. Davidson, Pond and Herrick as witnesses. The Town of Arlington by counsel and representatives opposed the connection as it had previously done. The two railways said they were prepared to carry out any orders of the Commission. The Bay State road had always desired the connection. The Elevated representative said it could operate the through cars without impairing the Massachusetts avenue service. The Commission took the matter under advisement.

Licenses 1916 Junk Collectors. A license of this class was granted to Harry Wolinski on the recommendation of the Chief of Police and Committee on Licenses subject to the payment of the fee of $10, and effective to May 1, 1917.

Markets: A circular letter was received from Wilfrid Wheeler, Secretary State Board of Agriculture, calling attention to Chapter 119, Acts 1915, as amended by the General Court of 1916 by the addition of a third section and requiring all cities and towns having a population of 10,000 and over to set aside some public place where farmers and others might market their products. No action was taken.

Primaries, 1916: Ordered: That at the State Primary to be held on Tuesday, Sept. 26, the polls shall be opened at 5.45 a. m. and remain open until 4 p. m.

ORDERED: That at the State Primary to be held September 26, 1916, the compensation of the Ballot Clerks and Tellers shall be six dollars each, the amount thereof to be charged to Election and Registration Account.

Messrs. Adriance, McLean, Nutter and Caldwell were asked to serve as tellers for the Republicans, and Messrs. Sullivan, Nowell, Rogers and Mawn as Democrats. The matter of preparing the warrant was referred to the Clerk.

Myrtle Terrace: The Supt. of Streets reported that he had made temporary repairs to the sidewalks on Myrtle terrace by filling in the bad holes and would make permanent repairs as soon as the tar patching material could be obtained, and the request of Joshua Phippen received July 24 on this subject was dismissed from the docket.

Sidewalks 1916, Warren Street: A petition was received signed by P. A. Bearse, G. A. Magill and Walter N. Winship for a granolithic sidewalk on the easterly side of Warren street between Cabot street and Oxford street, agreeing to pay their proportionate share as customary. The petitioners also asked to have an apron made at the entrance to Mr. Bearse's residence. Referred to the Town Engineer for estimate of expense.

Clerk of Selectmen.

ORPHEUM THEATRE.

With an eminent singularity as a temple of amusement at all seasons of the year because of both its wonderful programs offered and the beauty of its appointments, yet it is in the summertime when indoor entertainment is credited with the least appeal that the Orpheum Theatre, Boston, makes the superiority of its position most apparent. To obtain this end Marcus Loew supplies sterling bills of vaudeville, there being eight acts, and in addition to this there are shown the Pathe News which presents the first hand pictures of items of the latest news from different parts of the world, a Keystone Comedy of two reels, and a first run feature photodrama, making a more than three hour show. This is started at ten a. m. and each show is run in its entirety so that no matter what time a patron enters the whole show may be seen without repeats interceding. The cooling arrangement is perfect, so that on hot days comfortable temperature obtains in the auditorium.

MODERN THEATRE.

"The most perfectly appointed motion picture theatre in New England is the Modern Theatre, Boston." This is a statement made by one of the greatest figures in the industry whose conduct of his business takes him to all parts of the country. And now in the heated term the cooling system, which is large enough for a theatre three times its size, makes certain that no discomfort of heat will attack the spectator. The bills offered are the greatest of any theatre in New England, there being shown two first run features for each entire week, one from the William Fox Studio, and the other from The Paramount Picture Studios. The music programs are outstanding features that meet with the heartiest of approval, exceeding in excellence.

QUIMET MAKES NEW RECORD.

New Figures Created for 18 Hole Course at Country Club.

Francis Quimet went over the new 18 hole course at the Winchester Country Club Sunday, creating new figures both in his morning and afternoon play.

In commenting on the performance the Transcript's golf expert has the following to say:

The putting greens of the new holes lack the texture that comes from years of labor and the fair greens are yet in a state where the club green committee considers it wise to countenance teeing up from bad lies, but Mr. Quimet never once took advantage of ground rules, holed out on every green and put in rounds of 74 and 72. The previous record was 78, held by S. Trafford Hicks.

Double credit belongs to Mr. Quimet for his remarkable day's play, in that everything was made difficult for him. The tee disks were set so far back that the former national open and amateur champion was prompted to remark facetiously to Harry Bowler, the club professional: "I don't object to back tees, Harry, but why put them where your club catches in the long grass on the back swing?"

A little roughness of new putting greens was the last thing to bother the "champ," for on several occasions he went down with one putt. He missed one two-footer on his worst hole of the day—a 7 at the long fifteenth in the morning. Here his tee shot was so bad, that it was almost good, bringing up in the fairway of the sixteenth, but in a poor lie. The succeeding shot was as poor as the lie, being sliced out of bounds. Somewhat disgusted over this, Mr. Quimet also played the next poorly, but in the end he had a two-foot putt for his 6, which he missed. Like a true champion, he played the same hole in 4 in the afternoon, starting with a fine drive, playing short of the brook in two, pitching a mashie up to within five feet of the cup and holing the putt.

The tenth hole was the one that pleased him most for the day. In the morning he drove a long ball, put a mashie up eight feet from the cup and ran down the putt for 3. Playing the same hole in the afternoon, he drove a long ball, but it had a hook and landed in one of the traps guarding the eleventh hole. Moreover, it was in a heel print and close to the embankment. After looking the situation over, Mr. Quimet decided that his only chance of getting the ball anywhere near the green was to take a mashie play, the shot come off as planned, but to his escape hitting the embankment and depend upon a pronounced slice to get the ball back on its proper course. Not only did the shot come off as planned, but to his own complete surprise the ball reached the corner of the green, after travelling about 150 yards. It would have been a shame to miss even a long putt after that, and Mr. Quimet tucked the ball away for another 3.

His 7 at the long elbow hole in the morning alone prevented him from getting a 72 that round. In the afternoon he took 37 to the turn and arrived at the home tee needing only a par for a 70. His drive was long and his second to the edge of the green, but he was thinking less of the next shot than of a joking remark made, so half-topped with his mashie and sent the ball across the green. Three putts followed, for a 6. His cards of the two rounds:

Morning
Out 5 5 4 4 3 3 4 5 3—36
In 3 4 5 5 3 3 7 3 4—38—74

Afternoon
Out 4 4 5 5 4 3 4 5 3—37
In 3 3 5 4 3 4 4 3 6—72

Mr. Quimet's best ball for the day was:

Out 4 4 4 4 3 3 4 5 3—34
In 3 3 5 4 3 4 4 3 6—67

Both the former champion and J. H. Sullivan, Jr., were enthusiastic over the Winchester layout. They believe that when it rounds into first-class shape it will be a notably fine test of golf, vying with the best courses in the district.

COUNTY REDISTRICTED.

Middlesex County, as redistricted by the County Commissioners, now contains but 29 representative districts. For the past ten years, the county has had 31 representative districts. The First district which comprises wards 1, 2 and 3, East Cambridge, and which has had two representatives, loses a representative. This is due to the large number of voters who have moved away from the district. The new Cambridge subway, with its improved transportation facilities, has lured quite a number of people out into the suburbs.

The Town of Stoneham which had made up the thirty-first district, loses its representative. Stoneham, Reading and the City of Woburn are made into a new district which is

THE WATER PROBLEM.

The party was then escorted to the plant of the New England Manufacturing Co. where enormous quantities of munitions are made for the Allies. At the gate was a policeman of stern aspect, but no questions were asked as the party passed him, the authority to enter being the escort of officials from the Chemical Co. Entering an office was a second policeman and a clerk. The visitors were requested to leave all matches in their possession here. On being asked the reason for this, an official said, that while there was little danger of matches igniting in your pocket, yet for safety where so many men were employed, and where there was explosives, there might be a reckless smoker. After the matches had been delivered up to the policeman, each visitor was given a numbered badge, same as those worn by the employees. On coming out the badge was surrendered and you were requested to write your name in a book opposite the badge number.

The drainage from the plant was inspected and the color of the water was found to be the same as that going over the dam on Main street. Put your fingers into it and there was the same discoloration as we see here in Winchester, where a dog was dyed a beautiful green blue. It is pueric acid, and a very little of it produces a great amount of discoloration of water. So the fact was established beyond a doubt that here was the source of the beautifully colored water that passes through Winchester. The tributaries to the river were looked at up to the point where the waters from the two plants join and pass along on their journey down the river and into Mystic Lake. Samples of the water were taken at the different plants and will be analyzed. Waste water conditions at the two plants were not ideal, neither was the condition of the ground with its stagnant pools and small ponds.

As there have been no fish in the Lake, ponds and rivers in Winchester for a few years, the cause of their extermination cannot apparently be laid at the door of the New England Manufacturing Co. The only true solution of the impure water that passes through Winchester is connection with the Metropolitan sewer, or else a prohibition of the use of the river by manufacturing concerns for drainage purposes.

On the way home the Winchester delegation inspected the river at Mishawum, where there is quite a pond and a dam. The color of the water with the accompanying suds were the same as seen today below the dam on Main street. At the dam at Mishawum iron work was badly eaten by the acid in the water.

There will be further inspection along the river at tannery plants in Woburn and at Beggs & Cobbs and the Gelatine factory in Winchester.

It is a big problem to prevent our river from becoming a permanent sewer, as it almost is at the present time, and it may be necessary to ask assistance from the Legislature.

IMPROVEMENT CELEBRATION.

Details Being Worked Out by a Large Committee.

Now that the Chairmen of the various sub-committees have been appointed, details of Winchester's Improvement Celebration are beginning to move along in good shape. The chairmen of these sub-committees are to appoint gentlemen to assist them, as many as they desire. Many owners of automobiles have expressed a desire to enter the parade. Some of the business men will not be able to have their delivery trucks in the parade for the reason that during Saturday afternoon and evening is the busiest time of the week.

The crack Salem Cadet Band has agreed to be here on that day provided sufficient notice is given and will keep the date for Winchester open for a few days. The fireworks, illuminating, sports and other committees are hard at work perfecting their arrangements.

Troops of Boy Scouts from three surrounding places have signified their intentions of coming here and assisting in any capacity they are called upon.

In giving a list of the recent improvements in Winchester, there was failure to include the new fire and police building. This improvement cost the town nearly $100,000. Also there was failure to mention what the public service corporations have done. But few people realize the great amount of money that has been expended by them for improvements during the past three years. And it may be said they have willingly and freely done what the Selectmen have asked them in seconding the efforts of Winchester to make this an ideal town in which to live.

The idea of celebrating Winchester's achievements has met with much favor among the leading public spirited men of the town and they have promised their hearty encouragement and support to the chairmen of the committees, both personally and by letter. Many of these gentlemen, who have approved of the celebration, are away on their vacations, but have, nevertheless, assured the committee their approval and support.

There will be a meeting of the General Committee in the committee room at the Town Hall tonight.

Winchester Shows Its Class and Easily Defeats Woburn on Their Own Grounds.

By "Mack".

Well Mates, this is the story of the "Wreckers who failed to Wreck," or "The Fence Busters who did not Bust." You will generally find in any kind of sport and among lovers of sport the expensive class will tell. Well that easily fits the case in the game between Woburn and Winchester Saturday at Library Park. We have insisted right along that Winchester had the class and with an even break in the luck of the game, we were the equal if not the superior of most of the teams in the semi-pro ranks. Woburn has got the best team that it ever had and Winchester deserves all the more credit for going up to their own grounds and handing them such a decisive defeat. Errors cut no figure whatever in the result; not any more than Jim Linehan's finger did when we were so badly beaten in the previous game. McMahon had all he ever had in the way of pitching strength and only the most remarkable fielding saved him from the worst beating of his career. We made the remark on the previous game that Woburn could beat Winchester five games out of six, provided we played the game we did on that day, but; we did not put up any such exhibition and the result was as clean cut a victory as could be wished for. All the week the Woburn local paper was filled with "poor old Tift, it is a shame what we will do to him, etc." Why not wait until the game was played and then tell what you did to him. Then the other towns and your own readers would not have such a chance to laugh over it. Tift did not have to do any pitching to beat Woburn, he had them beaten before he went into the box, and they knew it. They had men on bases in every inning and twice had the bases full; but the runners were stranded like boats at low tide. The more we think it over we cannot help but wonder where the Woburn crowd got the name "fence buster," and Winchester "Hitless Wonders." It should be just the other way. Generally when we had a man on the bases there was some one to bring him home, but on the other hand the Woburn hitters failed to hit. Take Long for instance; this player got four hits out of seven off Tift, but what good were they? When he had a chance to bring home a couple of men he fell down miserably with a little pop fly to Linehan. It makes no difference how many hits you get when they do no damage. Also you fans that had both the Herald and Globe Sunday will notice that there was a different score in each paper, and you will also notice that the number of hits off Tift was correct in both papers, but you never saw a Sunday paper yet that had the correct number of hits off McMahon. Now we do not believe in saying our fielders or pitchers; if there is a hit made we give it, also in case of an error the fielder is going to get that; we save nobody. Every manager and team that goes out of Woburn say there is never a correct score sent in to the papers. Now last Saturday we got 12 hits off McMahon and some good judges of ball say we got thirteen, but be that as it may we were entitled to 12 hits anyway, no matter what way you score it. In the first place Frye was entitled to a hit on the ball Long dropped after his hard run, or else Long was entitled to an error; it must be one or the other. Also Duffy was entitled to a hit on the

WINCHESTER HORSE THE STAR

H. J. Foster's bay mare, Little Gillig was the star at Saturday's meet at the Quannapowitt Driving Club. She won the Class A event, covering the half in 1.06 1-4, which is the lowest work made on this track for several seasons, and only 2 1-4 seconds behind the track record. The Class A event was hotly contested. J. Hallahan's bay gelding Kearney taking the second heat in 1.08 and pushing within a nose of Little Gillig in the third. Mr. Foster has always been an active member of the Quannapowitt Driving Club and usually has an entry which is eagerly watched. Since his residence on Stone avenue in this town he has easily owned the fastest horses in Winchester.

BRIDGE PARAPET NEARLY FINISHED.

The work of flowing in the concrete on the south parapet of the Mt. Vernon street bridge was done Wednesday by the Highway Department. The department has been at work making and putting the forms in place for several weeks. This new parapet, together with that to be erected on the north side, will add greatly to the bridge and will place it in keeping with the new Main street and Waterfield road bridges. The south parapet is 90 feet long, 3 1-2 feet high and 1 foot thick. The old iron fence is left inside the concrete. Owing to the fact that the bridge was considerably out of plumb and had settled some, the work of placing the forms was quite difficult. The new parapet will be of a plain panel design.

AUTO AFIRE.

The fire department was called to the Winchester Garage yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock in answer to an alarm from box 23. The fire was caused by an auto owned by William D. Richards catching from a back-fire. There was a great quantity of smoke, but the fire was extinguished with little damage to the car.

TRADERS' OUTING.

Weather Again Interferes With Pleasures of the Day.

When the Winchester Traders held their outing last year at Canobie Lake the day was one of the most unpleasant of the summer—there being a continuous downpour of rain from the time the excursionists arrived at the Lake until they reached Winchester. This year the indications were for a pleasant day, although the sky was overcast when the party left Winchester in three special electric cars for Canobie Lake, N. H. A year ago the heavy rain prevented an inspection of the grounds and its many attractions, and so it was decided to try it again. When the party left Winchester Wednesday all indications pointed toward pleasant weather, but shortly after there was mist, and when the Lake was reached it became Scotch mist and this was followed by a drizzling rain, much to the disappointment of the party. Canobie Lake is a most beautiful place for an outing. There is a magnificent lake, and amusements of many kinds—a theatre, dancing pavilion, bowling alleys, ball field, boating, fishing, in fact everything is provided for the pleasures of the large number of people who visit this resort. There is an up-to-date restaurant where the best of food, well cooked, is served, besides places where light lunches are served. The time taken to reach the Lake from Winchester is about two hours and a half.

As soon as the Winchester excursionists arrived at the Lake a game of base ball between the married and single men was started. It furnished an abundance of fun for five innings when the game was called off, the score being six for the single men and four for the married. The teams were captained by John Piccolo and J. Chris. Sullivan. Mr. Albert B. Sellers was the umpire and the spectators blushed for his decisions.

Then followed refreshments, after which the following sports were palled off:

100 yd. dash, boys—Clarence Mackesy 1st, watch; J. Plummer 2nd, pocket knife.

100 yd. dash, Traders married men—G. Horne 1st, thermos bottle; Walter Fancie 2nd, pipe.

INFANTILE PARALYSIS.

Steps Being Taken to Protect Winchester Children.

The medical department of the United States is taking every measure possible to prevent the spread of infantile paralysis from New York. Every child leaving that city is carefully examined, and if any should show the least symptoms of this malady it is not allowed to leave. Those children that appear to be in perfect health are allowed to proceed to their destination. And to show the care exercised an instance might be cited. Wednesday a child was allowed to go to its destination, which happened to be Winchester. Thursday morning Dr. Allen of the local Board of Health received a letter from the medical department of the government in New York stating that a child had been allowed to go to its destination in this town. The name was given, also the street on which the child was to have its home. As soon as the letter was received Dr. Allen visited the home of the child, inspected the visitor and will continue to do so until all danger has passed. No matter where the little ones go, in any part of the country, similar notification is given to Boards of Health.

Winchester is free from this dreaded disease and will continue so as far as the efforts of the local Board of Health are concerned. There is not the slightest cause for alarm among parents, and they can rest assured that there is but little prospect that the disease will secure a foothold here.

BASE BALL TOMORROW.

Saturday we have the greatest attraction in the way of a team that could be brought to Winchester. Queen Quality is the team and as the name implies it has the quality or class to furnish good baseball. They have been playing in hard luck this season, but have got a stronger team than ever in the field. Johnny Murray, the Star Georgetown pitcher, is doing the box work, with Harry Robertson of Worcester Academy behind the bat. They have also a number of old favorites here in Winchester in the lineup. "Barney" Hagen on 1st, Drummond on 2nd, and Mitchell on third are all well known here, also Johnny Norton, Captain of Holy Cross, is covering short field for them. In the outfield they have White of Tufts, Joe Brickley of Exeter and McGaffee of Georgetown. So take the team as a whole there is no question about its class. The only thing we have any doubts about is whether we can win from them, for outside of Marblehead, Queen Quality is the best semi-pro team in Massachusetts. Cut this piece out of the STAR and you will know their lineup.

VACATION SCHOOL.

The Vacation School closed yesterday forenoon after a very interesting term of six weeks. A large number of visitors witnessed the closing exercises and exhibition and sale of work done at the Chapin School.

Some very interesting work was displayed by the different departments, including sewing, basketry, cane seating of chairs, braided rugs, lace, underwear as well as many fancy articles. In addition to the manual training work there is a kindergarten and nursery for the smaller children. Once each week a storyteller, Mrs. Powers, delighted the children with stories, and recommended books for them to read. The teachers this year were Miss Ethel Tabor and Miss Almira Cogswell, sewing; Miss Helen Sweeney and Miss Gertrude Davis, basketry; Miss Elizabeth Cullen and Miss Marion Trott, kindergarten; Miss Irene Murphy and Miss Alice McCauley, nursery. The committee of the Fort-nightly in charge of the school were: Mrs. Herbert L. Larrabee, chairman; Mrs. Herbert E. Butler, Mrs. Howard Bennett and Mrs. J. Ervine Johnson.

B. Y. M. C. UNION.

The Boston Young Men's Christian Union, 48 Boylston street, Boston, Mass., has just issued its annual report of the Board of Government and committees for the sixty-fifth year. The report is attractively bound in blue. A pictorial section shows the Union activities and building.

"The Country Week" is the summer social service for children and mothers. Last summer its beneficiaries numbered 1,721. Over 528 persons were given carriage rides, steamboat tickets were distributed to 1,232 and trolley car tickets to 13,908.

During the year over 600 applications for positions were received by the free employment department, to fill 230 positions. This department of the Union is unlike most such departments in that no fees are charged to young men applicants nor to employers. More than fifty evening educational classes, social and self-help clubs are organized by members. There is a library with 13,600 books and a reading room with 133 newspapers and periodicals. The gymnasium has 1,157 members.

YOUR AFFAIRS AND MINE

Long ago Professor Sumner pointed out that the fine arts do not advance. That is a truth that is easily verifiable. All that is necessary is an appeal to history. There can be no doubt as to the law. But it may be said that it does not apply to the present situation, since no one is asking for better fiction than that produced by Fielding, Scott, Thackeray, George Eliot, Dickens, Hardy and George Meredith, but only for good fiction. The demand is not for an advance in the art, but only for an improvement in the quality of the output. What is desired is, not something better than the ideal best, but something better than we now have. And all this is true. But when we come to inquire why it is the fine arts do not advance we seem to get some real light on the subject. Great art is the product of great personalities, and these are few in number. Success in the useful arts is largely a matter of efficiency. But in the so-called creative arts there can be no striking success unless the worker is endowed with great brain power. And this is preeminently true of fiction. It will always be found, no matter what period is considered, that when novels are poor, they are so because they are the work of second-rate or third-rate brains. This explanation applies, not only to our own days, but to all days. The question is always one of power. As great minds are rare, and great power the exception, it naturally follows that great novels are few. As far as men fail in novel writing, it is not because they do not know life, or are restrained by conventions, or are afraid to face facts, but simply because they are deficient in intellectual power. And this explanation applies to all times, as well as to those in which we now live. There is nothing learned or far-fetched about it. Perhaps that is the reason why it has never occurred to the experts. But that it is the true explanation can hardly be doubted. There can be no powerful novels unless there is power in the men who write them. Is this not axiomatic?

A man may know everything that is to be known about life, and yet be entirely ignorant of what life means. Even if he knows life and understands it, he may not be able to interpret to others. This knowledge is precisely like all other knowledge—that is, of no value unless it is mastered by a mind that is strong and comprehensive enough to assimilate it in all its applications. Any man with a reasonably good style, and endowed in some degree with the story telling gift, can write a novel, and a fairly acceptable one. These are but the tools of the trade, and many writers possess them. The difference between these men and the great writers is, not simply in the style, or in the skill with which they use the tools, but in power. On the other hand, there have been men who succeeded greatly though their style was not admirable, and their construction was faulty—but they had power. And we all feel and recognize it. If, therefore power and great personality are essential to the production of great fiction, we can readily understand why there should be so little great fiction. If this explanation be the true one, it is clear that there is nothing to be done. Old Whitman was right when he said: "Produce men; the rest follows." Our writers can be careful, sincere and honest in their work; write in the best style they can command; see that their construction is as perfect as they can make it and resist manfully and de-basing tendencies or influences that may beset them. And thus they can do much to improve our fiction. But if they are without the great essential, which is brain power, they are simply without it, and that is all that can be said. They are not to blame—no man is to be blamed for making the best use of the faculties or talents with which he has been endowed by the Almighty God. It is, perhaps, needless for The Spectator to say that the discussion is quite impersonal. The effort simply is to show that little men never can and never could produce great books. That is not a personality, but a principle, and one that seems to be sufficiently obvious. The surprising thing is that so little should have been made of it by literary critics who all through the years have been so much distressed over the quality of fiction.

There is, to be sure, something fatalistic in this theory, since it teaches that great achievement is possible only when there is great native ability, which is something that cannot be commanded, and for which there can be no substitute. But if it is true, the fact that it is fatalistic does not matter. In these days when we expect education to work miracles, and never think of the quality of the material on which the education must work, it is well we should be reminded that men differ in mental power as they do in height and weight, and that even in the business of getting an education native ability counts enormously. These inequalities cannot be leveled. But if the theory is fatalistic, it is also charitable. Men who hold it will not expect from others more than they are able to perform, and certainly will never blame them for overstraining their powers. We know that there are silly critics who condemn the writer or really admirable stories because he is not a Thackeray. Nothing could be more unkind or unjust. One might as well quarrel with the writer because he is not so tall as Thackeray. The critics would also be happier if they would try to remember that our writers are doing the best they can—and some of them are doing very well. If their best is not good, one must say so—if called on to say anything. Geniuses do not visit this earth very often, and the number even of good workmen is never—and never has been—large. Brain power cannot, like horse power, be produced to order. It is a gift, and one that is sparingly bestowed. From the dawn of history to the present moment there have not been more than a dozen workers in the field of literature—leaving out the Bible—of overwhelming and transcendent ability and power. Why then should we expect the lists of American publishers to be weighted down with the titles of immortal works? Nothing surely could be more childish or unreasonable. Even distinction of style, of which we hear so much, is to a considerable extent a native gift, though it can, in a slight degree, be cultivated. The case is not hopeless; but even if it were there is little that can be done about it.

RIVER POLLUTION.

The Puffer Manufacturing Company of Winchester filed a bill in equity in the superior court, Cambridge, Monday, seeking to restrain the New England Manufacturing Company of North Woburn from an alleged pollution of the Aberjona river, which flows into the Mystic lakes. The Puffer Company formerly took 200,000 gallons of water a day from the river and is now using Winchester water. It alleges that the introduction into the river of impurities has caused some of the company's work in marble to be rejected. The bill is returnable Aug. 11.

The outcome should be watched with interest by the officials of Winchester who are trying to remedy existing conditions of the water that has caused so much objection here. The result of an inspection of the plant of the N. E. Manufacturing Company was printed in last week's STAR which proved conclusively that the contamination of the water was due to this and other concerns on the line of the river.

WINCHESTER BOY LIKES ALASKA.

Mr. Ernest Polley of this town who went to Juneau, Alaska, early this summer, writes the STAR that he is much delighted with the country thus far.

Mr. Polley says: "We are having very fine weather here and it seems queer to read in the STAR of the cold rainy weather back home. This is a wonderful country and would make a nice vacation trip for you some time." I went fishing yesterday, (June 23) for trout, and in four hours eight of us caught 162 salmon trout that weighed as high as seven pounds. Remember me to any inquiring friends."

ENGAGEMENT.

Mr. and Mrs. George Godfrey Little of Winchester have sent out invitations for the marriage of their daughter, Madeleine Fowler Little, to James Everett Henry, on the evening of Wednesday, Aug. 16, at 8 o'clock, at the Church of the Epiphany. The wedding ceremony will be followed by a reception in the parish house. Mr. Henry and his bride will live at Lincoln, N. H., where they will be at home to their friends after Oct. 1.

HORN BOY RECOVERING.

Ralph Horn, the seven year old son of Albert Horn, who was accidentally shot with a small calibre revolver at his home last week, is reported recovering satisfactorily. Dr. Richard Sheehy was called at the time of the accident, and found that the bullet had entered the child's chest just over the lung. The accident occurred through ignorance of the fact that the revolver was loaded.

NEWSY PARAGRAPHS.

Authorities are fussy about the common drinking cup and towel, but nobody kicks when a grimy hand puts ice into the water tank of a railway car without gloves, says an exchange. They may not be germs, but there must be some dirt.

There was a large crowd at the dancant at the Winchester Boat Club last Saturday evening. The Bungalow Colored Orchestra continues to provide the excellent music for these dancants, and they have been one of the most popular diversions in town this summer. The series will be continued each Saturday evening through August.

Union mechanics, employed in the new state armory in Woburn, are on strike as the first step in a campaign of the pipe workers against the open shop plan of the master steam fitters and plumbers.

Miss Plummer and Mrs. McDonald chaperoned a large party from Winchester Highlands to Revere Beach in a special car last Saturday afternoon. The excursionists left the Highlands at 2:30 and arrived home at eleven o'clock after a most delightful time at the beach.

The demand for Safe Deposit Boxes in excess of the present accommodation has been so great that the Winchester Trust Company has placed an order with the Mosler Safe Company to install one hundred additional boxes.

At the water sports held on Saturday at Falmouth Heights, the swimming race for boys under 15 years was won by Edgar Sherman of 14 Everett avenue. He received a handsome silver cup as a prize.

Mr. Holbrook Ayer who is passing the summer at Great Hill, Quincy, was a party aiding in the attempted rescue of Miss Jennie Sherry, who was dragged overboard by a tangled rope last Friday and who was drowned. Mr. Ayer, upon hearing cries of distress, proceeded to the scene in his motor boat, but was powerless to save the girl, who had gone down in deep water.

It is reported that the next game between Winchester and Woburn will be played on Manchester Field on Labor Day morning.

Five special trains passed through Winchester Wednesday morning bringing the returning members of the Military Camp at Plattsburg.

By the blowing out of a cylinder head at Wedgemere of the express from Boston due here at 5:55, outward trains were delayed for over an hour Tuesday night. It was necessary to push the train back to the side track at West Medford and hold it until another locomotive was sent from Boston. The noise of the explosion when the cylinder head blew out was heard plainly about town.

The first jail sentence for profanity on a street car was imposed Monday by Justice Littlefield in the District Court. Patrick Comer of Woburn was the defendant.

Mr. Charles N. Bacon of 31 Grove street, who has been with the American Woolen Co. of Boston, for the last three years, has been sent to the Saranac Mills at Blackstone, Mass., as assistant paymaster for the same company.

There were two narrow escapes from accident at the railroad in the centre Tuesday forenoon. Mr. Stephen Allison of Fletcher street, who stepped under the gates at the crossing in front of an inward express, was pulled to safety by gate-man William Richardson, and a little later a lady at the Station had a narrow escape. In both instances the engineers of the locomotives applied their brakes in an endeavor to avoid the accident.

SHOOTING FRACAS.

Constantino Bruno, 37, living at 4 Quigley court, was shot Monday night about midnight on Swanton street near his home. The bullet entered his left side between two ribs and lodged in the lung. He was taken to the Winchester Hospital, where he was attended by Dr. Richard Sheehy.

Early Tuesday the police arrested Salvatore Asaro of 15 Irving street, and he was in court, charged with assault with intent to murder. His case was continued till a week from Wednesday, and he was held in $1000 bonds.

A visit was later made to the premises of 35 Oak street to arrest Gaspar Asaro, a cousin of Salvatore, who is believed by the police to be implicated in the affair. Gaspar made his escape by a back window when he heard them coming and is still at large. Bruno refused to give the name of his assailant, asserting that he did not know who shot him.

PUT OUT LIGHTS WITH FOOT.

William E. McDonald of Franklin street, Woburn, was discharged Monday in the Woburn court, on the complaint of operating an automobile in Winchester without lights.

McDonald told the court that he was operating a Ford truck and that the plug connecting the lights was accidentally knocked out of place by the foot of his companion, Frank Knights, just as the machine approached the car driven by Chief of Police McIntosh. McDonald told McIntosh, he said, the cause of the trouble, and demonstrated the difficulty to the police and the chief. Knights corroborated McDonald's story, and when Attorney Kenney offered the suggestion that the statute was intended mainly for persistent operation without lights, and not for the temporary accidental omission, the court agreed with him and freed McDonald.

CANOE TRIP TO QUINCY.

Two well known Winchester boys, Ernest V. Evans and Franklin Lane, members of the Winchester Boat Club, took an interesting canoe trip to Great Hill, Quincy, Saturday. From there they went across to Quincy and met Mr. Holbrook Ayer, who is spending the summer at Great Hill. After spending Saturday night and Sunday with Mr. Ayer they returned by the same route, being given a good start by a tow up the harbor by Mr. Ayer with his motor boat.

REV. JOEL M. LEONARD DEAD.

Was a Former Pastor of Local M. E. Church.

The Rev. Joel Marvin Leonard, for many years identified with the work of the Methodist Episcopal churches in New England and the holder of many pastorates in the vicinity of Boston during the past 25 years, died Monday at his summer home, at Friendship, Me. He was 64 years old.

Mr. Leonard was born in Potsdam, N. Y., July 21, 1852, but removed to Cambridge with his parents when very young. His father, Hiram Leonard, was a well known hide and leather merchant in Malden. The boy was first educated in the Cambridge public schools and in 1874 received the degree of A. B. from Harvard College.

He then entered the theological school of Boston University, graduating in 1877. The New England conference was so crowded that year that no new members were received, so Mr. Leonard united with the upper Iowa conference. He was stationed one year in Nashua, N. H., where a new church was built, and then went to Aramosa, Ia., for two years.

In 1880 he was granted a supernumerary relation by the Iowa conference so that he might continue his studies in Leipzig and Berlin. On his return from Germany he was transferred to the New England conference and was stationed at Winchester. His subsequent charges included churches at Newton, Westfield, Salem, Malden, Melrose and Upham's Corner, where he was pastor of the Baker Memorial Church in 1908. He then left the ministry to become superintendent of the Lynn district of M. E. Churches. For some time he was known as a conference evangelist, and from 1910 to 1913 was superintendent of the Boston City Mission Church Extension Society. Of late years he had been agent for the board of conference stewards.

Mr. Leonard was ordained by Bishop Simpson of Lowell on April 6, 1876. He was the recipient of several honorary degrees, among them that of Ph. D. from Boston University.

Rev. Mr. Leonard was well known in Winchester as a much loved pastor of the local Methodist Church. His wife was Miss Mary True Mason of this town. He was settled here for two years—1882 and 1883.

THE NEW REPRESENTATIVE DISTRICT.

Local politics are sizzling as a result of the redistricting announcement of the county commissioners. The taking away of Medford's balance of power in the Medford-Winchester district, while partially repaid by establishing a double district of the remaining six wards, is the cause of much difference of opinion.

The changes will also be keenly studied by some of the candidates, announced and unannounced, who have been going over the situation. Several of them suddenly find they are confronted by an entirely different situation than that which they supposed would exist.

Ward Three of Medford now finds itself only a fractional part of a district, set off from the rest of the city. Where Wards Three and Six, both strongly Republican, formerly had an equal voice in the affairs of the Medford-Winchester district, of which both were a part, the Medford end now finds itself outnumbered two-to-one. Ward Six discovers that it is not to be put in the group with Winchester but is to be retained with Medford as Medford's largest ward and therefore a powerful factor in the selection of the two representative candidates from the twenty-sixth district.—[Medford Mercury.]

SENATOR FAY'S POSITION.

West Medford, Mass.
Aug. 1, 1916.

To the Voters of the Sixth Middlesex District.

Dear Friends:—

I have felt from my remarks made last year during the campaign that it was generally understood throughout the district that if elected, I should not be a candidate for the State Senate in 1916. I find however such is not the case as I have received and am still receiving from every city and town in the district, many letters inquiring about my intentions and urging me to again be a candidate, and assuring me of the writers' active support.

I am deeply grateful for the good feeling, the friendship and appreciation as expressed in the communications received. It has been both a privilege and an honor to have been permitted to represent you for three years in the State Senate and I desire to thank all who so kindly assisted in giving me the opportunity. I have endeavored to render good service to the state at large as well as to our district and have given of the best that was mine to give. If my efforts have produced such results as to meet general approval of the citizens, as some of my correspondents suggest, that of itself is sufficient reward.

I do not feel however, all things considered, that I ought to be a candidate this fall and so I shall not file papers. It will be impossible for me to answer the many letters that I have received and I hope all will understand the situation and accept this public statement as my acknowledgment of their own kind communications, with my regrets in not being able to accept their request. With sincere thanks I remain,

Respectfully,

(Signed) Wilton B. Fay.

WHAT HAPPENS IF YOU LEAVE NO WILL.

Under this caption in last week's STAR was a brief statement of what would happen if you fail to make a will. This brought out the following from Mr. Robert E. Fay of this town, treasurer of the Exchange Trust Co., of 21 Milk street, Boston:

My dear Mr. Wilson:—

The enclosed clipping from the STAR of the 4th instant was of a good deal of interest to me on account of the company with which I am associated having issued a very clear book in the matter of wills and distribution of estates in Massachusetts. I am enclosing one for your benefit.

These books may be obtained by either writing or calling at either of the offices of this company.

I think you will find that the statements made in your paper are well covered in the book which we have issued.

Very truly yours,

Robert E. Fay,

Treasurer.

GOOD WORK BY LODGE.

The zeal and perseverance displayed by Senator Henry Cabot Lodge in the matter of securing the passage of a naval appropriation bill which will meet present defense needs has apparently not been spent in vain and the country owes a debt of gratitude to him for his efforts. The senator's long experience in legislative matters and his wide knowledge make him a particularly valuable man in the present crisis and it is gratifying to see that his earnest work bids fair to be crowned with success.

As the Boston Transcript says: "Largely through his influence party disagreements were put aside in the perfecting of the navy program objection were answered and the pacifist opposition was worn down to meager eight men, as against the seventy-one senators of all shades of party opinion who registered their votes in favor of this bill. Senator Lodge has worked steadily and most ably for the program, which, as embodied now in the bill passed by the senate, provides for the construction of 157 vessels in three years, including sixteen capital ships. Not all of the provisions of the bill have met the approval of the senators from Massachusetts, but their adoption has been necessary to the acceptance of this measure by virtually the entire senate, and consideration of patriotism has prevailed over all others in the final acceptance of a great defense program. It is now the duty of the house to pass the bill whose support in the senate has been so impressive. The differences between the house and senate bill are not essential, and the demonstration of the need of agreement upon such a program is complete."—[Medford Review.]

WILD FREIGHT CAR.

Ran Through Winchester Centre Without Warning at 40 Miles an Hour.

Winchester centre was treated to a real thriller with all the fixings on Monday afternoon when a gondola freight car loaded with about 40 tons of coal ran over the crossing without warning at a clip estimated all the way from 40 to 60 miles an hour. That no accident occurred was a real miracle. The car carried one man, Thomas Duffy, conductor of the shifting crew which works between Winchester and Woburn. He stuck to the car during the entire length of its wild run.

According to stories of the incident the car, which was of the customary gondola type, was loaded with coal for the Parker tannery at Woburn. While at the Winchester freight yard at North Winchester it got bumped, smashing one end and putting the coupling and breaks out of use.

In taking the car to the Parker factory up the Woburn loop, no difficulty was experienced as the shifting locomotive pushed it from the undamaged end. To place it on the side track it was necessary to leave it on the main line and send the locomotive around it, and coupled up with a chain. As the locomotive started pushing the car down the grade the chain became unfastened and the car started off alone with conductor Duffy and another brakeman on it helpless to stop it. The brakeman jumped before too great speed was attained, but Duffy stuck and took the whole of the wild ride.

The car started at Con street, Woburn, and gathered speed with every foot of the sharp down grade towards Winchester. It was on the outward track. Closely following it was the shifter with its whistle open wide, sending out shrills and shrieks to warn the towerman at Winchester and the gatemen at the crossing.

Some idea of the speed of the car may be had when it is stated that word was almost immediately telephoned from the Cross street station as the car passed to the Winchester station, and when the Winchester agent, Stephen Callahan, telephoned to the switch tower, operator James Swymer was then trying to throw the switches to save an accident.

Owing to the fact that the train leaving Winchester at 3.28 was at the Wedgemere station, Swymer, when he saw the runaway coming down the loop, tried to send it across to the outward track. This he succeeded in doing, although he did not have time to throw both switches. He threw one switch and had barely unlocked the other when the runaway struck it, and riding the rails threw it open.

Meanwhile the gatemen at the centre had become aware that something was up, and although getting no bell to lower the gates, they stood by ready to act. When the car appeared around the bend the gates were at once lowered. Fortunately no one was on the crossing. A heavily loaded electric car was barely over and several autos were approaching or had just passed.

As the car struck the switches at the tower onlookers expected to see it leave the rails. It did not appear possible that a car travelling at such speed could hold the irons. But due probably to the heavy load, it swayed dangerously and then righted itself and passed over safely.

As the car passed Wedgemere station the inward train was just starting, and conductor Duffy swung low on the step of the runaway with the idea of jumping the passenger and speeding ahead to warn the 3.40 freight which was then due to be approaching. But the speed was too great to take the hazard and he stuck with the car. When the car struck the double curve at Bacon's Mill its speed so diminished that Duffy was finally able to drop a beam of wood in front of it and bring it to a stop.

By a most fortunate occurrence the freight train, which if on time would have been about at Wedgemere when the car reached there, was 20 minutes late. Another fortunate occurrence was the fact that the "cab train," which crosses over from the inward to the outward siding immediately after the 3.28 passes, had not time to start to do so.

Many persons in the centre saw the runaway pass, as the loud whistling of the locomotive up the loop, followed by the shouting of the gatemen and towerman, brought everyone out in a hurry. The shifter pursued the runaway as closely as possible, but although at times travelling over 40 miles an hour, was unable to catch it, and when the centre crossing was reached it was necessary of course for it to slow up a little.

The car was taken in tow by the shifter at Bacon's Mills and brought up through the centre. Conductor Duffy received much commendation for his pluck in sticking to the runaway when he knew a bad accident was almost inevitable.

This is the second time within a comparatively short time that such an incident has occurred, for it was not a great while ago that another coal car ran down from the coal elevator of the George W. Blanchard Co., and went through the centre wild. On that occasion the gatemen did not have time to get the gates down at all, but fortunately the crossing was clear.

A HARD WORKER.

Martin Loftus came here from England about sixteen years ago and took up his residence. He is a plain, hard working man, and is employed in taking care of the material that comes into the street across the pond. He has a wife and two bright boys who are now earning their own way. Mr. Loftus for some years worked for the town and also for private concerns. His wages were never large, but he always gave a good measure of labor and does today. He relates that at one time he was employed by the Chemical Company at North Woburn. But that was many years ago when labor was more plentiful than it is now, and when it was difficult to procure work of any kind and wages were low. To get work at the Chemical Co., he walked from Winchester to the plant at North Woburn, some six miles is the distance, as his cash was limited, in fact he had no money. When he arrived there seeking work, he was told that he would have to apply at the Boston office. Then he tramped back again to Winchester. Next morning he walked to Boston and was told to report at the works the next morning, and greatly pleased with his luck, he footed it back home. Next morning he hiked it to the plant in Woburn, leaving home at five o'clock in the morning, he being obliged to report every morning at 6.30. For two years, winter and summer, Mr. Loftus walked to and from his work going by way of the tracks of the railroad, his hours of labor being from 6.30 in the morning until 6 in the evening—pretty long hours, when the present eight hours are considered. He left home in the morning at five o'clock and arrived back at about 7.30 in the evening. How many men today would do this? But times have changed for the better and so have living conditions.

Missed Both Ways.

PRESIDENTIAL POINTERS

The sixth president was the son of the second president, and the twenty-third president was the grandson of the ninth president. William Henry Harrison was the eighth and Benjamin Harrison the tenth in descent from Pocahontas and John Rolfe. Lincoln was the first president wearing a full beard. Grant the first wearing a mustache. Buchanan and Cleveland were backsliders when they entered the White House as presidents, but Cleveland surrendered during his first term. Washington, Monroe, Pierce and Hayes were born on Friday. J. Q. Adams, Pierce and Garfield were inaugurated on Friday. Lincoln was assassinated on Friday.

Both Winchester and Ward 3 of Medford, now in the 25th Representative district, are strongly Republican.

Readers of the STAR should peruse the advertisement of the New England Telephone Co. on page six. There is much information in it for subscribers and answers to many vexed questions.

The City Council of Woburn has passed an order calling for the installation of a patrol box signal system at a cost of $3000. Winchester has had this system for several years during which time it has proved its worth.

Last Sunday's death toll numbered eleven including automobile and drowning accidents. This does not include the injured and rescued. Take the entire United States and the number must have been very large. We used to hear a great deal about a safe and sane Fourth. The scene has now shifted.

Senator Fay of Medford will not again be a candidate for Senator. He has very ably filled the office and represented the district, and his many friends regret his withdrawal. This will leave the field clear for other candidates of which there are many in the various cities and towns in the district. Mr. Prime of this town being in the list.

A recent Boston paper states that home papers are eagerly sought by the soldiers at the Mexican border, and makes an appeal that they be sent there. Winchester boys who are serving Uncle Sam all receive the STAR each week, their names being placed on our mailing list as soon as their addresses were received. First Lieutenant Mobbs writes that the STARS are received regularly and much appreciated.

During warm weather conductors and motormen should keep the front door leading into the vestibule of the car open. This clears out the foul air that accumulates in the car and cannot be driven out through the half closed windows. Besides the cool air would add greatly to the comfort of the passengers. The superintendents of the two roads that pass through Winchester should give attention to this and thereby please the passengers.

Time was when people used to secrete their valuables in their homes—under bedding, back of the bureau, under tables and any place that they imagined was safe. And occasionally they were. But not from fire. The more cautious people took their valuables to Boston and stored them in safe deposit vaults. This was somewhat of a bother in taking the goods to and from Boston. When the Winchester Trust Co. erected their new and handsome building on Church street the question of storage for valuables, including papers, was considered, and the result was that a considerable section was fitted up with fire-proof and burglar proof steel boxes and it was supposed at that time, sufficient to supply the demand for many years. Now it is learned that the company is about to install one hundred more boxes to meet additional requirements. The day of hiding places in houses has nearly gone by.

At the recent hearing for five cent fares on the Bay State Railroad the statement was made by an expert that open cars were money losers and that they should be scrapped. He may be right, but regular patrons of the road and pleasure seekers would differ with him. The people prefer an open car every time and in many instances will wait for one. Pleasure parties to the beaches and country would be things of the past if the open cars were discontinued, and the roads would lose more money than they could possibly save by the semi-convertible cars or any kind of closed cars. It is the people who patronize the electric and their desires should have weight in the kind of cars that are used during warm weather. A few years ago pleasure riding in the country was popular, but with the advent of so many closed cars this has practically ceased.

PERONNE THE OBJECTIVE.

An Important Railroad Center Object of "Big Push."

Peronne, the first important objective of the French and English forces when the allies' "big push" was inaugurated, is described in today's war geography bulletin of the National Geographic Society as follows:

"The important railway center of Peronne, rich with historic associations of ancient and medieval France, was a town of less than 5,000 people at the outbreak of the war, and it had little industrial or commercial significance, but for nearly three hundred years it bore an honored name de guerre, La Pucelle. (The Impregnable), this distinction having been accorded it in 1536 when the courageous woman, Marie Fourie, also known as Cathrine de Poix, successfully defended it against the imperial forces of Charles V commanded by the Count of Nassau. The title 'impregnable' was dropped by the city in 1815, however, for in that year it was captured by the Duke of Wellington. Its name stands high among the cities of courage in the Franco-German war, during which it withstood a destructive bombardment of 12 days and only capitulated because the civil population was being decimated by an epidemic of small-pox.

"The French maintained Peronne as a small military stronghold until ten years ago when its fortifications were razed, but up to the time of the onward sweep of the Germans toward Paris in the summer of 1914 the four-towered castle was still standing and visitors were shown the cell in which, in the tenth century, the unhappy French King, Charles the Simple, posthumous son of Louis the Stammerer, was starved to death. Charles was kept a prisoner here by the treacherous Herbert Count of Vermandois, who had promised to aid the sovereign against Rudolph, Duke of Burgundy.

"Peronne was the scene of another act of treachery against a French ruler five hundred years later when the 'bourgeois king,' Louis XI, trusting to the diplomacy of gold, visited Charles the Bold. Two days after Louis' arrival in Peronne on a mission of conciliation, there came the news of a supposed massacre of the bishop and ducal governor of Liege. The rumor was false, but Charles, suspecting Louis of double-dealing, threw the king in prison and kept him in a cell until he consented to sign the 'Treaty of Peronne,' insuring all Flanders freedom from the jurisdiction of the parlement in Paris. This treaty was the most humiliating episode in Louis' life, for the people of Picardy taught their tame jays and magpies to cry 'Peronne' and 'Perette' in derision of the sovereign. Thoroughly mortified, Louis determined to find a scapegoat and Cardinal Jean Balue was the unhappy victim. Balue fled and joined Harancourt, bishop of Verdun, in revolt. Both were captured, and Balue was kept a prisoner for 11 years while Harancourt was confined in an iron cage, like a wild beast, for 13 years.

"The history of Peronne goes back to the days of the Frankish king Clovis II, who owned a villa here and who gave it to his mayor of the palace, Erchinoaldus, founder of the monastery of St. Fursy in the seventh century. It received its charter from the French crown in 1209.

"The town is situated on the Somme River, 94 miles by rail north of Paris, and 35 miles east of Amiens. It is 20 miles by rail east of Fricourt, one of the first villages taken by the British in their offensive which began on the first day of July."

ball Holt held in his hand. There was no other way to score this play anyway. That makes 12 hits off McMahon while the Globe gives us 10 and the Herald 9. It made no difference in the result of the game, but the Times took the writer to task for "kicking" on the scoring. Now you fans saw the plays.

In both instances, who is right, "Mack" or the experts that did the scoring? This will be all for this game and here is the correct score.

Notes.

Percentage .600. How does that look?

We surely handed Woburn the surprise of the season. They had that game all won before it was played.

They did not have much of a chance to root, but they made the most of what they had. Winchester should take a few lessons from the surrounding towns and do a little rooting once in a while; you are not attending a prayer meeting. When you go to a game, wake up.

Frye was the leading slugger for Winchester with four hits. Wingate, Linehan and Duffy had two each. We lost all kinds of hits and runs through great fielding behind McMahon.

Wingate as usual played a great game in Woburn. Why is it Dana always shows at his best up there? The play he made behind Duffy was as good as could be seen on any field or any league; and that drive in the sixth: Well, words fail to describe it.

Wait played a good game at second, although he pulled a bad one when he allowed Long to score the second run.

Linehan is the best first baseman we have ever had, and that includes Fallis, Kenney and Frazer. He digs them up and gets the runner generally, also he is there with the hit when needed.

Blowers was the hard luck man on the team. It was nothing short of highway robbery the way he was beaten out of hits.

Buddy Ryan was there with one swell catch and also with the bat. Harold McDonald robbed him out of a nice hit by a great catch.

Duffy on third, and here is the "kid" that is going to fill in nicely on that corner. He looks like a hitter in the two games he has played and he will get over the tendency to fumble when he gets used to the team.

Early for Woburn pulled the greatest catch of the game while Harold McDonald played the greatest game of the year at second base.

Long was the chief hitter and run getter for Woburn, but as told above he fell down badly on the pinch.

And poor Tift, "why he had that bunch of 'Fence Busters' standing on their heads. With men on bases in most every inning when the hit was needed it failed to materialize.

"Bull" Lowe, the demon slugger, was like a two year old kid when he tried to connect with anything.

This man Lowe has a great reputation as a player and hitter, but Jim Linehan can play rings around him at the bat, in the field and on the bases.

Take the Woburn team, man for man, is there any man on the team you fans would exchange for any of the Winchester players, and that means consider the both games played.

Long, the Woburn outfielder, tried to start something in the ninth when he made the foolish attempt to stretch an ordinary single into a double. There is no need for any player to look for right when another player tries to get a "rise out of him," it is all apart of the game. We doubt very much if Tift made the remark credited to him. As we understand it Tift was speaking to McMahon at the time. The Times says "there was a near riot in the ninth inning. They should have called the police reserves, it was so bad. Quit your kidding.

The game as a whole was cleanly played as it should be, both sides doing their best and Manager Harkins did right in giving Long a "call down" for his display of temper.

Now in the Arlington news of last week and the Times of Tuesday they were after Winchester on the umpire question. Well, Winchester never makes a protest unless it is a proper one and we will continue to do so at any time we see an umpire make a "bone" on a decision. We do not question the fairness of an umpire, but when an umpire is incompetent then we will continue to complain. Take the Arlington game Saturday between Arlington and Lexington; from spectators there we have their word that the umpire spoiled the game.

Arlington claims they won the game in spite of him and Lexington says they lost the game on account of his decision. Well all we have got to say is that any umpire that claims a runner has to be tagged for a force-out is some umpire, and let it go at that.

And now says Reading, "Pitcher Henry has left Winchester. Why didn't they hold on to a good player when they had him." Well, all we can say is that we fail to see where Henry was worth $30 a game to us and another thing where are we going to get the money to pay such a price? And we also fail to see where any pitcher is worth that sum for two hours Saturday afternoon.

"And Winchester is picking out their opponents with great care," says the same paper. Well that is one thing no crowd of fair minded sports can accuse Winchester of doing. We pick the best teams in Massachusetts that can be brought here, and we advise Reading to try a game or so with a few of the teams we have played this season. Our opinion is that they would have as much chance of beating them as a snowball has in hades. When that bunch of misfits that represents Reading went up against a live team they were beaten 22 to 2; even the spectators at the game told them to take the crowd home.

Henry lost his game out at Attleboro Saturday, losing 7 to 2, and he pitched a poor game of ball, giving seven base on balls besides having poor support in the field. He will probably find out later that Winchester had as good a team to play with as the next place.

Reading beat Stoneham 2 to 1. Valentine was offering a few players to us after the first Woburn game. Perry, you better dig out a few for yourselves when Reading can beat you.

Marblehead continues to win. United Shoe were the victims Saturday. We would like nothing better than to play a game with Marblehead, but they are not willing to put up enough guarantee for a team like ours.

Pere Marquette got back in the running. Shepard, a new man, pitched a no hit game against the Page Class.

Pere Marquette will play for the K. of C. championship with the San Salvador Club of New York. The opening game will be on Sept. 2, at Fenway Park and following game Labor Day.

The Converse Rubber Co. of Malden must have some ball team as they have not been beaten this year. Their pitcher, Bemis, got away with a no-hit game Saturday.

Another no-hit game was won from the Queen Quality by Vernon of Southbridge. This Vernon is a great pitcher and formerly played with the Chicago Cubs.

We expect to play a game for the Winchester Hospital about the middle of September and if proper ar-

Oh "Pop" here's your P. C. $75. Your welcome don't mention it.

Just a word about the two catchers. McQuinn is not supposed to be in the same class with Meehan, according to Woburn, but give us McQuinn for a good hard working player every time. We stole three bases to Woburn's one. How do you account for it? Oh they surely love Winchester in the surrounding towns.

FOREST A. C. 4—ALBANY 3.

Last Saturday afternoon we had the use of Manchester Field and had a pretty good team to play against. In fact we were lucky to pull out a win for although we out batted and out pitched them, they were a fast bunch of fielders as their pulling of three double plays showed, and altogether they put up a nice game.

Just Happened.

Hatch came through with a nice two bagger in the first, scoring Loftus. In the fifth he drove in another run with a clean single. "Bemis" and Hatch are hitting for about 500. Loftus put up a fine game at short getting 4 put outs. Lawson in winding up for a pitch let the ball slip out of his hand and Sullivan who was at bat took first on the balk(?) We played rather a "sloppy" game, but the win counts. 7 won, 1 lost. That's a pretty good record.

WINCHESTER'S CELEBRATION.

Editor of the Star:

Dear Mr. Editor:—Returning from a little vacation, I was interested in reading in your issue of Aug. 4th, the efforts being made towards a public celebration of "Winchester's Public Improvements" as outlined in your paper of that date.

I hope no one is more aware of the improvements we have made than myself, and am sure no one appreciates them more highly. As a taxpayer I have contributed my portion with as little criticism, as any and paid my part as cheerfully. I hope as promptly. But to my mind this effort is the most open to criticism of anything that has come under my observation. Had I been home and had knowledge of a meeting to this end reached me you may rest assured I would have been in attendance, as I will be, if future meetings are held and it is known in advance.

The tax rate of Winchester is said to be this year, $18.40, the highest in the history of the town I am told, certainly the highest during my residence here of ten years so far as I remember. This rate is necessary to pay our bills and maintain our credit, and continue the work in way of improvements, and proper conduct of the town, no good citizen objects or will to that end. But to ask the people of the town to come forward, and assist in raising a fund of $1500.00 to glorify the highest tax rate we ever had, and the expenditure of the money we have spent, whether wise or not in all cases, is a joke and a foolish one in the opinion of many.

I have so far failed to find one man who is a taxpayer who does not oppose this movement. If we were out of debt and wanted a jollification to celebrate the fact, there would be no objection from anyone, but to solicit money to the end intended, is very poor business judgment.

Where did you ever hear of a business man who finding it was going to cost him more money to conduct his business the ensuing year than ever asking his creditors to chip in and help him celebrate the fact?

There are signs ahead that we may be called on to appropriate money to maintain some of the improvements we have, at least to make it possible to enjoy them, we had better save our money for that, than to spend it in the manner as outlined in the proposed plan.

There may be some politics in this movement that justify it in the opinion of some, but if the attendance at the second meeting was as your paper states, only twenty-five, it will dawn upon the promoters I hope, that there is not much interest in this movement, that can not be endorsed, morally, and certainly not financially.

Sincerely yours,
Chas. F. Maxwell.

sumptions that anarchy, not law, reigns in the republic. They undertake to obtain by force the protection of rights, property and personal, which is guaranteed and assured by orderly and legal and peaceable processes.

The interstate railroads and the traction companies are properly granted the fullest possible freedom in the conduct of their business. It lies with them whether their business shall be conducted with a profit or at a loss. It is conceded that they know their business best. Their employees enjoy equal freedom. They can work for the public service at the wage scales prevailing or they need not. They can demand increase as surely as the corporation may grant or refuse them. Both the companies and the employees are at perfect liberty to agree or to disagree among themselves. The public stands off as the disinterested third party, extending or withholding its sympathy to or from one side or the other, as the case may be. It is invariably on the side of fair play. It is strong for the square deal. Eventually, its moral pressure on one side or the other will compel justice. But it does not concede that either side, or the both sides, pending a settlement on an equitable basis, can ignore or neglect a primary obligation, that of rendering it the service to which it is entitled.

That the public service corporations have rights that should be recognized and respected cannot be too often reiterated or emphasized. The same is true of the rights of public service corporation employees. But neither should forget and neither should be permitted to forget, that the public service must go on while it is settling its disputes. There should be no interruption of the business of the carrying companies of the United States in the future, even if the whole power of the government of the United States must be employed to keep it going. A better way can be found, and should be found, for settling labor controversies than that of throwing the nation or any of its communities into uproar and confusion.—[Christian Science Monitor.

CANNING BEETS AND PINE-APPLES.

Recipes from Summer Course at Framingham Normal School for Canning Club Work.

Written by Miss Gertrude Lingham.

Beets may be canned at this season for winter use. Those stored for later consumption are more expensive, larger, fibrous and lose flavor. Instead of the long cooking of winter beets for one serving, there may be prepared at one time enough of these tender, well-flavored, new beets for many meals.

Canning Beets

1. Examine and wash jars and covers thoroughly.
2. Sterilize jars and covers, boiling old jars 20 minutes, or new jars 5 minutes, and scald rubbers by pouring boiling water over them and draining.
3. Cut off tops 2 inches from beets.
4. Wash beets, using vegetable brush.

HELL IN TEXAS.

By the Author of "Texas A Paradise"

The Devil in hell we're told was chained,
And a thousand years he there remained.

He neither complained nor did he groan,
But determined to start a hell of his own.

Where he could torment the souls of men
Without being chained in a prison pen.

So he asked the Lord if he had on hand Anything left when he made this land.

The Lord said, "Yes, I had plenty on hand,
But I left it down on the Rio Grande;

The fact is, 'old boy,' the stuff is so poor,
I don't think you can use it in hell any more."

But the Devil went down to look at the truck,
And said if he took it as a gift he was stuck.

For after examining it carefully and well,
He concluded the place was too dry for a hell.

So in order to get it off His hand,
The Lord promised the Devil to water the land.

For he had some water, or rather some dregs,
A regular cathartic and smelled like bad eggs.

Hence the trade was closed, the deed was given,
And the Lord went back to His home in Heaven.

The Devil said to himself, "I have all that is needed
To make a good hell," and hence he succeeded.

He began by putting thorns all over the trees,
And mixed up the sand with millions of fleas;

He scattered tarantulas along the roads,
Put thorns on cactus, and horns on the toads.

He lengthened the horns of the Texas steers,
And put an addition to the rabbits' ears;

He put a little devil in the broncho steed,
And poisoned the feet of the centipede.

The rattlesnake bites you, the scorpion stings,
The mosquito delights you with his buzzing wings;

The sand-burs prevail, and so do the ants,
And those who sit down need half-soles on their pants.

The Devil then said that through-out the land
He'd arrange to keep up the Devil's own brand.

And all should be Mavericks unless they bore
Marks or scratches, of bites and thorns by the score.

The heat in the summer is one hundred and ten,
Too hot for the Devil and too hot for men;

The wild bear roams through the black chaparral;
'Tis a hell of a place that he has for a hell.

To Give Children Powders.

A successful method of giving children powders is to cut open a small piece of chocolate cream, insert the powder, and close the chocolate again.

This is one of the easiest ways in inducing a child to take powder, and less sickening than the usual spoonful of jam.

Safety First.

Chicken Most Desired.

No amount of sentiment will make the first robin as welcome as the first spring chicken.

"Busy" or "Don't Answer?"

WHEN THE OPERATOR REPORTS THAT "THE LINE IS BUSY," it is because she has taken the time to test the line called for. It would be easier for her to complete the connection than to make such a report. If the operator did not test on every call, she might plug in on a busy line.

Furthermore, "Busy" means that the line (not necessarily the telephone number you have called) is in use. The subscriber on a four-party line may not be talking, but one of the three other subscribers may be, making the entire line closed to traffic, or some one of the party subscribers may have put in a toll call and the line is being held awaiting its completion. Lengthy conversations on unimportant matters often congest party lines and give cause for protests from other subscribers in common.

WHEN THE OPERATOR REPORTS "THEY DON'T ANSWER," she has done all within her means to compel an answer to her summons. That summoning power is the ringing of a bell, a mechanical signal which says, "Someone desires to speak to you." It remains with the person called to be prompt in responding.

If a subscriber is slow in responding, the calling person may hang up the receiver, assuming that the former is inaccessible. Then there is an additional inconvenience to the called person when the operator reports, "There is no one on the line now, please excuse it." The operator who makes that report usually is located at a different switchboard than the operator who rang the bell, and is unable to ascertain where the call originated.

GENERAL WORKERS PROFIT.

Two million dollars was the gift made by Swift & Company to their employees recently. Announcement of the accumulation of this sum during the past six years in the form of a pension fund occasioned much gratification to workers in the plants and branch houses in all cities where it was made simultaneously. It is estimated that more than 30,000 men and women are eligible, in time, to come under the provisions of the fund.

One of the striking features of the plan as outlined is that the employees do not contribute to the fund, the company furnishing absolutely all money needed to pay pensions. In this connection it is expected that Swift & Company will be called upon to pay $400,000 a year in addition to the income from the fund, in order to meet the demands.

In Chicago alone 8,000 persons will come under the plan as outlined. Of these a number are already eligible and their cases will be passed upon by the board of pension trustees within a comparatively short time.

The pension board as organized will consist of five members who are officers or employees of Swift & Company. They are to be appointed annually by the board of directors to serve one year or until a successor is named. The board will elect a chairman and secretary. The treasurer of the company is ex-officio treasurer of the fund.

"Swift & Company have had a pension plan under consideration for over six years and during that time have accumulated for the purpose a fund of two million dollars," said Louis F. Swift, president of the company. "In that time we have studied dozens of pension plans in effect in other organizations, both contributory and non-contributory and we believe that we have selected the best points of these and have added a number of good features that are distinctive. We have made it possible for every man and woman in our employ to provide for his or her old age simply by giving efficient work and continuous service. It has been the aim of Swift & Company to tie its employees to itself in many ways. We have worked to that end for years because we believe that our employees become more valuable to us with every year of their continued service. The pension plan is our scheme for rewarding this faithful service."

The salient points of the plan as outlined in the formal announcement to employees follow:

1. The employees do not contribute to the fund.
2. Income from the $2,000,000 foundation fund is to be supplemented annually by Swift & Company until the fund is large enough to meet the necessary demands.
3. More than 30,000 employees to benefit by the announcement.
4. Men in the employ of the company twenty-five years, who have reached the age of sixty may be pensioned.
5. Men in the employ of the company twenty-five years and who have reached the age of sixty-five shall be pensioned.
6. Women in service twenty-five years, who have reached the age of fifty may be pensioned.
7. Women in service twenty-five years, who have reached the age of fifty-five shall be pensioned.
8. Employees in service fifteen years and up to twenty-five years, who are permanently incapacitated for work may be pensioned.
9. Pension of those retired an account of age and length of service, or if incapacitated after a service of twenty-five years, but prior to the age of retirement, shall be one-half of the average salary for the five years preceding retirement.
10. Pension of those retiring on account of incapacity after from fifteen to twenty-five years of service shall be computed on a basis of 1-1/2 per cent. of the average salary for the five year period preceding retirement, for each year of continuous service.
11. No pension shall be less than $240 per year.
12. No pension shall be in excess of $5,000 per year.
13. The widow and children of an eligible employee shall receive one-half of the pension to which an employee shall be entitled at the time of his death.

In their efforts to work out a plan which would be fair to all employees, the company have allowed employees, who were working for other concerns absorbed by Swift & Company in the past, credit for the full length of their services with those concerns prior to their absorption.

SUGGESTIONS ON PURCHAS- ING.

The State Commissioner of Weights and Measures makes the following suggestions:

"When purchasing fruit or vegetables from a hawk or peddler you should see that he uses a scale instead of a measure in making the sale, also observing the number of his license so that he may be easily traced in case of complaint."

There are articles of marking of food packages, definition of the term "food," comparison of foods in bulk and package form.

Under the head of "Massachusetts' principal industry—housekeeping," Mr. Hanson says: "If you are engaged in this industry you should—"

"Trade with dealers who have accurate and sealed weighing and measuring devices."

"Check up all goods received, to ascertain if full quantity has been delivered."

"Purchase package goods, which are legibly marked on the outside of the package with the net quantity which it contains."

"See that your milk and cream bottles are filled to the cap, or stopper."

"The coal dealer is required by law to deliver to you a sworn statement as to the weight delivered. See that you receive such a certificate."

"In purchasing ice be careful to ask for a certain weight of ice, viz: 50 pounds, 75 pounds, 100 pounds, and do not be content to accept 10-cent, 20-cent, 30-cent pieces."

"In purchasing meats request that all 'trimmings' be included with purchase; otherwise a correct check of goods cannot be made."

"In purchasing turkey, chicken, etc., do not accept the weight as sometimes already marked on the same, but insist that the commodity be reweighed in your presence."

He also advises the housekeeper to keep a good scale of 10 to 20 pounds capacity in the kitchen and the use of it in checking up all weights of commodities delivered. He also advises to have on hand an accurate peck measure, a dry quart, a liquid quart, a 60-inch steel tape, an 8-ounce graduate.

Red Blood And Blue

Being the Sad Tale of How a Family Tree Was Blasted.

By HARRY KING TOOTLE

Copyright by Frank A. Munsey Co.

When she heard the news Mrs. Tower was in the seventh heaven of bliss, in which empyrean state, however, she was somewhat agitated because of her knowledge of the Tower unworthiness. To be sure, Rosemary was a charming girl, had had every advantage and was at home in the best society. Yet Rosemary's mamma could not forget one thing—the Tower blood was red, and the Van Artevaede blood was blue.

With old Peter Tower the case was different. He owed his millions to his red corpuscles, and if Rosemary married a man that was all he asked. He had never seen Addison Van Artevaede, but the prospective son-in-law's name was against him.

After a fashion Rosemary's letter was reassuring. She was too much his daughter to make a really vital mistake in so important a matter, but there was room for doubt.

She had written:

Dear Papa and Mamma—I'm wildly, foolishly happy. You have always told me you could trust me to choose for myself. I know you will be happy in my happiness. I am going to marry Addison Van Artevaede. You, mamma, have met him. I know you can tell papa all the good things about him. He's simply splendid. Having spent all his money, he works for his living. He is one of the Westchester county Van Artevaedes. They have been prominent in New York since the days of New Amsterdam. We want to be married in the spring. Say that you are happy, too, and the happiest girl in the world will be your devoted daughter. ROSEMARY.

"You see, father, he works for his living."

Mrs. Tower was quick to pick out what would be his chief recommendation in the eyes of her husband.

"Yes; it's that or starve. You notice she says he's spent all his money."

MR. BELMORE DISPLAYED THE TOWER AND SMITH ANCESTORS.

Now I suppose he wants to spend mine."

"And why shouldn't he, pray?" Mrs. Tower raised her eyebrows in surprise. "Rosemary's our child. You surely are not going to be one of those unwise parents who rear their daughters in luxury and then cut off their allowance because they marry poor men?"

"Now, mother!"

"Besides, he's a Van Artevaede. He has the bluest blood in this country. And what have we?"

Tower began to take fright. His wife was giving indications of turning on the tears. The thought of their red blood always made her hysterical.

"What have we? I say. Nothing but money. What's money? It doesn't get the real things of life."

"I'll bet it's got us a son-in-law."

Peter Tower was a self-made man who could be well described as long suffering and kind. Mrs. Tower, to whose aggressiveness he owed no small part of his success, was a pusher and a manager. In the old days, days so long ago that they made her shudder to think of them, she had managed the ice cream socials of the church.

Then she had managed the town's charity bazaar.

When properly pressed acented time works wonders. Even before she reached the purple velvet era which engulfs all portly dowagers Mrs. Tower was a member of society.

Having arrived, one would imagine that the lady's cup of happiness was full to overflowing. It was not. One thing was lacking. The Towers had no ancestors.

Immediately on receiving the tidings of great joy from her daughter, the news of the coming alliance with the house of Van Artevaede, Mrs. Tower took down her well thumbed volume of "First Families of America."

Six pages, an almost unprecedented allowance, were devoted to the Van Artevaede family, root and branch. There was a wood cut of old Jan Van Artevaede, who helped buy Manhattan Island. Two descendants were honored with steel engravings.

The future son-in-law himself, Addison Van Artevaede, was mentioned. His mother was a Miss Addison. Pride of blood could ask no more.

To marry at one fell swoop into six solid pages of "First Families of America," to say nothing of the pages devoted to the Addisons, was glory and honor beyond all whooping.

The passing of the weeks which followed Rosemary's letter to her parents announcing her engagement did not serve to decrease the perturbation of her mother.

The more she thought of the ultra-marine blood of Addison Van Artevaede the more brilliant appeared her own egg-lain corpuscles. She gazed about the walls of her roocco mansion and beheld expensive examples of modern art and one alleged old master, but nowhere did there gaze down upon her a family portrait by Sir Joshua Reynolds, Peale, Gilbert Stuart or Benjamin West.

In imagination Mrs. Tower wandered through the stately galleries of the Van Artevaedes and saw upon their walls portraits which stared down upon her stonily because she could not point to Tower pictures of an equal worth.

She felt keenly the humiliation of their scornful looks. She would give anything to be on an equal pictorial footing with her future son-in-law. But what was there to do?

When the grand idea came to her one might well believe that it struck her amidstships with great violence.

Down she clumped into a Louis Quize chair, almost shattering that frail piece of furniture; grew red in the face, gasped for breath and, notwithstanding her delight, mentally consigned her mind to a torrid climate for having faced all but a few cubic inches of breath out of her.

But she had laid violent hands upon an idea which was well worth a near stroke of apoplexy.

It was this: The Tower money would be sent into the markets of the world to buy creditable and creditable portraits in oil of Tower and Smith—ancestors.

That was the idea, an idea worthy of the progressive wife of Peter Tower. The money would not be poured into pictorial channels in such streams as to bull the market. That was not the Tower way.

It would be sent forth covertly through alien hands. But, presto, when the coup was accomplished the barren Tower walls would blossom with the fairest flowers!

The lady's only regret was that this was one case where she could not call in the reporters and give them the details with the usual Tower plenitude and embellishments.

Plans for the wedding progressed and with them progressed Mrs. Tower's plans regarding the ancestral portraits. An estate in Westchester county had been purchased by Peter Tower at his wife's solicitation and presented to Rosemary.

Wishing to have as brilliant a wedding socially as possible, Mrs. Tower ruthlessly killed a fictitious distant relative, closed her western mansion because she was in mourning and transferred her activities to New York.

Being in mourning meant that Rosemary was to be married quietly at a fashionable New York hostelry. The real significance of this was that the western hot pollot received announcement cards, and the guests were limited to Addison Van Artevaede's own caste.

There had been another reason for this move. Mrs. Tower had decided to dower Rosemary with the new ancestors. To have placed the portraits in her own residence would have advertised their falseness to those who knew the Tower antecedents.

To hang them on the walls of her daughter's new home would only invite admiration and awe on the part of her daughter's husband and friends and relatives.

Several weeks before the wedding Mrs. Tower had an interview with a confidential agent who had learned somehow or other that she was in the market for colonial portraits.

He was a dapper young chap, with a sympathetic and intuitive understanding. He had the politeness of a Frenchman, the artistic temperament of an Italian and the hustle of an American.

His calling card was graced with the name of Sartoris Belmore. In those circles wherein he indulged in the vulgar game of pinocchio he signed to his checks the unromantic name of Isadore Felsilver.

"You understand now, Mr. Belmore?" came in rich, fluty tones from the masked throat of Mrs. Tower.

"Madam has been as explicit as only she can be," Mr. Sartoris Belmore bowed with the grace of a dancing master. "Your husband's fad is the collecting of early American portraits. You wish to surprise him on his birthday by augmenting his collection. It shall be as you wish."

One might think that Mr. Sartoris Belmore was ignorant of the purpose to which the pictures were to be put. He was not.

Such commissions came to him as a matter of course because it was known that he was in touch with most of the possible sources of genuine supply. Many were the reasons given him for desiring these portraits, but never the real one.

Mr. Belmore, however, preferred that they should not tell the truth, because where the customer thought the agent was being kept in the dark he did not quibble about the price.

In a private gallery Mr. Belmore displayed the Tower and Smith ancestors for Mrs. Tower's inspection a few days before Rosemary was married. There were fifteen of them, aristocratic ladies and gentlemen from colonial days through the first decades of the republic.

There was also a real Reynolds to serve as an English ancestor. The lady promptly labeled the Reynolds as one of her own family, but in the main she gave the Tower side of the house a fair run for its money.

The ancestors were parceled out one by one—a man for the Towers, then a man for the Smiths; a woman for the Towers, then a woman for the Smiths.

"I SOLD THEM TO OLD MAN TOWER FOR $30,000."

Naming them was necessary. Mrs. Tower began with the Reynolds, which had fallen to her family. The stately gentleman immortalized by the brush of the great artist became Baron Smith De Wyntercombe of Wyntercombe Hall, Kent.

For her daughter's sake she was careful to allow the Tower side of the house an almost equal family distinction. A Peale portrait became a certain Colonel Melbury Tower, who was present, according to his great-grandson's wife, at the surrender of Cornwallis.

Having accomplished his work with his customary tact and discretion, Mr. Sartoris Belmore was rewarded with a check which would have bought half a dozen fine farms in the county where Mrs. Tower originally lived and moved and had her being.

The agent protested that he had been forced to pay such high prices for the portraits that there was absolutely no profit in it for him—absolutely none. Having delivered the goods, Mr. Belmore dropped out of Mrs. Tower's life.

Soon after the portraits had been delivered to their new owner Rosemary and Addison Van Artevaede were married. The wedding was as smart an affair as Mrs. Tower herself could wish.

It took a squad of policemen to keep the avenue cleared, and Rosemary's picture was in every paper.

The bride and groom departed for Palm Beach to enjoy the last days of the season, and Mrs. Tower spent her time at the new country place, picking out the proper spots for the ancestral portraits to hang.

As soon as Mr. and Mrs. Van Artevaede returned, at the instigation of Mrs. Tower it was decided to give a week end party to the Van Artevaede kin.

"I'll show them who we are," was the dowager's grim comment to herself. "They may have come over in the Mayflower or the Half Moon, but my ancestors came over too. They're not Indians. And look at those ancestors! Any one could be proud of them."

As she thought this she glanced admiringly at the portraits which she had adopted with such enthusiasm.

Among the first to arrive for the week end was dashing Kitty Roessingstadt, wife of the German ambassador at a European court.

She was a proud woman and was not certain that she liked Rosemary. As for Mrs. Tower, she had been quite snippy to her. All this because she was Addison's cousin and a Van Artevaede.

Mrs. Tower happened to be in the state dining room when Kitty greeted her cousin in the library. In that awe inspiring room, he it said, hung the more imposing of the ancestors supplied by Mr. Sartoris Belmore.

Of course Rosemary's mamma did not mean to listen, but she could not help hearing what was said.

"Hello, Kitty?"

"My dear Addison, how are you?"

"Fine, thanks. How'd you like the place?"

"Not as gaudy as I thought it would be. The pictures help out, don't they?" Mrs. Tower felt herself bursting with pride as she heard this remark, passing over scornfully the allusion to possible gaudiness.

"Yes, they are a fine lot of old portraits."

"I'm glad they're here. You don't know how indignant I was when brother wrote me that you had sold them."

Mrs. Tower did not understand.

"Oh, I sold them, all right," replied Van Artevaede carelessly, "but I sold them to old man Tower for $30,000."

How Mrs. Tower got upstairs she did not know.

Her maid found her having one of her semi-apoplectic fits. And with the passing of the fit passed stout old Baron Smith De Wyntercombe of Wyntercombe Hall, Kent, as well as a certain Colonel Melbury Tower who had been present at the surrender of Cornwallis.

As if it had been done by a cyclone the Tower family tree was thus destroyed, root and branch.

NEWSY PARAGRAPHS.

The heat during the first part of this week was probably the worst thus far this summer. Monday and Tuesday were scorers, with not only very high temperature, but great humidity as well. A heavy thunder shower brought a little relief on Tuesday afternoon, but the humidity remained to keep things sticky. Although Winchester apparently got out the outside edge of the shower, it was very severe, the great cloud of dust preceding it, combined with the heavy black clouds, darkening the day to such an extent that lights were necessary all over town. Places just to the north suffered severely from the shower, which assumed the shape of a tornado at times.

IMPROVEMENT CELEBRATION

The Date Has Been Changed to Sept. 9th.

There was a meeting of the chairman and members of the various sub-committees in the General Committee room at the Town Hall last Friday evening to talk over the final arrangements for the celebration of Winchester's achievements during the past three years.

It was decided to change the date for holding the celebration from Saturday, September 2nd, to Saturday, September 9th. This was because the celebration is now of so wide interest that it was thought best to have it take place when all the people had arrived home from their vacations and thus give all an opportunity to participate. It was voted to engage the Salem Cadet Band and also contract for the display of fireworks.

The matter of illuminations was discussed at length and is still open and the various forms it might take will be further considered. The scope of the illuminations will include the river from Wedgemere to Waterfield road, the mill pond and Black Ball pond across the new street and around its shores to Mt. Vernon street. Electric lights were considered, but this was found to be prohibitive on account of the expense. It will be either varied colored Chinese lanterns or colored torches which will burn for fifteen minutes and be replaced when they burn out. On Black Ball pond these lights would be kept burning for an hour, at the other places they would be kept lighted during the evening. The two new bridges on Main street and Waterfield road are to be specially illuminated.

The dedication of the new playground at the Highlands is in the hands of a committee of citizens in that section of the town who are busily arranging the sports. Here there will be a game of base ball by the Forest A. C. team and some nine from out of town, sports for the children, both boys and girls, with prizes for the different events. There is a prospect that troops of Boy Scouts will give a demonstration similar to that given some weeks ago at the Harvard Stadium. Also in the early evening a parade from the playground over the new street across the pond to Manchester Field, headed by the band.

The decorated and illuminated canoe parade on the Aberjona river from Wedgemere to Waterfield road bridge is being looked after by Mr. Charles S. Tenney, president of the Winchester Boat Club. It is also expected that the Medford Club will participate. It was decided not to have motion pictures for the reason that they would be hardly able to fit into the already crowded program. The committee on automobile parade, reported satisfactory progress.

It was nearly eleven o'clock when the busy meeting adjourned.

It has been suggested that the town team and the F. A. C. nine play at the Highland playground in the afternoon at the dedication of the field.

21st BIRTHDAY.

Mr. John H. Noonan, son of Mr. and Mrs. James H. Noonan of Pickering street, observed his 21st birthday at his home on Monday, the event being made a celebration by the visitation of many friends and relatives. Not only were many from Winchester present, but Woburn, Cambridge, Arlington and Boston were represented also.

Mr. Noonan was the recipient of many gifts, his parents presenting him with a fine signet ring. An interesting feature of the day was the reading of the article published in the STAR of the announcement of Mr. Noonan's birth 21 years previous. At that time Mr. James H. Noonan was a member of the Winchester Fire Department and his friends took the occasion of the first addition to his family to contribute an article containing much to interest the young man just entering his manhood.

The article was as follows:

"Engineer J. H. Noonan of the steamer was called out in response to an alarm sent out from his home on Tuesday morning at one o'clock. There was no fire. The house had been entered by a stranger whose visit had for some time been suspected, and on Mr. Noonan's arrival it was found he had captured his house and all its inmates. The cause of all the commotion was a son and heir, who weighed not far from ten pounds.

AUTO BURNED.

A telephone message called the auto chemical to Myopia Hill Tuesday afternoon for a fire in the automobile owned by Charles S. Tenney of Calumet road. The car was in charge of the chauffeur and was standing in front of the residence of Albert P. Smith, it catching fire when the chauffeur started it.

The car was badly burned, all the wiring, a tire and the finish being ruined. It is thought that it was caused by a flooded carburetor. The fire was extinguished by hand chemicals.

ST. MARY'S VS. FOREST A. C.

Next Saturday, Aug. 19th, the Highland team will have for opponents the St. Mary's Club from Roxbury and as this team has been playing good ball all the season the game with the Forest A. C. should be a warm one. Don't forget the home team has won 8 games and lost only 1 this season.

CHINAMAN BLACKMAILED.

Forced to Give up Laundry Business by Threat of Death.

According to reports Winchester has been the scene of a most thorough and successful blackmailing during the past ten days, whereby a Chinese laundryman who has been doing a thriving business was forced by the proprietor of a rival laundry to leave town under threat of death.

The story as near as it can be threaded together from the fragments let fall by the two laundrymen is as follows: Harry Wong came to Winchester and opened a laundry in the building at the railroad crossing, formerly known as the Winchester Spa. He gradually worked up a good business. The older Chinese laundry situated in the Lyceum Building felt the loss in trade and its proprietor appealed to the Tong, or some secret society of which he is a member, with the result that Wong received notice to shut up his shop and leave town.

According to Wong there was nothing to do but comply with the demand. Although Chief McIntosh promised him that he would give him protection, it did not allay his fears of death. He felt that while he might be fairly safe in Winchester, he would be in imminent danger of having a knife slipped between his ribs if he visited Boston.

The result was that on Tuesday Wong departed from his shop and a new Chinaman took charge, said to be a man in the employ of the old laundry, which will continue the stand until the present good business falls off or it is determined to run both places.

Stories of the affair are many and varied, but it seems fairly certain that the old laundry is now in sole possession of the field. One report was to the effect that Wong could have $200 if he desired to ease the pain of his departure, and another says that he was obliged to go off leaving $15 worth of finished work to the advantage of the other shop. At any rate the transaction appeared to be prompt and thorough, and no persuasion on the part of the police could induce Wong to remain and defend his rights.

Former patrons of the Wong Laundry are indignant over the matter and are active in instituting a boycott on the remaining Celestial.

DROWNED AT MYSTIC.

Doris F. Lee, 20 years of age, daughter of Mrs. Sarah Lee of 158 Jerome street, West Medford, was drowned in Mystic Lake yesterday afternoon. Although Metropolitan Park officer James B. Ellis swam to the young woman's aid, all attempts at resuscitation failed when her body was brought ashore. It is thought that she underestimated the depth of the water while in bathing.

BASE BALL.

Queen Quality Hits Tift Hard and Wins from the Home Team.

By "Mack"

It did not take the Queen Quality team very long to demonstrate to the crowd on Manchester Field, its ability to hit the ball. In the very first inning they started after Tift and never let up until the 9th. They had men on bases in every inning, and the score should have been larger only poor judgment on the bases lost the team runs. We tied up the game in the 5th only to lose the lead again in the next inning. We had all sorts of chances to win the game, but the hit was not forthcoming to do the work.

There is no question about the strength of Queen Quality. It has the greatest reputation among all the semi-pro teams in the State, and we did very well to hold them to a 5-3 score. We had a chance in the 9th to either tie or win the game, but dumb baseball by "Buddy" Ryan spoiled whatever chance we had; with two on the bases he hit into a double play, and stopped what looked like a rally on the part of the home team. Murray, the Queen Quality pitcher, was not very hard to solve and the players were hitting him all the afternoon. It is the first win he has ever put over on Winchester, and he has made four attempts. Hagan and Drummond were the heavy hitters for Queen Quality, while McQuinn did the most damage off Murray with his two bagger to left center.

Our players are beginning to get their batting eyes and it looks like trouble for some of the opposing pitchers. At the same time we have got to hold the opposing side to fewer hits than what they have been getting in the last few games. Tift has been hit for 30 hits in the last 3 games he pitched; but our players had their batting clothes on and held up their end or there would have been another story to tell as regards the results of the game. We should not lose 1 game in 6, on our own ground with consistent batting and pitching; of course we do not expect the players to hit the ball all over the lot in every game, and that is where good pitching is going to come in; and if we cannot get a pitcher to hold the opposing team to less than an average of 10 hits per game, we are going to lose more

AUTO STRUCK DUMP CART.

A touring car owned and driven by J. E. Woodside of Billerica ran into the rear end of a dump cart owned by Thomas Quigley, Jr., last Saturday afternoon on Bacon street. The bumper rail on the front of the auto, one lamp and the radiator were damaged.

According to report the accident was caused when the auto attempted to pass another car standing in the street, it meeting the dump cart travelling just ahead and an approaching car at the same time, the driver choosing to run into the rear of the dump cart rather than the approaching auto. None of the occupants of the auto were injured.

The damaged car was taken to the Mystic Valley Garage for repairs.

ENOCH G. GOODWIN.

Enoch Granville Goodwin, aged 78 years, died at the home of his niece, Mrs. Amasa Harrington, 9 Sanborn street, on Tuesday. He had made his home in Winchester for the past five years. He was a native of Boston, his parents being Enoch and Sarah (Holland) Goodwin, and for many years, until his retirement from business, he was connected with the insurance firm of W. H. Brewster & Co. of that city.

The funeral services were held from the Harrington residence yesterday afternoon at three o'clock, being conducted by Rev. John O. Paisley, a retired Congregational minister of Melrose. The remains were taken to Portland, Me., where services will be held this afternoon at two at Evergreen Cemetery Chapel previous to interment.

WITMER-BRADLEY.

Announcements were received this week by Winchester friends of the wedding at Pasadena, Cal., of Mr. William Sullivan Witmer, son of Mrs. Josephine S. Witmer, and Miss Esther Waldron Bradley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Kinsey Bradley. The ceremony took place on Thursday, August tenth. Mr. Witmer and his mother have many friends in Winchester, having resided here on Church street for a number of years.

WINCHESTER'S CELEBRATION.

To be Highly Commended and is Creditable to the Town.

Editor of the Star:

The communication in last week's STAR under this heading gave numerous readers something of a shock by a number of its assertions, such as the statement that the affair is "to glorify the highest tax rate we ever had," that "there may be some politics in the movement," and others of a similar character.

Slightly modifying one of Mr. Maxwell's phrases, it might not be entirely out of place if one feature of the celebration were so arranged as "to glorify the tax rate," which, though higher than ever before, is still well below what our neighbors have to pay; and most persons will probably agree that Winchester with its lower rate is quite as attractive a place to live in as are these other communities with their higher rates.

But the tax rate element is not the motive concerned. Winchester has just cause to be proud of the long strides taken during the past few years in the way of immediate improvements and future development. The trouble with many of us is that we live intensely in the present; we fail to take the broad view and the long look ahead; and consequently we are thoughtless, carelessly thoughtless, of the interests of our successors.

To take a single illustration: the time is coming, and in the not too distant future either, when, through progress in transportation facilities, Winchester will be as accessible to Boston as Harvard square is today. Whenever that time does come, the inhabitants of those days will be inexpressibly grateful to us if, so far as is humanly possible, we shall have protected against avoidable congestion. To this end it is not at all probable that the town can go too far in providing open spaces. In this connection, to cite a single example, it strikes me that the purchase of the Whitney property was one of the wisest moves Winchester ever made. The original cost and subsequent expenditures may in the end total $300,000 or more; but it will be money well invested, and will, directly and indirectly, bring back a return many fold to the town.

It is unnecessary to repeat the list of recent improvements, already mentioned in previous issues of the STAR; but it may not be out of place to call attention to the fact that these enterprises are not of merely sectional interest and value; they affect the town as a whole, because the interests of the town are a unit; whether it is the playground at the north, or the bridges at the center, or the Church street building lines farther south, the whole town benefits and not simply the immediate vicinity.

The celebration is highly to be commended; it is a credit to those who had the genius to conceive it and the enterprise to carry it through; and one may hope that the progress of recent years is the beginning, but only the beginning, of plans which will contribute to the health and comfort and enjoyment of Winchester and its inhabitants for all time.

Charles F. A. Currier.
Winchester, August 15, 1916.

MR. VOLPE WITHDRAWS.

Editor of the Star:

Dear Sir:—I wish you would announce through your columns that after careful consideration I have decided not to enter the contest for nomination as Representative of the 25th District consisting of Ward 3 of Medford, and the Town of Winchester.

I have endorsed Mr. George B. Hayward one of the Winchester candidates, and would respectfully recommend to those who have supported me in the past, to turn their support to Mr. Hayward as I feel he is the logical candidate for the position. It is my opinion that his selection will be advantageous to Ward 3 where his property interests are very large.

Yours very truly,
F. G. Volpe.

MR. FRED V. WOOSTER ILL.

Mr. Fred V. Wooster, Chairman of the Board of Assessors, is under observation at the Peter Bent Brigham Hospital, Boston, for troubles with his stomach, from which he has been a great sufferer. He went there last Friday and is now resting much easier, and the doctors say that an operation may not be necessary. Before going there food caused severe pain, but the latest report is that this has abated considerably and the doctors are much encouraged.

The same brokers have also sold for Mrs. Sarah M. Marion her property No. 9 Francis circuit comprising frame dwelling of 8 rooms, bath, garage and about 6338 square feet land. The purchaser is Mrs. Katherine E. Donnelly of Winchester who will occupy premises about Sept. 1st.

BASE BALL TOMORROW.

We have the Arlington Town team here as an attraction tomorrow. We have met them twice this season and have been beaten in both games. The "breaks" in both games seemed to go against us. While we are willing to concede that Arlington has got a good team we do not think that they are any better than our own, and Saturday's game will decide whether we are right or not.

In the pitcher's box is Wright, who has beaten us three times this year. But we think we are going to get even with him this time. What he has got in the way of pitching "stuff" is a mystery to all teams that face him, but he seems to get away with it and as victories are what count, that is all Arlington cares for. Manager LeDue is thinking of making several changes in his lineup with an idea of getting more batting power and also defensive strength. Of course in the last few games the boys have been hitting in a way that should satisfy the most rabid fan, and it looks to the writer as if they had found their lost batting eyes. We are out to win from Arlington, and if a strong team and good pitching will do it, we will have the goods. Get down early as there will be a large crowd from Arlington on hand. They think their team over there is unbeatable. Winchester fans take notice.

THE WINCHESTER HOSPITAL.

Work on the new Winchester Hospital is progressing very satisfactorily, and it will be ready for occupancy in the early spring. The building is being roofed in and the brick walls are completed. The home for the nurses is nearly completed and the work of grading in front of the building has been commenced.

The splendid and commanding site for the building is now becoming more apparent, and when the work is completed, including the grading, it will be one of the show places of Winchester.

Among recent contributions received for the hospital were gifts of $5000 from Mr. Lewis Parkhurst, $5000 from Mr. Preston Pond and $4500 from Mr. George E. Henry, who also had previously contributed $500.

VACATION SCHOOL.
Notice the Attention of the Children While Mrs. Powers is telling Stories.

The above picture illustrates the absorbing interest which the children of the Vacation School this summer have shown in the story telling of Mrs. Margaret Powers. This new feature has been so successfully tried out that one wishes it were possible for more Winchester children to enjoy the same privilege.

During the past few years Mrs. Powers and her sister, Mrs. Cronan, have been telling stories to children in the Museum of Fine Arts and the Boston Public Library and branches. They believe that the story is one of the best known means of reaching the child to arouse his moral nature and to set him thinking. Their stories are wisely chosen, adapted and well presented. An attempt is made to emphasize the good in such a way as to offset the evil that may come from promiscuous reading. The vital things of life may thus be absorbed unconsciously by the listeners and incorporated in the individual experience.

Mrs. Powers has told stories on Thursday mornings of child heroes and heroines of other lands. Pinocchio has especially interested the Italian children, and Katrinka, the little Russian girl who passes through such wonderful experiences in trying to obtain a pardon for her exiled parents in Siberia has charmed each listener from week to week.

Many children from the Vacation School have gone directly to our Public Library to get the books in which their interest has been stimulated by Mrs. Powers' graphic narrative.

Miss Quimby has been most pleased with these results because the Library has thus been enabled to serve a legitimate need. An intention to read has been created and an interest in good literature has been cultivated during the six weeks' term of the Vacation School.

HOEY-RICHARDSON.

Two well known Winchester young people were quietly wedded on Monday afternoon when Rev. John R. Chaffee, pastor of the First M. E. Church of Dorchester united in marriage Mr. Charles E. Hoey and Miss Mae Richardson. The ceremony was performed at the parsonage at two o'clock. There were no attendants.

The couple are well known and have many friends. Mr. Hoey has for some time been identified with the Knight Pharmacy and Miss Richardson has conducted a successful millinery business in the Lane building.

Upon their return from their wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Hoey will make their home in this town, residing in the new house now nearing completion on Park avenue.

EARLY MORNING FIRE.

The fire department had the liveliest blaze it has encountered for some time early Wednesday morning when it was called to the barn of Daniel J. Daly on River street at Winchester Highlands. The alarm was sounded at quarter of five from the central fire station upon receipt of a telephone message from Mr. Daly.

When the department arrived after a remarkably quick run the whole top of the structure was a mass of flame, a full loft of new hay adding a great quantity of smoke and giving indications that prompt work would be necessary if anything was to be saved. Although handicapped by lack of water pressure at first, the department tackled the fire to such good effect that the all out signal was sounded at 6:45 and the barn was only damaged above the first story. The water pressure is said to have been but 25 pounds, not enough to send a stream to the top of the story and a half structure, although the service is one of the main pipes running to the centre. Considerable hose was used, Hose 3 laying its whole 1,000 feet, and the pump did good work in boosting up the pressure.

The top of the barn was practically burned off, but the lower story was saved, the fire going through the floor in but one place. A sleigh and carryall were also somewhat burned. The cause of the fire is unknown, but was due possibly to spontaneous combustion in the new hay.

HENRY-LITTLE.

A wedding of prominence among the younger social set of Winchester was that of Wednesday evening when Mr. James Everell Henry took for his bride Miss Madeleine Fowler Little. The ceremony was performed in the Church of the Epiphany before a large number of guests, both of this town and surrounding places. Rev. John W. Suter, pastor honorarius of the church, officiated at the service, which was held at eight o'clock.

The bride, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Godfrey Little of Everett avenue, was most becomingly gowned in a wedding dress of princess lace and white satin over georgette crepe, and was attended by her sister-in-law, Mrs. William M. Little, as matron of honor, who wore a dress of turquoise blue taffeta and silver lace with leghorne hat to match.

The bridesmaids were Miss Madeleine F. Andrew of Pawtucket, R. I., and Miss Lillian R. Keith of Brockton. Miss Andrew was gowned in orchid soiree silk with tulle hat to match and Miss Keith wore yellow taffeta trimmed with cream lace, with picture hat of the same materials. Mr. Alfred E. Little, brother of the bride, was best man.

A reception followed the ceremony at the parish house, the young couple receiving with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. George G. Little and Mr. and Mrs. George E. Henry. The ushers, serving at both the ceremony and reception, included Messrs. William M. Little, Dexter Tutein and Chester Tutein.

The church and parish house were charmingly decorated for the occasion, red and white roses mingled with the green of asparagus fern and laurel, forming a most pleasing setting, and during the reception the receiving party stood beneath a canopy of plants and fern. Many friends of the couple from other States attended the wedding, including Mrs. J. E. Andrew of Pawtucket, R. I., Mrs. Charles B. Henry of Lincoln, N. H., Miss Eleanor M. Davis of Ashbury Park, N. J., and Mr. John Henry of Pasadena, Cal.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry will take an auto tour through New England and will make their home at Lincoln, N. H.

ABERJONA, THOUGH BEAUTIFIED, STILL IN NEED OF IMPROVEMENTS

Charming Winchester Stream Which Pours Into Mystic Lakes Tempts Pleasure Seekers With Its Beauty, But Polluted Water Repels

The completion of the notable improvements in and about the Aberjona river will soon be celebrated with appropriate festivities of the town of Winchester. These improvements rank high among the notable waterway restorations that have become features of our metropolitan park system, and which have made Greater Boston a veritable paradise for pleasure craft. The Aberjona has always been one of the most charming of our smaller streams and this new work has immensely enhanced the beauty and charm of the river. The Aberjona (the source of its name a mystery) is actually the upper section of the Mystic. When the Mystic Valley parkway was laid out along the river, between the centre of Winchester and the lake no parties, whether private or civic, have the right to obstruct. Another obstacle under the new conditions is the Bacon street bridge, with its three low and narrow passageways.

The dam between the Upper and the Lower Mystic lake is now the only obstruction to motorboat navigation between Boston harbor and Winchester—a circumstance that gives new force to the demand for a lock similar to that at Medford. But that may be an affair of the next generation. Meanwhile it would be comparatively easy and inexpensive to construct at the dam a substantial concrete runway with a car, or cradle, like that of a marine railway, to carry boats. Small motorboats could thus easily make the passage. The beauty of the Aberjona in the a pleasant gravelly beach formed by the dredgings from the river.

The further improvement of the stream above the Main street dam is now under consideration. In connection with the dam, steps convenient for a carry have been provided, with particular reference to canoes. It is suggested that canoe and row-boat navigation be made easy and attractive through to Horn pond, in Woburn. There has always been navigation at certain stages of water from Horn pond down. The writer has seen racing shells from Winchester come down the stream, which appears thus to have been established as a federal waterway. Having that status, has anybody the right to make it less navigable than before? So why not improve it? The status of the Mystic as a waterway, fought through to a finish one summer in the seventies by plucky boys from Medford and Arlington, was fixed when the courts justified their repeated demolition of the dam at a tide-mill just below the Lower Mystic lake. Any navigator, it would seem, has the right to remove illegal obstacles to the free passage of a public waterway. It was this episode that gave John T. Trowbridge the motive for his popular juvenile, "The Tinkham Brothers' Tide-mill."

The canoeist or motor boat man on his way up the Aberjona to enjoy the new charms of the renovated river is puzzled by a strange phenomenon. Has there been a bakery disaster somewhere upstream? Patches of froth, seemingly crusted brown, begin to appear on the smooth dark water. Rather appetizing, at first glance, the effect is; one's craft seems to be making its way through the wreckage of millions of lemon pies! Lemon pies of the meringue class—the sort covered with frosting, baked a delicious golden brown! What can it be? The brown froth comes in ever larger patches, and finally covers the greater part of the surface. We scoop it up and smell. The smell is enough—no lemon-pie appetite after that. The odor suggests big print works, as at Lowell or Lawrence, on the Merrimac, some sort of dyestuff? Yes, it must be!

Approaching the Main Street bridge the sight of the falls at the dam is strangely beautified—but of a weird, uncanny beauty hardly aimed at in the improvement program. The beauty of a French decadent poem, or of an imagist at an unwholesome moment. The architecture of the dam, or weir, has the beauty of a fountain of Versailles, or at some famous Italian villa. The water flows trippingly down over a these wasted chemicals that the entire lake has turned a brilliant green; billions of gallons of liquid dye! This is no exaggeration; it is actual dye, as proved by the fact that white ducks in the lake have been turned to a sickly yellowish green, while bathing boys find their toe nails dyed yellow. It is poison, too, as well as dye. The lake not long ago abounded in fish: pickerel, perch, black bass and in the Aberjona were large trout. Now every fish has been killed, not only in the lakes, but apparently in the Mystic river as well, as far down as the Medford dam. The fishway at the dam between the lakes is now a mockery; lately there were alewives by the million, now the historic fishery has been ruined. There appears to be plenty of law to prevent this abuse of public rights and privileges and also plenty of authority to enforce it—authority directly interested and concerned: the fish and game commission, in duty bound to protect the waters of the commonwealth as to fish; the metropolitan water and sewerage board, in charge of the Mystic lake as a reserve and emergency supply, now ruined; the state and local health officials; the metropolitan park commission; the town of Winchester. Many indignant citizens are wondering why none of these have demanded the injunction that would peremptorily remedy the trouble.—(Boston Herald.)

(Pictures illustrating the scenes on the Aberjona to which the writer of this article refers will appear in the Rotogravure section of the Sunday Herald for Sept. 3.)

HURT IN FALL FROM ELECTRIC

About 8:30 Saturday night Thomas Connors of Medford jumped or fell from a Woburn bound electric in the vicinity of J. W. Russell's house on Main street. He was endeavoring to recover his hat at the time. The Winchester police were notified, but when they reached the scene it was found that the man had been taken to the Winchester Hospital by a passing auto. Dr. Allen was summoned and found it necessary to take two stitches in one eyelid and treat him for a badly lacerated face. He was later taken to the emergency room at the police station, where he was kept until friends called and removed him to his home.

ABERJONA RIVER.

This was before the river was changed to its Present Course.

below, it gave that town the most beautiful approach from the metropolitan centre possessed by any Boston suburb.

Winchester's share in the improvement includes the building of two monumental bridges at the centre and in immediate association with the handsome new Main street bridge, the construction of a massive dam that combines engineering excellence with architectural beauty. These features are details of an admirable plan of civic improvement studied for Winchester by Mr. Kellaway, the landscape architect. Under this plan the river above the dam, long neglected and shabby in many parts, is restored to a state of rural attractiveness.

From the dam down to the railroad bridge just below Wedgemere station the work has been done by the metropolitan park commission. The river has been thoroughly dredged; in place of the former rapids, aggravated by shoaling from surface drainage, the stream now stands at the level of the Upper Mystic Lake. This has made Winchester what might be called a "near seaport" for pleasure craft. From the lakes to the Main street dam there is now deep slack-water navigation for motorboats of considerable size, which now for the first time can run to the very heart of Winchester to within a pistol shot of the town square.

One serious obstruction remains to be dealt with—the iron sewer pipe laid for the Mystic valley sewer many years ago. Under the new conditions the retention of this pipe is inexcusable. With little cost, the sewer—built to divert the drainage of tanneries and other industries from the lakes when the Mystic supply was still in use as a feature of Boston's water system—can at this point be diverted to the metropolitan trunk sewer close by. Indeed, it is doubtful if this pipe has not always been an illegal obstruction to navigation. The Aberjona, under the laws defining navigable waters, has always been a federal waterway which improvement section is now fairly ideal. The stream has always been a favorite with painters. The late Foxcroft Cole, long the dean of Boston artists, found the subjects for many of his best landscapes here. The river now courses in deep tranquility through the loveliest of park scenery, and the delights of attending the Metropolitan band concerts at Winchester, always a charm for canoeists, have been correspondingly intensified. One swampy island has been abolished, but another, covered with fine trees, now has a deep channel on both sides. Here and there under the trees along shore is series of steps built in a semicircle, as in an amphitheatre. But is it water—or some thing more? It is a clear liquid of a vivid green—not the green of sea water, but a sort of metallic green. And at the foot of the falls the white froth does not subside in true cascade fashion, but remains churned up in a soapsudsy mass—the effect of the chemicals contained in the water. Another peculiarity is that very quickly the creamy foam oxidizes to the lemon-pie aspect, and then gradually glides down stream in "floating islands" of the old-fashioned dessert sort.

Yes, it is more than water—it is liquid dye, produced from waste products poured into the stream near its head-waters in Wilmington by a great chemical company in flagrant violation of the laws against the pollution of running waters. The concern is said to be making fabulous profits out of chemical for munitions and has grown correspondingly prodigal of waste which, with due care, could be easily prevented.

So enormous is the quantity of

PRESIDENTIAL POINTERS

Four counties in the United States produced two presidents each. Washington and Monroe were born in Westmoreland county, Virginia. W. H. Harrison and John Tyler ran on the same ticket for president and vice president and were both born in Charles City county, on the banks of the James river, Virginia. John Adams and his son, J. Q. Adams, were born in Norfolk county, Massachusetts, while Benjamin Harrison and Taft were both born in Hamilton county, Ohio.

National Pay-Up Week from October 2 to 7.

The five cent loaf of bread is evidently going out of sight. Money is so cheap these days, that the bakers think that the people should buy ten cent loaves.

Gov. McCall by this time, no doubt, recognizes that the game of politics is a most strenuous one. The "outs" and disappointed are continually on his trail.

Tomorrow is the last day for filing primary nomination papers, for certification of names with Election commissioners in Boston or registrars of voters in other cities and towns. Have you filed your papers yet?

"There is no more tyrannical, outrageous injustice than that of leaders who live on the sweat of other people's brows," said Senator Sherman of Illinois in the House Monday. And he characterized Mr. Gompers as a public nuisance.

If street sweeping in the centre of the town could be done at an early hour in the morning, it would much improve the tempers of pedestrians and business men. Dry sweeping raises clouds of dust that is very discomforting.

Judge Littlefield imposed a sentence of two months in jail on a drunken fellow who created a disturbance by profanity and vulgarity on an electric car. Good! There is altogether too much velvet hand as a rule in treating this kind of case.—[Reading Chronicle.]

So far, 18 Massachusetts cities and towns have reported tax rates lower than a year ago, while 11 report increases, most of them small. The reduction is said to be due to a decrease in the State tax. This is of interest to the legislators who have the fixing of the rate in their own hands.

There is now no occasion for track walking between the centre of the town and the Chapin school district. The new street across the pond is now in very good condition, and it was built to prevent the use of the railroad tracks by pedestrians. The police would now be justified in arresting all who trespass on the railroad.

And now the victims of automobile accidents are to organize steps being taken to form such an organization in New York. However, this is not a matter that concerns labor unions, as it is to ask for legislation to insure such victims the same standing as other creditors when the persons against whom they win damage suits go into bankruptcy.

A dispatch from New York reads: "The paper famine found reflection today in an auction sale here of old paper. One lot of 9000 pounds, composed of unsold copies of the City Record, brought $1.65 per 100 pounds. Another lot of unsold old paper, weighing 6000 pounds, brought $2.60 per 100. Normally, sales of such paper brings from 20 cents to 50 cents per 100." This sounds like a fairy tale, as the price given here in Winchester hardly pays for the collection of paper—20 cents a hundred pounds being about all the junkmen will pay, and they are not keen about paying that, either.

The chart of Winchester's appropriations, printed on first page was conceived and executed by Town Clerk George H. Carter. It is a splendid illuminating exhibit and is sure to be studied carefully by the readers of the Star. The sum of $963,338.02 is a large amount and is an index of the growth of the town.

It is hoped that the Selectmen can see their way clear to build a sidewalk on one side of Highland avenue from near Fells road to Forest street. There is no way at present for pedestrians to reach Forest street except by traversing the middle of the street, which, owing to the large number of automobiles, is extremely hazardous. Indeed, the element of danger is so great that many people will not walk on the avenue between these two points. When the new hospital is in use the need of a sidewalk will be even greater. It should by all means be built as soon as possible.

The band concert on Manchester Field last Saturday afternoon was the last of this summer. It was attended by a big crowd, many automobiles and canoes in the river swelling the attendance, and is thought by many to have been the best of the season. It is to be regretted that the concert close so early. They should be continued until Labor Day.

Mr. John B. Welch is spending the month at the military camp at Plattsburg.

Mr. and Mrs. William H. Gleason returned from an automobile tour through Maine and New Hampshire on Monday. They spent the last ten days at the Shattuck Inn, Jaffrey, N. H.

The article on page three, concerning the river and ponds in Winchester and also the Mystic Lakes, is a notable contribution to the part that Winchester is taking in assisting the development of these bodies of water. This article was taken from the Boston Herald and was written by Mr. Sylvester Baxter, the father of the beautiful Middlesex Fells. There is no man living who is more thoroughly conversant with conditions in the Mystic Valley than is Mr. Baxter. His thoughts lie in the future and to his farsighted vision must be credited the great development of this valley. This article is highly complimentary to Winchester and its achievements which are to be celebrated September ninth.

A good example of the urgent need of a safe street suitable for vehicle traffic across the Pond was furnished by the fire at the Daly place on River street Wednesday morning. Although the fire department made exceptionally quick time it was obliged to travel clear up Washington street to Cross, and then run over that street by a round-about way to the fire. Chief DeCourcy took the other route up Main street to Swanton, down that street to White and then via Arthur street and Loring avenue to Cross. This route is thought to be a little shorter than the Washington street way, but owing to the condition of Main street it was deemed inadvisable to send the heavy apparatus over. Both of these routes forced the department to take either half of a circle and then double back on a reverse curve. A direct route to the fire would probably be less than half the distance the apparatus had to actually travel. Could the fire apparatus have taken the street across the Pond to Swanton street and reached the fire from there by way of Arthur street or Loring avenue, much travelling would have been eliminated. As a fire protection, the street across the Pond deserves much consideration.

TAYLOR—NICHOLS.

Miss Grace Mae Nichols, daughter of Mrs. Annie Nichols of 12 Chapin court, was married on Monday evening at St. Mary's rectory by Rev. John W. H. Corbett to Mr. James Leo Taylor, son of Mr. E. Elbridge E. Taylor of 1 Winn park, Woburn. The ceremony was performed at seven o'clock, the couple being attended by Miss Mary Delorey of this town as maid of honor and by Mr. William Carroll of Woburn, who was groomsmen. Following the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Taylor left on a wedding trip to Fall River and Newport. They will reside in Winchester.

Notes.

Percentage .545, not satisfactory. We hope to increase it in the next few games.

It was a good crowd and a good game even if we did lose. There was plenty of hitting on both sides.

The only trouble was the other side was doing too much for our peace of mind.

The Queen Quality team is about as clean a crowd of ball players as we have ever played against. No rough work, but good clean baseball.

Hagan surely had his revenge off Tift, he hit Tift harder Saturday than he ever did in any previous games. In one game last season he struck out 3 times.

Drummond on second base is playing better ball this season than ever before and easily leads the team in hitting.

Norton at short and John Mitchell at third are about the best men in their positions in the semi-pro ranks.

And Robertson; here is a good catcher and hard worker, but one fatal weakness that he will have to remedy if he expects to go higher in baseball, and that is his weakness on foul flies—he makes hard work trying to get them.

The more we see of Linehan the more we are thankful for having him, did you notice the way he went from 1st to 3rd on the infield out?

The hardest worker on the team for victory is Frye, he surely hates to lose a game. We think Manager LeDuc might try him in a few games as lead off man as he is the best waiter on the team; then follow with Wingate, the best man on a bunt.

Manager LeDuc received a letter from Bangs, who formerly covered second base for us, he is now playing in the Maryland, Virginia and Pennsylvania League. He is playing in the outfield all the season and leads the team at the bat and in the field. His batting average for the season is .287. He will be back around Labor Day.

Henry pitched a great game Saturday and won easily from Whittaker. Only two hits being registered off him.

Arlington won from the Harvard Summer School. Wright held them to three hits.

Pere Marquette beat Wakefield with Henry Matthews pitching. The Wakefield crowd made eight errors behind Matthews.

This Wakefield team wants to play Winchester later on, but Manager LeDuc had better play them in the evening when nobody is likely to see the game.

The Minute Boys beat Newton Y. M. C. A. 5 to 0. We will have the Minute Boys over here on Aug. 26th.

Woburn beat Bishop's crowd of ball tossers 2 to 1, and had hard work doing it at that. They say they got 5 hits off Carlson, but we got it direct from a party that scored the game, and he said they only scored three hits.

The funniest part of the game is that Wakefield had only three ball players on the team: Flaherty, Carlson and Harrigan, and it took the whole Woburn team to beat these three.

The Daily Times says the reason we are losing so many games is that we are playing out of town more than ever. Well, let us see; we have played out of town games 4 times this season and won 3 of them, in the meantime Woburn has played away from home 4 times and lost three of them. When you start to write baseball get the facts.

Joe Fahey has got a team together in Medford and played the first game Saturday, winning from the Converse Rubber Co., 4 to 0. Only two hits were made off Joe.

In Monday evening's edition of that great Metropolitan Daily, The Woburn Times, was the most pathetic wall ever printed entitled, "Will we ever get over the trimming by Tift?" A number of people have asked the writer if it was written by a regular member of the Times' staff. We cannot answer as to that, but on a guess we should say not. We do not think anyone on the Times is capable of producing such a classic. A number of readers of the article in question said it compares with anything Shakespeare, Scott or Balzac ever produced and should be on every library shelf. As Grey once said: "Full many a gem of purest ray serene

FORMER WINCHESTER MAN IN AUTO ACCIDENT.

Mr. F. Leroy Pratt of Burlington, while riding with his wife in Cambridge Tuesday, met with an accident when his runabout was in collision with a truck on Massachusetts avenue. Mr. Pratt made his home in Winchester for many years, being prominent in the Winchester Boat Club. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank S. Pratt of Main street.

Mrs. Pratt was thrown against the dash board and the wind shield and she sustained bruises and abrasions. Fortunately the wind shield remained intact and Mrs. Pratt's hurts were confined to the damage from contact with the dash board. She suffered from shock. Mr. Pratt was unhurt.

The Pratt machine was being driven along Massachusetts avenue, near Harvard bridge, when an electric car stopped a little ahead of them to allow passengers to alight. The Pratt car stopped to give the passengers the opportunity to leave and as the electric once more started the Pratt machine also moved.

Just as the runabout cleared the electric car, a truck cut across in front of both to make a turn into a side street and the Pratt runabout collided with it.

Both mudguards on the Pratt car were bent, the axle was also turned out of shape and the headlights were twisted. Mr. and Mrs. Pratt were able to continue on their way, despite the accident.

GAVE HIMSELF UP IN STABBING CASE.

Gasper Asaro, cousin of Salvatore Asaro of 15 Irving street, who was arrested last week in connection with the stabbing of Constantino Bruno of Quigley court, and who was also wanted in connection with the case, gave himself up at the Winchester police station Sunday afternoon. When the police went to Gasper's house on Oak street after the stabbing to arrest him, he escaped by way of a rear window. Sunday afternoon about 2 o'clock he walked in to the police station and gave himself up.

The case came up in the Woburn court Wednesday and was continued until Saturday.

Gasper was allowed to go out on bonds.

Marriage intentions were filed with the Town Clerk this week by Patrick J. Clougherty of Woburn and Mary K. McGuire of 30 Middlesex street.

HOT FIRE YESTERDAY.

The fire yesterday afternoon was the hottest of the series which have called the firemen out during the past week, it being in a house on Chisholm road, just off Forest street, owned and occupied by W. J. Nes-beth. Through the efficient work of Andrew Erickson and Fred S. Chase the loss was greatly minimized, they holding the flames in check until the arrival of the fire department.The fire was caused by an exploding oil stove. According to Mrs.
Nesbeth she had set something on the stove to cook and had gone into the yard with her baby. Upon entering the kitchen to go to the stove she saw it go up in a puff of flame and smoke and immediately everything was ablaze.Being alone Mrs. Nesbeth ran outside and called for assistance, Erickson and Chase responding. As there was no water in the house it was necessary to carry it from next door, but the two men worked like trojans pouring buckets of water on the flames through a door and window.
One of them reached the burning stove and threw it out of doors.As the stove was located in a pantry between the dining room and kitchen, all of these rooms were badly damaged and the furniture practically ruined. Although the fire was still strong, the department was able to extinguish it with hand chemicals upon its arrival. The insurance on the house and furnishings is reported to be $500.While going up Washington street over a herd of cows being brought

FOREMAN FOUND GUILTY.

Owner of Billboard May be Charged Fine of $10 a Day Unless it is Removed.

After several continuances the case of the big billboard in Winchester centre came up again in the Woburn court last Friday, and Frank Donahue of Malden, foreman of the Donnelly Billposting Co., was found guilty on three counts in its erection. The billboard still remains, but it will in all probability cost the Donnelly Company a possible fine of $10 a day for each day it is allowed to stand after receiving notice to remove it from the office of the Fire Prevention Commissioner.

The previous continuances of the case were allowed by the court on Mr. Donahue's contention that Mr. Donnelly of the billposting company was on his vacation and was ill. Mr. Donnelly again failed to appear or to give Mr. Donahue his support last Friday, which this gentleman felt was hardly fair. The matter is now going to Mr. Donnelly direct, and possibly it will be put up to Mrs. J. A. Laraway, owner of the building on which the sign stands.

Mr. Donahue was found guilty on the following counts:

1. Erecting the sign without obtaining a permit under the provisions of the Fire Limit Laws.

2. Erecting the sign within the building limits of the Town of combustible material.

3. Erecting the sign without a permit under the Fire Prevention Commissioners regulations.

As Mr. Donahue was simply under orders and the agent for the Donnelly Billposting Co., and as it had previously been intimated that Mr. Donnelly of the company would take a hand in the matter and either remove the big billboard or appear in court regarding the case as soon as he returned from his vacation or recovered his health, it seemed inadvisable to the court to impose a fine on the defendant Friday, and his case was placed on file pending further action.

This brought Mr. Donnelly directly into the case and Building Inspector Maurice Dinneen received assurances that if he took the matter up with the Fire Prevention Commissioner, prompt action would be taken. Mr. Dinneen has accordingly sent Commissioner O'Keefe the following letter:

Mr. John A. O'Keefe,
Fire Prevention Commissioner,
1 Beacon street, Boston, Mass.

Dear Sir:
Mr. Edward C. Donnelly, 97 Warrenton street, Boston, caused to be erected an advertising sign on the roof of a building owned by Mrs. Mary F. Laraway and located at 578 Main street, Winchester, Mass. This sign was erected July 13, 1916, in violation of the rules No. 1-2-3-4-5-7 and 8 of the regulations of the Fire Prevention Commissioner covering signs and advertising devices on buildings in the Metropolitan District. At the time of erection, I ordered the Superintendent in charge to stop the work and comply with the law, but he refused and completed the construction. This sign is located within our fire limits and constitutes a distinct fire menace and a complete violation of every fire hazard law.

I would recommend that in accordance with Section 27 of Chapter 975 of the Acts of 1914, Mr. Edward C. Donnelly be ordered by you to remove the above sign without delay. Section 27 of the above chapter reads "In case of a continuing offence after notice of such violation, any person violating this act shall be liable to a fine of $10 for every day during which the violation continues."

I earnestly hope that you will give this matter your immediate attention as it is of great importance that the above sign be removed as soon as possible.

Very respectfully,
(Signed) Maurice Dinneen, Building Inspector.

From the foregoing letter it will be seen that from the time Mr. Donnelly receives Commissioner O'Keefe's order to remove the billboard he will be liable to a fine of $10 a day as long as it remains.

Inspector Dinneen is determined to push the case and besides reopening the case against Donahue, he may press charges against the owner of the building.

The real estate promoter is a necessary element in town development. His faith in the town and enterprise as an investor makes a place grow. He takes chances with his funds, and his advertising pushes a town along. But there are promoters and promoters. Purchasers should make certain there is a good front with room for a lawn and in general plenty of elbow room. Land in the country does not amount to much a foot and a homemaker cannot afford to economize here. A house with ample land is a considerably reader seller. Resident real estate men and promoters protect their customers and the town in this particular.

SAYS THAT IT IS POLITICS.

Editor of the Star:

Oh yes, lets celebrate, the abolition of the grade crossing, the completion of the new post office, the running of the street cars through to Harvard Square, the completion of the Highlands Playground, the building of the street across the pond, the completion of the hospital, of Manchester Field and the Bacon street bridge, the mill pond water park, but in the name of common sense what is there to celebrate now? Nothing of consequence but the two bridges. Of course, if it is a part of somebody or bodies political campaign, out with it, and perhaps we will all be enthusiastic to take hold, but let us have the inside dope before you ask us to get excited. Don't stop.

John H. Carter.
[We would like to inform Mr. Carter that there is no politics connected with the proposed celebration, and that such an intimation is unfair and misleading. The gentlemen interested are of all political beliefs and are above resorting to any such methods. Beyond the desire to commemorate Winchester's achievements (of which there surely are an abundance) and let outsiders know what we are doing, is the sole desire of the gentlemen having the affair in charge. Mr. Carter would not surely deny to Winchester the credit of these great and far reaching improvements.]

AUTO ACCIDENT SUNDAY.

An auto accident occurred on Sunday night at the corner of the Parkway and Highland ave., shortly after 11 o'clock, seven persons in a small E. M. F. touring car having a narrow escape from serious injury. The car took the Parkway entrance to the Fells by a mistake and when the driver stopped it at the crest of the hill it commenced to go backward, the brakes failing to hold. The car coasted backwards as far as Highland avenue and there the driver turned it into the curbing on the corner in an attempt to stop it. When the rear wheel struck the curb it broke the rim and several spokes. The car continued half in the grass plot and half in the gutter until the damaged wheel sank to its hub in the earth, stopping it. The front wheel on the same side was also broken. The wrecked car was removed Monday. It was owned by Frank W. Ranney of Somerville.

The Police were notified on Monday morning by William H. Packard of Newton that while riding in his Hudson car about 2 a. m., he was run into and his car badly damaged. The place was described as somewhere in the west side hills, but search by the Winchester police failed to locate the wreck, and it is thought that Mr. Packard met with his mishap either in Arlington or Burlington. According to his story the car which ran into him was from Manchester, N. H. He and his party were taken to their home by another auto.

Leave Him Alone.

When a man comes home at night, "dog tired," and perhaps worried about his business, questions, even sympathetic questions, are like turning the knife in the wound of his mental weariness. Let silence like a poultice come to heal the wounds of sound. Have sense enough to leave him alone until his brain is rested and his mood changes. Thus advises Eleanor Clapp, writing for Farm and Home.

"Busy" or "Don't Answer?"

WHEN THE OPERATOR REPORTS THAT "THE LINE IS BUSY," it is because she has taken the time to test the line called for. It would be easier for her to complete the connection than to make such a report. If the operator did not test on every call, she might plug in on a busy line.

Furthermore, "Busy" means that the line (not necessarily the telephone number you have called) is in use. The subscriber on a four-party line may not be talking, but one of the three other subscribers may be, making the entire line closed to traffic, or some one of the party subscribers may have put in a toll call and the line is being held awaiting its completion. Lengthy conversations on unimportant matters often congest party lines and give cause for protests from other subscribers in common.

WHEN THE OPERATOR REPORTS "THEY DON'T ANSWER," she has done all within her means to compel an answer to her summons. That summoning power is the ringing of a bell, a mechanical signal which says, "Someone desires to speak to you." It remains with the person called to be prompt in responding.

If a subscriber is slow in responding, the calling person may hang up the receiver, assuming that the former is inaccessible. Then there is an additional inconvenience to the called person when the operator reports, "There is no one on the line now, please excuse it." The operator who makes that report usually is located at a different switchboard than the operator who rang the bell, and is unable to ascertain where the call originated.

TELLS LABOR NOT TO PAY 6 CENTS.

Ex-Representative Thomas A. Niland of East Boston, in a letter to District Council 44, Brotherhood of Painters, Paperhangers and Decorators of America, calls upon all members of organized labor to refuse to pay the 6-cent fare if it is granted to the Bay State Street Railway by the Public Service Commission.

"I shall refuse to pay the 6-cent fare and I call upon the brother members of my calling to follow my example."

Mr. Niland suggests that Council 44 do all in its power to persuade the laboring populations of Massachusetts to refuse to pay a 6-cent fare to the Bay State and urges that the funds appropriated by various unions for investigation and study of the 6-cent fare case be used to secure publicity for the purpose. He says that any woman who pays the 6-cent fare is only "half a woman," and any man only "one-quarter a man."

The letter was addressed to John J. Fitzhenry, secretary. Members of the union say Mr. Niland's advice will be followed.—[Revere Journal.]

THANKS FOR MR. MAXWELL.

Editor of the Star:
I wish to extend through you to Mr. Chas. F. Maxwell my thanks and those of many of our citizens for his very timely article in your last week's issue, "Winchester's Celebration," and tell him what a splendid service he has done our town by stating so many facts, and hope he will make further investigation of our Town Government. He will soon find why we have such a high tax rate and why the town is in legislation over the building of the bridges.

THE READING FAIR.

The annual cattle show and fair under the auspices of the Quannapowitt Agricultural Association will be held this year on Sept. 13, 14, 15 and 16 on the old Reading-Wakefield fair grounds and race track. A meeting of the fair management this week in Reading decided the general plan of attractions and features. The fair grounds have been improved and many additions made to the equipment. Thousands of dollars is to be awarded in prizes and premiums and the variety is greater than ever before. The management is very sanguine of a record breaking attendance from Middlesex and Essex counties and metropolitan Boston districts. The State Board of Agriculture has endorsed the Quannapowitt or "old Reading" fair and cattle show in generous and complimentary terms and will have a special exhibit at the fair.

The restoration of the cattle show and live stock exhibit barred last year by the quarantine against hoof and mouth disease will be learned with pleasure by the lovers of fine cattle and live stock and brood horses. Besides the old-time attractions of the country fair in the exhibit line there will be special exhibits of fish and game and forestry work. The exhibition hall will be a mecca for those who wish the mammoth granges exhibit and contest between eastern Middlesex grangers. There will also be the unrivalled vegetable, fruits, flower shows. Children's school and youth's garden products prize exhibits, the domestic handwork and women's products exhibits. A local manufacturer's exhibit is also planned and a poultry show is contemplated.

The sporting attractions will be as varied and even more entertaining than in past years of the fair. The attractive horse racing every afternoon for large money purses is a leading feature of the events on the race track. In the mornings of the four fair days an old fashioned work horse parade is scheduled together with a horse and pony show, an auto parade and show and farmers' contests. There will also be baseball and athletic sports on the track, a balloon ascension and parachute drop every afternoon and a high class vaudeville show and band concerts daily at the grand stand. The "Wonderland midway" on the "west coast" will be more wonderful than heretofore and will please the tastes of the most fastidious seekers after novelty and fun.

The organization of the fair management this year is headed by Henry A. Upton of North Reading, president; H. C. Barrows of Wilmington, vice-president; E. Horace Perley of Wakefield, secretary; Arthur W. Goodridge of Norwood, treasurer. The chairmen of the various departments are: Dr. C. H. Playdon of Reading, cattle show and live stock exhibit; H. C. Barrows of Wilmington, work horse show and parade; Arthur H. Jewett of Reading, horse and pony show; H. A. Brackett of Reading, horse racing and race track; Henry A. Upton of North Reading, auto show and parade; Mrs. C. A. Wiswell of Reading, women's exhibits; E. Horace Perley of Wakefield, school and youths' exhibits; Augustus C. Wiswell of Reading, manufacturer's exhibit; W. F. Goodwin of Greenwood, poultry show; R. L. Perry of Reading, fruits and vegetables exhibit; Leonard H. Carter of Wakefield, flowers exhibit; and Fred L. Smith of Billerica, chairman of growers exhibits.

THE TOWN CELEBRATION.

Why Not Postpone to a More Opportune Time?

Editor of the Star:

Is not the proposed celebration over the little and great things which the town or its officers have accomplished during the past few years too much a matter of blowing our own horn and lustily crowing over our less wealthy neighbors? "Little Jack Horner" is a laughing but not a noble character as he sits in his corner eating his plums and saying "what a good boy am I!" Winchester, at her age, does not want to be a Little Jack Horner, or witness its town officers exhibiting themselves as such.

There does not seem to be a very loud call from the rank and file of citizens for such a celebration as the wide awake Star has described, and many of the town officers have personally heard nothing of the matter. Who is father of the child, no one knows, but in the present state of world-war misery and very unsettled conditions in our country, not many feel like celebrating anything, especially matters of local, common place importance which can well wait for recognition. It would not be considered in good taste for a citizen on the completion of a fine new house to hire a band and make a great display of fireworks to call attention to what a wealthy man he had got to be. Neither is it in good taste for a town to loudly call attention to its very late attainments giving no credit whatever "to all the good the past has done to make our own time glad" but emphasizing what a great and good boy "I am" just now!

There are a great many reasons why the proposed celebration should be postponed for a time besides those given by your correspondent in last week's STAR. Certainly we do not want to celebrate grade crossing success or the loveliness and beauty of our river water and scenery. The street across the pond has not been legally laid out as yet and is not a street in fact. It is unsafe for travel, not being fenced to keep travellers from falling into the water. It has no lights and has no legal entrance from the town square. It certainly is not safe for travel or a thing of beauty in its present shabby and incomplete condition. Let us wait for a more favorable time to celebrate and modestly brag over what we have accomplished.

One other thought. Our great American philosopher has said "The silence which receives benefits as the most natural thing in the world is the loudest applause." Such applause we have given in the past to those who have blessed our town with their good work. The original board of water commissioners worked for years to give the town its splendid water supply system. They did not always receive even silence for they were often ill-treated and put back in their endeavors to do good to the town. The great many citizens in the past who fought for wider and improved streets, and those who labored for our schools, town library, common parks, and in building up our beautiful Wildwood garden for those who have passed on, all received silent applause, if they received any. Is it not "loud applause" to be expected to do good without brass band accompaniment and if our town officers are not publicly lauded for what they have done as agents for the town during the past few years, their works will follow them and the silent applause of their fellow citizens will be freely given them. "He that praises himself, spattereth himself" says an old saying. Let us not do any spattering this year.

Arthur E. Whitney,

Town Officer.

FOREST A. C. 9—GILCHRIST CO.

Another win for the boys of the Highland team. Last Saturday the Forest A. C. trimmed the crack nine from Gilchrist Co. of Boston, and while the score was 9 to 1 it does not mean that the visitors did not play good ball, but that our boys had a good day at the bat and in the 5th inning made five singles and a double crossed up the opposing pitcher by hitting and scored 7 big runs. In this inning 11 men came to bat, the first three getting on by a single and two errors by the pitcher, then Lawson, McPartland, Loftus and Mathews singled, Hatch went out on an infield play of short to first, but Bennett followed with a clean two-base hit, driving in three runs. McManus fled out to right field and Shaughnessy struck out, ending the inning. We scored again in the sixth and that ended our run getting for the day. Our first run was the result of a peach of a hit by Loftus in the first inning, he scoring on a bad throw to third. Lawson had one of his good days allowing only five hits out of these being a double by Simpson in the third which enabled the visitors to score their only run of the day as Hatch, who had singled came home on the hit. In the fourth Lawson struck out the side and got a total of 15 for the day. Mathews put up a swell game behind the plate and Loftus with three hits, two runs, four put outs and one assist had a fine day of it.

There were three double plays pulled off during the game, the visitors making one and we having two to our credit. Taking it all together the game was a good one and the visitors played a good fielding game, their outfield gathering in six long flies. Tesserio, in right field, getting four of them. Schrank, their catcher, made a swell catch of a foul fly after a long run for it. 8 games won, 1 lost.

The score:

SHOULD THE SCHOOLS OPEN?

Winchester, Mass., Aug. 23, 1916.
To the Editor of the Star:

Dear Sir: I should like to ask the various doctors of Winchester, and the Winchester Board of Health, to express in your columns their opinion as to the safety of opening the public schools at the proposed September date.

The increasing prevalence of infantile paralysis in the eastern section of Massachusetts is a great anxiety to many parents who desire to protect their children as far as possible.

It seems to many that the opening of the schools during the September heat is a direct invitation to a serious epidemic.

In justice to the children it is impossible to keep them out of school during its regular sessions, retarding their work by perhaps a year, but the opening date I think should be postponed.

I should be glad to hear what others have to say on this subject.

Yours truly,

Henry A. Goddard.

WINCHESTER'S CELEBRATION.

Final Details Now Being Arranged by the Committee.

There was a meeting of the Chairman of Winchester's Celebration Committee at the Town Hall last Friday evening. There seems to be an impression that this celebration is to be given under the auspices of the town officials. This is not so, as the only town officials connected with the affair are Mr. Preston Pond, Chairman of the Planning Board, and Mr. Charles A. Lane, Chairman of the Park Board, whose connection with the arrangements were necessary. The celebration was conceived and is being carried out by citizens, who believe that some notice should be taken of the extensive and far reaching benefits that will occur to Winchester because of the improvements of the past three years. The town officials will be asked to take part in the exercises and this is all the connection they will have with the affair. Some gentlemen have said it was political, but it may be said that there is not a single man on the committee who has political aspirations. Others have intimated that the celebration had better be deferred until all the improvements are completed. But this will be a long distance in the future, in which the present generation would not be here to take part. It is believed that the first stage of the improvements has arrived when many of them have been practically completed. And on these betterments over $300,000 has been thus far expended. Surely, many citizens say, this is worth making note of, and so they heartily approve of a jubilation, and hope that the entire town will join in and make the affair a grand success.

Gov. McCall, if in town, will be asked to say something on the occasion, and so, too, will the Chairman of the Board of Selectmen.

The various committees are hard at work perfecting the details as was shown at the meeting of last Friday evening. As said before the Salem Cadet Band has been engaged and will give two concerts, one in the afternoon at the new Highland playground and the other in the evening at Manchester Field, previous to and during the display of fireworks.

MALONEY—MAWN.

Winchester Teacher Weds Woburn City Clerk.

A wedding of considerable interest to residents of both Winchester and Woburn was that of Wednesday morning at St. Mary's Church when Miss Kathryn Frances Mawn, daughter of Mrs. Dominick Mawn of Canal street, was married to Mr. John Fred Maloney, City Clerk of Woburn. A nuptial mass was celebrated at eight-thirty by Rev. John W. H. Corbett of St. Mary's.

The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Susan Mawn. She wore a travelling dress of blue broadcloth and carried a bouquet of bride's roses. The bridesmaid wore blue crepe de chine and carried pink roses. Dr. James E. Maloney of Quincy, brother of the groom and Exalted Ruler of the Quincy Lodge of Elks, was best man.

A wedding breakfast was served to the wedding party and a few intimate friends and relatives immediately after the ceremony at the home of the bride's mother.

The bride, who is a graduate of the Lowell Normal School, has been a popular teacher at the Chapin school, and had previously taught in the schools of Peterboro, N. H. Mr. Maloney is a graduate of Holy Cross College and the University of Pennsylvania Law School. He is a member of the Woburn Council, Knights of Columbus, and the Woburn Lodge of Elks. He was City Solicitor of Woburn during the administration of Mayor Henchey and is a prominent attorney of that city.

The couple left on a wedding trip through the South and will tour as far as Jacksonville, Florida. They will make their home in Woburn at 105 Montvale avenue.

ASSESSOR WOOSTER RECOVERING.

Assessor Fred V. Wooster was operated upon at the Peter Bent Brigham Hospital on Monday for an intestinal trouble. The operation is reported as successful and Mr. Wooster is recovering satisfactorily. It is anticipated that he will be at the Hospital for about a fortnight longer before returning to Winchester.

BILLBOARD ORDERED REMOVED.

Fire Commissioner O'Keefe this week ordered the owner of the building in the square to remove the large billboard which extends across the front of the structure. This step is taken following the court action of a week ago, when the foreman of the Donnelly Billposting Co., was found guilty of violating the fire prevention rules on three accounts in its erection. Commissioner O'Keefe finds the billboard is a fire menace. Failure on the part of the owner to remove the billboard renders him liable to a fine of $1,000.

BASE BALL.

Winchester Defeated by Arlington in Close Game.

By "Mack"

We met Arlington for the third time last Saturday, and were beaten by a one run margin. Tift started the game for Winchester, but was knocked out of the box in the second inning, Frye taking his place. The Arlington players started after Tift in the first inning driving two runs across the plate. With the assistance of a poorly played fly to the outfield and a dropped throw by Linehan with a couple of hits sandwiched in, they scored six hits including a double by McGovern, bringing the total of runs to seven and the hits to eight before Tift was removed. Frye took the white man's burden, and in the greatest exhibition of pitching seen on the field this season, held the hard hitting Arlington team to three hits. Too much praise cannot be handed to Frye. Many others pitchers would have gone in there with that big lead against them and made no effort to hold the opposing side, but Frye is not cut out for a quitter and he stuck to the ship, like a true skipper and came within an ace of winning the game. But, of all the stupid playing ever seen on the field, Curley, who was taking McQuinn's place, pulled it off, with Duffy on third and himself on second and two out; Tift drives a ball on the fly over second, being a fly ball it was up to all the base runners to start with the crack of the bat. For if the ball was caught it would have been the last out, anyway and if it was dropped, the runners would be on their way to the home plate and runs would have been the result, but whenever Curley learned his base ball it seems he was not taught much on such a play; for he held second to see if the ball was going to be caught, and when it dropped safe he started for home and was thrown out by a city block, such is the story of the ninth inning rally made by the home team. After the second inning there was nothing to the game but Winchester, and Wright was in distress in almost every inning. We also hit him harder than any other team has this season; getting 10 good hits all told.

MRS. ALICE G. BORDEN.

Funeral services for Mrs. Alice G. Borden of Portland, Me., wife of Mr. Philip H. Borden, who died on Monday, were held Wednesday afternoon from the residence of her daughter, Mrs. Raymond A. Smart, at 246 Highland avenue. Mrs. Borden was in her 64th year. She had made her home in Portland for the past 25 years and was prominently identified with church work in that city, having been a well known member of the Williston Congregational church. She is survived by her husband, her daughter, Mrs. Raymond A. Smart of this town, and by one son, Dr. Charles R. C. Borden of Boston. Rev. William J. Campbell, pastor of the Williston Church of Portland, officiated at the services and the interment was at Oak Grove Cemetery, Fall River, in which city Mrs. Borden had resided previous to making her home in Portland.

FIRE TUESDAY NOON.

Winchester kept up its epidemic of small fires by another blaze on Tuesday noon, box 31 being scolded at 12 o'clock for a fire in the loft of the barn of Tony Ficociello at 77 Swanton street at the corner of Florence. The blaze was among some new hay and evidently was caused by spontaneous combustion. Two lines of hose were put on and the fire checked immediately with little damage except to the hay.

Five of the new fire alarm boxes for the public school buildings arrived at the centre fire station on Monday. They will be installed immediately in those buildings considered the most dangerous. The remaining boxes to be installed are expected daily.

BASE BALL TOMORROW.

We have with us tomorrow, the Minute Boys of Lexington. Here is a team that has been playing good ball all the season with a set back once in a few games. They handed Woburn the worst beating of the season, Saturday, and come to Winchester with all the confidence in the world of trimming our team. Well, we have had a couple of beatings administered to us in the last two Saturdays, and Lexington will have to travel faster than they have done any time this year to beat us. We are going to take revenge on some one, and it might just as well be Lexington as anyone else. George Weaver of Woburn, is doing the pitching for them and we expect to see a crowd of friends from Woburn down here rooting for George to win. We will have a new pitcher in the box with a record of 12 wins out of 15 games, and these against just as strong clubs as we have faced this season. There will be a new man on second and possibly one in the outfield. McQuinn will not be here Saturday, but Manager LeDuc has secured a live one to take his place. Manager LeDuc is doing his best to give Winchester a winner and all managers are liable to get a lemon once in a while. We are out to win the next four games and if it is in our power we mean to have the team that can do it. There are quite a number of sports (?) who have a habit of jumping the fence and when they are asked later in the game to buy a contribution card, say, "I have one in my pocket." It is a pretty cheap way of getting away with something for nothing. If you fans want baseball you have got to pay for it, and as everybody is working at present there is no valid excuse for not handing your contribution over. Wear your cards in plain view.

PRESENTATION TO BOSTON AND WORCESTER AGENT.

On Wednesday afternoon at the Electric Freight Terminal of the Boston & Worcester Street Railway Co., Commercial street, a halt was called in the busy traffic, when the chief clerk of the office corps, speaking for "the Boston and Worcester boys", handed to Mr. Harold Miller Dorley, the agent, a chest of rich, colonial silver with felicitations on the latter's recent marriage to Miss Deborah W. Hicks of Winchester, and expressions of loyal friendship "all along the line."

Surprised, but gratified, Mr. Dorley responded for himself and his bride. Mr. and Mrs. Dorley are residing permanently at 39 Prince avenue.

SALE ON WILDWOOD STREET.

The sale is reported of the residence at No. 30 Wildwood street, formerly owned by Mr. C. G. M. Bond, to Mr. Charles E. Brown of West Somerville, who will occupy the premises about Nov. 1st. The broker was Edward A. Taylor of Somerville.

YOUR AFFAIRS AND MINE

For twenty centuries Christian people, who would not have thought of receiving the Publican in their homes, but who would have felt honored had the Pharisee deigned to call on them, have nevertheless looked on the Publican as representing the highest type of Christian character. The great danger is that men may become both Pharisees and Publicans, having the positive vices and sins of the latter, and the false attitude toward themselves and life held by the former. For many a Pharisee has been a Publican, and many a Publican a Pharisee. So mingled are the qualities of good and evil in human life. The veriest "rounder" may be the worst sort of Pharisee, while he who makes the greatest pretensions to goodness may be—and usually is—a Publican. The complexity of the problem thus grows out of the complexity of human nature of which, as a rule, we take no account in our judgments. The thing to do is, not to compare oneself with others, but rather to measure oneself by the ideal standard. The Winchesterite who uses that process it not likely to be guilty of the sin of the Pharisee. It is no great achievement for one weak and sinful man to excel other sinful and weak men. What is great is to approximate in any degree to the divine perfection, and to realize that the power to do this is the gift of God. Thus neither will thank God that he is not as the other is but each will be humiliated to reflect that he is not what he ought to be. The standard by which one should measure oneself is the ideal—surely that is the Christian rule—and never by the character or achievements of another. Hypocrisy cannot grow out of such a state of mind or soul. The Winchesterite who has this point of view can hate hypocrisy as it deserves to be hated without being in the least danger of himself becoming a hypocrite. Sorrow that we are not what we ought to be, rather than joy because we seem to be better than someone else, should mark the lives of all serious and thoughtful weaknesses of their own nature. What we are depends on our advantages, opportunities and powers—and these are gifts, things which we did not make ourselves, and of which we have no right to be proud, except in a thankful and humble way. As these are enjoyed by different men in different degrees, there ought to be charity in judging others, and severity in judging oneself.

While a man can never be sure of the motives of others, he can always be sure of his own motives, but only in so far as he is willing to devote some time to the difficult and sometimes painful practice of self-examination. For without this there can be no self-knowledge and without self-knowledge there can be no true judgment of others. No such judgment can be true unless it is tempered with charity. And there can be no charity in the soul of a Winchesterite who is not conscious of his own faults and shortcomings—which can be revealed only through self-examination. It should not be forgotten that the parable of the Pharisee and the Publican was addressed "unto certain which trusted in themselves that they were righteous and despised others." The Publican was commended because he did not trust in himself and despise others, and the Pharisee was condemned because he despised others and trusted in himself. In both cases the teacher dealt with an inward condition, out of which grew an attitude toward life. There was nothing superficial or artificial about the verdict; on the contrary it penetrated to the very roots of character. One man was filled with a sense of his own unworthiness, while the other was fatally self-satisfied. In one, self seems to have been wholly subordinated, indeed, hardly to have existed at all; in the other it dominated the whole life and being. And it was the selfish man who "went down to his house justified rather than the other." The moral is that "every one that exalteth himself shall be abased; and he that humbleth himself shall be exalted." It is the shadow of self, as Carlyle has shown, that darkens the whole of life. In some men vision seems to be wholly obscured and clouded by it. Carlyle must have been thinking of these when he wrote:

"Examine the man who lives in misery because he does not shine above other men; who goes about producing himself, prurient, anxious about his gifts and claims; struggling to force everybody, as it were, begging everybody for God's sake, to acknowledge him a great man, and set him over the heads of men. Such a creature is among the wretchedest sights seen under this sun. A great man? A poor, morbid prurient empty man; fitter for the ward of a hospital than for a throne among men. I advise you to keep out of his way. He cannot walk on quiet paths; unless you will look at him, wonder at him, write paragraphs about him, he cannot live. It is the emptiness of the man, not his greatness. Because there is nothing in himself, he hungers and thirsts that you would find something in him."

A good many years ago—longer than most Winchesterites whose hair is now white would care to say—it was very fashionable to denounce what was supposed, at least by men of the Roscoe Conkling school of politics, to be the "Phariseism of reform." The issue was thus dealt with by George William Curtis:

"If a man proposes the redress of any public wrong, he is asked severely whether he considers himself so much wiser and better than other men that he must disturb the existing order, and pose as a saint. If he denounces an evil, he is exhorted to beware of spiritual pride. To the cant about the phariseism of reform there is but one short and final answer. The man who tells the truth is holier than the liar. The man who does not steal is better than the thief."

INFANTILE PARALYSIS.

There is No Cause for Alarm in Winchester.

Winchester, Mass.
August 21, 1916.

Editor of the Star:

Dear Sir:—Will you kindly give us space for a few words on the Infantile Paralysis situation? So far no case has appeared in our town and we see no cause for alarm or undue anxiety. This Board is doing all it can to prevent an outbreak of the disease in Winchester. Persons coming here from localities where the disease exists are visited and such restrictions imposed upon them as seem necessary. We frankly admit that authorities do not KNOW just how the disease is spread.

They believe that it enters the human body through the nose and throat. They believe that a large percentage of children and a very much larger percentage of adults are immune. They believe that a person who is immune can have the germs of the disease in his nose and throat and while not sick himself, can give the disease to others. An immune person who has the germs about him is called a carrier. Authorities believe that one carrier can make carriers of other people and they, in turn, of others; and that every carrier is a menace to people who are susceptible to the disease. We admit that some of our precautions may be needless, but we are going to try to make ALL our mistakes on the side of safety. In the event of an outbreak of the disease in Winchester, we shall impose restrictions on both children and adults that may seem to some oppressive. We know no Health Department can do very good work without the cooperation of the citizens. We therefore ask everyone to join with us in doing all that can be done to protect the welfare of our people.

Winchester Board of Health.

We, the undersigned, physicians of Winchester, desiring to cooperate with the Health Department in preventing an outbreak of Infantile Paralysis in our town, do heartily endorse the following suggestions.

Keep your premises, including the back yard, clean and free from filth and rubbish.

Keep your garbage pail clean and so tightly covered that flies can not get to the contents.

Keep your children away from moving picture places.

Keep your children off trolley cars, steam trains and other public conveyances.

Do not let anyone kiss your children.

If a child is ill, especially if it is feverish, has a headache, and complains of pain in the back or legs, send for your doctor at once. Do this whether you can pay the doctor's fee or not. Do it because more can be done in the early stages of the disease than at any subsequent time.

Do all you can in the way of fresh air, proper food, frequent baths, proper sanitary surroundings, etc., to keep your children healthy.

If you know of any person who has recently come to Winchester from a place where there have been cases of the disease, notify Dr. Allen at once.

Observe all these precautions, not alone for the sake of your own and other children, but also because you will be doing all you can to avoid the very burdensome restrictions that the Board of Health will surely impose upon us all in the event of an outbreak of the disease in Winchester.

BAD FIRE PREVENTED.

Good Stop by Firemen in Centre Blaze Sunday Morning.

Winchester firemen made a good stop of a bad fire early Sunday morning when the nest of buildings on the river side of Converse place were threatened with destruction. The fire had assumed alarming proportions before it was discovered, and it was only by the most prompt and efficient work on the part of the department that the whole square was not wiped out.

The fire was discovered at 12:35 Sunday morning at the rear of John McNally's blacksmith shop on Converse place. Although there were a number of persons about the centre the fire was so sheltered that no one saw it until it blazed up above the roofs of the surrounding buildings. It then had the appearance of a bad conflagration.

Remarkably quick work was made in turning out by the fire department. It appears that several saw the fire at about the same time. Patrolman Harrold pulled box 23 in the centre and others ran to the centre fire station. Chief DeCourcy wasted no time, but immediately laid five lines of hose and completely smothered the blaze in less time than it takes to tell it. Three lines were laid off from the Converse place side, being taken in through the old Fogg garage, while two others were run up over the one story block of stores from Main street. This was to give the firemen a chance to work on the old Bank building should they be needed there.

The fire originated outside. It started in a small blind alley running at right angles to the little alley at the side of the blacksmith shop and the rear of the one story stores, an extremely hard place to reach. Just what caused the fire is not known. There was the usual accumulation of litter to be found in most of the alleys in the centre and the place is said to be used considerably as a convenience station. Whether spontaneous combustion was the cause, or whether someone dropped a lighted match is a question.

The place acted about the same as a chimney flue, the fire burning up on the rear ends of the blacksmith shop and the old garage unseen until it mounted above the building roofs. When discovered it was just entering both places through the side walls. The blacksmith shop had its roof somewhat burned, where the flames had got up to the shingles, and a broken window on the second floor of the garage allowed the fire inside that structure, it just commencing to attack the woodwork of the ceiling.

By placing streams inside the garage and from the roof of the rear building the firemen could not have found a better advantage point to work from.

The damage done was slight. Beyond a slight scorching on the outside the buildings are the same as before, and their interiors are not much changed. Two bodies of two auto trucks owned by the Winchester Laundry were on the second floor of the old garage being painted and one of these was badly scorched and its top burned. The other escaped unharmed. The property is owned by Messrs. Frank L. Ripley and Freland E. Hovey. The loss is said to be about $1000.

GROWTH OF SAVINGS BANK LIFE INSURANCE.

The increasing demand from all parts of the State for Savings Bank Life Insurance policies has made necessary the appointment by the State Medical Director of Medical Examiners in all Massachusetts towns having 4000 or more inhabitants.

The premium income of the Savings Insurance Banks for July, 1916, shows an increase of 37 per cent over the income for July, 1915. There are now upwards of 14,000 policyholders, with insurance in force approaching $6,000,000. As a result of the extremely low cost of this insurance, for the month of July nearly 50 per cent of the business issued by the Banks came by direct application to the Banks or one of their agencies.

The Commonwealth will give full information to anyone interested; address Savings Bank Life Insurance, State House, Boston, Mass.

THANKS HIS FRIENDS.

Editor of the Star.

The 6th Middlesex Senatorial District, which Winchester is a part, requires 90 signatures to place a candidate on the ballot to be voted for at the September Primaries. I wish to return my thanks to the 248 friends, 103 of them from Winchester, for giving me this splendid endorsement.

Respectfully,

off him. It was a game he will remember for a long time.

The team as a whole are doing some great batting, and with any sort of pitching are going to make the other teams go to beat us. Take any of the Arlington games and a little break in the luck would have given us the victory. But Arlington had the breaks and luck so they deserve the credit for winning. They have got a good fast hard hitting crowd and can make trouble for most of the semi-pro teams around Greater Boston. We play them a return game on Sept. 16th, if everything goes off according to schedule. The score:

Percentage .500. No comment.

Linehan and Frye were the chief sluggers for Winchester, getting 6 of the ten hits made off Wright.

Linehan drove a swell three bagger to left, but was caught at the plate trying to stretch it, and at that he would have made a home run only he stumbled as he rounded third.

If you fans remember in the last Arlington game, Lowe did the same thing, and it is caused by a bad spot on the field after the runner crosses third base.

Frye got in three nice hits besides pitching a great game. It looks like a good run getting combination; Frye leading and Wingate following.

Are you fans aware of the fact that in the two games Frye has pitched for Winchester, only 5 hits have been recorded off him in sixteen innings. That is great pitching when you think it over.

A number of fans ask "Why does not Manager LeDuc let him pitch regularly?" Well, Frye does not care to pitch every Saturday, but is always willing to go in when we are stuck as we were last Saturday. He prefers to play the outfield. If we had half a dozen players of his type we might try the Red Sox or Braves.

Wingate played a good game at short, and we would suggest that in the future, Dana be allowed to call all the plays, from the field. It will save the mix-ups that occurred Saturday.

Manager LeDuc gave Murray a tryout at second Saturday, but he lacks experience. This young player comes from Reading and should develop into a good player in a year or so.

"Jack" Hevey went to the bat in the ninth, and had Wright in the hole for 3—2, but fanned on the third one, waist high on the inside.

McGovern played a great game at first for Arlington, and Manager O'Neily ought to consider himself lucky when Lowe quit so he was left in a position to secure such a valuable player; he has got it all over Lowe in every department of the game.

Nix got three hits, and it is a treat to see him going down to first base.

Arlington brought quite a crowd of rooters with them, and they did get after Tift with a vengeance.

"Bill" Coady had a hard afternoon, but he was on the job as usual, although both sides were looking for everything in sight. He had to caution Linehan several times, but Jim wanted that game if coaching would do it.

Duffy had a queer day at the bat. You fans are probably not aware of the fact that he batted for 500 for the afternoon. He got a base on balls, hit by the pitcher, struck out, and got a nice hit, making it an even 500.

Officer Cassidy was the man on the job Saturday, and while the crowd was orderly enough, he still had to keep moving all the afternoon so that nothing got away from him.

The Minute Boys handed Woburn a nice beating Saturday 7 to 2. The Times said they were going over to Lexington to a funeral, but it happened to be their own, and Alibi; every other line was an excuse. Why not hand the other fellow something once in a while.

Henry lost his game Saturday through wildness on his own part. Woodman, a former Buffalo Federal League pitcher, finished the game for Henry.

Davy Ingalls got three hits Saturday and his team (Marlboro) beat Fitchburg in the first game of the series. They are playing for a side bet of $100 a side.

Manchester handed Lead Lined pipe its usual Saturday trimming, score 8 to 1.

Bishop says he has got the best semi-pro team in New England, but results are what count. He does not seem to be getting them.

Reading gave Wakefield town team a swell beating Saturday, knocking two pitchers out of the box. Henry Matthews finished up the game, but had poor support behind him.

The Times on Saturday evening had another great piece of literature, but it was too deep for the Winchester readers of that sheet. We would suggest in the future, that when the Times prints an article such as we mention, that they furnish a map or a translation of the article.

Also in Tuesday evening's edition we notice that there is going to be a great game between Arlington and Woburn, without the "crabbing" that results in the Woburn and Winchester games. It seems to be alright for Woburn to do the "crabbing", but the other teams are supposed to sit tight.

We are going to have a local celebration here on the 9th of September, and one of the events will be a ball game. It seems to us as though the proper thing to do would be to have the two local teams play that game for the purse, or whatever is offered. There seems to be a big demand among the fans for it, and as it is to be a whole town affair, it seems as though the committee in charge would get busy and let the people know how they stand on this event.

SCHOOLS TO OPEN AS USUAL.

Dr. Clarence J. Allen of the Board of Health has been in consultation with the School Department for the past week regarding the policy to be pursued at the opening of the public schools in regard to infantile paralysis. There have been no cases in Winchester and all children under 15 coming into town are subject to quarantine for three weeks.

It has been decided that the public schools should open at the regular time, Wednesday, Sept. 6. It has been the policy of the Board of Health in case of an epidemic of any sort here to keep the schools open so that all the children could be under observation, rather than to close the schools and still have children playing together. This same policy will be pursued in this case.

The school physicians and the school nurses will make an examination of the children, and any suspicious cases will be taken in charge till the exact nature of the malady can be determined. Children who have been on vacations will be required to show certificates that there have been no cases in the towns or cities from which they come within three weeks of the time. If there have been they will be required to remain at home until the three weeks' limit is up.

Omnipotent.

Harold was playing with a little companion, James, under a tall hickory tree. Said James, boastfully: "I can climb that tree." "Hub, you can't, either," replied Harold. "Yes, I can climb to the top," insisted James. Then, flashed back Harold, scornfully: "Who do you think you are anyway? God?"—Exchange.

Entered at the post-office at Winchester, Massachusetts, as second-class matter.

In about two weeks Winchester's activities will be under full sway, as by that time nearly all the absentees will again be enjoying true home comforts.

Perhaps it might be just as well in the end to have the Boston & Maine Railroad go into the hands of a receiver. The leased lines have been sucking the blood of the Boston & Maine and have been for years holding back all improvements. If a receiver is appointed it will be possible for the road to free itself from the unprofitable lines.

The manager of the Highland base ball team announces that the first game on the new playground at the Highlands will be played Saturday afternoon, Aug. 26. This will afford an opportunity to tryout the new field, which will rank among the best in this vicinity. The electric cars pass the grounds while the steam road is close by.

President Wilson, in trying to adjust the differences between the railroads and their employees, should consider the public as being the most interested party. But he appears to be more interested in playing the game of politics than he is in trying to bring about a square deal to all. However, there will be no strike of the railroad employees, the people of the country will not stand for it.

Winchester's Board of Health is fully alive to the necessity of preventing the spread of infantile paralysis to this town, and the people should heartily cooperate with the Board. Circulars have been sent to the Italian population of Winchester, briefly stating what steps should be taken to prevent the disease securing a foothold here, and that the advice contained in the circular may be fully understood, it has been printed in Italian.

The Grade Crossing problem has again come up through the request of the Board of Selectmen to the Public Service Commission asking them if any progress could be made toward hastening the long drawn out problem of abolishing the present crossing. The Selectmen desire the adoption of a definite plan so that the town and property owners may know what to expect. This is becoming more and more important each year, and holding back development of the centre of the town.

It is reported that the J. H. Winn & Son Company, watch band manufacturers at the Highlands, are about to institute a suit against the Merrimack Chemical Co. and the New England Manufacturing Co. for polluting the water of the river by the introduction of chemicals. It is claimed that the water wheel fixtures of the Winn Company have been eaten out so much by chemicals that they will all have to be replaced. It is also reported that the Puffer Company is also considering a similar suit, its boilers, condensers, etc., having been practically ruined by the chemical in the water.

The action of the Winchester Board of Health in connection with the country-wide epidemic of infantile paralysis is no doubt a source of much satisfaction to our residents. Under the energetic action of the Secretary, Dr. Clarence J. Allen, preventative steps have been taken which, even though our town has not yet been visited by a case, will do much to allay any apprehension which might lay in the minds of all and especially the parents of children of susceptible age. The precautions which are now universally taken in the large cities will doubtless act in preventing the spread of the dreaded disease to a great extent; but even with every caution exercised, it is a source of satisfaction to know that Winchester is not waiting until her turn comes, but has actively turned to take preventative steps herself. The posting of the town by Dr. Allen of placards, printed in both English and Italian, giving a simple list of rules and directions, is to be highly commended; and in connection with this, circulars have been sent to all Italian families direct. It is perhaps needless to state that the action of the Board of Health is receiving the co-operation of our physicians, who are giving the matter their universal attention. The copy of the recommendations sent out by the Board of Health are published in this issue of the STAR, and a careful reading will be of benefit to all.

There has been considerable speculation as to the cause of the fire at the rear of the McNally blacksmith shop last Sunday morning. Some are positive that it was deliberately set and others think it due to spontaneous combustion, while still others think someone may have carelessly dropped a lighted match, which set fire to the rubbish in the place. The fact is, the place has been largely used as a convenience station. Most of the back yards and alleys about the centre will bear a good renovating. They will not stand inspection either from a sanitary view or as a fire hazard. If the alleys are to be used as convenience stations, the owners and store-keepers are not particular about their litter. The agitation for a convenience station in the centre of the town has been heard for many years. The square is visited by many people waiting to take or in changing cars, and unless these people are provided for, the menace of fire and the menace of health will continue. It was said that when the new fire station was completed a toilet on the street floor would remedy conditions. This has not proved to be the fact. The fire station is not known to transients and we doubt if it is used by others. A convenience station in the centre that is readily accessible and recognized is badly needed.

WINCHESTER'S CELEBRATION.

Editor of the Star:

I enclose herewith letter from one of our citizens regarding the coming celebration.

Yours respectfully,
Preston Pond.

August 24, 1916.

My dear Mr. Pond:

Enclosed you will find my cheque for subscription to the Winchester Celebration fund.

It is, I am sure, a most excellent thing to do. Mr. Fitzgerald started the idea, as I understand it, with a view to marking in some appropriate way the more intimate connection of north Winchester with the centre by way of the new street across the pond and because of their acquirement of the new (and now put in order) playground. This idea has happily grown into the larger one of marking with appropriate observance the many physical developments of the town during the last few years.

I do not quite understand the two or three correspondents who have in print voiced their objections.

I have a notion that this particular observance will have, because it centers general attention upon these improvements, a material and desirable future effect in stimulating public interest in perfecting Winchester.

We have apparently acquired enough open spaces at strategic points for the general protection of future development. Undoubtedly some new things will show up, but development and embellishment would now seem to be the general order of the day rather than the acquirement of new property other than that which may be made necessary by school requirements.

As you know, I am sorry that we struck an $18.40 tax rate, and think avoidable appropriations should have awaited the result of the Ginn estate tax situation and the effect of the new tax law; but at the same time I am perfectly sure that the objects for which the money was appropriated were most desirable in themselves, and that we shall get full value for every dollar expended.

It is therefore a question of method, and not of the desired end; but how can anyone confuse this matter with an appropriate celebration of the things which have been accomplished? It is, I am sure, well worth the observance, and I am very glad that the plan is being so vigorously carried out and is meeting, so far as I can see, with so nearly unanimous approval.

Yours very truly,
F. S. Snyder.

LAST NIGHT'S FIRE.

A blaze among a pile of empty wooden boxes and rubbish in the alley at the rear of the Holland Fish Market necessitated a telephone call to the central fire station at 8.50 last evening, box 23 being sounded. The fire was extinguished with hand chemicals with no damage.

NEWSY PARAGRAPHS.

This week has been one of the most trying of the summer. Opening Sunday, the heat was as bad as has been experienced until yesterday, when cloudy weather caused a slight drop. There were many prostrations.

The police raided the house of Antonio Tofuri at 44 Holland street Sunday and found a quantity of beer and wine. Tofuri was in court yesterday morning and pleaded guilty to exposing and keeping intoxicating liquor for sale. The case was continued until Nov. 1st.

Mr. and Mrs. John Cleworth of Church street have returned from a stay at Ponemah, N. H.

Master Howard Ambrose is recovering from an operation performed last Saturday at the Winchester Hospital for his tonsils and adenoids.

MARY EMERSON, as she is known on the stage, assisted the Morosco Film Co. in putting this wonderful play on the screen having spent weeks at the Los Angeles Studios directing rehearsals. EDNA GOODRICH plays the part of Maddalena in the Film production.

WINCHESTER'S CELEBRATION.

The fireworks have been contracted for and the display promises to be a fine one. Money has been set aside for prizes for the young folks who participate in the sports at the Highland playground, also for the parade in the early evening from the Highlands to Manchester Field via the new street across the pond.

Money has also been apportioned for illuminating Black Ball pond, the river and the two new bridges, also prizes for decorated canoes. The amount that will be required for the entire celebration will be $1000, a considerable part of which has already been given by prominent citizens. There is, however, much money yet to be raised, and the people are asked to contribute in large or small amounts as their circumstances permit; small sums are preferable so that all may have a part in celebrating Winchester's progress. Mr. Preston Pond is the Chairman of the Finance Committee and he will be pleased to receive contributions and acknowledge the same.

It is hoped to be able to give the full program to the public next week.

Among generous contributors are the following:

J. H. Gerlach, Lewis Parkhurst, S. S. Langley, Arthur A. Kidder, M. A. Brown, J. A. Downs, W. D. Richards, John Abbott, C. T. Main, G. W. Blanchard, Charles Tenney, F. E. Hovey, James J. Fitzgerald, Fred Joy, C. E. Corey and W. S. Forbes.

The Finance Committee held a meeting at the Town Hall building Tuesday evening to listen to reports of members at which it was learned that half of the sum necessary had been subscribed. Plans were also made to canvas the town until the requisite amount was secured.

An agent of the New England Calcium Light Co. was in town Tuesday evening and gave a demonstration before committee of the use of Calcium lights for the illumination of Black Ball Pond, the Mill Pond, the new bridges and river at Manchester Field. The demonstration met with the approval of the committee, and the method will undoubtedly be used. The powerful colored light illuminated the overflow at the Main street bridge and the surroundings beautifully. These lights will be in white and colored according to the effect desired to be attained. Some twenty lights will be used, and probably augmented by colored fire. It is proposed to have lights on top of the High School building and the Winchester Laundry and these will play on the pond and the overflow and the Town Hall Building and surroundings. This on illuminations have looked thorough and pleasing. The committee on illumination have looked thoroughly into all methods and they have found the calcium light to be the most feasible and at the same time the least expensive.

A contribution paper has been placed in the Star office, where those desiring can subscribe. All sums, large or small, will be welcomed.

The parade committee on celebration Sept. 9th, invites all residents, who possibly can, to take an active part in the parade. As the line of march will be short a number of young ladies have agreed to march and the appearance of a large number of other residents in line would show a local spirit to be proud of. The route of parade will be as follows:

Headed by Salem Cadet Band, Boy Scouts and other organizations, will start between 6.30 and 7 p. m., from Washington School building on Cross street to Washington street, Irving street, Florence street, Holland street, Oak street, Spruce street—the band and marchers turning to left along the walk on northerly bank of Black Ball Pond to walk on eastern bank to driveway along the shore to Mt. Vernon street to walk on bank of Mill Pond, Converse place to Main street over new Converse bridge to Waterfield road over new Waterfield bridge to Manchester Field, where the band will give a concert and a grand display of fireworks will take place. All automobile owners are invited to decorate their cars and take part in this parade.

Suitable prizes will be offered for best decorated cars.

This division of parade will continue to right of Spruce street over the new street across the pond to Railroad avenue and join parade at junction of Main street and Converse place. The shores of Black Ball Pond and Mill Pond will be brilliantly illuminated and we ask residents along the route to have their houses well lighted to add to the enthusiasm that will be displayed.

Mr. James J. Fitzgerald, chairman of general committee, will act as chief marshal. All information in regard to this feature of celebration can be arranged through Mr. John F. O'Connor.

T. Price Wilson,

A WORD FROM THE COMMITTEE

Through the public press the citizens are now well informed regarding the proposed celebration to take place Sept. 9th, in recognition of the new playground at Winchester Highlands, the partial completion of the street across Black Ball pond, also the new way on the easterly side of the pond, all of which tends to a much closer relation between the different sections of the town because distances from one section to the other are so much reduced. There is every reason to expect that further development will be on the line of improving and beautifying the surroundings of the pond, so that it will be consistent with that of the stream south of Mt. Vernon street when that work is completed. The committee feel too, that the new bridges and improvements in the centre are worthy to be grouped with those features first named—and notwithstanding that all these improvements are in process, yet the promise that within a comparatively short time Winchester as a whole will be in the enjoyment of the completed development is, we think sufficient reason for a national celebration at this time in which all the citizens can participate.

WILLIAM G. ANDREW.

ANDREW IS CANDIDATE FOR REGISTER OF PROBATE.

William G. Andrew of Somerville is a candidate for Register of Probate for Middlesex County.

It has become almost an established custom in county affairs to re-elect officials, term after term, but in the County of Middlesex this year there is no candidate for re-election as Register of Probate, former Register Rogers having died in office.

Mr. Andrew was born in Cambridge in 1886 he received his early education in the schools of his native city. Unendowed with the proverbial silver spoon, he was compelled to struggle for a legal education—he received his degree in law however in 1910. Since then he has been in active practice with offices at 6 Beacon street, Boston. Among the members of his profession Mr. Andrew is widely known and highly regarded as is evinced by the long list of attorneys who are endorsing his candidacy.

Curbing is being laid on Converse place from Mt. Vernon street to Main street. When this has been done a granolithic sidewalks will be laid, making this an up-to-date street adjoining the mill pond improvements.

ST. MARY'S 5—F. A. C. 4.

Last Saturday the Forest A. C. were defeated by the St. Mary's Club of Roxbury, and it was one of those games that any team hates to lose. We like to play ball and usually play to win, but we play fair ball and although at times we feel that we perhaps have got a few raw ones from the umpires yet we take our medicine recognizing the fact that an umpire usually does the best he can to be fair in all decisions and calls the plays as he sees them. But for a bunch of squealers, this St. Mary's team were the worst we have ever seen. From the time that the first out was called on a play to third all throughout the balance of the game, they kicked at each and every decision and we lost the game first to the effectiveness of their pitcher (and he was a dandy) and secondly to our own foolishness in conceding to them one play in the eighth. After all, any pitcher who can get 19 strike outs to his credit deserves to win. Up to our half of the sixth there had been no scoring on either side. We had made two hits, so had they. In the fourth we had two on when Ryder drove a liner over first and Donnelly leaped into the air, the ball hit his mit and stuck. A swell play, but robbery. The F. A. C. boys pulled off three double plays, the feature being Matthews' catch of a foul fly and a sharp peg to McPartland at second who tagged the runner out. The visitors got two three baggers, one in the eighth by the pitcher on a hit by Moran. In the ninth Phinn drove one down into deep left which on any decent field would have been caught, but it got away from Ryder. Phinn raced to third and scored on a bum chuck to Bennett. That hit drove in two runs ahead of him and away went the ball game.

Winchester Grade Crossing: The Board, through the Town Counsel, communicated with the Public Service Commission calling attention to the present situation of the Grade Crossing question, asking if any progress could be made now on account of the long delay. NEW CHURCH IN WINCHESTER.

Plans for a new church were filed with the Inspector of Buildings at the Town Hall this week. The edifice is for the New Hope Baptist Society, a well known colored organization which has been in existence here for a number of years. This Society had previously taken steps towards owning a modern church home, but without accomplishing any tangible results. If the present plans are carried through to completion the society will have a most modern and up-to-date church.

The estimated cost of the building is in the neighborhood of $10,000. It is to be located on Washington street near Cross street. The building will be of bishropic wood and plaster and will be 110 x 80 feet. The construction is fire resisting. As planned it will seat a congregation of 222 persons in addition to providing choir space for 16 more.

The work of resurfacing North Main street will start Monday of next week.

NOTICE

The Sealer of Weights and Measures requests that all persons who suspect that they are not receiving their full weight in fee, notify the Inspector at the Town Hall between the hours of 8.30 to 9.00 a. m. and 2.00 to 2.30 p. m., or at his residence, Tel. 1087-M. Any violation of Chapter 63, Section 45, shall be prosecuted to the full extent of the law.

Maurice Dinneen,
Sealer of Weights and Measures.

WINCHESTER GIRLS ENTER-TAINED IN VIRGINIA.

The following account of an entertainment given at Roanoke, Virginia, in honor of Miss Marion L.

HARRIET NEEDS AN ELECTRIC RANGE.

Dear Harriet:—

After visiting you and seeing what a dear little home you had, I could not help but think that all it needs to make it complete is an electric range, especially during these hot summer days when you want to keep your house cool and clean with as little exertion as possible.

If you cooked by electricity, you would never be bothered with coal or smoke or ashes. Your pans and kettles would not become blackened as electric heat is a clean heat. For you who do your own work, this would be a very desirable feature.

Just think how cool your kitchen would be if you cooked with electricity! You would never be overheated working over a hot stove in a hot kitchen. In an electric range the heating units are so insulated that the heat cannot escape into the kitchen, but is every bit utilized upon the article being cooked.

The ease with which you can operate an electric range is a continual source of joy. There is no raking or poking a fire, not even the striking of a match—merely the turn of a switch and any one of three heats is at your service. Can you think of anything more convenient? Electric heat is always ready and the degree of heat never varies.

A great many people would like to have an electric range, but they have an idea that it is very expensive. Perhaps you have this same idea. There has been such demand for electric ranges by people of moderate means, that the Edison Company now sells them on the easy payment plan—that is—a small sum paid down and the rest in small monthly payments. Since the present low rate of the Boston Edison Company for electricity for heating and cooking purposes has been in effect, the cost to operate an electric range is very reasonable, in fact, so reasonable that over 1000 have been installed around Greater Boston since last October.

During the month of August the Company is selling a new range, the regular price of which is $20, for $15. This would be very convenient for you as it takes up very little room and can be set on a table when in use, and when not in use can be put anywhere out of the way.

Why don't you drop in at the Edison Light Store and look at it? They will be very glad to demonstrate it and answer any questions you may have.

Lovingly,
Mary.

Within the last year 200 saloons in St. Louis have closed their doors on account of lack of business and 500 more are reported to be in bad financial circumstances.

The Dry Chicago Federation, composed of about 50 temperance and church organizations, has launched a campaign to close all Chicago saloons in 1917.

In one week, according to the North American, 20 liquor licenses were allowed to lapse in Philadelphia. In the list were seven retail, ten wholesale, one bottling and two brewing licenses.

Referee in Bankruptcy Harper, of Milwaukee, Wis., in his report for May showed that of the 17 bankrupts of his city for that month, ten were bartenders or ex-saloonkeepers.

State Superintendent of Banks Sargent has issued a statement comparing the financial condition of the Portland banks on May 1 with their condition on May 1 of last year, when saloons were licensed in the city. The statement shows an increase in deposits, loans and federal resources. The total deposits of the city banks have increased $7,865,709, while the loans and discounts increased $4,509,126.

It is pointed out that this indicates an increase in the general business of the city in that money which was formerly sent to Eastern liquor corporations, is now diverted into the general business channels of the city and state. Practically all the store-rooms made vacant by saloons being put out of business on January 1 are occupied by other lines of trade. There are fewer vacant stores in Portland than there were before the dry law closed 400 saloons.

The rockpile at the county jail has become a tradition since Prohibition went into effect, and the city highway department, is forced to spend real money for the rocks used on roadways because of the lack of inmates sentenced to serve on the rockpile.—Rocky Mountain News, Denver.

In the Florida Legislature sixteen of eighteen state senators are dry. This gives 25 dry Senators out of a total of 32. In the Lower House 60 of the 73 members are pledged to prohibition.

Fifteen barrels of whisky, ranging from the small keg to the 20-gallon size, are held up at the union depot, Denver, and will probably go the way of the $12,000 worth of liquor which was poured down the city sewers a few days ago. This liquor consigned to prominent men in the city, was seized by Special Officer D. R. Giles, because it was not marked with the words, "This package contains intoxicating liquor."

The Pabst Brewing Co. of Milwaukee, will be allowed to ship a so-called non-alcoholic beverage, "Pabst," into Arizona, by action of Judge Sawtelle of Tucson, who declared that he would grant the writ of mandatory injunction applied for by the Pabst Co. The injunction is directed against the Arizona and New Mexico, the Southern Pacific, the El Paso and Southwestern, and the Arizona and Eastern Railroads.

Judge Sawtelle directs that the brewing company must include with each bill of lading a "Pabst" shipped into the state an affidavit and certificate of analysis, showing that the beverage does not contain malt or alcohol, and that the composition is the same as at the time the decree was applied for.

August A. Busch, head of the Anheuser-Busch Brewing Association of St. Louis, Mo., invited the 400 special newspaper correspondents attending the Democratic national convention in that city to partake of mint juleps at his country home in St. Louis county. Mr. Busch sent automobiles to carry the correspondents to his home, but fewer than 100 of the 400 correspondents accepted his hospitality, and more than a score of automobiles engaged for the occasion went away empty. One correspondent, a long-time personal acquaintance of Mr. Busch, in a written declaration of the invitation, said in part:

Besides, Mr. Busch, the time has passed when newspaper men can keep the pace of the fastest men in the world, and meddle with even the mildest of intoxicants. This fact is recognized in the most practical way by a large majority of the craft. During last week at Chicago, when the pressure of work was tremendous, and the weather abominable, I was in constant contact with the same body of correspondents who are here today, and in all that time I did not see even one under the influence of drink.

I hope to see the time come when men of my calling will no longer be exposed to the dangers which beset the now recognized standards of hospitality, but that the open handed friendliness which I know you feel toward your friends and mine, will find some other form of expression.

THE COUNTRY NEWSPAPER

No finer tribute to the country newspaper has ever been paid than the following. It was written by William Allen White for Harper's Magazine. Mr. White's words, in part, are:

But the beauty and the joy of our papers and their little worlds is that we who live in the country towns know our own heroes. Who knows Murphy in New York? Only a few. Yet in Emporia we all know Tom O'Connor—and love him. Who knows Morgan in New York? One man in a hundred thousand. Yet in Emporia who does not know George Newman, our banker and merchant prince? Boston people pick up their morning papers and read with shuddering horror of the crimes of their daily villain, yet read without that fine thrill that we have when we hear that Al Ludorff is in jail again in Emporia. For we all know Al. We've ridden in his hack a score of times. And we take up our paper with the story of his frailties as readers who begin the narrative of an old friend's adventures.

Our papers, our little country papers, demand our faith strong.

Yet we who read them read in their lines, the sweet, intimate story of life. And all these touches of nature make it wondrous kind. It is the country newspaper, bringing together daily the threads of the town's life, weaving them into something rich and strange and setting the pattern as it weaves, directing the loom and giving the cloth its color by mixing the lives of all people in its color pot—it is this country

THE FIRST PAPER

When Adam's Eve began to do the housekeeping for Adam, she did not know what was the rage, because there was no Woman's Page.

She did not get a Daily Hint from Paris full of passion to start her on a daily sprint to keep up with the fashion. She did not haunt the beauty stores in order to keep open pores.

When Adam capered home at night, he was no wearied plodder!—he did not shiver lest he might be served with curious fodder. There were no papers, so you see there was no Household Recipe.

Old Adam was a happy bloke and lived a life most cheery. He did not know that he would choke some day with his bacteria. Adam and Eve never read Health Articles to scare them dead.

Eve never went through Adam's breeks when he was sweetly dreaming because there were no Bargain Weeks to tempt her to such scheming. The serpent thought she was a goose. She was too good for any use.

The serpent was a clever brute. Though he'd not been through college, his sanctum made him mighty cute. It was the Tree of Knowledge. "Aha!" he said, "I'll publish, free, The Daily Eden Apple Tree!"

The first edition raised a row whose scandal shocked creation. Since that first issue Adam's brow is wet with perspiration. It told the scandal, rich and rare, that Eve had not a thing to wear.—From the Mergenthaler Lines O-Type News.

NEW ADVERTISING LAW

On and after the twenty-fifth day of May, Massachusetts will have a fraudulent advertising law that has real teeth. Governor McCall has signed House Bill 1060, designed to prohibit untrue and misleading advertising. It is claimed that under the new law the following kinds of misstatements can be effectually prevented, which could not be reached under the former statute:

Misstatements of value where an advertiser advertises an article at a certain price, stating that its value was really much in excess of that price.

Misstatements as to services offered. There is a class of advertisements that agree to furnish certain

WINCHESTER'S CELEBRATION.

Much Interest Being Taken in Winchester's Day.

The general committee for Winchester's Improvement Celebration met in the General Committee room at the Town Hall last Friday evening, there being a good attendance and much gratification was manifested over the enthusiasm displayed by the people in all parts of the town, especially by those living at the Highlands and in the Chapin School district. An instance of this was shown when Chairman Fitzgerald was called upon the telephone last week by a gentleman residing on the west side of the town, who asked why he had not been solicited for a contribution. Mr. Fitzgerald replied that the Finance Committee had hardly got to work, and that he would be seen in due time. Next morning Mr. Fitzgerald received a check for $25, and with this enthusiasm it is plain that the requisite amount of money will be easily forthcoming. This is only one of many instances where similar amounts have been given.

The Chairmen of all the sub-committees reported satisfactory progress in the arrangements.

The illuminations promise to be very pleasing, and they will extend from Black Ball pond around the Mill pond down the Aberjona river to Wedgemere pond, calcium lights being used principally with colored glass. Hon. Fred Joy will assist personally in the illumination of the Mill pond, his estate being on the shores of this sheet of water. It is also proposed to have a decorated arch at the entrance to the east of the pond adjoining the Christian Science Church. There is promise that the business buildings in the centre of the town will be decked with bunting and flags, also there will be many residences decorated, and the inhabitants are asked to at least display a flag.

Each parade from the playground at the Highlands will in all probability carry a flag in the march to Manchester Field via Black Ball pond in the evening. The procession will be headed by the Salem Cadet Band and the men from all parts of the town are invited to join in the parade. Shortly after the arrival at Manchester Field the band concert will commence and also the display of fireworks.

EDWARD H. MANSFIELD.

Mr. Edward H. Mansfield, brother of Mrs. John N. Mason of Mt. Pleasant street, this town, was found dead in his room at the Hotel Hemingway, Boston, Tuesday morning. His death was due to heart failure. It is thought that he was stricken while preparing to retire on the night before. He was 60 years of age.

Mr. Mansfield was the son of the late Rev. John H. Mansfield, a former minister of the Winchester Methodist church, who held the pastorate about 30 years ago. His mother was Harriet Sikes, a native of Lowell, Mass. He was well known in Boston hardware circles, having for many years been manager of the Cutler Woodruff Co., with offices on Pearl street. For the past two years he had been treasurer of the Cave Welding Co. of Springfield.

Since the death of his wife, who was Miss Isabel Drepperd of Westfield, which occurred two years ago, Mr. Mansfield had made his home in Boston and Springfield. He had spent the summer at the Winthrop Arms, Winthrop, and had been at the Hotel Hemingway for the two weeks preceding his death.

Besides Mrs. John N. Mason of this town, he is survived by one other sister, Mrs. Luther Freeman of Pittsburg, Pa. He was not affiliated with any organizations or societies, and was a graduate of Wesleyan University of Middletown, Conn., in 1877.

Mr. Mansfield was a member of the B. K. E. Society of Wesleyan. The funeral services were held from the Mason home, No. 26 Mt. Pleasant street, yesterday afternoon at half-past two. The services were conducted by Rev. C. Harrison Davis, pastor of the Methodist church, assisted by Dr. George Butters of the Methodist church of Auburndale, a life long friend of the deceased. The burial was in the family lot in Newton Cemetery.

Plan to celebrate Saturday, Sept. 9. Mr. and Mrs. Edward O. Hatch and daughter, Miss Grace E. Hatch, returned this week from a month spent at Boothbay Harbor, Me.

GRAND OPENING.

Extensive Plans for New Alleys At Calumet Club.

The Bowling Committee of the Calumet Club is rapidly completing plans for a big opening of the new alleys at the club, to take place the middle of this month. The event will be continued over a period of two evenings, events for both the gentlemen and ladies being planned. During the summer months the Club has made very extensive changes and additions to its bowling alleys, and at the present opening of the winter season has one of the finest outfits to be found in this section. Under the energetic direction of Judge Littlefield, chairman of the bowling committee, aided by his secretary, Mr. Benjamin F. Miner, the bowling at the Club is to be opened with a big send-off, and the season promises to be the most extensive in the history of the organization.

ARTHUR W. DEAN.
President Calumet Club.

The new improvements have been completed with considerable expense and much trouble. Two new alleys have been built, now giving the Club a set of six fine alleys. To install the additional alleys it was SECOND ORDER ON BILLBOARD.

In addition to the order issued by Fire Prevention Commissioner O'Keefe last week to the owner of the Laraway building in the centre to remove the big billboard which adorns the front of the structure, another order was issued this week to the Donnelly Billposting Co. by Commissioner O'Keefe, ordering him to remove the billboard. A copy of this order was forwarded to Chief of Police McIntosh. It stated that the billboard must be removed by 6 p. m. August 30th.

The statement that the previous notice to the owner of the building carried with it a six months' period for removal, after which time a fine of $1,000 was liable, is said to have been a misinterpretation of the law. Such ruling is reported to apply only to the sprinkler provision. It is said that the billboard provision renders the party so notified liable to a fine not exceeding $10 a day for each day the party so notified allows the billboard to remain after notification to remove.

As yet the big billboard has not been removed. Building Inspector Dinneen has also notified Mrs. Sarah H. Rice that the billboard on her building at the corner of Main and Park streets is constructed of combustible material and is an increasing risk within the fire limits, and has ordered its removal.

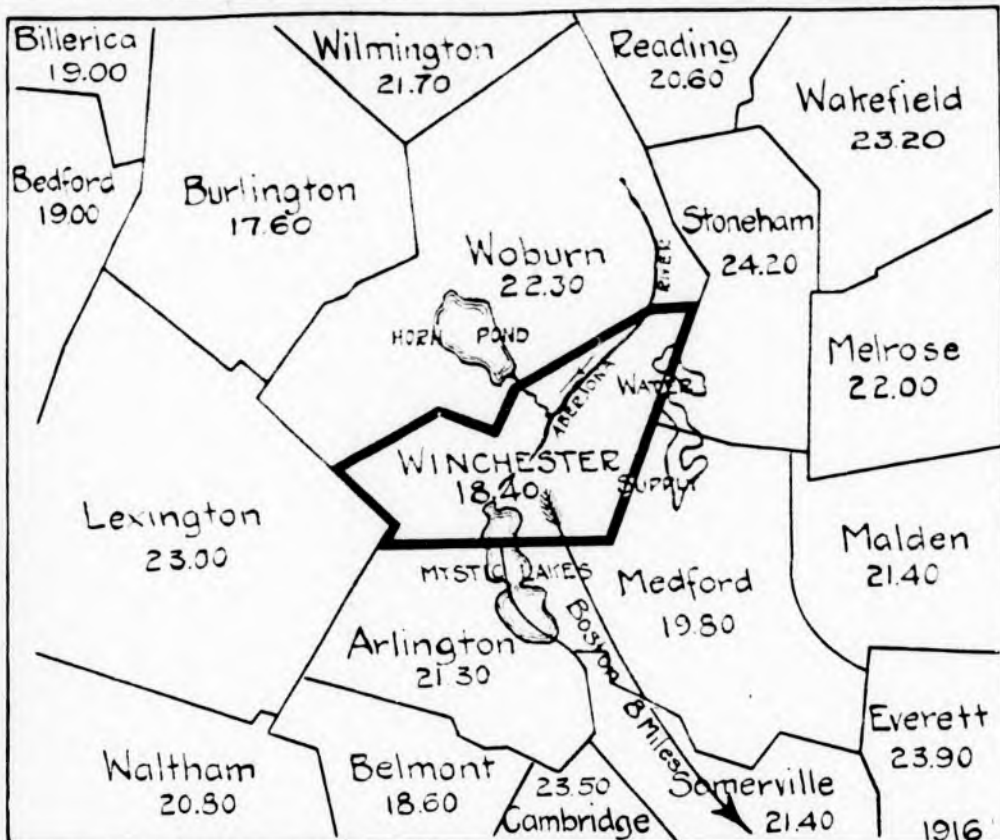

BAPTIST NEWS.

The services at the Baptist church will be resumed on Sunday morning. The pastor will begin a series of addresses on "The Ideal Christian of Today." The first will be upon "The Christian and the Master's Sufficient Grace," having reference to the famous Princeton Conference of July, and the life of victory for which that conference stands. The second, on Sunday evening, will be upon "The Christian and the Opening of School," urging a deeper appreciation of the value of an education from a Christian viewpoint, and the need of making the most of our opportunities.

At the Wednesday evening service several will speak of their vacation wanderings at the shore or in the mountains.

MEDFORD AND WINCHESTER INVITED.

Members of the Medford and Winchester Boat Clubs have been invited to enter the canoe parade to be held on the river on the evening of Saturday the ninth. MR. ELDER ENDORSES MR. KNEELAND.

The following letter which appeared in the Medford papers last week, will be of interest to the citizens of Winchester.

August 22, 1916.

To the Editor,
Medford Mercury,
Medford, Mass.

Dear Sir:
With reference to the Republican nomination for the Legislature in the West Medford-Winchester District, I want you to let me say a word about my friend, William A. Kneeland, who, as you know, is one of the candidates.

I am sure you and your readers would like to know the facts about him. Mr. Kneeland was in my office at one time, and in that acquaintance I formed a very high regard for his ability. He has been a resident of Winchester for ten or twelve years, and I have seen him frequently in that connection. He has been a member of our Republican Town Committee for a number of years and has rendered able and efficient service. He has held various town positions, including membership in the Finance Committee, which makes up the town's budget of expenditures. He is an instructor in the Boston University Law School and a member of the Masonic Lodge and of the Odd Fellows. As you no doubt know, he is now a member of the law firm of Russell, Pugh & Kneeland. He was a high honor man in his class at Dartmouth and Law School, and is in my judgment a man of great value and strength.

I think the District is fortunate in having an opportunity to send such a man to the Legislature, and I hope West Medford will unite in giving him a good vote in the primaries. There never was a time when we needed strong men in the Legislature more than now, and, if elected, he certainly will be one of them.

Very truly yours,
Samuel J. Elder,
Cambridge street,
Winchester, Mass.

REGISTER FOR PRIMARIES.

The Registrars of Voters will be in session at the Town Hall every afternoon except Saturday, from 2.30 to 4.30, of week beginning September 11th.

Also Tuesday and Thursday evenings, September 12 and 14 from 7.00 to 8.00 p. m.

SCHOOLS WILL OPEN.

Postponement Would be of No Particular Service.

Editor of the Star:

Dear Sir: After careful consideration, the School Committee have decided to open schools in accordance with the calendar published in the annual report, namely, on Wednesday morning, September 6, 1916.

This decision is based upon the recommendation of the Winchester Board of Health, the School Physicians, and the State Department of Health.

In accordance with these recommendations, inquiry will be made of all pupils, before entering school buildings, as to where they have been living since Wednesday, August 16, 1916. Those coming from places in New England having cases of infantile paralysis will be excluded from school and reported to the Board of Health. Others will begin their school work at once. The school authorities will have lists of all places in which cases have occurred. It will not, therefore, be necessary for parents to provide certificates of any kind, but children in grades one to four should either be accompanied to school by their parents or should have written notes from parents telling where they have been.

For so long as may be necessary, every class-room will be visited each day by one of the School Physicians and the School Nurse and the Board of Health will make daily house visits to all absentees.

On the day before the schools open, Dr. Allen of the Board of Health will confer with the School Physicians and the School Nurse and will address the teachers as to the procedure to be followed.

The school authorities sympathize deeply with the natural anxieties of the parents of the children entrusted to their charge. They believe that the decision reached will safeguard the health of the school children better than a postponement of the opening of school and they hope that their judgment may be approved by parents and citizens.

By order of the School Committee,
Schuyler F. Herron,
Superintendent of Schools.

NEWSY PARAGRAPHS.

Rev. Francis L. Beal, rector of the Church of the Ascension (Episcopal) of East Cambridge, who has been appointed to succeed Dr. Wilfred E. Harris, who died on July 25 from the effects of wounds received at the Hotel Westminster July 18, as president of the Massachusetts College of Osteopathy, is well known in this town, where he was employed for a number of years in the office of the George W. Blanchard Co.

A son, Robert Arnold, Jr., was born last week to Mr. and Mrs. Robert Arnold of Middlesex street.

The Labor Day dance at the Winchester Boat Club will be quite an event this year. Hanley's Festival Orchestra will furnish the music, which will be exceptional. The "special four" comprising this orchestra performed at the residence of Lewis K. Leggett before the Rexal representatives last week.

Charles West of Woburn was fined $5 for driving his auto in Winchester without sufficient lights this week.

BASE BALL.

Winchester Beats Lexington in a Fine Game.

By "Mack"

Well you cannot keep a good team beaten very long. We made the remark in last week's STAR, that we were out for revenge because of the two defeats handed us on previous Saturdays. And we also said, that we might just as well have Lexington for a victim as anyone else, and it turned out as we predicted, Lexington being the victim by a score of 2 to 0. The game was a good one to watch and featured by great pitching on the part of Trayers, our new boxman. Only one clean hit was registered off his pitching, and that did not come until the eighth inning, and no hit of any description was made off him until the 6th, when a little measly fly by Carrigan fell safe between Kelley, Ryan and Linehan, immediately after Carpenter got a hit by a great slide to first, beating Linehan by an eyelash. Weafer also pitched good ball and got out of several bad holes by some great pitching. He held our team to the least number of hits of any pitcher in the last six games. But this does not mean that we did not hit him hard, for we surely hit him much harder than the score shows. The first time Flaherty came to the bat he got hold of one on the end of his bat, and what looked like a good three bagger or home run was turned into a great catch by Billie Weafer. Again in the eighth Weafer made a great catch off Linehan, but his fly allowed Frye to score from third. Charles, the third baseman of Lexington, had a great day in the field, and Weafer can thank him for some of the great plays he made behind him, but he was also responsible for the second run in the eighth, for after making a great stop of a hard hit ball he made a high throw to first, allowing "Frye" to reach second on the play. Linehan scored the first run for Winchester in the fourth, reaching first on a nice hit, taking second on a pretty hunt by Kelley, going to third on an error by the shortstop, and scoring on a nice hit by Trayers. In the same inning we lost another run owing to the speedy (?) base-running of Buddy Ryan; he was thrown out a mile by a nice throw from Currier. Lexington was never very dangerous as they could do nothing with Trayers' pitching, and only one man reached third all the afternoon, and he stayed there.

Other school buildings eight-thirty to eleven forty-five a. m., and one-fifteen to three p. m. as heretofore.

BASE BALL TOMORROW.

Tomorrow we go to Lexington and play the Minute Boys on their home grounds. Those of you fans who witnessed the game last Saturday need not be told what to expect in the way of a game. There is no question about the ability of the Minute Boys to put up a good game, and with the additional strength of our own team there should be some fine work over there. We will have the same team as Saturday with the exception of a new outfielder, no names are mentioned, but you fans can guess very nearly about who the player is that is going to be dropped. We hope every fan that can do so, will come to Lexington with the team and root hard for a win. Show the boys you are with them.

Labor Day.

And here is what we all have been waiting for; the Woburn game. As you all know we have met twice with one-sided victories for each team in the games won. Woburn has been winning and losing since then, same as Winchester, and it is a toss up as to which team is the better at the present time. Both teams are about equal in batting strength and most judges of the playing would say that Winchester has the edge in fielding. The batteries are about 50-50, so take the team as a whole it looks like a case of breaks as to who will come out the victors. But there is one very important point you fans in both Woburn and Winchester should bear in mind when sizing up the chances and that is, Winchester plays much better ball away from home than does Woburn, as the results testify. Winchester has played four games away and won three; Woburn in the meantime has played five and lost four. Now this may not mean anything and in the Labor Day game it may possibly be reversed, but we are only handing it to you for your consideration. We will be strengthened in one weak spot that we had in the last Woburn game, and we have two good pitchers to depend on; so take it all in all we have a pretty fair chance of winning. We only hope for a fair day, and the crowds of the season will see some baseball. The game—Woburn in a. m. Winchester p. m.

FATHER OF BRIDEGROOM OFFICIATED AT WEDDING.

At the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Caton, Baker and Bentwood streets, Foxboro, last Thursday evening, their daughter, Miss Bertha Alice Caton was united in marriage to Warren Clifford Johnson, instructor in English in Winchester High School. The bridegroom is a son of Rev. Millard F. Johnson and Mrs. Johnson of Middleboro, formerly of Foxboro.

Rev. Mr. Johnson performed the ceremony. The best man was George Steele of Gloucester. Miss Florence Caton of Foxboro, a sister of the bride, was maid of honor and Miss Elizabeth Waterman of Dorchester was flower girl. A march was played by an orchestra.

The bride was gowned in ivory charmeuse, trimmed with velvet brocade, and veil, and carried bride roses. The maid of honor was costumed in salmon-colored messaline, trimmed with acru lace and gold and carried gladiolas.

A reception was held and about 100 guests were present from Foxboro, Middleboro, Manchester, N. H., New Jersey, Washington, D. C., Dorchester, Winchester, Boston, Providence, Worcester and the Newtons. There were numerous gifts.

Refreshments were served by Miss Emily Rowlands, Miss Helen Johnson, Miss Elizabeth Waterman, Miss Edith Fisher and Miss Marjorie Stripp.

The rooms were trimmed with masses of flowers.

Mr. and Mrs. Johnson left on a trip. They will reside at 132 Mt. Vernon street, Winchester.

The bridegroom is a graduate of Brown University, 1910. He won the much-prized Rhodes scholarship. He received his AB degree from Oxford University, England, in 1914.

The bride attended Walnut Hill School, Natick; Wellesley College and Simmons College.

DODSON'S CAFE SOLD.

Dodson's Cafe, conducted for the past year and a half by Mrs. M. C. Dodson at the corner of Main and Park streets, was sold last Saturday to Mr. Harry Coltin of Haverhill, who has taken possession and is now conducting the business.

Mr. and Mrs. Dodson have not yet decided what form of business they will engage in.

WEST SIDE BOULEVARD ROUTE.

Mr. Harry C. Miller, who has given some thought to the location of the proposed boulevard on the west side of the town, connecting with the Woburn boulevard and the Mystic Valley Parkway, believes that he has solved the question of the most feasible route, and also the least expensive. He thinks connection with the Woburn boulevard should be made by way of Pond and Cambridge streets to the rear of the Winchester Boat Club house, thence along the shore of Mystic lake to the Mystic Valley Parkway. Or continue it along Cambridge street to the strip of land separating the two lakes on which is situated the Medford Boat Club house and then form a connection with the Parkway. Mr. Miller claims rare beauty for both of the routes and either would be inexpensive.

"BAREFOOT GENE" PASSES THROUGH WINCHESTER.

"Barefoot Gene," of Chelsea, passed through Winchester last Friday on a barefoot hike from Boston to Nashua, N. H., via Lowell. The young man had his sturt registered in his hike book at the Winchester Post office at 10.45 a. m.

Two weeks ago "Barefoot Gene," hiked from Boston to Portland, Me., the trip taking him three days. Last week he "strolled" down to Woonsocket, R. I.

Next week the Chelsea young man leaves on a barefoot walk from Boston to Wilmington, Del., and he has in view a hike from coast to coast if he can secure the necessary financial backing.

KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS BUILDING.

The State Board of Charity will give a public hearing at Room 38, State House, Boston, at 2 p. m., on Sept. 15th in the matter of incorporation of the Knights of Columbus Building Association of Winchester under the provisions of chapter 125 of the Revised Laws as amended by chapter 181 of the acts of 1910.

Stoneham is still two town meetings behind its schedule, a lack of a quorum figuring for a third time again last week, and now the two meetings have been adjourned to Sept. 13.

Thomas McKee, who is with the troops in El Paso, writes: "I am receiving the Star every week and it is almost as good as being home to read the news". All the Winchester boys, so far as known, doing duty on the Mexican border, are receiving the Star and will continue to as long as they are absent.

Cleaning up the Aberjona river is of the utmost importance to Winchester and much progress has already been made. However if some of its tributaries having rise in Stoneham were also thoroughly cleaned, it would add much to the effectiveness of the Aberjona campaign.—[Stoneham Independent.

WINCHESTER IN EL PASO.

Lieut. Mobbs Tells of Camp Life on the Frontier.

Editor of the Star:

Dear Sir: A few lines to thank you for our Star so courteously send each week, it takes us all back home for about an hour while reading it; also in the following lines I will tell you something as to what our company is doing at the border.

El Paso is a delightful city and if it was not for the alkali dust everything would be O. K. But when the sand storm comes up in less than ten minutes' notice, like it did last Saturday, and blows every tent and things to pieces it is pretty strong. One has to cover his face and keep his mouth shut or you would sure "get your peck" down here. This is the rainy season and at present writing it has rained about six times since the 12th of August. It will rain dreadfully hard at Camp and the town will not have any, which is only a distance of about a mile and a half. It seems to follow different courses. When it rains it blows like snow when drifting and washes anything that is not cemented down securely.

Chaplin Rollins of our regiment built a chapel and recreation house mostly out of his pocket and when the dreadful sand and rain storm combined came, it blew it flat to the ground—a cost of about $150, and no chapel at the present time. We are in hopes that money enough can be raised to build another and it is a very nice thing to have for the boys.

The loam or dobe, as it is termed, sticks like cement, and after a rain it is baked hard and firm for a day or two. If one gets any on your clothes it sticks better than any friend you could find. Just now outside my tent it is quite bad.

In addition to our drills which are between the hours of 7.30 and 11.30, with recess and mess at 12 m., we have sanitary work, interior guard, every twelve days; outpost every six. Interior is out around the regiment, to watch any new happenings. Outpost is along the Rio Grande, watching and looking for any smuggling into Mexico of arms or other equipment.

Do not get the impression the Rio Grande is beautiful. So far the only beauty is that it separates United States from Mexico, and we are one side, they the other. Not that we have any yellow streaks, but it is better for all concerned. The river is a very dirty affair, as there is such an under current it keeps the bottom all stirred up and the very red colored loam makes it dreadful looking. The natives here bathe in it at some places.

The Government has furnished the lumber to build mess houses for the company boys and they are now busy building them. One such is for the cook shack, the other part for the company to eat in and lounge around if they care to. This is a screened affair, to keep the flies out of the food. The work is done after drills and all other details are attended to.

Each tent has an electric light, the power is furnished by the government, but the installing is done by the company, and the expense also.

We have the pyramid tent which holds seven men, and they are rather comfortably situated for the present, but if we stay much longer, or any length of time, they will have floorings and side walls and frame work and take out the tripod, making a nice square room with places to hang our clothes.

If you could walk down one street and see what fine washmen we have; they certainly can master the board and soap, and look and keep good and clean.

Also there is a Y. M. C. A. for the boys to write and read. It contains a piano, and if one passes an evening there you can hear their voices raise in singing as if they were all enjoying themselves. Movie pictures are shown each night, so the boys have pleasure right in camp without going to town for it.

One picture they witnessed was themselves marching from the North Station to the South Station enroute to Framingham. My, how they cheered themselves on the canvas, marching.

Everybody is well and contented, as can be expected.

Yours truly,

W. H. Mobbs,

1st Lieut. G Co., 5th Mass. N. G.

BASE BALL.

Bill Viano, the Lexington Manager, was "crabbing" all the afternoon, but as "crabbing" enlivens the game and does no harm we fail to see where there is any objection to it; every manager and player is out to win, and if getting the other fellow's "nanny" is a success, they very often get away with the game. Bill also brought his own umpire with him. We would have been within our rights by refusing to allow him to umpire, but rather than have any trouble and disappoint the crowd, Manager LeDuc consented, and Mr. McGuinness was allowed to umpire, he performed in a creditable manner and called all the plays correctly. "Bill" Coady as usual put up a good exhibition of umpiring, and both sides got everything they were entitled to.

Notes.

Percentage .538. A gain of 38 points since last week. We feel better, thank you.

We had a new man on second, Walter Kelley of Brookline, and if Saturday's game is a sample of his work, he is going to fill in nicely. He is a left handed batter and hits the ball on the nose; although he did not have much of a chance Saturday, being called on twice for bunts which he laid down perfectly. He accepted eight chances without an error. He is a ball player of experience and we hope we can retain him.

Well, what did you think of our new box man? Some pitcher; sure thing. There are more than one or two pitchers in the semi-pro ranks, but it is very hard to get the one you are looking after sometimes. Wednesday Manager LeDuc thought he had secured a good man, but between Wednesday night and Thursday morning he evidently got in touch with his manager and by a little increase in the salary decided to stick where he was. This left Manager LeDuc in a tight fix and he got in touch with Trayers and was able to sign him up; and the best part of the story is, that the pitcher who refused to come got slammed for 18 hits in the game he pitched. Well we guess we are lucky sometimes.

Charlie Flaherty has caught some pretty nice games on Manchester Field in days gone by, but he never put up any better exhibition than he did against Lexington Saturday. He had only one chance to catch a runner, and he had the ball in Wingate's hands waiting for him, and this player, Charles, is the fastest man on the Lexington team.

A number of fans have asked the writer if we are going to keep Flaherty for the rest of the season, but we do not think so as he is signed by the Lead Lined Pipe team, and as they did not play Saturday we were able to get him. Still we do not know what Manager LeDuc intends to do.

Frye as usual got away with his weekly bunt, beating the throw easily to first. Bob Barr says you cannot beat that run, getting combinations Frye and Wingate.

The two Weafer boys put up a good game for Lexington, and we fail to see why Woburn has to go out of town looking for talent when they have got such players in Woburn.

Waite played second base for Pere Marquette against Winthrop Saturday, and wonder of wonders! he managed to get a hit. He would still be playing here if he could only hit the ball once in a couple of games. He was a great fielder, but at batting the less said the better.

And this poor bunch of (second Ratus)? Queen Quality went down to Marblehead and wiped up the field with what is supposed to be the strongest semi-pro team in Massachusetts. The more you read the baseball stuff in The Times the more we wonder what Editor Haggerty is paying salaries for. They surely get their wires crossed.

If Woburn ever faced Queen Quality, we are willing to bet a hat against a pair of shoe laces that the Woburn team will get the worst beating of the year from them, and we have seen most of the semi-pro teams with any reputation in action.

Stoneham won from Medford 12 to 11. Some game for a back lot. Medford made 6 errors and Stoneham 7. And Percy says he has got a better team than Bishop.

Woburn managed to beat Arlington by a great rally in the 9th. We would have given considerable to have seen Pete O'Neil when the runs commenced to come over. That meant defeat. Woburn got eight hits off Wright.

McGovern as usual was the star of the Arlington team. He got three hits including a double, and also took McGinn's place behind the bat after McGinn was injured.

Reading beat some crowd from Roxbury 8 to 2. We never heard of them. Probably some team that comes along for their carfare. How the fans in Reading stand for it is a mystery.

You fans here in Winchester think you have lots of excitement when Woburn and Winchester clash. But Attleboro and North Attleboro have got the battle Verdun pushed into the discard when it comes to excitement and war. The game on the 19th of August was thrown out because the Saarts had put in Barrows, a former Chicago White Sox, and they also had to forfeit $50.00. But the Websters being good sports said they would waive all claim to the forfeit and play the game over and both teams could play whoever they wished. And each team outdid the other in getting players. Dave Henry was not good enough for Websters so they got Pete Wilson, formerly of the New York Americans, Jacklitzch of Brooklyn and Halstein of Lowell, while Saarts had Pumpelly of Yale and "Sim" Murch who had formerly played with several league clubs. Whittaker pitched for the Saarts and was hit for 11 bases while Pete Wilson was touched up for 12 hits. The Websters won 7 to 4, making the series stand 3 to 1 in their favor.

Manchester beat the Western Electric 10 to 0, getting to Bill Fitzgerald, the former Somerville High star, for 14 hits with a total of 23 bases.

Lexington will witness the next game between the two teams, Winchester and the Minute Boys, as we go over there on next Saturday, Sept. 2nd. We hope a good crowd of rooters will go over with the team. If you go by trolley the best way is to go from Woburn. Particulars in another part of the paper.

We said in last week's Star that there were a number of sports (?) who climbed the fence and got away without paying their contributions. We meant no criticism on any one in particular, but meant to hit all those who have been trying to get away with it. The Woburn Times says it takes something besides enthusiasm to run a ball game and this applies equally as well to Winchester. Lately there has been entirely too many of these "dead heads" trying to see a game for nothing and while we cannot do anything to make them come across with the few cents necessary, we would respectfully ask every man and woman who buys a ticket to wear it in plain view and show up these dead heads who are continually looking for something for nothing.

ROTHWELL—MARTIN.

Miss Katharine Burley Martin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Burley Martin of Wedgemere avenue, and Mr. Edmund Aylsworth Rothwell, son of Mr. and Mrs. James E. Rothwell of Brookline, were quietly united in marriage at the home of the bride's parents on Tuesday noon by Rev. Howard J. Chidley, pastor of the First Congregational Church of this town. There were no attendants.

Mr. and Mrs. Rothwell will be at home after October the first at 1093 Beacon street, Brookline.

TWILIGHT SLEEP.

Not a Method Average Practitioner Can Use.

Editor of the Star:

The enclosed clipping from the Boston Herald should be of interest to your readers, particularly in view of the fact that your paper gave some publicity a year or so ago to the subject of Twilight Sleep and its use at the Winchester Hospital.

Very truly yours,
Harris M. Richmond.

August 16, 1916.

Baltimore, Md., Aug. 15—Johns Hopkins Hospital has practically set its stamp of disapproval on the dammerschalaf, or "twilight sleep" method, for use in childbirth.

It abandoned its experiments in the use of the method more than nine months ago and the conclusion now reached is that the method is too dangerous; that the menace to the life of the new child is too grave to warrant its use except under the most favorable circumstances.

Difficult to Gauge.

After more than a year's use of the twilight sleep drug, scopolamin, the obstetricians found that it could be safely used only under exceptional conditions. The question of proper dosage proved so intricate that absolutely no chances can be taken.

The early results obtained were such that in the subsequent cases it was necessary to have two highly experienced men always at the bedside of the expectant mother as well as several nurses.

There was always the imminent danger of the strangulation of the baby, from the moment the scopolamin was given the woman, and as pointed out by Dr. William L. Milea, resident obstetrician, it was found necessary to detail two skilled obstetricians to the patient.

This, as in most of the cases, represented a vigil of from 10 to 17 hours for the doctors and nurses; and a constant vigil, as well.

"Scopolamin is far from the ideal drug for child-bearing," said Dr. Milea yesterday. "The attendant dangers are so great that it can never come into general use. The wealthy may afford it, as the expense of having skilled obstetricians always in call is the smallest consideration."

"But for the middle classes and poor classes—the masses, in other words—it seems out of the question; and it is among the masses that the greater births occur."

"It is not a method that the average practitioner can use. Our conclusions show that a man should have at least five years obstetrical hospital experience before venturing to use the scopolamin. The average practitioner can never hope to have this. Without this accumulated skill the dangers of the twilight-sleep method are too great."

TUFTS FOR DISTRICT ATTORNEY.

There is to be a warm contest for the Republican nomination for District Attorney for Middlesex County, as there are several candidates in the field. One of the most promising is Nathan A. Tufts of Waltham.

In his contest Mr. Tufts has behind him strong endorsement, and there are no strings on his candidacy.

NATHAN A. TUFTS.

Born in Fitchburg in 1879 he received his preliminary education in his native city. He matriculated at Brown University Law School in 1900 and at Boston University Law School in 1903. In the same year he was admitted to both general practice before the Massachusetts bar and before the United States Supreme Court.

Mr. Tufts' public career is well known as a member of the board of aldermen in Waltham from 1907 to 1909 as a member of the House of Representatives from 1910 to 1914 and of the Senate in 1915 and 1916 he has given most faithful service.

The Chiefs of the brotherhoods of the railroads who say that the men will be ordered out next Monday morning, apparently care but little how much suffering such a strike will cause to the inhabitants of the United States. They appear to be determined on a strike, unless all their demands are granted. They will not listen to arbitration, nor any settlement of the trouble except in their own way. The railroad leaders are fast losing the sympathy of the people because of their hot-headedness and their determination to run things to suit themselves. But they will find that the people will not stand for a strike.

LARGE ENTRY FOR PLAYGROUND SPORTS.

The sports to be held on the playground on Manchester Field next Monday morning at 9 o'clock promise to be contested by the largest list of entries for any year since the Playground opened. Instructor Leland has already received a number of applications for entry from among the children who frequent the playground and more are coming in every day. The attractive list of nine events for both boys and girls, with the equally attractive prizes offered the winners, seems to meet with the approval of the children.

The events will be run off promptly commencing at 9, and the parents of the children and all others interested in the Playground work are invited to attend, as this will mark the closing of the Playground for this season.

Among the children who have already entered the sports are the following:

Violet Foster, Mildred Gurney, Margaret Bennett, Mabel Guernsey, Annie Chitel, Alice Smith, Mabel Snodgrass, Lillian Grey, Mabel Grey, Ida Foster, Emily Melough, Eleanor Melough, Harold Hargrove, Herbert Grant, James Callahan, Fred Waters, George Waters, John Plummer, Hollis Clark, John Hevey, Elmer Grey, Hobart Davis, James Monahan, William Javery, James McAdams, Richard McAdams, Harold Boardley, Harry Smith, Gordon Cummings, Robert Foster, Lawrence McLaughlin, William Dwyer, Norman Harold, Harold Grey, Theodore Grant, Morris Davidson, James Mawn, John Mead, John Lamb, Ernest Dotten, William McNeil, James Boyle, Clinton Raynor, Maurice McFeeley.

QUANNAPOWITT FAIR WEDNESDAY-SATURDAY SEPT. 13, 14, 15, 16.

The annual cattle show and fair under the auspices of the Quannapowitt Agricultural Association will be held this year on Sept. 13, 14, 15, and 16 on the Old Reading-Wakefield fair grounds and race track. A meeting of the fair management this week in Reading decided the general plan of attractions and features. The fair grounds have been improved and may additions made to the equipment. Thousands of dollars is to be awarded in prizes and premiums and the variety is greater than ever before. The management is very sanguine of a record breaking attendance from Middlesex and Essex counties and metropolitan Boston districts. The State Board of Agriculture has endorsed the Quannapowitt or "old Reading" fair and cattle show in generous and complimentary terms and will have a special exhibit at the fair.

The restoration of the cattle show and live stock exhibit barred last year by the quarantine against hoof and mouth disease will be learned with pleasure by the lovers of fine cattle and live stock and brood horses. Besides the oldtime attractions of the country fair in the exhibit line there will be special exhibits of fish and game and forestry work. The exhibition hall will be a mecca for those interested in the mammoth grangers' exhibit and contest between six eastern Middlesex granges. There will also be the unrivalled vegetable, fruits, flower shows, children's school and youth's garden products, prize exhibits, the domestic handiwork and women's products exhibits. A local manufacturers' exhibit is also planned with a monster poultry show.

The sporting attractions will be as varied and even more entertaining than in past years of the fair. The attractive horse racing every afternoon for large money purses is a leading feature of the events on the race track.

Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Eaton are home from Manchester, N. H.

H. J. Foster's pacer, Little Gillig, figured in another important event in racing circles this week when it finished third in the "Free for All" at Barnstable. Little Gillig's heats were in 2:12 1-4, 2:14 and 2:16 1-2. He will race at South Weymouth in the 2:15 pace tomorrow and Monday.

WINCHESTER'S CELEBRATION.

The committee voted to extend an invitation to Mr. Kellaway, the landscape architect who made the plans for the waterway improvements and who also designed the two handsome bridges on Main street and Waterfield road. The Metropolitan Park Commissioners have also been invited, including Supt. Habberly of the Middlesex Fells Reservation. The members of the Board of Selectmen have been asked to be present.

There will be a large detail of Metropolitan police on Manchester Field in the evening to assist the local police in taking care of the big crowd that will certainly be present. The parade of decorated canoes in the evening on the river on Manchester Field promises to be one of the features of the celebration. Members of the Medford and Winchester Boat Clubs are to participate.

The band concert in the evening on Manchester Field promises to be one of the best ever held in Winchester as the Salem Cadet Band is the leading musical organization in the State.

A contribution paper has been placed in the STAR office, where those persons who have not been called upon by solicitors, can make contributions.

DOINGS AT THE HIGHLANDS SATURDAY AFTERNOON SEPT. 9th.

As you are probably aware by now the beginning of the festivities on the occasion of the celebration Saturday, Sept. 9th, will start in at the new playgrounds at the Highlands located on Washington street, near Cross street. The Salem Cadet Band will give a concert from 2 to 5 p. m.

The sports will consist of a Potato Race for boys and girls under 15 years.

50 yd. dash for boys under 15 years.

50 yd. dash for girls under 15 years.

3 legged race for boys under 15 years.

100 yd. dash open for young men.

Base ball game between the Forest A. C. of the Highlands and a strong team from out of town.

This should prove interesting, as the Highland boys have won 9 games and lost only two this season.

The prizes for the different events will consist of a sweater, running shoes as 1st and 2nd prizes in the 100 yd. dash.

Ball, bat and glove, 1st; glove and ball, 2nd prize. 50 yds. for boys.

2A Brownie Camera, 1st; Pair gym shoes 2nd prize. 50 yds. for girls.

For the potato race there will be four prizes as follows: a pair ice skates, 1st; Hockey 2nd for the boys; a middy blouse, 1st; silk middy, tie and belt 2nd, for the girls.

For the winners in the 3 legged race there will be two fine pocket knives.

For the ball game there will be a suitable money prize offered.

It is hoped that all those living at the Highlands will come to our new playgrounds and help to make this event a success in every way.

The Park Board have only started upon the work of putting this field into condition and with the small amount that they had to work with this year we can see that if from year to year they can get reasonable sums appropriated it won't be many years before we shall have a playground that will be a credit to the town and a benefit to our district.

H. F. Dearborn, Chairman on Sports for the Highlands.

The parade committee on celebration is actively engaged in perfecting plans for the feature. It is the earnest wish of the general committee that citizens of the town take part by parading over the route mentioned in last week's Star. A large body of our citizens joining with us in the march would tend to show a spirit of local enthusiasm that would make every one glad to be a resident of Winchester.

The Salem Cadet Band will furnish music. We would like to make this part of the program one to be remembered. The residents will have their homes decorated and well lighted and the shores of both ponds will furnish a spectacle well worth seeing. A large number of automobiles will be in line and this division will form an added attraction. All automobile owners in town are asked to participate and decorate and illuminate their cars.

Suitable prizes will be offered for the best. The parade will start at 6:45 p. m. sharp from Washington school house on Cross street and everyone taking part will be expected to be in line at 6:30, as band is due to give concert on Manchester Field at 8 o'clock. We want this parade to be a grand feature of the celebration and sincerely hope all townspeople will join with us and show our visitors on the occasion, that we are glad to celebrate and happy to be known as residents of Winchester. This is the chance to show our enthusiasm, local pride and happiness. Any information in regard to parade can be obtained from members of committee.

John F. O'Connor, James J. Fitzgerald, T. Price Wilson, Warren M. Fogg.

GRAND OPENING.

necessary to remove a portion of the wall in the alley room and to relocate the supporting posts. The alleys now extend from wall to wall in the alley room.

GEORGE S. LITTLEFIELD, Chairman Bowling Committee.

In addition to installing two additional alleys, the four original alleys have all been re-leveled, planed and finished, placing them in a first class condition. New bumpers, mats and triangles, together with pin-setters for the additions, have been installed. The lights have been re-hung in accordance with the most up-to-date methods and the heating system has been improved.

To insure greater comfort during the extremely cold weather, the whole rear portion of the house which faces Wedge Pond has been repaired and given a coat of outside plaster.

For the greater convenience of the ladies a new and commodious locker room, equipped with lockers and toilet conveniences, has been built on the bowling alley floor and a dumb waiter extending from the kitchen to the billiard room floor has also been built.

Notices have been issued to the members announcing a grand opening night on the new alleys for the gentlemen on Thursday, Sept. 14th. At this opening a number of special tournaments will be run off, for which the Club has donated a very attractive list of prizes. On the following Tuesday evening, Sept. 19th, the ladies have their opening events with further tournaments and prizes.

The regular Winter Tournament will open this season on Oct. 4th with the usual five men teams. The notice for entries in this tournament is already out and is returnable by Sept. 23d. The usual entry fee and rules will prevail.

The usual Mixed Tournament is to open about Dec. 1st, much earlier than on previous years, and the Spring Tournament is now scheduled to begin about the middle of January.

The alleys are to be open for the use of the ladies on Tuesday and Friday afternoons commencing Oct. 17th, when from 2 to 5 o'clock special tournaments and general bowling may be enjoyed by them. It is planned to present an attractive list of prizes for these afternoon events.

An attractive feature of the tournaments is that all six alleys are to be used each night with the exception of Wednesdays and Saturdays, thus allowing a more even distribution of the different matches and a much quicker completion of the tournaments. It is planned to reserve two alleys for general bowling on Wednesday evenings and all six alleys will be open on Saturday nights, two for general bowling and the remaining four for special tournaments, for which the bowling committee announce a number of prizes have been donated.

It is anticipated that in addition to the usual teams which are annually entered in the bowling contests at the Club, a number of new teams will be made up this winter.

CONTAGIOUS DISEASES.

The Board of Health report the following case of contagious disease for the week ending Aug. 30: Diphtheria 2.

The Public Service Commission has refused the Bay State Railroad petition for six cent fares in present five cent fare zones, but allows increase of fares on inter-urban routes.

SELECTMEN'S MEETING.

August 28th, 1916.

The Board met at 7:30 p. m., all present.

Supt. of Streets' Report: Report of the Supt. of Streets for the week ending August 26th, 1916, was received and placed on file.

Board of Survey: The Board took up the question of the laying out of Grassmere avenue, Gungarry, at a public hearing which was duly advertised in regard to the widths and grades of proposed street. Plans were submitted by the Town Engineer and Mr. Frank E. Rowe appeared with suggestions as to the width of the street to be laid out. Inasmuch as the Planning Board were making investigation along these lines, it was decided to lay the matter over until such recommendations were made. Mr. D. W. Pratt appeared, representing the petitioners.

Prince Avenue Sidewalks 1916: The Highway Committee recommended that improvements be made on Prince avenue, and the work is to be done under the supervision of the Supt. of Streets.

Arlington Street: The work of crowning the driveway of the Winchester Country Club into Arlington street was postponed until definite plans had been made by the parties interested.

Assessors: The report from the Assessors of the Town of Winchester FELL FROM TRAIN SATURDAY.

John J. Haley, 32 years old, of 64 Holland street, fell through an open door of a baggage car of a train arriving at Medford Hillside about 11 o'clock last Saturday night, receiving cuts on the back of his head and left hip. He was placed aboard a Boston-bound train and sent to the Massachusetts General Hospital.

He landed on his head, sustaining a severe scalp wound and he had many cuts and bruises. At first it was believed that a leg was broken, but it later developed that it was wrenched and bruised. An ambulance was called and Haley was taken to the hospital.

According to those in the car at the time, Haley was standing against the wall of the car when the brakeman opened the door for the approach to Medford Hillside. As the train came to a stop, a bicycle setting against the wall was started rolling by the stopping of the train, and the witnesses claim the bicycle hit Haley, tumbling him to the roadbed.

FOREST A. C. 4-PECKHAM N. B. O.

Last Saturday at the Highlands the home boys added another win to their credit by defeating the Peckham News Boys Club of Boston. The visitors were full of "pep" and ginger, but were unable to score against Lawson's pitching, for although two of them got around to third, he always tightened up in the pinches. In all he forced 16 to fan, the gentle breezes striking the side out in one, two, three order in the second and seventh. In the sixth the first man fanned, next man fanned out to left, then Libby, one of their most aggressive players, drove one through short, the next two were passed, that made three on and two out with Colbert at bat. Lawson got him in a hole for two strikes, when the coach at third raced towards the home plate with the evident intentions of confusing the pitcher, but the umpire called the man on third out for the interference. Then they kicked, but the decision was right. In the eighth, Lawson started a double play, taking Chicks' hit, throwing to McPartland at second, forcing out Coffey and getting Chick at first. Mathews had a good day with the stick, getting three hits for a total of seven in four times up, his home run in the first was a dandy, the ball going nearly to Brookside road. In the fifth he got a clean single and in the eighth a two bagger, stole third and then home, but was declared out, although it looked to us as though he slid under the ball as they put it onto him. McManus was passed the first time up and scored, got a two-base hit, and a single, batting for 1000. Shaughnessy's single in the second scored two runs. A pretty good game, and our standing now is 9 won, 2 lost. The score:

ARCANUM FISHING TRIP.

The annual fishing trip of Aberjona Council, Royal Arcanum was held as scheduled on Tuesday, 28 gentlemen leaving Winchester square on a special electric at 5 a. m. The car covered the distance to Swampscott in an hour and a half, and at 6:30 the party embarked on the fishing schooner Letter D, under the guidance of Capt. Haley.

The day was probably the best ever enjoyed by the Council during its trips extending over a period of 7 or 8 years, although the experts claimed it too bright and sunny to be the ideal weather for the best fishing. As a matter of fact the day was much more enjoyed for its fine summer weather and the sail than it was for the excellence of the fishing.

A total of about 40 fish were caught by the party, the prizes going as follows: First fish, a small haddock, George Rogers; largest fish, a 15-1-2 pound pollock, Minny Hamilton; largest number of fish, six, Leon E. Day.

The party returned to Winchester by their special electric after landing, reaching the centre at 7:30.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and for years it was supposed to be incurable. Doctors prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Catarrh is a local disease, greatly influenced by constitutional conditions and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is a constitutional remedy, is taken internally and acts thru the blood on the mucous surfaces of the system. One Hundred Dollars reward is offered for any case that Hall's Catarrh Cure fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

IMPROVEMENT CELEBRATION.

Arrangements Now Completed for Winchester's Gala Day.

Arrangements have now been fully completed for the Improvement Celebration tomorrow which marks the great advances in the conditions in Winchester, especially the waterways in the center of the town. It is worthy of note that the contributions for the celebration came from a comparatively few men who were in hearty accord with the project. There was no general soliciting of funds.

Supt. Habbler of the Middlesex Fells Reservation will have a large force of police on the Mystic Valley Parkway and on and around Manchester Field to take care of the large number of automobiles that will be parked adjacent to the field. The local police force will also be well represented.

At 6:30 a parade will form on Cross street and headed by the band will march to Manchester Field via the shore of Black Ball pond across which runs the new street connecting the Chapin school district with the center of the town. It is expected that about one hundred Boy Scouts will take part in the parade in addition to many of the citizens. The committee in charge of the parade earnestly hope that a large number of the people from all parts of the town will be in the procession. The route will be as follows:

The parade will start promptly at 6:45 p. m. from the Washington School House on Cross street. From there the route will be via Washington, Irving, Florence, Holland, Oak and Spruce streets to Black Ball Pond.

Here the marchers will turn to the left and take the foot path along the East shore of the Pond to Mt. Vernon street, thence by way of the new foot path to Main street, cross the new Main street and Waterfield road bridges and enter Manchester Field.

The automobiles will take the new street when they reach Black Ball Pond, going by way of the west shore to Railroad avenue, to Main street, joining the marchers at the Main street bridge, via Converse place, and proceeding with them to Manchester Field.

Many of the business buildings about the center of the town will be decorated with flags and bunting, also many residences. Mr. A. T. Downer of the Winchester Laundry, will profusely decorate and illuminate his handsome laundry building.

The festivities will open tomorrow afternoon on the new playground at the Highlands at two o'clock. There will be an interesting series of sports for the children, followed by a game of base ball by the Highland A. C. boys and a good team from out of town. There will also be a concert by the Salem Cadet Band in this field during the afternoon.

The parade of decorated and illuminated automobiles promises to be quite extensive.

At eight o'clock the festivities on Manchester Field will open with a grand concert by the Salem Cadet Band, during which will be a fine display of fireworks.

The illuminated and decorated canoe parade on the Aberjona will also be at eight o'clock. This promises to be a very pleasing feature, and one which can be seen the entire length of the river by the people and automobilists. The Medford and Winchester Boat Clubs will take part and suitable prizes will be awarded the best decorated and illuminated canoes.

The illuminations around the pond, along the river and the bridges, promises to be extensive and very pretty.

The entire affair promises to be one of the biggest celebrations held in Winchester in many years.

There was a meeting of the committee last evening to clean up the odds and ends at which it was ascertained that everything was in readiness for the big celebration. A headquarters tent for the committee will be placed on the field near Waterfield road. A doctor will be within easy call so that in case of accident or sickness the patient will be taken to the tent and treated.

Fifty or more girls will be in the parade from the Highlands to Manchester Field and many of the houses over the route will be illuminated and decorated.

Gov. McCall will be present at eight o'clock and deliver a short speech from the band stand.

Notice.

The weather: If the day should prove stormy, box 333 on the fire alarm will be sounded between one and two o'clock. This will call off the afternoon sports. If conditions should continue unfavorable, then the same box will be given in the early evening, which will call off the evening program. In the event of the celebration not being held on account of the weather, it will be postponed to Saturday, Sept. 16th.

BILLBOARD REMOVED.

The big billboard which has adorned the front of the building in the square for the past two months was removed on Wednesday by the Donnelly billposting company in accordance with the orders of the Fire Prevention Commissioner. It is reported that the other large billboard on the building of Mrs. Sarah H. Rice at the corner of Main and Park streets, which the Inspector of Buildings had ordered removed, will also probably come down. Mrs. Rice having referred the matter to Mr. Donnelly.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank R. Miller are spending a fortnight at Silver Lake, N. H.

BASE BALL.

An Easy Win for Winchester at Lexington.

By "Mack"

We played the return game with Lexington Saturday, and there was nothing to it but Winchester. We put one run over in the first inning and three more in the next; so that the game was won right there. The Minute Boys could not do anything with Trayers when hits meant runs, although they hit him for nine bases but none of them did much damage. To show you how effective he was after getting himself in the hole by easy pitching where he filled the bases with no one out, the next three struck out. Weaver pitched a fair game, but not as good as the game he pitched in Winchester. McQuinn seemed to find his pitching just suited for him, for he got a three bagger and a double driving in most of Winchester's runs. Blowers, Kelley and Sullivan pulled off the fielding stunts. Sullivan in right field pulling down three flies that looked good for extra bases. We had as strong a team as could be placed in the field Saturday and were due to win from most any team we should meet on that day, and it was no disgrace for Lexington to lose to us. The game was run off smoothly enough, but we had it won so easily that there was no chance for a kick or argument.

BASE BALL TOMORROW.

Taking everything into consideration, and allowing for the Celebration, etc., we have decided to give the fans what they are looking forward to, and that is a live game of ball. We have with us tomorrow, Stoneham, the leaders of the Mystic Valley League, and a team capable of playing good ball. Labor Day they held Manchester to a 1-0 score, and any team that can do that is good enough for Winchester. We had to go away last Saturday and it would not be fair to the supporters of the team to ask them to go away again tomorrow. Krepps, formerly of Tufts, will pitch for Stoneham, and Trayers will do the hurling for Winchester. We will have the same lineup as played Labor Day.

Stoneham has got a fine hitting team and we are wondering what they will do to Trayers. You fans want to watch the Stoneham catcher, McGee. From reports they say he is a star. The Celebration here in Winchester will not interfere with you fans seeing the game as the principle part of the event will be in the evening. The afternoon will consist only of a band concert and some sort of a game of ball. Come down and see us get tuned up for the next Woburn game, or games.

TABLETS PLACED ON BRIDGES.

The two bronze tablets for the Main st. and Waterfield rd. bridges now to be known as the "Converse" and "Waterfield" bridges, arrived this week and are being placed on the parapets of the bridges. They are expected to be in position by tomorrow. The tablets are of very artistic design and add much to the appearance of the bridges.

NEW GARAGE UNDER CONSTRUCTION FOR KELLEY & HAWES CO.

KELLEY & HAWES COMPANY GARAGE.

A Splendid Building With Latest Improvements.

The new public garage for Kelley & Hawes Company will have a frontage of 87 feet on Railroad avenue and will extend through to Winchester place with a frontage there of 54 feet. The structure is to be three stories high, each story being at least 12 feet high. The area of the three floors is to be over 30,000 square feet. The first story has two large door openings on Railroad avenue and is to be used by Kelley & Hawes Company for their own use for housing trucks which are in their express business, etc.

There will also be a large, well finished office on the first floor, with ladies' and gentlemen's lavatories attached. At the rear end of this first story there is a boiler room bricked off from the rest of the basement and having an entrance from Winchester place.

The second story is entered from Winchester place. This floor is to be used for a public garage with the exception of a section at one corner, which will be used for undertaking rooms. The grade of Winchester place is much higher than Railroad avenue, making an easy and gradual approach to the garage on the second story.

The office, ladies' waiting room, lavatory, etc., are all reached by an entrance hall from Winchester place. The finish in all of these rooms is red brick and they are plastered in hard cement.

The morgue is located in a retired section and is fitted up in the most modern manner. The walls are of white enamel tile and the floor is ceramic tile. The plumbing arrangements in this department, as throughout the whole building, are of the very best.

The third story is to be used for the public storage of automobiles. This floor is reached by a wide iron stairway from Winchester place. It is also reached by a large electric freight elevator enclosed in fire-proof walls. There are fire-proof doors leading from the first, second and third stories into this elevator.

The entire building is to be of fire-proof material. The walls are brick and all the floors and the roof are reinforced concrete resting on heavy steel frames. All of the windows have iron frames and are filled with wire glass. The doors, as well as the whole of the building will be fire-proof. There will be 16 foot turn-tables on the first and second stories.

The building, as a whole, made of the best and most durable material, absolutely fire-proof, and with its thorough and modern equipment will aim to reach the highest standard of service and efficiency.

AUTO ACCIDENT YESTERDAY.
Another auto accident occurred on Forest street yesterday forenoon at 10 o'clock when a Ford touring car overturned, pinning its two occupants underneath and badly injuring Henry Frost, 85 years old, of Pleasant street, Belmont. The car was owned and driven by Mr. Frost, who was accompanied by his daughter, Mrs. Helen Butterfield.

When the car was in front of the residence of Mr. J. A. Laraway the driver attempted to turn out of the electric car tracks. In doing so a tire was stripped from the wheel and the auto suddenly overturned. Passing autoists took the two occupants to the Winchester Hospital, where Dr. Ordway found that Mr. Frost was suffering from several broken ribs and possible internal injuries. He was delirious for some time, and it is thought that owing to his age his recovery is doubtful. Mrs. Butterfield was badly bruised and cut, but not seriously injured. The wrecked car was taken to the Mystic Valley Garage.

INFANTILE PARALYSIS IN TOWN.

First Case in Winchester Developed Last Friday.

Winchester, previously immune to the much dreaded infantile paralysis, had its first case last Friday when Dr. Simpson, deputy health officer for the State confirmed Dr. Clarence J. Allen's diagnosis of the case of Walter Dempsey, the 5 year old son of Patrick Dempsey of No. 1 Cedar street. Dr. Allen became convinced that the boy was afflicted with the disease late Thursday night, and immediately notified the State Board of Health. He is one of a family of nine children.

The afflicted child was immediately taken to the Evans Memorial Hospital at Brighton which maintains a ward for these cases, and the members of the family and other persons who had been in contact with him were quarantined for a period of three weeks. Contrary to other reports, this is the only case thus far found in Winchester.

Reports regarding the condition of the child are that he is suffering from a light case of the disease, with every prospect of recovery.

SELECTMEN'S MEETING.

Sept. 5, 1916.

The Board met at 7:30 p. m., present Messrs. Davidson, Kendall and Sanborn.

In the absence of Mr. Kerr, Mr. Sanborn was elected Clerk pro tem. Tanneries: A letter was received from the Beggs & Cobb Tanning Co. in regard to the odors from their tannery about which some complaints have been made. Mr. Beggs for the Company advised that they were making every effort to eliminate the trouble, and it was hoped that in the near future there would be no further cause for complaint.

Clerical Assistance: Applications for the position of the Clerk of the Board of Selectmen were received from Frederick W. Trombly and George S. F. Bartlett. Both were laid on the table for further consideration.

Town Celebration: Mr. Fitzgerald and Mr. Laraway for the General Committee on town celebration appeared to urge the Board of Selectmen to decorate the Town Hall and the Fire & Police Building for the coming celebration. The Board informed the Committee that while they would like to comply with this request, yet they had no funds at their disposal with which to do the work.

Sidewalk Construction 1916: Application was received from W. H. Cole, 45 Calumet road, asking for granite curbing abutting his property on Cambridge street. The Clerk was instructed to write Mr. Cole that the Board would be obliged to lay his application on the table for the present. It was thought, however, that they would find an opportunity to set curbing later in the season; otherwise, it would be necessary to refer it to next year's Board.

Aberjona River: Mr. Davidson reported that with Mr. Kendall he had visited the Gelatine Works and found that no waste materials were being emptied into the river. They also visited the Baeder-Adamson Glue Works, but their investigations at this plant have not yet been completed.

THE SCHOOL GARDEN EXHIBITION.

As a result of a recent meeting of the Board of Management of the Winchester Mothers' Association, the Garden Committee in charge of children's gardens in Winchester were authorized to decide as to the advisability of holding the regular fall garden exhibition this year.

Upon careful consideration, and in view of the quite general apprehension of unfavorable developments of the prevalent children's disease, it is felt that an "intelligent deference" should be shown because of this feeling. Therefore the committee has decided not to hold the exhibition this fall.

Many children throughout the schools have done excellent work in developing their gardens and have looked forward to exhibiting their products. We regret that we have to disappoint them as well as the many people in town who are interested in the work.

Prizes will however, be awarded to deserving children for effort and result as noted by the inspection of gardens which has been going on during the spring and summer by a large number of visitors who have generously contributed their time for the work.

Later notice will be given to the children as to the awarding of prizes.

Chairman Garden Committee,

YOUR AFFAIRS AND MINE

A group of Winchester gentlemen were discussing the present literary interest and among other things it was pointed out that our authors, though a happy and prosperous lot, and dowered beyond other men with the spirit of cheerfulness, are, or seem to be, somewhat perturbed over the present state of their calling in this country, and even over the quality of their output. Perhaps a presentation of the subject from the historical point of view may do something to ease troubled souls. Bishop Berkley, who died in 1753, felt very much as our authors today. His grief over the decadence of literature in England was profound. Surely there is an intensely modern note in these stanzas:

The Muse, disgusted at an age and clime
Barren of every glorious theme,
In distant lands now waits a better time,
Producing subjects worthy fame.
In happy climes, the seat of innocence,
Where nature guides and virtue rules,
Where men shall not impose for truth and sense
The pedantry of courts and schools;
There shall be sung another golden age,
The rise of empire and of arts,
The good and great inspiring epic rage,
The wisest heads and noblest hearts.

The prelate, as we all know, placed his hope in America "time's noblest offspring." And now it seems that America has failed us. The catastrophe is real, since there are now no distant lands in which we can wait "a better time." If "time's noblest offspring" disappears us, all is lost. If we are incapable of "producing subjects worthy fame" or of avoiding "the pedantry of courts and schools," we are precisely in the condition that England was, according to the bishop, in the eighteenth century. At any rate the mournful among us may be somewhat cheered by the reflection that the plaint is not new—nor is the literary unrest. Both are as old as written language. Probably the cave men felt the same way about their art. At last it can be said of our writers, who are also critics, that they are true to type and loyal to precedent. And yet it is quite possible that they may be right in their opinions. Only some allowance must be made for the distorting influence of a very natural human tendency.

Among Bishop Berkley's contemporaries were Swift, Steele, Addison, Johnson, Fielding, Pope and Goldsmith—though the latter came a little late. But these men were all alive at the same time, and with the best work of many of them the lash-op must have been familiar. Later came Gibbon and Burke—not poets, it is true, but nevertheless distinguished men of letters. And in the latter part of the century there was a great flowering of genius. It is not meant to argue from all this that there are any such men as these at work at the present time—that may or may not be true—but only that no matter how favorable conditions may be, there is still this disposition to depreciate contemporary literature. Nor is there any reason to believe that this despairing attitude is a mere pose. Sometimes it may be, but certainly not in all cases. But there is another class of critics composed of men who lament, not so much the degradation of literature, as the dull and stupid inability of the public to understand and appreciate really great work. These are rather given to exaggerating contemporary excellence, and yet they will, in the next breath, insist that nothing great can be produced among a people who do not even know what is good. But from whichever point of view the subject is considered, the conclusion is always the same—that the times are out of joint, and literature is in a bad way. One cannot without a smile read Juneval's famous lines:

Hence Syrian speech and Syrian manners come,
And Syrian music, and the barbarous drum,
Hie to the circus, ye that set a price,
On foreign lures, and exotic vice!

The grievance, it is clear, is honorary with age—and yet literary has somehow managed to survive. And there have, too, been great revivals and recoveries. Nor have things often been as bad as the pessimists would have us believe. There was some good even in the literature of the Restoration.

But for one of the most interesting discussions of the subject The Spectator is indebted to one of Juneval's contemporaries, the younger Pliny, who lived from 61 to 113 A. D. The Roman was tender toward the poets of his time, but severe on the public. And yet there is a suspicion of gentle irony in the following:

"This year has produced a plentiful supply of poets; during the whole month of April scarcely a day has passed on which we have not been entertained with the recital of some poem." Pliny, however, meant to be more respectful, for he says that it is a pleasure to him "to find that a taste for polite literature still exists, and that men of genius do come forward and make themselves known, notwithstanding the lazy attendance they get for their pains." But of the public he speaks thus:

"The greater part of the audience sit in the lounging places, gossip away their time there, and are perpetually sending to inquire whether the author has made his entrance yet, whether he has got through the perforce, or whether he has almost finished the piece. Then at length they saunter in with an air of the greatest indifference; nor do they condescend to stay through the recital, but go out before it is over, some slyly and stealthily, others again with perfect freedom and unconcern. And yet our fathers can remember how Claudius Caesar walking one day in his palace, and hearing a great shouting, inquired the cause; and being informed that Nonianus was reciting a composition of his, went immediately to the place, and agreeably surprised the author with his presence. But now, were one to bespeak the attendance of the idlest man living, and remind him of the appointment ever so often, or ever so long beforehand, either he would not come at all, or, if he did, would grumble about having 'lost a day' for no other reason but because he had not lost it. So much the more do these authors deserve our encouragement and applause who have resolution to persevere in their studies, and to read out their compositions in spite of this apathy or arrogance on the part of their audience."

Here plainly the fault was, not with the poets, but the public, which was the victim of both "apathy and arrogance." One can perhaps picture the scene, and imagine the reproving scorn shown by Pliny, who says that he was usually "present," toward those who went out "some slyly and stealthily, others again with perfect freedom and unconcern." And there were actually some who would not go in until they were sure that the author had "almost finished his piece." These "readings" must have been even more trying to the poets than to the audience. There certainly was nothing stimulating in the atmosphere.

MRS. FREDERICK ROBINSON.

Mrs. Annie Jeanette Robinson, widow of the late Frederick Robinson, died at her home, 32 Highland avenue, on Sunday. Although she had been ill for the five days previous, her death was most unexpected and was due to heart failure. She was 61 years of age.

Mrs. Robinson had made her home in this town for the past nine years. She was a native of Boston, her parents being Daniel S. and Caroline (Griggs) Sargent. She was a member of St. John's Episcopal Church of Boston, although with advancing age had not been active for a number of years. Her husband passed away about 12 years ago.

She is survived by seven children: Mrs. Paul R. Eaton of North Scituate, Mrs. D. A. Ives of Winthrop, Mrs. Annie I. Mitchell of this town, late of Westwood, N. J., Frederick G. Robinson of Somerville, Mrs. Thomas G. Hodgson of this town, Gilbert Robinson of this town and Willard S. Robinson of this town.

The funeral services were held from the late residence on Wednesday afternoon at 2:30, and were conducted by Rev. Donald Gerrish of the Methodist Episcopal Church of Lawrence.

The hymns "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere," "Face to Face," and "He Giveth His Beloved Ones Sleep" were rendered by the Webster Quartette.

The pall bearers were the three sons of the deceased and Messrs. Paul R. Eaton, D. Albert Ives and Thomas G. Hodgson. The burial was in Wildwood Cemetery.

During the service the following poem was read: "But, Lord," she said, "my shoulders still are strong—I have been used to bear the load so long;

"And see, the hill is passed, and smooth the road." "Yes," said the Stranger, "yield me now the load."

Gently he took it from her, and she stood Straight-limbed and lithe, in new-found maidenhood

Amid long sunlit fields; around them sprang A tender breeze, and birds and rivers sang.

"My Lord," she said, "the land is very fair!" Smiling, he answered: "Was it not so there?"

"There?" In her voice a wondering question lay. "Was I not always there, then, as today?"

He turned to her with strange, deep eyes aflame: "Knowest thou not this kingdom, nor my name?"

"Nay," she replied; "but this I understand— That thou art Lord of Life in this dear land!"

"Yea, child," he murmured, scarce above his breath; "Lord of the Land, but men have named me Death."

GAGE—GREENLEAF.

Announcements were issued this week of the marriage of Miss Ruth Howard Greenleaf, daughter of Mrs. Albert James Pilgram of Melrose Highlands, and Dr. Arthur T. Gage, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Gage of 4 Madison avenue, this town.

The ceremony was performed at the home of the bride's grandmother, Mrs. Howard Greenleaf, Melrose Highlands, on Monday morning at nine o'clock by Rev. Harold Marshall, pastor of the Melrose Universalist Church. There were no attendants and the ceremony, which was very quiet, was witnessed only by the members of the immediate families.

A wedding breakfast followed the ceremony, after which Dr. and Mrs. Gage left on an automobile tour through the Adirondacks. Dr. Gage, who is a graduate of Tufts Medical School and who has been practicing at Melrose Highlands for the past nine years, is well known to many of Winchester's younger residents, having graduated from the Winchester schools and made his home here up to the time of opening his practice in Melrose.

LABOR DAY GAMES.

Woburn and Winchester go 50-50.

Between 9,000 and 10,000 people saw the two games between Winchester and Woburn Labor Day. The morning game was probably one of the best games ever played on Lexington Park between the two teams. Woburn went out and got one of the best left handers in the business to beat us, but only for a "break" in the luck we would have been playing yet. This man Woburn had is now the property of the Cleveland American League Club. But at that he did not have anything on Trayers. We managed to get four hits off him and superb fielding by White and Holt saved a few more hits being registered off him. The run that won the game came over in the fourth inning, when Connors got the first of the two hits off Trayers. Holt sent him to second, where he scored on a fly by Meehan, owing to poor handling of the return; Wingate threw the ball to Bangs, and it got away from him. Trayers was backing up and went after the ball, but it hit a stone and then struck Trayers on the knee going into the crowd and Connors came over with what proved to be the winning run. The nearest we came to scoring was when Linehan drove out a three bagger, and although Flaherty made a good try, he was thrown out on a hard drive by the shortstop. It was a hard game to lose, and as we said, it was a case of "break" and "Woburn got it" and the game. The game was one of the fastest ever played and Coady and Hardy put up a good exhibition behind the plate and on the bases.

Afternoon Game.

The second game was played on Manchester Field before a large crowd as witnessed the morning game, but the game was not so cleanly played but was more of a heart breaker. First one side would score, then the other, and between errors and hitting the crowd was kept on the anxious seat all the afternoon. We scored two runs in the first inning on a base on balls to Bangs and a home run by Leland. Woburn tied it up in the second by bunting hits and an error by our side. They went in the lead again in the 6th on a hit by McMahon and a home run by Lowe. Then in the eighth we put it on ice to all appearances by sending three men over on hits and a couple of "boots" by Harold McDonald. In the ninth Woburn came across with another run, owing to poor fielding by our player, but the necessary "punch" was lacking and we came under the wire winners by a 7 to 5 score. Frye started the game and held Woburn to 4 hits up to the seventh inning, when with two on the bases, Manager LeDue decided to put in Trayers. While Frye might have got out of the hole with no runs, we needed that game and here was the proper time to make the change, which we did with good results. Frye did not seem to pitch his usual game, and there are a number of "fans" on the field who wanted to see him go against Woburn when he is "right." At that we think that he could have beaten Woburn Labor Day, but second guesses are always the best. We hope to play off the final game at an early date as we know the fans are anxious to see the two teams play the greatest game of the season.

Notes.

Percentage .563. Still gaining.

We were well represented at the game in Lexington, about 300 fans going over, and Lexington is a hard town to reach, taking so long to get there.

The rooters in Lexington had small chances to "root" for their team, but made the most of it when they got the opportunity.

Currier, the Lexington boy, whom Viano laid off for poor hitting, got three nice hits and all clean.

Bagley on first base, couldn't hit the side of a house with a shovel. Trayers got him on strikes three times.

Kelley, their shortstop, is quite a fielder, getting the ball in all positions. This was always the weak spot in the Minute Boys.

Bill Viano was as quiet as a mouse all the afternoon. Generally he makes as much noise at a game as a band in a Fourth of July parade, but Bill was beaten and he knew it.

McInnes, the umpire behind the plate, did a good job of guessing, for that is all you could call his decisions on balls and strikes. He was equally bad on both sides, so we had no kick coming only that it takes away interest in a game.

Jim Murray said the crowd at Woburn was the best paying crowd that they have ever had on the field. We wish we could say the same, but Woburn has a stand where fans are willing to give 25 cents, knowing they are going to be comfortable. They have seating arrangement for about 800 people at a game and while this is sufficient for an ordinary game, it is sadly lacking on a holiday.

Here in Winchester, with our beautiful (?) and artistic (?) stand, and rows of imported bleachers; we manage to seat 200 on any day. It is a disgrace to the town and the citizens should get after the Park Department and insist on having proper seat arrangement on Manchester Field.

The stand is not safe for any one to sit in as the boards are all loose and big spikes, and nails are coming up so that ladies are getting their clothes torn there every game.

Right here we want to thank the Selectmen for use of extra chairs during the games on Labor Day. They let us have all the chairs in the basement of the Town Hall, about 125 in all, and we would have been in a bad box without them. They are not supposed to supply Manchester Field.

Here we are, having celebrations, and we have a field here in Winchester for 20 years and it is not half finished yet.

Bailey, the pitcher that Woburn put in against us, was formerly of the Braintree White Sox, and we beat him one game with them. We also beat him when he pitched for Stoneham. He was signed up early this summer by Cleveland, and will join the team in the spring.

White, the new shortstop, is a star, and plays on Georgetown. He is much better in the field than at the bat, but was no "frost" even there.

Harold McDonald is always bound to be the "goat" when Woburn and Winchester meet on Manchester Field. But you Woburn and Winchester fans must remember that he is one of the best fielding semi-pro second basemen in the game, and goes after everything in sight, making impossible plays sometimes. So that, when he makes an error, due allowance should be made for it.

Take that play at second base, when he dropped the ball as he was about to turn and make a throw to first, well a number of fans thought Hardy was wrong on that decision, but only during the last stay at home of the Braves the same play occurred and Evers was the victim. He protested so strongly that he was chased from the game and got a three days' suspension. Hardy knows the rules.

Well you fans heard and read quite a bit of news about the qualities and speed of the players and all that; and we suppose it will take the final game to have you make up your minds on some of the players.

Just a word about Lowe, the Woburn first baseman. Here is a good ball player and he should not use the questionable style of play he pulls off at that bag. He has a bad habit of taking throws the wrong side of the bag, and whether he does it intentionally or not, we do not know. At any rate, if he does not know any better he should be taken in hand and taught the first rudiment of first base playing or quit the position and try some place else, where he won't make such a botch of it. Three times in the game Labor Day afternoon, not to say anything about the morning game, he deliberately tried to block runners coming down the path.

Take runners like Leland and Linehan who can take care of themselves it does not make much difference, but when he bowls over small runners like Bangs, it does not look right. Now a good baseman will always try and get his foot on the bag and out of the way of a runner before he gets there, but this man Lowe, does anything but that, and one of these days he will probably get the worst spiking a player ever got; for once it gets around among other players that he is deliberately blocking, they are going to come into him feet first instead of standing up. The writer does not mean to say he is doing this kind of playing on purpose, but you fans have seen what I have written about, and you can judge for yourself. Now watch the howl from Woburn.

We used about 7 new balls during the games, four of them going into the river and at one stage of the game we did not have a ball on the field. The boys threw one back and it lodged on the stand, where one of the spectators grabbed it and tried to put it in his pocket. He probably thought we were running the game for his benefit, or else he wanted to let the spectators on the field know he had attended a big league game some time or other. They put the balls in their pockets there, so we supposed he tried to be funny, but the rest failed to see it.

Batting averages for 4 or more games:

Trayers	263
Linehan	331
Frye	319
Ryan	306
Duffy	277
Blowers	259
Tift	231

Kelley	671

Here are five regulars batting over .250 and 3 of them over .300, a first class showing, considering the pitching we are facing.

In conclusion we cannot refrain from saying a few words regarding the handling of the crowd Labor Day. Of course Manchester Field being open with no ropes or fences to hold a crowd in check it is a very difficult matter to handle a large crowd so that everyone will be satisfied. Now in the five years we have been holding games in Winchester, we can say we never saw a crowd handled better than on Monday. Sergeant McCauley with Officers Harrold and O'Connell, the minute they arrived on the field proceeded to get the crowds who were sitting on the grass in a line and when once there, they were kept there or else told to go somewhere else. It was an orderly crowd but good police arrangement helped out.

A PRETTY THEATRE.

One Similar Would be Ornament to Winchester.

The Regent Theatre, Arlington, is one of the prettiest and best appointed in this section, and but very few in Boston surpass it. This theatre is used for motion pictures and the performances are attended by the best people in Arlington and also by a large number from Winchester. The photo plays are of the best, with no objectionable features to cause parents anxiety for their children. Indeed, this class of plays has had its day, as managers of theatres have found out that they do not pay in the long run. The Regent makes it a point to have some feature in each performance of an educational and instructive nature, and yet every pleasing to the young people. This theatre is managed by a Winchester man, Mr. Roy H. Booth of Crescent road.

Some time ago he applied for a license to show moving pictures in Winchester, but the Selectmen failed to grant his request. It was the intention of the parties who are erecting the new building on Main street to provide a fine theatre on the second floor. There has been such an advance in the character of moving pictures that many persons who have been opposed to their coming here in the past, would offer no objections now. Mr. Booth has made quite a success in Arlington, both for the educational features he has introduced and the high character of the plays he puts upon the screen in Arlington, and he would, if given a license here, give the same high standard of performances. Motion pictures are increasing in popularity each year, and no doubt, will soon be seen in Winchester, therefore it is hoped that when the times comes to grant a license, it be given to Mr. Booth, who is a citizen of the town and who knows the desires of the people for the best features.

The owners of the new building stand ready at any time to build the theatre for Mr. Booth.

FATAL AUTO ACCIDENT.

Man Killed and Woman Seriously Injured on Cambridge Street.

A bad auto accident occurred sometime around midnight Saturday night when a touring car containing two men and two women struck a telegraph pole on Cambridge street just over the Woburn line. From indications the accident was due to a joy ride by the parties involved. The man killed was Arthur D. Vassallo of Cliftondale and the injured woman is Mrs. Nettie Touriney of Somerville. The other two occupants of the car escaped apparently uninjured, their names not being given. All four in the party were married, although not to each other.

The wrecked car was discovered by two motorists on their way to Manchester, N. H., at the foot of the slope near the school house. These men, William E. Chandler of Manchester, N. H., and Thomas F. Delaney of Boston, found the injured woman busily engaged in removing the number plates from the wrecked car; and her companion was trying to hammer off the number of the engine. Chandler at that time made note of the car's number.

Being unfamiliar with the locality, Chandler and his companion brought the victims and their companions to Winchester, and took them to the office of Dr. Victor A. Aimeone on Main street. Dr. Aimeone ordered their removal to the Winchester Hospital. There it was found that Vassallo had a fractured skull, leg and four ribs broken. He died at 6:30 Sunday morning. Mrs. Touriney is reported to have a bad concussion and probable internal injuries.

The other man and woman went to the Winchester Garage and hired a car to take them home. They said nothing of the accident and the chauffeur did not inquire into their identity. The woman was left near Sullivan Square, Charlestown and the man taken to Cliftondale. The chauffeur was well paid for the trip and given his breakfast. The identity of these parties is said to be known.

A resident in the vicinity of the accident notified the Woburn police, who visited the scene. They found the wrecked car, with scattered tools and broken beer bottles nearby. As the numbers had been removed, it was not until later that the owner was ascertained, when Chandler reported the accident to the Winchester police after leaving the victims at the hospital. The car had evidently been traveling at high speed when it struck the pole, as it had carried forward far enough to land against a tree some feet distant. It is said that there is a slight turn in the road at the point and evidently the driver failed to see it.

Mrs. Touriney is the wife of Roger J. Touriney, a car inspector for the Boston & Maine Railroad, living at 118 Glen street, Somerville. She is about 25 years old and has a daughter. Her husband, who works nights, was notified of his wife's condition shortly after his return home Sunday morning. He had thought that she was in the house until he found her gone.

Vassallo was a son of Mrs. Marie Vassallo, for upward of 30 years, a familiar figure in offices of the downtown district in Boston, particularly in Newspaper row, where she used to sell fruit, but of recent years has sold olive oil and other Italian delicacies, as well as candy. He was about 24 years old and lived with his wife and infant daughter at the home of his mother. He carried on an express business.

Hot Compresses Needed.

Here is a method of preparing hot compresses for the sick when moist heat is required, which it would be well for all housewives to know about: Take a double cooker, partially fill over part with water, and place over fire. Wring out pieces of wet flannel until as dry as possible, and place in upper half of cooker. Place upper part in lower, and when the water boils the flannels are ready to apply. No wringing is necessary.

Not So Slow for Philadelphia.

"Willie," cried Willie's mother, "come right in the house this very minute and go to work on your arithmetic." "No, ma," returned Willie, "I want to grow up a law-abiding citizen and the Pennsylvania legislature has just passed a law forbidding child labor."—Life.

The Winchester Star

Entered at the post-office at Winchester, Massachusetts, as second-class matter.

Sightseers are warned to keep off of the tracks of the steam road adjoining the new street across the pond tomorrow evening. There is plenty of space for all to see what takes place.

The hundred million dollar tax forced upon the people of the United States by President Wilson is going to cost. The high cost of living is certain to take a big jump upwards. He was elected on a low cost of living platform.

We are in receipt of a photograph of an attractive post office building at Delaware, Ohio, from Mr. Eben Caldwell together with his opinion that a similar building would be fine for Winchester. Perhaps Mr. Caldwell can arrange it.

Postmaster General Burleson is said to be considering a reduction of the postage rate on letters. If he would turn his attention to bettering the service in some New England sections, he'd be doing a lot of people a great favor.—[Weymouth Gazette.]

Without giving the people a chance to voice their opinion, President Wilson has given in to the railroad employees—the most aristocratic and highest paid class of men in the United States. The President may believe that he has secured a political touchdown, but the hundred million people of the United States, who will be called upon to pay the bill, may think otherwise. What has this organization of railroad employees ever done to assist the men of the labor unions in bettering their conditions? Nothing. They have held aloof from their less fortunate brethren in times of trouble, and now Mr. Wilson has upheld them by bartering away the rights of the people by inflicting on them an expense of $100,000,000. The President may think his action will strengthen his chances of securing a reelection, but he may discover later that he made a mistake in not sensing the opinion of the people, the working man as well, before taking the action that he has.

VANDALISM.

Editor of the Star:
Dear Sir:—Will you kindly allow space in your valuable paper for a complaint in regard to some of the vandalism on the west side, which is supposed to be a very attractive part of the town, I was assured when I bought here of everything that was right in regard to property owners. I think it is time to make complaint now. It is two years since it commenced and there is no way to stop it. During the month of August while away I suppose there was a good chance for such vandals to destroy what they could. My shrubbery was taken up and carried away. Some that was put in place by my gardener in the spring, tomatoes, were carried away and what was not carried away, was thrown against the garage. My cucumbers, amounting to one or two bushels, were gone, the hyderangeas were broken off, and what was not broken were trampled on. This is not all either. A year ago while at home, pieces of broken glass and crockery were strewn the length of the walk leading to the garage, so it would cut the tires. A sign was taken up and broken to pieces and thrown on another lot just after I had paid for putting it up, to stop people from making a public thoroughfare of my place. Are taxpayers entitled to any protection, or are people who have half grown boys, the right to let them destroy everything in their reach; are they not responsible in a measure for the damage done. People who are thinking of buying in Winchester had better wait and inquire what the rights of people living here are and what can be done to stop this destruction.

THE SCHOOLS.

It is customary for Superintendent Herron to meet the Principals at three and all the teachers at four o'clock on the afternoon before the schools open to arrange details and to discuss the work of the year. This week the meetings on Tuesday afternoon were largely devoted to the consideration of the steps to be taken to safeguard pupils from infantile paralysis. Dr. Allen of the Board of Health gave an enlightening talk on the disease, its nature, symptoms and treatment, and outlined the procedure agreed upon by the Board of Health, the School Physicians and the school authorities. This is as follows:

Directions to Principals

1. Inquire of all pupils before entering the school building where they have been living since Wednesday, August 16, 1916.

2. Send home all who have been in places where there have been cases of infantile paralysis. (See lists of places in Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut.)

3. Keep lists of all sent home and note where each has been. These will be visited by the Board of Health.

4. Carefully inspect all children at the opening of each session and notify the office of all appearing flushed, or complaining of pains of any kind.

5. Follow the procedure noted in 1, 2 and 3 for pupils entering during the month of September.

6. For pupils coming from outside New England a health certificate is required.

7. Give to the office each day a list of all absentees with street addresses.

8. The foregoing directions must be followed exactly unless specific exception is made by the Superintendent of Schools.

In accordance with the suggestions of the state and local boards of health, the pupils in every school room will be inspected each day by the School Physicians, Dr. Putnam and Dr. Moore, and the School Nurse, Miss Talpey, assisted by Dr. Simon and Dr. Sheehy, and all absentees will be visited at their homes by Dr. Allen or a physician under his direction.

The no-school signal was rung on Wednesday on account of the rain rendering it inadvisable to make the desired inquiries of pupils before entering school buildings. The schools opened yesterday, Thursday.

The registration for the first day and for the same time in 1915 is as follows:

	1915	1916	P. C.
High School	376	394	80.8
Grades	1284	885	68.9
Total	1660	1189	71.6

Changes in Teachers

The following changes in the teaching force have occurred since the schools closed in June:

High School—Miss Elizabeth E. Lewis, to accept a position at a much larger salary in the Illinois State Normal School; Miss Ruth Hill to enter the Gorman Publishing House in Boston; Mrs. Louise S. Lester of Munson, a Mt. Holyoke graduate with experience in Westbury, Rhode Island and New Rochelle, New York, and Mrs. Ella McB. Stacy of Cambridge, a Colby graduate, recently at Coburn Classical Institute in Waterville, Me., are filling these positions as substitutes.

Wadleigh Grammar School—Miss Elizabeth T. Cullen has been transferred from the Prince School to one of the sixth grades.

Prince School—Miss Bernice G. Oliver, Principal, and Miss Zana E. Prescott of the open-air seventh have been granted leave of absence to teach in Seattle, Washington. Miss Fannie V. Merry of Madison, Me., will be acting principal with charge of the sixth grade and Miss Edith M. Forster of Westford will have the open-air seventh. Miss Merry resigned a position in the Farmington, Maine, Normal School and Miss Forster, a principalship in Forge Village, to come to Winchester. The sixth grade in the Prince will be in charge of Miss Josephine S. Emerson of Boothbay Harbor, Me.

son of Boothbay Harbor, Me. Miss Emerson had a similar position last year in Skowhegan, Me.

Chapin—Miss Agnes T. Cullen has been transferred from the third grade to the fifth, and Miss Helen A. Sweeney of Winchester has been elected to the third grade. Miss Sweeney is a graduate of Winchester High School and of Lowell Normal School, Mass., in a corresponding grade. In the first grade, Miss Gertrude M. Fisher of Burlington, Vt., succeeds Miss Kathryn F. Mawn, who was recently married. Miss Mawn will be missed from the Chapin where her work has been highly esteemed.

Rumford—Miss Mary A. Lyons, first assistant at the Chapin, has been appointed principal to succeed Miss Mary F. Riley who resigns to be married. Miss Lyons' long experience and intimate acquaintance with the pupils in the district make her a fitting successor to Miss Riley, who has long been one of the most efficient principals and teachers in Winchester. Miss Naven of the Rumford second grade is still confined to the Choate Memorial Hospital in Woburn. Her room will be taken temporarily by Miss Irene Murphy until Miss Murphy leaves for her school duties in Hadley, Mass.

It is not unusual for so many vacancies to occur in August, but it is a source of some satisfaction, as indicating the quality of our teaching force, that those who leave go to better positions or to be married. To both groups the experience in our schools will be a pleasant remembrance. The new teachers are all competent young women, well prepared with successful experience and of pleasing personality.

FIFTIETH ANNIVERSARY.

Mr. and Mrs. Mark R. Jounett of Brooks street were at home to many of their friends on Monday afternoon in observance of the fiftieth anniversary of their marriage. They received their friends from three until five, guests from Winchester and other places calling to offer their congratulations and good wishes.

EDWARD S. BARKER DEAD.

Edward S. Barker of Green Harbor, for many years a prominent resident of this town, died suddenly on Sunday. He suffered a shock last March, and since that time had not been actively engaged in business. His health having improved during the summer, he had anticipated resuming work this week.

Edward Spooner Barker was the son of Ira T. and Annie (Dean) Barker. He was born in Medford, March 6, 1853, and received a common school education. He had long been prominent in life insurance circles and was one of the best known agents in Boston and vicinity. As early as 1885 he entered the employ of the State Mutual Company as a solicitor, soon afterward being appointed general agent, which position he held at the time of his death.

He was a Knight Templar, 32nd degree, Mason, a member of Mystic Shrine and of Joseph Webb Lodge. He was a former president of the Middlesex Sportsman's Association and was formerly active in the Calumet Club. He was also a member of the Boston City Club and was an Odd Fellow.

Mr. Barker was of a particularly genial disposition and was much sought in all social festivities. Although never holding public office in this town he was probably as well known during his residence here as any one man. Some years ago he purchased a summer home at Green Harbor, near Marshfield, where he spent his summers with his family. Two years ago he moved to Green Harbor permanently.

He married Miss Lucy M. Morse, who survives him, with two children, George A. and Mrs. Mason H. Stone of Newton.

The funeral services were held on Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the Unitarian Church, Duxbury.

The services were conducted by Rev. C. E. Holmes of the Second Congregational Church of Westfield, a former minister in the M. E. Church of this town. The Masonic ritual was followed. The remains were interred in the cemetery at South Duxbury.

PARK OFFICER INJURED.

Officer James Ellis of the Metropolitan Park Police, who is stationed at Sandy Beach at Mystic Lake, met with a serious accident on Monday afternoon. According to stories of the affair Officer Ellis, who during certain hours is stationed in a row boat off the beach, saw a canoe tip over on the lake. He went to the assistance of the occupant and dove into the water in rescuing him, afterward towing him and his canoe to shore.

When he went to the small house reserved for his use to change his wet clothing he found that he had left his keys in his other clothes. The building is lighted by a small skylight in the roof, and the officer climbed up and entered by that means. Just as he touched the floor the skylight crashed down on top of him, badly cutting his upper leg and thigh.

The wounds were deep and he bled profusely. Adjusting a tourniquet over the worst wounds, he hailed a passing auto and was driven to the police station, where he was attended by Dr. Aimone in the emergency room and taken to the Winchester Hospital in the police auto. Later he was taken to his home in Medford.

Although there were men canoeists on the lake during the afternoon, the accident in which the officer figured was unnoticed and information regarding the identity of the man rescued is unobtainable. Officer Ellis is still confined to his home by his injuries and the Park Commission state that until he makes his report they have no information to give out. The officer figured in another rescue at the lake two weeks ago, when he pulled a young woman out who had gone beyond her depth.

MAIL DELIVERIES.

The following letter was received at this office:

My dear Mr. Wilson:—Would you kindly write something for me and put into your paper about the wretched mail service in this town, only eight miles from Boston.

We had no mail from Saturday at 3 p. m. until this morning, Tuesday. I hear the office was not even opened Monday.

Why, I have a summer home at Sebago Lake, six miles from the railroad, and have better service than we do here. This summer when the stores had a holiday the day before on account of heat there was only the morning mail and we went from Tuesday morning until Thursday morning.

You would not have known service like that in the dark ages. I have talked with the Postmaster, but got no satisfaction months ago, now I am writing you and the Postmaster in Boston. I will ask him what to do.

Yours sincerely,
Mrs. _____

CANDIDATE FOR SENATOR.

Edwin T. McKnight, who is a candidate for senator in the sixth Middlesex District, is already widely known to the residents of this community through his service as a member of the Republican State Committee.

Mr. McKnight is a native of New Brunswick. He was born without the proverbial golden spoon but by close attention to business and by hard work, he has won a place of distinction in the business world. As a boy he was obliged to struggle to secure an education. He worked his way through the Frederickton, N. B. Normal School. Then he came to Boston to the Harvard Law School, earning sufficient funds for his law course by private tutoring and teaching in the evening schools.

His first public service was in the Boston Common Council. Because of his efficiency there, he was promoted to the lower branch of the Legislature. His progressive legislation opened the way for the establishment of trust companies in communities where small banks were needed. This led him to a closer study of banking with the result that he became interested in the formation of many trust companies and is now a director in several of them, is vice-president of the Fidelity Trust Co., of Boston, and president of the Medford Trust Co.

He has been a close student of questions of public interest. His training as a lawyer, as a banker and as a business man has given him a broad view of affairs and has made him a man well fitted to represent the interests of the people of this district in the Massachusetts senate.

Little Gillig, H. J. Foster's trotting mare, won third place Sept. 2nd and 1st place Sept. 4th at South Weymouth in the three hundred dollar purse with a mark of 2:17 1-4. Nine horses started. Next week Little Gillig will try her speed against some of the local horses at the Reading Fair.

LABOR DAY AT THE HIGHLANDS.

The Forest A. C. were supposed to play two games on the new playground, the idea being to get a line on the new field. The morning game was advertised for 10 o'clock and our boys were there bright and early anxious to get after the Roxbury Pilgrims of Roxbury, who were to be their opponents in the forenoon game. There was quite a goodly number of our neighbors who came out to see the game, but as time passed and the visiting team did not show up our friends became discouraged and left until there were only a few who stuck and at 11:30 the Pilgrims hove in sight aboard one of the "ships" of the old Bay State line. Just as soon as they had changed into their base ball togs we went after them for a six inning game and won. The score by innings: Innings 1 2 3 4 5 6 R H E Forest A. C. 1 2 0 1 0 8 4 5 0 Rox. Pilgrims 0 0 0 1 0 2 3 7 0 Batteries, F. A. C., McManus, Lawson, Shaughnessy, Mathews. Roxbury Pilgrims, Madden, Turner, Clark. Hits off McManus 5 in 5 innings, 1 run. Hits off Lawson 2 in 1 inning, 2 runs. Hits off Madden 3 in 2 innings, 3 runs; off Turner 2 in 3 innings, 1 run. Umpire, F. Dineen.

The afternoon game was scheduled with the St. Elizabeths of Brighton and as this same team visited us a year ago and put up a good, clean, fast brand of base ball, we anticipated a close interesting game. They arrived about 2:30 p. m., bringing along a few young ladies and a bunch of hoodlums, who early started in to mess things up. First they broke some of the windows in the doorway of the Washington school, then they started to raid the orchard of Mr. Bryer, but that was nipped right in the bud. Such things as bats and balls were looked upon as their lawful prey, but we succeeded in getting back most of the stuff they tried to get away with, and for a while it looked as though serious trouble might be the result of their behavior but at the end of the fifth inning with the score 15 to 2 in our favor, they quit and left on the Bay State line.

In the first inning they scored a run on a two base hit and an error. This hit was the only one they made in the six innings, there other run was made on a base on balls, a steal and a wild throw to third. Both runs were made by Grace, who played second base for the visitors. Our boys in the first inning made seven runs, 11 came to bat, 3 walked 1 was hit by a pitched ball. Heavy, who played short in place of Loftus, who was not feeling well, got a clean double. McManus and Dineen singled in fact the boys just clinched the game right then. In all we got

The landlord or homeowner who has not wired his building for Electric Light is not only blind to his tenant's or his own comfort; he is missing a first-class investment — one which will yield large and certain returns, from the very start.

The Electrically Wired House Brings a Higher Rental — Sells Quicker

Electric wiring adds a definite value to your house for either prospective tenant or purchaser. People are demanding a "modern" house nowadays. They are willing to pay more — to stay longer. You get a better class of tenants. You save on redecorating costs. And you more readily find a buyer, should you wish to dispose of your property.

WILLIAM H. BREWER DEAD.

William H. Brewer, a retired Boston real estate and insurance man, who had lived in Winchester for many years, died at his home in Newton last week Thursday of pneumonia, at the age of 88 years. The funeral took place Saturday at his late residence, at 2 p. m.

Mr. Brewer was a native of Boston. He attended school on old Fort Hill and for years had been a member of the Old School Boys' Association.

In 1864 he married Miss Annie Conant of Boston, who survives him. He terminated a business career of 50 years in retiring three years ago. He had lived in Winchester some years before coming to Newton Center. He was actively identified with the local Baptist Church, and had been treasurer of the Winchester Savings Bank. Mr. Brewer's seven surviving sons and daughters are William C. A. Farley and Miss Ruth Brewer, all of Newton Center; Bertrand Brewer of Waltham, H. J. Brewer of New York City, Mrs. F. W. Buis of Salem and Mrs. George R. Hovey of Richmond, Va. Burial was at Mt. Auburn.

RICHBURG—PIERCE.

The marriage of Miss Ethel Edna Pierce, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Otho Pierce of Grove street, and Mr. Herbert James Richburg, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard H. Richburg of Washington street, took place at the summer home of the bride's parents at Oxford, Me., on Monday noon.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. R. J. Bruce, pastor of the Congregational Church of Norway, Me., and was attended by the members of the two immediate families. The residence was beautifully decorated for the occasion with evergreens, asters and sweet peas.

Upon their return from their wedding trip the couple will reside in Winchester.

EXPLOSION AT QUARRY.

Two Killed and Three Injured at Highlands Friday.

Two workmen were instantly killed and three others seriously injured on Friday afternoon by a premature explosion of a charge of dynamite at the plant of the Winchester Rock & Brick Co. just off East street at Winchester Highlands. The exact cause of the explosion is unknown.

All of the men were experienced in their work. They were engaged in loading a hole preparatory to firing after the quarry closed at six o'clock, it being the custom to fire the blasts during the noon hour and after the men had left in the evening. About 175 pounds of dynamite exploded and the force was terrific.

Dominic Froilotti, one of the men killed, was thrown more than 40 feet in the air. In coming down his body struck on the edge of a 30-foot chasm and dropped to the bottom, battered beyond belief. He was 35 years old, and lived at 25 Hill street, Winchester. The second victim, Joseph F. Renza, 40 years old, living at the company's house on the grounds, was at work directly over the drilled hole, wielding a tamping iron. He was hurled 35 feet, landing headfirst on a pile of jagged stones.

The injured men are Joseph Sanche, 35 years old, living at the company's house; John Pansoppi, 35 years old, of 83 Main street, Woburn, and Dominic Violanti, 28 years old, living at the company's house. Sanche was severely cut about the face and hands and was taken to the Winchester Hospital. The other two were treated by Dr. C. F. McCarthy, for cuts on the left arm, face and side and cuts and bruises about the head and shoulders, respectively, and then sent home.

DIED FROM WOUNDS RECEIVED AT VERDUN.

Word has been received of the death of Lance Corporal Alfred H. B. Kelly of the Second Battalion, Royal Irish Regiment, son of the late M. B. Kelly and Mrs. E. M. Kelly of Arlington, formerly of Winchester, and grandson of the late Surgeon Major T. M. Kirkwood Army Medical Staff, and great grandson of the late General John Pottinger, C. B. Royal Artillery, who served in the Indian Mutiny, 1858 to 1860. Corporal Kelly died at the Forty-fifth Casualty Camp Clearing Station, France, July 17, which was his twenty-third birthday anniversary. Death was due to wounds received at Verdun.

He is survived by his mother, a younger brother, William, now at the front, and a sister, Olive B. Kelly.

Mrs. Kelly has the sympathy of a large circle of friends here and elsewhere, as she has made many warm friends by her faithful nursing. It is to be hoped the other son may be spared to her.

Our Soldier Boy.

In memory of Alfred H. B. Kelly. Rest, soldier boy, your duty is done. Bravely you fought, the victory won. For King and country your life you gave. Though only a boy yet a soul most brave.

Your noble life and your love sincere
To those of your family held so dear.
The Heavenly Father has gathered home
Through battle and strife no more to roam.

And bye and bye there shall come a time
When again we'll meet in the Heavenly clime.
Where those who love you, soldier boy
Shall forever live in peace and joy.

Farewell dear lad, until once more
We meet you on that shining shore;
Where there is no war, where all can stay
With Christ, in the land of Eternal Day.

Bertha H. Hutchinson.

WAS NOT A GERRYMANDER.

Chairman Gould of the Middlesex County Commission says:

"Any intimation that the County commissioners attempted to Gerrymander Middlesex County in the reapportionment is preposterous.

"The county commissioners had made up their minds regarding reapportionment before the meeting. There is no reason why they should not prepare their decision ahead of time. Men interested in running for the legislature from all parts of the county were anxious to know the results of the reapportionment at the earliest possible date in order that they might put out their nomination papers and begin their campaigns.

We determined to act promptly, and not delay matters any more than necessary.

"Nothing was presented at the meeting referred to that changed the minds of the commissioners as to a proper reapportionment. The matter had been given careful consideration before. We therefore made known our decision immediately."

FELL FROM ELECTRIC.

At about 8 o'clock Monday evening Soccorso Benedetto of Lawrence fell from a car as it was leaving Arlington square from Winchester. He was taken aboard the car and brought to this town, where he was treated by Dr. Sheehy at the emergency room at the police station and later at the Doctor's office. According to stories of the accident Benedetto had been visiting his father-in-law in Arlington. He was unfamiliar with this locality and boarded the car at Arlington to ask if it went to Reading. It is said he understood the conductor to say it did not, and jumped off just as the car started. Dr. Sheehy found a small bone in his wrist broken and dressed several bad cuts on his face.

WAS THE ABERJONA EVER A "SEWER" OR THE MILL POND A "PUTRID LAKE?"

Editor of the Star:—

The Boston Transcript in an illustrated article pictures late achievements in improving Winchester waterways. This is commendable if in glorifying the achievements of the present article did not greatly exaggerate the deplorable state of the Aberjona previous to the purchase of the Whitney mill and ponds. The writer of the article, a citizen of Winchester, says the Aberjona was "once a sewer" and the old mill pond was "a putrid lake." He says that the notion prevailed, previous to public ownership of the river and ponds, that "a river bank was a dump" and "accumulations of rubbish, tin cans and dead dogs" prevailed on the territory "through which a naturally beautiful stream meandered into Mystic Lake."

All the older citizens of Winchester know that such statements describing actual health conditions in Winchester previous to 1912 are all newspaper "puff" or worse. If the writer of the article had looked into the matter he would have known the city of Boston spent nearly $200,000 in building sewers and purchasing land solely for the sake of keeping the water as pure as possible. The state also has spent large sums in building sewers as has also the town to prevent pollution of public waterways. I have lived all my life beside the Aberjona and never saw a single dead dog along its bank or in the water. I have personally known all the mill owners for the past sixty years and not one of them would allow such "dumps" as above described in any part of the river or ponds of one hundred acres or more in which the mill owner was interested. Where was the Winchester Board of Health when such conditions prevailed and what kind of a town was it that allowed "dead dogs" scattered along the river in the center of the town?

The fact is, no such state of affairs ever existed and it is a libel on the name of the town to publish such statements. In calling attention to the great achievements of the present, it is not necessary to malign the past. Each generation has done its part in making Winchester what it is. To extol all the truly great work which has been done in Winchester during the past few years and cry down all that preceded it, is not fair or generous. I do not think the friends of the coming achievement celebration mean to be unfair or ungenerous to all who have preceded them in upbuilding Winchester, but some "later day saints" who have just come into a town which invariably works for public improvement seem to think this community was very much of a pig-pen until very lately, which it is not the case, as Winchester was always very much of a model town.

GOOD SERVICE AT NEW CAFE.

Proprietor Harry Coltin of the Central Cafe announces that he is rapidly equipping himself to furnish the best restaurant service this town has yet experienced. Mr. Coltin has recently purchased this cafe, formerly known under the name of Dodson's Cafe, which is located in the square at the corner of Park and Main streets.

During the past week the new proprietor has been actively engaged in reorganizing his working force and bettering his equipment. A new chef has been engaged and an entirely new menu will be presented to patrons the first of the week. It is Mr. Coltin's intention to serve none but the best of food and to use fresh native vegetables. Specials will be announced daily for lunch and dinner which are expected to prove a pleasing attraction.

The new proprietor is a hustler and says he is determined to make his service and food of the very best. He is making an earnest effort to secure the better restaurant trade of the town.

HOW TO HAVE THE BEST ELECTRIC SERVICE IN YOUR HOME.

Perhaps you are planning this fall to build a new house or at least renovate your present home to make it more comfortable for the winter. In all probability the installation of electricity will be included in your plans for no home is modern nowadays without this improvement.

The electric lighting company of your city has experts to assist you in planning the wiring and illumination of your house so that you will be able to get the best uses of electric service. It is a good idea to consult them before making any extensive outlay.

Most electric light companies have a lower rate for heating and cooking than for lighting so it will be well to take advantage of this and have the outlets for heating and cooking appliances put on a separate circuit.

If your house is in the suburbs and is set back from the road, a very pretty effect can be obtained and the approach to the house made brighter and more cheerful by specially designed fixtures supported by rustic posts through which concealed wires are carried.

A porch light which can be turned on by a switch from within, or on the outside of the porch, not only gives a bright and home-like appearance to the house, but keeps away any intruders whom the darkness of the night might invite.

A smaller light on the back porch or entry way will prevent any missteps which are liable to happen. A bell-ringing transformer makes it possible to do away with the old-fashioned batteries and the annoyance of your bell being out of order is eliminated.

The hall, although usually one of the smallest rooms in the house, has a very important mission to fulfill. You can almost regulate the whole lighting system of your house here, if the proper switches are installed.

What are called three-way switches in both upper and lower halls will operate the lights up-stairs and down from either floor. Push buttons on the wall will light the porch and show you who rings, and also operate the lower hall light, which can be either a ceiling or a hanging fixture to which a "turn down" device may be attached to keep the light burning low all night. Besides the switches in the hall, outlets in the baseboards should be installed. To these you can connect your vacuum cleaner, fan, radiator or any electrical appliances.

One always needs electric lights in the cellar and the extra expense is so small that it is well worth the while. Lights near the furnace, coal bin and head of the stairs are always needed. A little lamp at the head of the cellar stairs or a buzzer which can be connected to the same switch as the cellar light is a reminder to turn off the lights below. A light in the fruit or "cold" closet will assist you in finding what you want and matches or a lamp can be eliminated.

An indirect lighting fixture installed in the center of the living room ceiling will shed a soft and restful glow throughout the room. When more direct illumination is desired, a portable lamp or artistic design will not only serve this purpose, but will give an added attractiveness. A floor lamp placed beside the piano and connected to a socket in the wall will be found convenient. There should be an outlet in the baseboard or at chair-rail height from the floor to which your vacuum cleaner as well as your fan and radiator may be attached.

The den or smoking room for the man of the house will not need many lights, but a number of outlets in the baseboard to which he can attach the reading lamp, fan and cigar-lighter will be found convenient. The lamps in this room should harmonize with the decorations and give a soft and subdued effect. No matter the style of furniture, whether it is mission, wicker or mahogany, portable lamps can be obtained to match.

A hanging lamp with an attractive shade, which throws the light upon the table, will be ample illumination for most dining rooms. If the room is large side wall brackets should be installed. Outlets should be placed in the floor directly under the dining table to which such appliances as the coffee percolator, toaster, grill, chafing dish, etc., may be connected. In this way you are enabled to prepare an entire meal right at the dining room table.

Pull chains attached to the electric lights in the pantries will make it easy to turn the lights on and off. A light should be placed over the sink in the butler's pantry; this will prevent the person washing dishes from standing in his own light, thus avoiding the possibility of broken dishes and insufficient washing. Often the pantry in which the food is kept is dark and it is necessary to have a light turned on even during the day. If there is a pantry door in this pantry the light placed so that it shines down on the work will make the task easier. Such conveniences are sometimes overlooked, but are not only great additions to one's comfort, but help to shorten the day's work.

In planning the wiring of the kitchen, do not fail to install outlets enough for the various labor-saving appliances which you will want to add to your kitchen and laundry equipment, such as the electric iron, washing machine, etc. A new and very convenient electrical device is a portable power table. This will grind your coffee, mix your bread, freeze your ice cream, and do many other tasks so irksome to the average housekeeper. Of course you will want to cook the safest, cleanest and easiest way by the electric range. Special wiring circuits are required for cooking by electricity and it is well to have these installed when the rest of the wiring is done. A ceiling fixture supplemented by one or two wall lights placed over the sink and over the range will fulfill the lighting requirements of the kitchen.

Your bedroom should be the one room in the house in which your own comfort should be considered. Here you can express your own individuality, not only in the style of furniture and decorations, but in the comfort and convenience obtained by the proper location of lights. Side-lights on the walls, placed on either side of the dressing table make it possible for you to have the right light to dress by. A light in the closet, which automatically lights and goes out as the door opens and closes, is a convenience in planning your new home. Outlets in the baseboard will enable you to have a small lamp beside your bed, a luxury for those who like to read after retiring. Lamps can be obtained now which screw on the bed post and which are handy for those where the space beside the bed is too small for a table. Such appliances as the electric curling iron, pressing iron, vibrator, heating pad, fan, etc., which no modern home should be without, can all be attached to these outlets in the baseboard.

Electricity in the sewing room makes sewing a pleasure. No need for that tired worn-out feeling so common after pedaling the machine, for a small electric motor can be attached to any sewing machine. It is not only easy to operate but insures quicker and better work. A portable lamp that screws on to the machine will throw the light directly on one's work and will enable one to work in the evening and be sure of the stitches going in a straight line.

Do not spare the number of outlets in the bathroom. Be sure to place lights on each side of the mirror over the wash bowl. This is a great help, especially to the man who shaves. A small light in the medicine chest will prevent many a mistake. There should be a receptacle in the baseboard to which you can attach a small luminous radiator to take off the chill of early spring and fall mornings, and the shaving mug and mirror, milk warmer for the baby can also be attached, all of which add to the comfort of the modern family.

Electric lights in the nursery are almost indispensable. An electric milk warmer can be attached to a lamp socket or into an outlet in the baseboard, thus saving many steps for the mother, for it will be unnecessary for her to go down to the kitchen to warm the baby's food. She is also saved the anxiety caused by the use of matches and there is no danger to be feared if a child accidentally turns on the electric light. In case of illness, the fact that she can in a second turn on the light to see if baby is comfortable is a great relief. An electric heating pad, which will not scald or leak like the old fashioned hot water bag, and fan to keep the air in circulation are also great comforts at this time.

Nowadays the question of the servant's comfort is a real one. At best her work is monotonous and the hours long. Her room should be well lighted—and electrically. Not only is the danger of fire incident to carelessness, which every housekeeper fears, entirely done away with, but cleanliness is assured. A hanging light hung near her dresser will give a light to dress by and will, if well shaded, make it possible for her to read or sew, for in many homes this one room must be her sleeping and sitting room combined.

The annual cattle show and fair under the auspices of the Quannapowitt Agricultural Association will be held on next Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday, Sept. 13, 14, 15, and 16 on the old Wakefield-Reading fair grounds and race track.

The restoration of the cattle show and live stock exhibit barred last year by the quarantine against the hoof and mouth disease will be learned with pleasure by the lovers of the cattle and live stock and breed horses.

The horse racing will be the big feature of the sports program of the fair. The races include eight $300 purse mile events in which over 200 of the New England trotting and pacing flyers will start each day. Three races will be held each afternoon. The classes include the 2:15, 2:20, 2:27 and 2:30 trotting events, the 3:00 mixed race and the 2:15, 2:19 and 2:22 pacing races.

The Quannapowitt and Lynn driving clubs will hold matinee interclub driving contest Saturday afternoon. A dinner set and three breakfast china sets have been donated by the Moxie Company as prizes for the horse racing events in addition to the purse awards. A. A. Brackett of Reading has charge of the horse racing and entries.

The state forestry and live fish and game exhibit will be a feature of the fair this year. Ten cases of fish and game will be shown through the courtesy of the fish and game commission.

The fancy poultry and the live stock and cattle shows and the manufacturers exhibits are also special features. Over 1,200 members of the granges of Eastern Middlesex and Essex counties are to exhibit for the big grange prizes. The grangers who will compete are the Wakefield, Reading, North Reading, Lynnfield, Winchester and Stoneham; all told $430 will be divided among the winners.

In the mornings of the four fair days an old fashioned work horse parade is scheduled together with a horse and pony show, an auto parade and show, and farmers' contest. There will also be baseball, sports on the track, a balloon ascension and parachute drop every afternoon and a high class vaudeville show and band concerts daily at the grand stand.

The "Wonderful midway" on the "west coast" will be more wonderful than heretofore and will please the taste of the most fastidious seekers after novelty and fun.

The school gardens, vegetables, flowers, cooking, preserving, canning and handwork of arts and crafts exhibits by the women and the youths will attract thousands of women and young folks who wish to win some of the prizes and premiums in these exhibits for which over $200 will be awarded all told. E. Horace Perley of Wakefield has charge of this feature.

Gov. McCall will be a guest, and will speak at the fair on next Thursday afternoon. The Winchester Grange will have an unusually fine exhibit in the big exhibition hall.

All told $5,000 in prizes, premiums and purses have been offered by the management in addition to the program of attractions on the race tracks, the stage, midway and exhibition hall. The plans of the management make the fair and cattle show the most attractive fair ever held in Eastern Middlesex and Metropolitan Boston. A quarter admission charge puts the big educational and sporting outdoor event of the season within the reach of all classes of the people.

INFANTILE PARALYSIS.

Health and School Boards Believe Schools Should be Kept Open.

Editor of the Star:

Dear Sir:—The current local discussion of the action of the School Committee in keeping the schools open during the epidemic of anterior poliomyelitis (infantile paralysis) leads us to make a public statement.

The Board of Health have the legal right to order the schools closed and they would exercise their authority without hesitation if they thought that the schools should be closed. In the present situation they believe that the schools in Winchester should be kept open and they so advised the School Committee. They believe that thereby the danger to every child not kept absolutely apart from all other children will be reduced to a minimum.

This conclusion was reached after careful study. It is based upon an extensive acquaintance with the opinions of the leading expert public health authorities, an intimate knowledge of the efficient medical inspection in our schools, and of the methods to be followed by the Board of Health in co-operation with them, and a thorough discussion of local conditions with a representative of the State Department of Health.

The point is that if the medical inspection is efficient, the schools should be kept open. The highest authority in Massachusetts on such matters, tells us that Winchester has such medical inspection and we believe it to be true.

The recommendation to keep the schools open and the decision of the School Committee in accordance therewith has been cordially commended by the State authorities. The fact that two cases have occurred in town makes it even more important that the schools should remain in session.

We do not in the least degree minimize the seriousness of the disease but we believe that people are suffering from a newspaper made panic which is both foolish and unnecessary. The disease is far less dangerous than some others that the people seem almost indifferent to. It is only slightly communicable as is evidenced by the few "second cases" that occur even in large families.

After this period of hysteria has passed and people are able to view the matter calmly, we believe that the action of the School Committee will be heartily commended.

As for this Board, believing as we do, it is obvious that we should be derelict in our duty if we failed to act in accordance with what is practically the unanimous opinion of all public health authorities.

Sincerely yours,
Danforth W. Comins,
Marshall W. Jones,
Clarence J. Allen, M. D.,
Board of Health, Winchester, Mass.

PREPAREDNESS FOR THE SUNDAY CAMPAIGN.

Churches in Winchester are now getting together and organizing for a period of six weeks of preparation for the Sunday Evangelistic Campaign, which opens in Boston in November. Each church is asked to appoint two representatives to form a joint central committee for the purpose of districting the town for cottage prayer meetings for the six weeks following October 2. The first meeting of this joint committee will be held next Sunday afternoon at three o'clock in the First Baptist Church, and will be addressed by the district chairman of the Boston Prayer Meeting Committee for this district. Upon the literature of the Boston Committee for this movement are found two worthy mottoes:

"Prayer to God, in the name of Christ, brings power from God for work in His name."
"Let us get together by praying together and by working together."

THANKS TO CITIZENS.

For the great success of Winchester's Improvement Celebration, I wish to cordially thank the citizens who so heartily entered into the spirit of the occasion, and contributed so generously toward making the celebration one that the town has just cause to be proud of. May we have more of them in the future.

James J. Fitzgerald,
Chairman for the Committee.

QUALIFIED TO BE REPRESENTATIVE.

September 14, 1916.

Editor of the Star:

Winchester, Mass.

Dear Sir:

I have become exceedingly well acquainted with Mr. William A. Kneeland during the past few years, and wish to endorse his candidacy for Representative from our district. I know him to be amply qualified by training, experience and ability to represent us in the Legislature.

As Chairman of the Progressive Town Committee, I frequently met Mr. Kneeland as a political opponent, he being a member of the Republican Town Committee, and I respected him for his fairness and courage. He fought hard but his blows left no sting. Later we served together two years on the Finance Committee, and on many sub-committees of that Committee. As we worked night after night, side by side, I found him always alert, active and conscientious to bring about the best interests of the Town, combining excellent judgment with broad-mindedness.

I am confident that a lawyer of Mr. Kneeland's experience in local affairs, and in the procedure and technique of law-making, as well as with the breadth of view of life and business acquired by every successful lawyer, is pre-eminently fitted to represent us in making good laws, which is the business of the Legislature.

For these reasons, I deem Winchester and the District fortunate in having a young man of Mr. Kneeland's personality, principle, courage, and convictions who is willing to make the sacrifice entailed in entering the political arena and I feel that, as voters, the least we can do is to cast our vote for him on Primary day.

Yours very truly,

Edward S. Foster,

15 Grove street.

BASE BALL TOMORROW.

We are going to Arlington tomorrow for a game there. This game is not called for, and if we had our way it would not be played. When we played Arlington here in August, the only condition on which they would come was, that we should give them a game in return. They picked the 10th of September for this game. If we played a team and beat them three times as Arlington has done to Winchester, we think we would be perfectly satisfied and let it go at that. Now we had a chance to take on Woburn for next Saturday, provided we could cancel the game with Arlington. But Arlington being anything but a crowd of sports insist we play out our string with them. We have never yet cancelled a game on our own account, and we will live up to our agreement with Arlington, but there is another year coming and we may have our innings. If there was any call for this game it would be entirely different, but the fans here in Winchester fail to warm up to Arlington and are sore to think the Arlington crowd should hold Manager LeDue to such a fool proposition. They may think they are getting a big attraction, but big attractions sometimes prove a frost.

The game starts at 3:30 and Arlington is in for a trimming.

HIS 21st BIRTHDAY.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Fitzgerald of 29 Winchester place, presented their son, Edward Fitzgerald, with a gold watch and chain, last Friday evening in observance of his 21st birthday. His cousin, Edward Frohman gave an appropriate speech for the occasion. There were about forty of his friends present from Arlington, Dorchester, Woburn and Winchester. Miss Margaret Grandy of Dorchester rendered most pleasing violin selections. There were also enjoyed, piano and vocal selections. He was the recipient of many pretty flowers.

MISS IDA MOORE.

The death of Miss Ida Moore, aged 66 years, occurred on Wednesday afternoon at the private hospital of Miss Bishop on Winthrop street. Miss Moore suffered a shock about two years ago, since which time she had been an invalid, making her home in Winchester. She leaves one sister, Mrs. Nellie Walton, and a brother, Mr. Frank Moore, both of this town. Miss Moore was a native of Wakefield and was the daughter of Garlick and Mary (Hersey) Moore.

The funeral services were conducted by Rev. Joel H. Metcalf at eight o'clock last evening, the interment being at Wildwood Cemetery this morning.

IMPROVEMENT CELEBRATION.

Biggest Feature Ever Held in Winchester.

Winchester's Improvement Celebration last Saturday was a big success in every way. It witnessed the biggest parade, the best illuminations, the best display of fireworks, the best music, the best decorations, and in fact the best of everything the town has ever seen. There were no hitches in the big and long program that extended from two o'clock in the afternoon, when the dedicatory exercises opened on the new Highlands playground, until the last piece of fireworks and the last selection by the Salem Cadet Band took place on Manchester Field in the evening. The crowd in the evening was immense, the estimate being from 10,000 to 25,000 people. However, it was the biggest gathering ever seen on Manchester Field. Automobiles were out in hundreds, the parkway being lined with them, its entire length, also Waterfield road and adjoining streets. The illuminations were beautiful, especially those on the building of the Winchester Laundry, the entire three stories on the outside being covered with colored electric lights, giving a very pleasing effect, and at a distance the spectacle was superb.

The procession from Winchester Highlands was through a lane of colored fire with beautiful Japanese lanterns suspended across the streets from house to house. The residents of the Chapin School district did themselves proud in appreciation of the exercises commemorative of the new street across the pond. Black Ball pond during the passage of the long procession along the shores was a blaze of colored fire and calcium lights, a large raft in the centre of the pond from which fireworks were displayed adding to the beautiful effect. It was a grand sight and one long to be remembered. During the passage of the procession around the pond, halts were made when selections by the band were given. The entire route from the Highlands to Manchester Field was lined with people, and it took in the locality of the improvements that have been made or are in the making along our waterways. Winchester has never seen such enthusiasm and such hearty cooperation on the part of the people in their appreciation of what the town is doing to make this one of the best and most up-to-date towns in the State. A movement that was first started many years ago by those sturdy and far seeing men at the time when the town was incorporated, over sixty-six years ago. As Mr. Lewis Parkhurst expressed it in his remarks on Manchester Field in the evening, "Every dollar expended by Winchester for improvements has brought a return more than two fold." Indeed it has been the business sagacity of our leading men and their willingness to serve the town that has given Winchester its present standing.

For the success of the celebration great credit is due to the gentlemen comprising the committee and especially to ex-Selectman James J. Fitzgerald, who had been planning and working to make it a success—a fine citizen. For three weeks he had practically neglected the supervision of his large business and devoted his time to impress upon the inhabitants and show to them and outsiders the value of the improvements that have been made in Winchester during the past few years. And in this he had a thoroughly sympathetic public spirit.

Public spirit was shown by the Selectmen and Mr. Lewis Parkhurst, Mr. Preston Pond and about twenty other prominent citizens in their marching in the procession from the Highlands to Manchester Field. A pretty feature of the parade was four girls carrying a large American flag spread out each holding a corner.

Mr. Kellaway, the landscape architect, who laid out the improvement of the waterways and the two bridges, was an interested spectator. The local police force, with Chief McIntosh headed the procession, and with Metropolitan police, performed duty on Manchester Field, although they had but little to do, aside from the Metropolitan officers' great task in looking after the large number of autos parked on the Mystic Valley Parkway.

The canoe parade on the river across Manchester Field was a beautiful spectacle, and the participants did fine work considering the low bridge difficulties encountered in getting into the river.

WINFIELD F. PRIME.

CANDIDATE FOR SENATOR.

Winfield F. Prime should receive practically the unanimous vote of his fellow townsmen in Winchester this year. His services in the House in the years 1913, 1914 and 1915 have always been thoroughly appreciated in this town, and in the primary contest which he made last year he received 511 votes to 184 given his opponent. The retirement of Senator Fay this year leaves the field open to a new man for the position. This contest has now simmered down to the question of Medford and Anti-Medford. The City of Medford has been accorded the Republican nomination for the past six years, and unless we are to be content with allowing the nomination to go to Medford forever, the voters of all the other towns must concentrate the opposition on one candidate. Winchester has not had the senatorship in the past seventeen years. It would seem that Mr. Prime's efficient legislative experience, together with the showing which he made last year, entitles him to preferment.

It is well known to our people that it was largely through Mr. Prime's efforts that the $15,000 appropriation for dredging the Abenona river was obtained last year. There are other important improvements in which Winchester will need legislative aid, and it behooves Winchester voters to avail themselves of all their opportunities to strengthen their position in the Legislature.

STORES ON HOLLAND PROPERTY.

The new owner of the Holland property in the centre at the north end of the railroad crossing on Main street has already filed plans and specifications with the Inspector of Buildings for the erection of a block of one story stores on the land.

The owner, Maurice Paris, of 17 Helen street, Dorchester, applies for permission to erect a block of seven one story stores, the construction of the building to be of brick with tapestry brick front. To erect this block it will be necessary to remove the present one story building and the dwelling house now on the property.

BASE BALL.

Stoneham Beats Winchester in a Close Game.

By "Mack"

We met the Stoneham or part of the Stoneham team, Saturday and were beaten 3 to 2. They were stronger in the game with us than at any time this season. We have no alibi to offer and deserved to be beaten as we had several fine chances to win the game, but fell down in the "pinch." Walsh, their new left hand pitcher, held us to four hits and struck out 12, so you see we had a fine chance of winning with such pitching. He is a fine pitcher but has a tendency to get wild when men are on the bases, for when we did have men in a position to score our heavy hitters were not there. Travers did not pitch his usual game and was hit for 10 safeties, but they were fairly well scattered through the game. "Bunk" Cheissong picked him for a home run the first time up, but fell down badly afterwards. We scored two runs and went into the lead in the sixth, only to lose it again in the seventh. We also had a fine chance to win in the ninth but McQuinn, who generally drives them out of the lot, hit into a double play, and the game was over. Dave Ingalls of Marlboro, played 3rd base and Krepps, the regular pitcher, was out in the field for his batting, and he helped out with three nice hits for Stoneham. Bangs played short for Winchester and accepted nine chances without a slip-up. Duffy had some hard chances on third, but was the indirect cause of the loss of the game. Linehan played a great game at first base and captained the team in the absence of Wingate. We had the largest Saturday crowd of the season and they saw a fine game of ball, but had to be content with seeing Stoneham the victors.

OPERATING ROOM.

keep pace with the growth of the town.

The relation existing between the town fathers and the telephone company officials have always been intimate and cordial, and the company has cooperated to the fullest extent in substituting cable for open wire and in placing its wires underground in the central parts of the town wherever conditions made it practicable to do so.

Winchester telephone users originally were served from the Woburn exchange, and in 1892, when its own exchange was established, ground cable is completed. This 150-pair duplex cable runs underground through Cambridge, Somerville, Medford, Winchester, Wilmington and Tewksbury, and, during the present summer, was completed through Winchester. It will be completed and in service about October 1.

Last year the company put under ground its wires on Washington street, between the central office and Forest street, and also between Winchester center and Symmes corner.

These changes have added materially to the appearance of these two main thoroughfares.

RETIRING ROOM.

it had only 35 subscribers. How rapid has been Winchester's telephone development is shown by the fact that today it has almost 2,000 telephones connected with the Winchester central office.

Its first switchboard was of the small magneto type. In 1907 a common battery switchboard was installed, to be superseded in 1910 by another common battery switchboard of a later type, when the present central office was built.

An addition to this switchboard to accommodate three more operators, is on the construction pro-

Winchester subscribers make 11,500 calls per day and receive 5,000 more, making a total of 16,500 calls per day, which are handled by an operating force of 29.

The town's telephone growth during the past two years has been so rapid that the telephone company estimates that by June, 1918, it will need to have over 300 trunk lines to accommodate Winchester's calls to other exchanges, and its plans for as far ahead as 1925 indicate that Winchester then will have 4,000 telephones, making and receiving over 32,000 calls a day.

TERMINAL ROOM.

FIRE AFTER FIREWORKS.

Shortly after the close of the fireworks on Manchester Field Saturday night, just as the larger part of the big crowd had left the centre, a still alarm was sounded at the central fire station in response to a telephone message for a roof fire in the house No. 53 Cutting street, owned by the Cutting Estate and occupied by Frank G. Trott.

The fire was in the gutter and caused evidently by some stray spark from the fireworks display. As the blaze was in a difficult position to reach and the ladders on the auto chemical too short to do advantageous work, and alarm from box 12 was sounded to bring the Hook & Ladder. The box also brought a large crowd to the scene, but they were disappointed, for the blaze was insignificant and quickly extinguished.

During the past week the following people have installed electricity in their homes: George Jackson, 30 Irving street, and Wm. H. Mulholland, 9 Warren street.

Mrs. John Nickerson and Miss Roma Nickerson have taken up their residence in Virginia.

Mr. and Mrs. James E. Corey and Miss Hazel Corey and Richard, are spending a few weeks at Kearsarge.

BIG FIRE AT WOBURN.

Winchester Department Gave Valuable Assistance.

Many persons were attracted by the big fire at Woburn on Friday night when the bleach house of the tannery of F. C. Parker & Sons on Cross street was destroyed with its contents. That the fire was not more disastrous and more buildings burned was due largely to the efficient work of the Woburn and Winchester fire departments and the gasoline pumps of the two towns.

The fire was discovered shortly before 11 o'clock. As a part of this property is in Winchester, arrangements were made some time ago, especially in view of the fire danger of the locality, that the Winchester apparatus answer all alarms from the Woburn box, No. 912. Hence, when the alarm came in Friday night the Winchester alarm was sounded immediately after Woburn, the same box being rung.

Winchester sent up its pump and emergency wagon filled with hose together with a sufficient force to man all the streams the pump could supply. The pump was stationed near the former Boyle factory and rendered very efficient service.

A water curtain from sprinklers helped to save the building of the American Hide & Leather Co. across the railroad from the burning building, and new asphalt shingles on another adjoining factory of the same company proved efficient fire resistance.

Shortly after 5 o'clock Saturday morning the fire started up again and the box was again sounded, it being repeated in Winchester and the Winchester apparatus again responding. This proved to be of minor importance and the Winchester apparatus did not go into action.

Several people have made inquiries regarding the sounding of the Woburn box, and in this connection it should be noted that there are several boxes on Winchester's regular list not on the alarm cards. As soon as the new boxes and new numbers are complete, which will be in the course of a month, new cards will be issued.

The Winchester alarm sounds ten blows for all out-of-town fires except Woburn, and if called to that city the box 454 is sounded, with the exception of course, of such boxes as are answered anyway and are listed on the Winchester board.

CLEAN OUT THE CATS.

Editor of the Star:

Dear Sir:—As the Town of Winchester has now celebrated the work done on the Aberjona River, would it not be a good idea to clean out the dead cats in the stream?

The last time I was able to paddle up the river I met a dead cat at the top of the new dam near the centre. Last Sunday I again paddled up with friends and passed two dead cats, badly swollen and in poor condition.

I notice they are still in the river.

Truly yours,
M. B. C.

Sept. 13, 1916.

"MARY ANN" WORKED BEAUTIFULLY.

"Mary Ann", the old steam fire engine, was given a bit of work this week when she was used by the Highway Department to pump water from the trench for the new drain under construction near Washington street near Forest. This drain is being constructed near where the river crosses Washington street, and the work was badly hampered by the water, which filtered in faster than a gasoline and two hand pumps could take care of it. "Mary Ann" worked beautifully and more than took care of the water under bare working pressure.

what they want and they surely will attend the games. This game Saturday drew 1,200 people; some crowd for a Saturday.

We were undecided whether to play the game or not, and we are greatly pleased with the endorsement we received and the large crowd present.

Stoneham was also well represented and they rooted hard for Walsh, and he deserved it. He formerly pitched on the St. Ambrose team, the team Trayers came from to Winchester.

Stoneham is supporting their team in good shape this season and a team that has had the courage to go out the way they have done deserve all the encouragement the "fans" can give it.

A great many familiar faces were seen on the field Saturday, people we had not seen since early in the summer. The vacation crowd are generally getting back.

We probably will not play over four more games, and one of those will be for the Hospital. We expect to get a strong team for that game.

Dana Wingate had to qualify for the golf tournament Saturday, which accounted for his absence.

Someone said Dave Ingalls was going back in his playing. Well, all we got to say is, if Dave is going back we would like to gaze on a few that are coming.

Krepps, the famous Tufts south-paw, played center field for Stoneham. He is not much of a pitcher, but he surely can "whale" the ball. He came very near misjudging McQuinn's fly.

Our old college chum Harold McDonald, played short for Stoneham. He did not have much to do but was there with the usual life and pep. We have seen Woburn play far worse players than Harold.

"Bank" Cheissong is the same reliable player at first base, but Trayers had his number after the first inning at the bat.

McGee, behind the bat may be a star, but what he showed us Saturday did not look very finished in the way of catching. He made a sorry job on foul flies.

The season is fast drawing to a close and most of the teams are through for the season. This should not be so, as September is the best month in the year for base ball.

Woburn beat Arlington Saturday in 10 innings, 4 to 3. There were several changes in the lineup since Labor Day. Ford of Tufts, played short and Connie O'Doherty filled in at second for Woburn.

Arlington also had several changes. Currier of the Minute Boys, Reardon of Falmouth, Martin, a new catcher, and Connors of Boston College, all new men. Butler of West Roxbury, went in the box to help Wright out also.

Lowe won the game for Woburn after two men were down in the tenth. Both McMahon and Wright were hit hard. McGovern as usual, was the whole show for Arlington.

We are after Woburn for a game or a series of three games to wind up the season, but as usual when they break even with Winchester they are satisfied. When it comes to quitting, Woburn takes the cup as usual, Yellow! You can see it in the distance.

If we would let Woburn go out and get all kinds of players, they would jump at the chance to play us. But we insist on Woburn playing their regular team, not part of the American, National and Eastern Leagues. We could do that also, but it would not be the Winchester. If we do not hear something this week we are going to hand the Management of the Woburn team several jolts and give the fans in Woburn and Winchester a chance to see who the quitters are, and just take it from us, it won't be Winchester. We are willing to play the Red Sox, but we are not going into any game or series of games, with the cards stacked.

Marblehead won from Manchester. Both Davies and Grover were hit hard. Bill Sweeney, the old Boston National League Captain, won the game for Marblehead, with a home run drive, scoring Ray Skelton ahead of him.

The Lead Lined Pipe team were handed their usual Saturday trimming. This time by the Wakefield town team with whom they are playing a series of games. Wakefield put one over on Bishop by getting a great battery in Peirotti of Everett, who did the pitching with "Buck" Sweetland behind the bat.

The crowd on the field Saturday was the hardest to handle of the season, and Officer Kelley had to keep after the kids continually, they were forever running out on the field; the fireworks being the attraction.

OUR FIRE DEPARTMENT.

A Visit to the Central Fire Station by an Interested Observer.

The following communication has been given us for publication provided "we consider it of sufficient interest to our readers." As written by one who has an interest in Winchester and its affairs, its organizations for public safety and the welfare of its residents, we feel that it will be of much interest to many STAR readers.

Editor of the Star:

How true it is that with many public organizations to which we owe much for our personal welfare, we are deplorably unfamiliar. The writer has in mind just such a department, whose headquarters she, like many others, has passed uninterestedly, day after day, and whose efficient organization she could hardly have realized without having seen it for herself, as was her privilege on the evening of Winchester's Improvement Celebration.

You are conscious, no doubt, of your absolute dependence upon the fire department of your own town, but have you ever stopped to consider how essential is the complete organization of that Department, and more—have you ever thought of investigating the conditions for efficiency in that Department upon which you are personally so dependent?

The invitation to enter being given by the wide-flung doors, brilliant lights, and dazzling polish of the apparatus just within, we wandered in, and were looking with growing interest at the powerful engine beneath a half-open hood of a large automobile truck, when a courteous voice at our side began to set forth the "points" of the modern fire horse. How fascinating and how simple, became the complexities of the huge monster as our genial guide explained the various attachments, levers, and possibilities peculiar to this type of steed. No detailed recital of an outsider could arouse the interest as the enthusiastic explanation given by such a guide as ours, familiar as he was with the every whim of the steed he loves.

Among the several modern powerful cars of different uses, there stands, equally well-groomed, the venerable fire engine, half a century old, which bears the nickname "Mary Ann", and claims the distinction, above the others, of being used at the big Boston fire of '72.

But what of the quarters for the men who groom, drive, and control these fiery steeds? Let us go upstairs. Spotless cement corridors lead to single rooms, double rooms and suites, each decorated according to the taste of the occupants, but all furnished alike with single bed, bureau, table, etc., covered with speck-span spreads and linen, and in perfect order. It was astonishing when we were informed apologetically that because of a large Woburn fire of several hours' duration, which had kept them busy the preceding night and early morning, the usual dusting had been neglected!

At the disposal of the Chief, who is always on duty, is a suite of three rooms, including an office and an unusually large and completely appointed bath. The general bath occupies almost an entire end of the building, and is equipped similarly to that of a college or Y. M. C. A. gymnasium. But what are those brass poles extending from a plaster-like disk in the floor through which they pass, to the ceiling, and placed at each corner of the corridor and in the Chief's office? Do the firemen slide down a greased pole, as we gathered some years ago, from our youthful reading? Exactly so—and within thirty seconds from the time an alarm rings in, and the zongs in the corridors and the electric signal lights flashed on in each room, waken the sleeping fireman, he is up, dressed in rubber boots and trousers, and is already sliding down the pole, which accommodates him by the automatic raising of the alarm signal of the surrounding disk in the floor. Three minutes the disk remains up, and meanwhile the men assigned to the various poles have slid down, found their respective places on the apparatus, donned coat and helmet, and are outside the automatically closing doors of the main exit.

There are yet two rooms of interest to be visited. Perhaps the most wonderful part of the whole institution is to be seen in the room at the very heart of the building. It contains the heart of the fire alarm system, upon which the real efficiency of the whole Department depends. The room is intrinsically valuable, containing instruments of great delicacy and value, some of them built of precious metals and onyx, and kept under glass. There is a switchboard with levers innumerable, which respond to thoughtful or automatic pressure. A sizeable charging room of batteries adjoins. What a beautiful piece of Circassian walnut backs that switchboard! Up to that moment we had discredited no word of our guide, but we must needs actually hit the wood to assure ourselves that it is tin in perfect imitation.

The remaining room of interest, doubtless of more genuine interest to the users than to the casual visitor, is the good-sized recreation room on the second floor with its long table and comfortable chairs. We heartily seconded the motion of our guide as to the addition of a piano, and hope that it will be not long in the getting as the writer recalls her hasty peep into that room, the absence of two valuable assets toward the pleasant passing of many a waiting hour suggest themselves—a fireplace, and an abundance of entertaining and current literature.

We found at the door as we were leaving, a very interesting feature of the organization, for there, at the desk the telephone messages, emergency, business, and social, are received. On the wall by the desk are the cases containing the electrical connection which sets "Old Jumbo" whistling and the bell ringing, should the message received be an emergency alarm.

Late that same evening after our return home, an alarm of fire was rung in from Box 12. Perhaps no former counting of the fire whistles had ever brought to the writer's thought such a picture as was then presented. The usual vision of a burning building and property fast being destroyed was replaced by one of splendid order and efficiency, of enthusiasm, energy, and helpful responsibility. Such is the impression gained from a few minutes' visit at the headquarters of the Winchester Fire Department, through the courtesy of a most efficient guide.

W. H. S. NOTES.

During the week the Senior class held its election and Remington Clark was elected President. Miss Rhoda Case, Vice-President; Robert Metcalf, Secretary, and Miss Esther Russell, Treasurer.

On Monday the members of the football squad reported on Manchester Field for practice. The prospects for a fast team look good this year as Mr. George Sexton, or the High School's Percy Haughton, has accepted the position as coach again this year, and with him the men are bound to work hard.

Mr. Sexton turned out a very successful team last year, losing only three games during the season. For two years before he took charge of the team the record was poor.

George Bird will captain the team this year and Remington Clark is the manager. The first game will be a practice scrimmage with Rindge on September 30th.

WINCHESTER BOYS WON AT WORCESTER.

At the annual open canoe meet of the Tatassit Canoe Club on Lake Quinsigamond at Worcester last Saturday, John Sheridan, Captain of the Winchester Boat Club took second prize in the single double blade race. Jack Coulson of the Medford Boat Club was first. Sheridan and Lougee of Medford finished third in the tandem double blade and a war canoe crew of which Sheridan, Willard Locke and Blair Cobb of Winchester were members, claims first in that race owing to a mix-up of the two leading boats who were said to have been disqualified for interference.

CONTAGIOUS DISEASES.

Board of Health report the following case of contagious disease for the week ending September 13: Infantile paralysis 1.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and for years it was supposed to be incurable. Doctors prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Catarrh is a local disease, greatly influenced by constitutional conditions and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is a constitutional remedy, is taken internally and acts through the blood on the mucous surfaces of the system. One Hundred Dollars reward is offered for any case that Hall's Catarrh Cure fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

BEAUTIFUL WINCHESTER.

Winchester is well justified in setting apart a day in celebration of the completion of the work that its municipal beauty doctors have been engaged in. And the program of improvements that have been carried out in recent months has not been solely for the purpose of adding to the attractiveness of this always beautiful suburb, for they are the kind that serve practical ends as well, and make the town better to live in. The two new bridges, the new street along Black Ball pond, the new Highlands playground, the dredging of the picturesque Abernethy river—these are some of the more important items on the list of reasons why Winchester and its friends had a gala day yesterday. Few towns around Boston are so fortunately situated as Winchester, with its hills and lakes and little rivers, and with the Mystic Valley Parkway as an entrance and the Middlesex Fells just beyond; and in its systematic and far-sighted program of public improvements it is setting a good example to other sections of Greater Boston. And at present there is no other town in the commonwealth that can have a Governor, as one of the town's own citizens, to take part in a celebration such as Winchester had the other day.—[Boston Herald, Sept. 11.]

Winchester had the largest population in its history last Saturday.

And now that the attention of the citizens has been called to the unfinished condition of the Mill pond, it is to be hoped that another year will see this work cleared up.

That was fine public spirit shown, when Mr. Lewis Parkhurst and other prominent citizens marched in the parade last Saturday night from Winchester Highlands to Manchester Field. They proved themselves to be citizens of the whole town.

The communications in another column on the epidemic of infantile paralysis and the opening of the schools deserve careful reading. Emphasis may well be placed on the fact that the School Committee considered the question in time to study the situation, that they obtained the best expert medical judgment, and that they are following the advice received to the letter. This is what they did in the matter of protecting the school children from the fire hazard and is what they should do in questions involving professional judgment. They are all parents of children and are, therefore, undoubtedly the more anxious to make no mistake. Under these circumstances it will be unfortunate to add to the prevailing excitement by petitioning them to disregard the positive advice of responsible medical authorities.

One of our long time residents of Winchester, who is worthy of especial notice is Miss Anne Dodd of 18 Mystic avenue. Quiet, modest and retiring, she escapes notice, while others more easily come into the lime light. Born in England she has reached the age of ninety-two years, and is remarkably vigorous for one of her age. The other day, in company with a friend of many years she walked around Winchester, and over the new bridges. She expressed much interest in all the recent improvements in the town. The walk stirred reminiscences of other days. The tablets recalled memories of the old Converse place. The town was in gala attire, for it was the day of the special celebration, and none of the younger and more active spectators was more interested in all of Winchester's improvements than was she.

Was Winchester's Improvement Celebration worth while? Some citizens thought the time was not ripe, and that the town had better wait until the improvements were completed. In reply, we quote Mr. Lewis Parkhurst: "If we were to wait until that time we would never celebrate, for improvements will be needed as long as Winchester exists. The time to celebrate is when the spirit moves." And we fully agree with Mr. Parkhurst. For over thirty years the STAR has seized upon every opportunity to advertise Winchester, so that people living out-of-town might learn what we have to offer as a place of residence. And we believe this publicity has done the town an immense amount of good and has brought many desirable people here to live. The celebration has been brought to the attention of the people of the State through the Metropolitan press, and all references to Winchester have been exceedingly complimentary, calling, as they did, attention not only to the public spirit shown, but to the natural advantage of Winchester as a residential town. We are bound to profit by it. Yes, we are glad that the celebration was held, and hope that the town may have a more extensive one in the near future.

MOTHERS' ASSOCIATION.

The Mothers' Association will meet on Wednesday afternoon, Sept. 20, in the High School Assembly Hall, at 3 o'clock.

This is the first meeting after the summer vacation, and will be an interesting one.

Mrs. Sarah E. Belt of Melrose will speak on "Canning."

Mrs. Belt comes from the Agricultural College at Amherst, where she has served in this branch of work and will bring practical information on this subject.

Members are urged to be present. Refreshments will be served in the Library and a social hour will follow.

INFANTILE PARALYSIS.

opening the Winchester schools upon the schedule date, it may be well to make public the reasons which controlled the Committee in making their decision.

In recent years it has become a well settled policy that during the prevalence of an epidemic the schools should be kept open, since thereby more accurate information can be had as to the physical condition of the pupils and those who show symptoms of disease can be quarantined more promptly. This has been true not of Winchester alone, but generally of communities where there are adequate facilities for medical examination of the school children. Some question was raised as to whether the same rule should be followed in the case of so-called infantile paralysis, since it is not easily diagnosed in its incipient stages, but upon inquiry we were advised that the same thing is true of scarlet fever and of some other contagious diseases which are easily communicated by symptoms and that experience has demonstrated the wisdom of keeping the schools open during the prevalence of an epidemic of such diseases.

About three weeks before the schools were scheduled to open, the School Committee took up the matter with the School Physicians and the local Board of Health, and obtained the opinion of the State Department of Health. All of these advised that the regular program should be followed and the schools opened as usual. A system of examination of the pupils before they entered the school buildings at the opening of the school term, and of daily examination thereafter, designed to exclude any pupils who might have come from an infected area, or who showed any symptoms of illness, was outlined and has been faithfully carried out. In addition to the physicians of the Board of Health, we have had the two school physicians, Dr. Putnam and Dr. Moore, the school nurse, Miss Talpey, and two other Winchester physicians, Dr. Sheehy and Dr. Simon, a force entirely adequate to make the daily inspections, to follow up suspected cases and to investigate the matter of absences. Up to the present time there have been two cases of infantile paralysis in Winchester and we are advised that this in no wise alters the wisdom of the decision to open and continue the work in the schools as usual.

It is true that in many neighboring towns the schools have been closed, but we have yet to learn of a case in which this action was taken in accordance with the advice of medical authorities, where they were prepared to give adequate medical inspection. In the case of some of the more important places near Boston, the schools were closed against the express advice of the medical authorities.

This question is one which should be dealt with from the standpoint of the community as a whole and not with reference to any particular child or group of children. We think that as to the good of the community at large the question is one upon which the physicians are best qualified to advise and in view of the fact that they are practically unanimous in their judgment that under conditions such as exist in Winchester the community is best protected by having the schools open, we do not see that we should be justified in taking any other course. You will understand that we fully appreciate the seriousness of the situation and the gravity of the responsibility which the School Committee must assume.

We are acting for the entire community and are proceeding upon the best advice that we can obtain. As to the parents who believe it wise to keep their children out of school, we, of course, have no criticism to make and every effort will be made to help these pupils to keep up with their classes during their enforced absence. Books and other assistance as needed will be furnished and when they return they will be assisted as may be possible to make up the lost time. In these cases where the parents think it wise to keep their children out of school, we trust that they will keep the children at home and procure prompt medical advice in case of any illness however slight.

Yours truly,
George Chandler Coit,
Chairman of School Committee.

SECOND CASE OF INFANTILE PARALYSIS.

A second case of infantile paralysis was discovered by Dr. Victor Aime in the household of Lawrence J. Smithman at 24 Spruce street, on Sunday night. The afflicted child was Catherine Flowers, three years old, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dominick Flowers of 6 Holland street.

Mrs. Flowers is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Smithman, the child having been with them for a few days and when it was taken sick.

The case is reported as a bad one and the little girl is said to be very ill at the Evans Memorial Hospital at Brighton, where she was taken in accordance with the rules of the Board of Health and where the first case, found last week, was taken.

This Hospital maintains a ward for just such contagious diseases.

As was the case in the Dempsey family last week, all members of both households have been strictly quarantined by the Board of Health.

This included Mr. and Mrs. Smithman, their three sons, three Flowers children and Mr. and Mrs. Flowers.

It is reported that the Dempsey child, the first case found last week, is progressing satisfactorily.

The regular Church Quartette will sing at the Unitarian Church Sunday morning. The following music will be rendered:

Organ—Memory's Hour Silver
Venite—"O come let us sing" Buck Quartette—"When winds are raging" Scott
Response—"Give ear to my words" Shepard
Organ—Grand Choeur in D Spence

SEPTEMBER WEDDING.

A fall wedding of much importance among the younger society people of Winchester was that of Monday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Gleason at 37 Wedgemere avenue, when their daughter, Miss Carlene E. Gleason, was married to Mr. Allan Wilde, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. Eugene Wilde of Stafford road. Both of the young people are prominent socially, and the ceremony was largely attended, about 250 guests being present. Surrounding places were well represented in addition to a large number of friends from all parts of Winchester.

The ceremony held particular significance to many of the guests in that it took place on the twenty-seventh anniversary of the wedding of the parents of the bride, which was performed at Everett by the same clergyman who then officiated, Rev. R. Perry Bush, now pastor of the First Universalist Church of Chelsea. Mr. Charles A. Gleason is the well known President of the Edward T. Harrington Co., and both he and his wife shared in the congratulations showered upon the wedding party.

The ceremony was performed at eight o'clock in the living room of the residence. The wedding march was played by Mr. Bicknell's stringed orchestra stationed on the spacious porch adjoining, which was opened into the room, and the wedding party was preceded by two little flower children, dressed in white and carrying baskets of snap dragons tied with silver ribbon and the ribbon to form the aisle. The couple were married beneath a canopy of asparagus fern and asters and the bride was given in marriage by her father, the ceremony being simple and particularly impressive. The orchestra followed the wedding march with "On, Promise Me," which was played during the ceremony, and at its conclusion played "O Perfect Day."

The bride's gown was of ivory bride's satin copied from the quaint style of the early sixties. The skirt was garlanded with white and silver ribbons and the pearls on the bodice were worn on her mother's wedding gown. Deep ruffles of rosepoint lace fell from the shoulders and sleeves. She carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley and bride roses. A tulle overskirt and satin bound tulle train which hung from the shoulders made a charming background. The Russian cap of lace and orange blossoms from which hung a veil of tulle, were worn by the bride's mother at her wedding.

The matron of honor was Mrs. Eliot Barta of Manchester, N. H., and the bridesmaids were Miss Helen Jenkins of Malden and Miss Margaret Lambert of Framingham, N. Y. Miss Marie Dresser, a little cousin of the groom, and Master Atherton Gleason, brother of the bride, were the ribbon bearers. The best man was Mr. E. Redington Glidden.

The maid of honor's gown was rose tulle with under-skirt of lace ruffles. Pastel shades of tulle formed the bodice and tiny wreaths of flowers finished the neck. Bows of silver and velvet ribbon caught the skirt. The bridesmaids' gowns were turquoise blue and carried out the same design. They all carried baskets of snap dragons tied with silver ribbon.

The reception followed the ceremony, the parents of the newly married couple assisting in receiving. The ushers were Mr. Loring E. Gleason, brother of the bride, Mr. Roger C. Wilde, brother of the groom, and Mr. Eliot Barta of Manchester, N. H.

The decorations throughout the house were of garden flowers, the dining room being in goldenrod, the living room all of asters and the hall in fleur-de-lis. The decorations were effective and beautiful, particularly the canopy beneath which the ceremony was performed. The frappe was served in a sun parlor adjoining the den, which was decorated with a profusion of hydrangeas giving the effect of an arbor, and which was connected with the marquee erected on the lawn for the refreshments.

The couple were particularly well remembered by an abundance of very beautiful gifts and few brides are so fortunate as to open their new home with a more complete equipment of silver, china and cut glass, to say nothing of almost a thousand dollars in gold.

Following a wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Wilde will make their home in Allston. The groom is a well known employee of the paper house of Storrs & Bement Co. of Boston, and the bride a popular Ely Court girl.

A CELEBRATION FEATURE.

New American Hymn Written by W. T. Soule Played.

One of the interesting features of the musical program by the Salem Cadet Band was the new American Hymn, words and music by William T. Soule, a member of the Board of Directors of the Winchester Laundry Company.

This inspiring selection was played for the first time in Boston on the Braves Field by the consolidated bands, numbering 100 musicians, and was accorded a place of honor on the program following the Star Spangled Banner.

The hymn is used in many of the public schools throughout the country, and the publishers are many thousands of copies behind in filling their orders at the present time.

The hymn is as follows:
America, thou glorious land,
To thee we fondly cling,
With grateful hearts attuned to Praise of liberty we sing.
Thy mighty arm protects us
On mountain, vale and sea,
Thy hallowed light of freedom
Sheds truth and liberty.

America, America, we'll shout from strand to strand,
America, America, long live our glorious land.

America, thou radiant star
Whose light is ever bright,
Send forth to all the lands afar
Thy freedom's holy light,
No sun can ever be dim thee,
No cloud thy light obscure,
Shine on, thou mighty peace star,
Shine on forever more.
Chorus.

America, thou glorious land
of liberty and love,
To thee we raise an endless praise
Re-echoing above,
Should threatening clouds o'er shadow
Thy bright and peaceful sky,
We'll stand as men before thee
Thy will to do or die.
Chorus.

SENATORIAL CANDIDATE.

(From Medford Mercury.)

When Edwin T. McKnight and the men associated with him took charge of the Medford National Bank in 1908 they secured a small, struggling institution with deposits amounting to between $300,000 and $400,000. These deposits had been gathered during the eight previous years of the bank's existence.

Mr. McKnight's study of the banking question convinced him that trust companies were needed in many places where National banks found existence a difficult matter. His work in the legislature had made it possible to establish small trust companies and the reorganization of the Medford National Bank into the Medford Trust Company followed.

During the eight years since that reorganization took place, the Medford Trust Company has more than doubled its business. Its deposits today amount to more than $1,000,000. Its savings department has deposits of $378,000. Its old quarters in the Opera House block were outgrown and three years ago it moved into its own building, a modern banking house second to none outside of Boston, which has a book value of $30,000 but which is undoubtedly worth nearly twice that amount in the market. The savings department is not yet four years old, but its growth and the patronage given it by the people of Medford show that it was a needed fixture of the business. It has never paid less than four per cent. interest and its deposits are placed on interest on the last day of every month. During the first six months the savings department showed deposits of $50,000. By the end of the next six months the amount had doubled. The increase since then has been a steady one.

The growth of this bank and its success in filling the needs of the community have led Mr. McKnight to interest himself in the formation of other trust companies, whose stories of success would be but a repetition of the story of the Medford Trust Company. Mr. McKnight keeps in close touch with the business of the bank, looking over its affairs every banking day in the year. He gives the same close attention to the other trust companies and industries in which he is interested as well as to his law practice. He is a man who is "on the job" every minute of the day and night. He is the type of man who has won success through his own hard work, clear sightedness, ability and activity. He is the type of man whom everybody agrees is entitled to the eminent position which he has reached in the business world. He is the type of man who is capable of representing a large constituency in public office and is one of the few men of this calibre who is willing to devote his time for the benefit of his fellow men.

Do you swat the fly and then maintain a pile of garbage in the back yard?

IMPROVEMENT CELEBRATION.

At the opening exercises at the Highlands playground, Chairman Davidson of the Board of Selectmen, on behalf of the town, in brief remarks turned the playground over to the local park board. At the same time giving some good advice to the children. Mr. Alfred B. Carhart, of the Park Board, in behalf of his colleagues, accepted the trust.

Superintendent of Schools, Mr. Schuyler F. Herron, had charge of the band and saw that the musicians had their wants attended to. He took them in an electric car to and from the Highlands to the centre of the town for supper and otherwise assisted them in every way.

A feature of the parade was Mr. William T. Dotten in a George Washington costume at the head of the procession. It was very clever on his part to so costume himself and he received much applause along the line of march.

Gov. McCall was the guest of honor at the evening celebration on the field, and in a short speech referred to the public spirit of the citizens of Winchester since the town was incorporated. He also paid a deserved tribute to the work of the late Forest C. Manchester, in making this fine playground possible. The field is named after Mr. Manchester.

Sometimes the STAR hopes to see a suitable memorial placed upon the field by the appreciative inhabitants in grateful remembrance of what this gentleman has done for all time for Winchester in securing for them one of the best playgrounds in the State.

Mr. Lewis Parkhurst, than whom no other man is doing more for the advancement of Winchester, in most appropriate words, introduced Gov. McCall, who was given an ovation by his townsmen, which was but an indication of the great esteem in which the Governor is held here.

The Sports.

The celebration, opened at 2 o'clock at the new playground at the Highlands with an attractive list of sports for the boys and girls, a band concert by the Salem Cadet Band and a ball game between the Highlands team, the Forest Athletic Club, and the Hayes Class of Roxbury.

About 500 children attended the sports, in addition to a large number of adults, including the Selectmen, the Park Commissioners, Mr. Parkhurst and others. The program was opened by the Band, and following its selection, Chairman James J. Fitzgerald made a few remarks and introduced Chairman George T. Davidson of the Selectmen. After Selectman Davidson had spoken to the gathering and outlined the idea of the general celebration, Mr. Fitzgerald introduced Mr. Alfred B. Carhart of the Park Commission, who made a short address with reference to the new field.

The sports were pulled off promptly without any delays with the results as follows:

Potato race for boys under 15 years old: Gordon Cummings, 1st; Theodore Grant 2d.

Potato race for girls under 15: Anna McHugh 1st; Veronica Quigley 2nd.

50 yard dash for boys under 15: Clarence Osborne 1st; James Callahan 2nd.

50 yard dash for girls under 15: Margaret White 1st; Sadie Cady 2nd.

3 legged race for boys under 15: won by James McDonald and Allen McElhaney.

100 yard dash open: Edward Barrows 1st; Harold Boardley 2nd.

The sports and ball game were in charge of a committee headed by M. H. F. Dearborn, the energetic manager of the Highlands teams, he being assisted in his work by Messrs. Harry Seagrave, Adna Smalley, Kenneth Park, Schuyler F. Herron, Charles A. Lane and J. Albert Hersey. The last named gentleman had the prizes in charge, and Miss Lillian Winn had charge of the events for the girls.

After the completion of all the races the winners were called together and the prizes were then given out.

As soon as the field was cleared the announcement was made that the ball game would be between the Forest A. C. of Winchester, who had played 13 games, losing 2, and the Hayes Class of Roxbury, who had played 16 games and lost 2. Both teams were very evenly matched and with Lawson and Mathews as the battery for the home team and Zimmerman and E. Porter for the visitors, it promised to be a close, interesting game. The results proved it to be so, and while the Hayes Class won the score by 2 to 1, they had to put up the cleanest kind of base ball and get the breaks to win.

Lawson got 13 strike outs and Zimmerman 19. Lawson passed 2, Zimmerman 4. The F. A. C. got 7 hits for a total of 10, the visitors, 5 hits for a total of 6.

The F. A. C. Boys scored in their half of the second on a pass, a sacrifice bunt and two passes; then an error at third allowed Hatch to score, which proved to be their only runs for the day. Lawson held the visitors until the sixth, when they got their run tying up the score. It was the beginning of the end of the F. A. C.'s, made a shift in the outfield, and proved disastrous. Shaughnessy went to left, McManus was taken out and a new right fielder put in. In the F. A. C.'s, half of the sixth, Ryder went out on 3 strikes, the new right fielder struck out. McDowell, first up in the seventh for the Hayes Class, dumped one half way to the box; both Lawson and Mathews went after it and although Lawson was in the better position to get the ball and make the throw to first as his back was to the sun, yet Mathews got the ball and made a wild throw to Hatch. This play put one on. The next man up, Hein, sacrificed and this brought up Zimmerman, who banged one out into right which was muffed. The run came over and away went the ball game. Score 2 to 1 against F. A. C.

After that there was very little doing on either side, although Mathews got a two bagger after two were out in the seventh and was left when Hevey put up a high foul which Porter got under. In the eighth and ninth F. A. C. went out, one, two, three; this included three strike outs and three outs at first. F. A. C. pulled off a fast double play in the ninth on a hit to Hevey, who tossed to McPartland, forcing McDowell and getting Hein at first on a quick throw.

Remarks

We lost to a good team, a fine pitcher and the breaks. Of the three runs scored during the game none were earned.

A grand day, a fine crowd, good music and as good a game of ball as you could see in anyone's ball yard.

This is the last game we play—11 won, 3 lost.

The speeches, the races and the game were all carried through without a hitch, and everyone seemed well pleased with the program as mapped out for the opening of the new playground.

The Parade

The parade started from the Washington School on Cross street promptly at seven o'clock. As early as six o'clock the marchers and autos began to assemble, and Chairman O'Connor and his aids had their hands full getting them in line and establishing the order of procedure. The Selectmen, members of the Park Commission, Messrs. Lewis Parkhurst, Preston Pond and others, prominent in town affairs were stationed near the head of the procession, which was headed by Chief McIntosh of the Police Department and a platoon of officers, followed by James J. Fitzgerald, chief marshal, and John F. O'Connor of the Parade Committee.

A feature of the parade was Mr. William T. Dotten, Superintendent of the Water Department, one of Winchester's oldest residents and a man who has today probably seen more of the town's growth than any other citizen, who was dressed in the costume of a Colonial officer and who preceded the parade as a herald of its approach.

The marchers were headed by the Salem Cadet Band and members of the Winchester Fire Department, who were followed by about 100 Boy Scouts in charge of Scoutmaster Warren Fogg and under the command of Division Commander, Oliver M. Barker. A life and drum corps headed the general line of marchers, which included two divisions of girls dressed in white and carrying United States flags, as did the rest of the marchers.

The auto division followed the marchers, headed by Mr. Nathaniel M. Nichols and comprising about 50 cars.

The route of the parade was along Washington street to Irving, thence to Swanton by way of Florence; through Holland to Oak and then to the new street across the Pond by way of Spruce. At the Pond the marchers took the eastern foot-path and the autos the west street by the railroad to the centre, meeting at the Converse bridge and going by way of the Waterfield Bridge to Manchester Field.

The decorated autos were viewed by the judges as they crossed the Converse Bridge. Although there were many cars displaying flags the prize winners were easily picked out. Mr. J. A. Laraway was awarded the first prize for the decorations, his touring car being driven through a lane of cheering spectators along the whole line. He decorated with flags and bunting. On the front of his radiator was seated a huge teddy bear dressed to resemble a human figure and holding red, white and blue streamers. Corn stalks were used effectively at the sides and back, and the whole effect was brought out by a powerful search light placed inside the car at the rear, which threw its rays over the car. Mr. Laraway and the members of his family were in costume.

The second prize was awarded, Mr. Linwood Davis, who drove a runabout draped with flags and hydnarous, making an especially attractive display. Mr. Nathaniel M. Nichols, who decorated his touring car wholly with draped flags, also had a very effective display and was awarded third prize. Mr. Harry T. Winn received honorable mention for a particularly dainty display, his touring car being festooned with garlands of asters, with pompons and flags in the lamp sockets and a large flag draped over the back. Eugene P. Sullivan received considerable of an ovation also, as he drove his touring car over the route decorated with flags and its four occupants dressed alike with tall hats and black clothes.

The prizes for the winning cars were handsome silver cups, and the judges were Augustus M. Leonard and T. Price Winslow.

Canoe Parade.

The canoe parade on the river was one of the most pleasing features of the evening next to the fireworks. About a dozen decorated canoes participated in addition to many which only hung out a lantern. The route extended from the foot-bridge at the Playground to the Converse Bridge, where the turn was made. The judges viewed the parade from the Parkway bank opposite the band stand.

The parade was headed by Benjamin H. Newlands, who paddled the transparency of the Winchester Boat Club flag. The first prize was awarded to Waldo S. Manson of the Medford Boat Club. His canoe was done wholly in red, a large parasol trimmed with over 100 large and small red lanterns forming the display. Miss Irene Lord of the Winchester Boat Club was awarded the second prize for a very dainty wisteria effect in lavender and pale green; a lattice arbor constructed over her canoe was lighted by small electric lamps in a most effective and pleasing design. "Jack" Smith was awarded third prize for outlining the sail of his canoe with lanterns. The fourth prize was awarded Mr. Norman Mitchell and his companion for an Indian effect, his canoe having a wigwam built in its center and being paddled by an Indian and his sonaw. Vincent Farnsworth received honorable mention for a miniature battleship, very complete in detail, and which fired a salute from its turrets as it passed the judges.

Many of the displays by the canoeists were very dainty and effective. Mr. A. J. Smith, with a boat done wholly in red, had a very attractive display, as also did Mr. Miller F. Darrt, who used varied colored lanterns and had his canoe filled with wisteria blossoms. S. P. Higgins had his lights arranged in a double triangle and Jack Sheridan used a large parasol with lights around its edge and along the side of his boat. Mrs. Benjamin Newlands paddled an attractive boat with varied colored lights. Another attractive rig was that of E. S. Hamilton.

The judges for the illumination were Messrs. Charles S. Tenney, Alfred G. Barr, Marshall K. Berry and W. Wray Rohman. The prizes were fine silver cups, suitably engraved.

Governor McCall

Governor Samuel W. McCall made a short address on Manchester Field following the arrival of the parades and autos. After a selection by the Band, Mr. Lewis Parkhurst addressed the gathering from the Band Stand, making a short speech pertinent to the occasion.

Mr. Parkhurst in introducing Gov. McCall spoke in part as follows:

Governor McCall introduced by Mr. Parkhurst.

Gentlemen of the Celebration Committee, Neighbors and Friends: It is a rare privilege to be permitted to address so large and representative a body of Winchester's citizens as are here gathered together amidst such charming surroundings this most beautiful moonlight evening. There is represented here tonight on East Side or West Side; no North End or South End; but we are one and all for Winchester, realizing that whatever benefits one part of the town benefits all.

It is thirty-five years this month, almost this very day, since I first came to your town as principal of the high school. Here was then a country village of two or three thousand people, and I was at once impressed, as I have ever since been, not only by the natural beauty and latent possibilities of the town, but more especially by the civic pride and public spirit of the men and women with whom I came in contact.

A practical illustration of this spirit was very soon called to my attention. I had not been here a month when a prominent citizen came to me and inquired if I was the new high school teacher. I told him I was. Then said he, "Young man, if you are coming here to be one of us, you want to take an interest in public affairs, and be ready to hear a hand when needed." I assured him that that was my intention. "Very well," said he, "then I expect you to subscribe five dollars toward grading and beautifying the Common in front of the Congregational Church," and although I went dangerously near the bottom of my pocketbook to do it, I at once acceded to his request. It was the best investment I ever made in Winchester, for I immediately became interested to see how that five dollars was to be expended. From that day to this I have had an eye out for improvements in all parts of the town, and it has been a great personal satisfaction to me to feel that I contributed my mite toward beautifying the approach to the church which occupies so commanding a site in our midst and which we all love to look upon, whether or not we worship within its walls.

Since then improvements have followed one another in rapid succession: Water and sewers; highways and sidewalks; parks and boulevards; churches and schoolhouses; Town Hall and Fire Station; bridges and playgrounds. All these and many more have required not only large public appropriations, but they have called for the unpaid service of public-spirited citizens who have seen to it that these great expenditures of public funds have been made wisely and economically. In the thirty-five years that I have lived here I have never heard the word "graft" used in connection with any town official or member of a committee entrusted with making these expenditures.

Wherever in all these years the old bell on the Town Hall has rung out its call at eventide, no matter how stormy the night or how slushy the winter ways, no matter how strenuous had been the labors of the day, there have always responded fifty or a hundred, and in these later years several times that number, of Winchester's citizens who could be depended upon to stand for civic betterment and to vote the necessary funds to secure it, provided they fully understood the requirements of the day.

I recall to mind a single instance:

The Hall was packed to its limit. The question was, shall this land where we are now standing, in the very heart of the town, remain forever devoted to a tannery, to coal and lumber yards, stables and piggeries, or shall it be made an open field for recreation and a delight to all who look upon it? $60,000 was at stake—a large sum at that early date. The debate was heated and prolonged, but when the vote was finally taken, only a handful of the opposition were left; and this Manchester Field, where we are now gathered together, and the Mystic Valley Parkway, lined this evening with automobiles as far as the eye can reach, were the answer to that question, and the character of Winchester, as a residential suburb of Boston, was firmly established from that moment.

And, again, within the memory of all of you, when the question was, shall we not only appropriate $20,000, but also enter upon a general policy of improvement along the banks of the Aberjona river, which may ultimately call for two or three times that amount? Nine hundred answered "Yes" and less than nine said "No."

And what in these few years has been accomplished? Buildings which have outlived their usefulness and were not in keeping with their surroundings have been removed; old and dilapidated bridges have been discarded and in their places have been substituted two handsome arches; the old dam of Converse memory has been displaced by one new and attractive over which the water tumbles to a quiet stream below, no longer grown up with weeds and filled with the accumulated filth of a century, but clean and wholesome, with grassy banks and shady paths, the delight of the canoeist and the pedestrian. The answer to the question debated at that meeting is a civic centre established for all time, second in convenience and charm to none in this Commonwealth.

But the end is not yet. Bridges are to be built; ponds cleaned out; roads and paths completed; and we will never cease our efforts until the Aberjona shall run from its source among the hills at the north to its mouth at Mystic Lake, pure and free from the pollution which for years has been a disgrace to our community.

As I read the STAR during my absence from home this summer, I noticed that a few of our good friends rather objected to this celebration and suggested that we wait until we had finished our improvements; but if we were to wait until

BUSINESS SCHOOL TO HAVE BIGGEST YEAR IN HISTORY

With the largest enrollment in its history, the Bryant & Stratton Commercial School of Boston began its year's work Tuesday, September 5. The success of this well-known school is a striking testimony to the value of efficient methods in business education.

The Bryant & Stratton teaching plan is the individual system, based on the particular requirements of each pupil. Actual practice is combined with study. The different courses fit students not only for general business, but for secretarial examinations, accounting, auditing and teaching of commercial branches in high schools.

The Bryant & Stratton School has day sessions only, from 9 to 2, with no classes on Saturdays or evenings. A tribute to the high standing of the school is the fact that all patronage comes unsolicited—no canvassing or other methods practiced by other business colleges being used to obtain pupils.

SEES MEDICAL MONOPOLY IN HEALTH INSURANCE.

Behrens of Continental Casualty Makes Statement.

Holds Rubinstein an Advocate of "Pure Socialism in Interest of Single Professional Class." Pittsburgh Post Correspondent Also Says Doctors Want to "Hog" Billion a Year.

Behind the propaganda of the social service council of the American Medical Association, which is being evolved by Dr. I. M. Rubinstein, executive secretary of the council, H. A. Behrens, vice-president of the Continental Casualty Insurance Company, in an interview published in the current issue of the Western Underwriter, sees an effort to fasten on the country the compulsory adoption of a particular school of medicine.

In this he says he is sure that Dr. Rubinstein lacks the support of the rank and file of the American Medical Association.

Concurrently, the Pittsburgh Post publishes a letter from a contributor which charges that "the doctors, not satisfied with benefits received from the compensation laws, are trying to 'hog' all the money there is." In support of his views he estimates that on the basis, for a system of compulsory health insurance providing for medical treatment and examinations advocated by the doctors of the American Medical Association the total contributions of the country would approximate $1,000,000,000 annually. The contributor to the Post figures that "$1,000,000,000 is a mighty heap of money to be divided between doctors, druggists, and manufacturers of surgical instruments" for whose benefit he says the great "humanitarian project" was inaugurated.

Mr. Behrens in his comments is less caustic but none the less definite. In his opinion the efforts of Dr. Rubinstein tend toward a pure form of socialism in the interest of a professional class. He expresses disappointment that beyond this particular phase the utterances of Dr. Rubinstein advance nothing that is new.

Analyzing the propaganda of Dr. Rubinstein, Mr. Behrens says he makes three points in favor of the adoption of his plan: first, he advocates the necessity of insurance for the laboring man; second, he advocates compulsory insurance, and third, he favors the distribution of the cost of compulsory insurance between the workman, the employer and the state.

That insurance for the workman is desirable, Mr. Behrens says is axiomatic, and further he believes that the efforts of Dr. Rubinstein and his associates insofar as they impress the necessity for income protection upon the workman should prove helpful, but beyond this point he holds that the plan they advocate is open to question. He admits that striking individual examples of the application of the principles are cited but that the methods proposed will satisfy the country as to their articular adaptability to the solution of the problem of the physical ills of the race he doubts. At this point he asks, "Have we reached the stage which we are willing to let a particular theory of healing govern the welfare and lives of all American citizens? Socialism has many things to commend it, but Socialism in the interest of a specially favored class of medical practitioners is quite a different matter."

On the question of compulsion Mr. Behrens says that he is convinced that Dr. Rubinstein is merely looking for light, and that he is like the man who advocates the desirability of walking on water. He announces the desirability of the accomplishment but is unable to offer a practical suggestion as to how it should be realized. The logical outcome of the plan advocated by Dr. Rubinstein, says Mr. Behrens, would be the confinement of all workmen below certain standards of health to public institutions.

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE.

"The Heart of Dixie," the attraction at the Castle Square next week, is a comedy drama of the present day South and is declared to sound a big deep human note and to carry an appeal to every human heart. The author has sought to provide a play that would entertain with dramatic thrill, romance, pathos and a broad vein of comedy and not to present any weighty social problem to be solved. The scenes are laid in Western North Carolina and the characters are said to be as true to that district as were the "types" made famous in "Way Down East," "Shore Acres," "Arizona" and "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch."

The company includes Bertha Julian, Dorothy Hays, Ethel Wickham, Charlotte Landon, Richard La Salle, Jerome Bruner, and Lawrence Atkinson. Characteristic dances and the melodies of the past and present will be furnished by a chorus of darkies.

IMPROVEMENT CELEBRATION.

that time we should never celebrate, for improvements will be needed as long as Winchester exists. The time to celebrate is when the spirit moves, and certainly there is every evidence that we all feel like celebrating ourselves upon the results of our activities up to the present time. I for one am glad we are celebrating here tonight, not boastfully, or comparing ourselves with other cities and towns, but rather in a thankful frame of mind, thankful that our lot has been cast in such pleasant places; thankful that we live among such congenial friends and neighbors; thankful that we have had among us in the past men of vision and foresight; thankful that there have always been and are today those in our midst who are willing to work for the good of future generations and not merely for personal gain or immediate profit.

But I have already taken more of your time than I intended, as I know you are anxious to listen to our distinguished fellow-townsmen who is to address you, so at the request of your committee I take great pleasure in presenting my old friend and neighbor, Winchester's Governor, Samuel W. McCall.

Governor McCall was then greeted with a big ovation. The Governor expressed his congratulations to the Winchester people for their enterprise and labors as shown in the development of the town and in its completion of the important developments the celebration signified, and contrasted the present conditions with those existing at the time of his first residence here. The Governor's speech was short and eagerly listened to by the immense throng.

Mr. Edward S. Foster and Mr. Nathan H. Taylor escorted Governor McCall to the field and across to the band stand through a solid lane of people.

A selection by the band then preceded the appearance of the illuminated canoes coming up the river, their passing the judges stand being the signal for the opening for the fireworks.

The Fireworks

The fireworks were judged to be the best of the many magnificent displays which have been shown on Manchester Field, and it is safe to say that not one person in the whole of the big crowd, estimated all the way from 15,000 to 25,000 persons, but what felt thoroughly satisfied at its conclusion that he had seen as good a display of fireworks as could be produced anywhere.

The fireworks were arranged for and fired off under the direction of Mr. George Barboro, and were furnished by the Randolph Fireworks Co. There were many new pieces introduced in the display, which included a most attractive lot of set pieces in addition to the usual aerial fireworks.

Decorations.

The decorations for the celebration furnished the best display made in Winchester since its celebration of its 250th anniversary in 1890. The finest display was credited to the Winchester Laundry Co., which certainly provided the show piece of the evening.

The large laundry building on Converse place with its two sides facing the Mill pond, was completely covered from roof to cellar with varied colored electric lights. Hundreds of lamps of every color were used in the display and the effect was magnificent. As viewed from any side the big structure resembled a solid block of colored light. Others who showed pleasing electrical effects were the E. C. Sanderson Co., which had a triangle of electric lanterns running to the top of its building, and the J. A. Laraway Co. with colored electric lamps festooned over the front.

Calcium lights were placed liberally about the centre, lighting the new bridge and river from Nelson street to the lower end of Manchester Field. Large lights were played on the falls at the Converse bridge and on the surface of the river at the bridges and playground, while the new electric lights were used on the new street across the pond and on the path. Red fire was kept burning along the whole line of the parade until long after the procession had passed. The Mill pond was bordered with a string of electric lanterns running completely around it, and this next to the Laundry, made the finest decoration of the evening.

Both bridges were decorated with flags, with rows of streamers across the river from the Mt. Vernon street bridge to the playground. The entrance to the path around the pond from Mt. Vernon street was decorated by a large arch of asparagus fern, flags and lanterns, and the path itself was arched with streamers and flags.

All along the route of the parade houses were decorated and arches of lanterns and flags placed at intervals. Of exceptionally attractive appearance was Nelson street, the residents of which had united in decorating with flags and lanterns, making it by far the most pleasing display to be found north of the centre.

The Fire Station was decorated with flags and bunting, as was the Telephone Exchange, and during the entire evening all of the stores about the centre were lighted from top to bottom. Electric lights on top of the big stable of the Kelley & Hawes Co. were very effective during the evening.

Among the stores and buildings which were attractively decorated were the following:

Seen and Heard at the Celebration.

The automobile parade was not what it should be. A town like Winchester with so many autos should be well represented, even if they did not decorate the cars.

The canoe parade was one of the prettiest features of the whole celebration, and what canoes were decorated showed fine taste.

The Laundry was the greatest sight in town. It seems a shame not to have had more of such illuminations in the centre.

The absence of decoration from the Police and Fire Station, also the Town Hall, was severely criticised. Why not dig up a few dollars from the incidental account. We do not think anyone would have complained.

Following the autos was a horse and carriage containing a few people "one of the kids." Hey Mister, this is a parade, the cemetery is the other way.

The dignified appearance of Gene and Jerry with friends caused much favorable comment as they passed through the streets several times. Gene was taken for ex-President Taft and the crowd commenced to clap and cheer. Only when Jerry's hat fell off was the error discovered.

The crowds filled the centre early and the force of police from Woburn, as well as our own, were kept on the jump, but so far we have heard of no accidents.

Only four arrests were made and those only more for safety than anything else. They were celebrating too strenuously.

The fireworks were the finest ever seen on Manchester Field. It would pay the town authorities to try some of these unknown concerns that are looking for a reputation, not some of the firms who are living on a past one. This display had the Fourth of July exhibition beaten to a frazzle and did not cost anything near the amount.

And the band. Well, there are ways of getting the best when you go after them. This band came here at a reasonable price and we hope to see and hear more of it.

The Italian colony was well represented in the parade and from what the writer heard there would have been ten times as many in line had there been concerted action in regard to the parade.

It was too bad the two ball teams could not have played at the Highlands. We understand the Town team was perfectly willing to play there for their expenses. There were probably 1,500 or more on Manchester Field and all would have gone to the Highlands with proper handling of that part of the program. It was even reported around town that the game at Manchester Field was called off. We think that Manager LeDuc did the right thing in playing out his schedule. The crowd was an endorsement anyway.

TREMONT THEATRE.

Again Boston theatregoers are proving the worth of their judgment in the matter of appraising a production that comes with the enthusiastic endorsement of New York and Chicago. Thus has Thomas Ince's marvelous photo spectacle been met with a succession of crowded houses at every performance at the Tremont Theatre. With one accord the critics of the press sounded their praises unstintingly, proclaiming the production of such magnitude as to baffle the conception to estimate. Not one whit behind-hand have been the public who have shown their belief in the spoken and printed praise.

GAME TOMORROW.

We go to Woburn tomorrow to play what is to be the last game of the series between the two towns. We held out for three games, but one is all Woburn wants, and we suppose Winchester will have to be content. There is altogether too much butting in on the management this season in Woburn and it is a difficult matter for Manager Hawkins to do as he wants. If he had his way we would have three games to close the season with. But the rest of the game. Sports? say no, and also they say, go get a pitcher to beat Winchester. The report is current that McMahon will not pitch. It makes no difference to us who does the pitching, but it seems a pretty cheap piece of sportsmanship to displace a good pitcher who has faced the best in the business just for the sake of winning. They may be able to win with another pitcher and then again we may have something to say. If Woburn goes down to defeat with some one else besides McMahon pitching, you will never hear the last of it. We will stand pat on the team with the exception of second bases. Bases will probably play there and we will get a new third baseman. This has been the weak spot all the season, especially in batting. There are plenty of good men to be had now and we will have one that can deliver. The rest of our team will suit the most rabid fan. The game starts at 3 o'clock, and all seats are 25 cents. Do not forget the starting time. Coady and Hardy will umpire.

EDWIN T. McKNIGHT.

Widespread interest attaches to the contest in the Sixth Middlesex senatorial district for the Republican nomination at the primaries, for a nomination by the Republicans of this district is equivalent to an election.

One of the strong Republicans of the district is Edwin T. McKnight of Medford, who has served his apprenticeship in the Republican party and who has become a candidate for the senatorial nomination. He is widely known in business circles throughout the state, is an attorney and banker, has had experience in city government both in his home city and in Boston, and has served in the lower branch of the Legislature and in the Republican State committee. He is a man of broad vision, is in close touch with business affairs and has the added benefit of his knowledge of the law.

"Edwin T. McKnight's entrance into the contest for the Republican nomination in the Sixth Middlesex district was one of the most gratifying events from a political standpoint that has happened to the cities and towns in that district for years," says Practical Politics. "It means that the party will have the opportunity of selecting as the senatorial nominee one of the most brilliant legislators who ever served in the lower branch of the Legislature, and one of the best known attorneys in Boston and a director in several banking institutions."

During his service in the Boston Common Council and afterwards in the Legislature, Mr. McKnight proved himself an able legislator. He was in line for political advancement at that time but he found it impossible to hold office and do justice to his own rapidly increasing business and professional interests. Because of the insistent urging of party leaders in the Sixth Middlesex district, Mr. McKnight has agreed to enter the senatorial contest.

Born in New Brunswick 47 years ago, Mr. McKnight came to Boston at the age of 25 years for the purpose of studying law. He graduated from the Frederickton, N. B., normal school and the University of New Brunswick in 1894. Then he entered Harvard Law School. During his entire college course he earned his own way by teaching and tutoring, and he was for two years principal of the Shepard evening school in North Cambridge.

In 1902 he was elected to the Boston Common Council from Ward 21. His interest in public affairs has always been active. He served three years in the Boston Common Council, where he was commended by the Good Government association, particularly for his consistent opposition to the practice of raising money for such expenses as street repairs by long term loans when that money should properly be charged to current expenses.

In 1905 he was elected to the Legislature and was re-elected in 1906. In his first year he won prominence by securing the passage of a law putting a stop to the practice of giving straw bonds for the dissolution of mechanics' liens. Prior to that time mechanics and laborers were cheated out of their pay with regularity. Later he secured the passage of a similar law to apply to attachments. He secured the passage through the House of a bill aimed to stop the discriminate selling of liquor in cheap hotels on Sunday although this bill afterwards met defeat in the Senate by two votes.

His progressive legislation in financial matters has been of great importance to the state. He was interested in the passage of a bill to allow trust companies to organize with a minimum capital stock of $200,000 instead of $500,000. The latter amount had been required and prohibited banking facilities in many sections which had actually been suffering from them.

He was instrumental in organizing the Dochester Trust Co. Its success led him to a deeper study of the banking facilities available for other communities. He found that the consolidation of banks in Boston left an inviting field for new institutions. He found that in smaller communities where National banks were struggling for existence, there was opportunity for trust companies, with less restricted charters, to be highly successful.

In addition to being well known politically and in legal circles, Mr. McKnight is a director in the Cambridge Realty Co., the Charlestown Trust Co., the Dalton Ingersoll Manufacturing Co., Dochester Trust Co., Framingham Trust Co., Guaranty Trust Co., of Cambridge; Massachusetts Fire and Marine Insurance Co., Melrose Trust Co., president of the Medford Trust Co., and vice-president of the Fidelity Trust Co., of Boston.

VOTE FOR GEORGE T. DAVIDSON

AS REPRESENTATIVE

HERE IS A GOOD CHANCE FOR THE CITIZENS OF WINCHESTER TO SHOW THEIR APPRECIATION OF THE EARNEST EFFORTS OF MR. GEORGE T. DAVIDSON, CHAIRMAN OF THE BOARD OF SELECTMEN OF THE TOWN, BY GOING TO THE PRIMARIES NEXT TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 26th, BETWEEN THE HOURS OF 5:45 A. M. AND 4 P. M. AND VOTING FOR HIM AS REPRESENTATIVE FROM THIS DISTRICT TO THE GENERAL COURT.

Mr. George T. Davidson has worked hard and faithfully for this town as a public official for many years, as Selectman and otherwise, and it is no more than fair that he should receive the support of every citizen of this town and be honored still more by being nominated as Representative. No one man in town deserves more commendations for the way the town affairs have been carried on the last three years than he does, and the many public improvements which have been put through have been well supported and carried on by him according to the wishes of the best citizens of our town.

When you go to the polls next Tuesday why not give due consideration to the qualifications of Mr. George T. Davidson? He has done well here; he will do well as representative in this district on account of his experience and business ability. The cleaning up of the Aberjona River will probably require, before it is completed, some legislative action, and Mr. Davidson has been investigating this important question along the river with the different manufacturing plants and he is well informed on the whole subject, and he should be allowed to carry on the good work to the finish.

YOUR AFFAIRS AND MINE.

Much ink has been consumed in setting forth the beauties of poverty. In fact, poverty and trouble are the two most important ingredients of romance. It is difficult to imagine life without its great antithesis, and heaven as a place of endless idleness and pleasure has never held any special charm for The Spectator. It is the finest sort of reading—the history of the poor, with their make-shifts and their creative work—but you will notice that such stories mostly end by everybody making his fortune and living happily forever after, which is certainly not true to life. Very few people make a fortune, and as to living happily forever after, this is the snare that lures young people into early and injudicious marriages. Life is full of happiness, strange, in explicable happiness, but it is also full of sorrow and tears, and to tell a young person that the bright days far exceed the sad ones is to mislead him. So many intensely sad people go about with bright faces, perform actions that seem festive, help put the glad face upon life when their hearts are breaking. The Spectator sometimes wonders if we do not carry this to unwholesome extremes. Heaven forbid that The Spectator should recommend gloom or the magnifying of sorrow, but are not the very well-to-do unnecessarily cheerful over the poverty of the other fellow?

There is one tragedy in life which it seems to The Spectator the people of the world should cease to perpetuate, and that is the tragedy of the young girl facing all alone the big unfriendly world. The woman who has always been sheltered, as the vast majority of women have, from the actualities of life, can have little real sympathy for this situation. A girl of fourteen or fifteen is a large problem for society under any circumstances. There is in a girl at that age a natural rebellion against restraint. She is in a turbulent condition mentally and physically. That a girl at this age should face the fact that there isn't any money in the family and that it devolves upon her to get some, is, in The Spectator's mind, a situation that should be made impossible by Society. The State should be responsible for its children; not for its incorrigible children—not for the correction of its children already made criminals by untoward conditions, for that is what makes most criminals—but for all its children. The State should be far more paternal or maternal if you please, than it is. Think of the millions spent upon penal institutions and reformatories, on hospitals and charitable institutions. Only think then, if these millions were spent in prevention of poverty and all the other agencies that create crime!

What if children were given without the stigma of "charity" the vision of beauty and the technical training that every human being who will to live should have? The girl, confronted by the awful bug-bear of battling with life, generally ends it by taking on a double burden of poverty. She marries a poor man and proceeds to furnish poor children to suffer and be tempted as she was. This is a madness we shall sometime learn to sublimate (not to suppress—there can be no good in suppression). The girl will be trained for beautiful and useful work, work that insures full self-expression and receives the appreciation it should receive.

A good Winchester lady expresses her conviction that in coming years motherhood will become less morbid. The Spectator is pretty strong on personal liberty and individual rights, but the claims of motherhood can become injurious to Society. The Spectator has recently known of an instance where maternal fondness brought a whole family of girls to a life of prostitution. The mother, through poverty and weak morals combined, was forced to prostitution. The Spectator does not doubt that she condoned the fact with the thought that she was providing for her young.

It is among the eccentricities of the well-to-do and fortunate folk to imagine that only those who lead exemplary lives really love their families. They argue that if they truly loved their families they would conduct themselves in a way to make them happy. This is, of course, the highly proper and conventional analysis of true love. The worst thing about the highly proper and conventional analysis of things is that it hasn't the first thing on earth to do with real life. It is just like the snug social judgments of things at large—all superficial and pretentious. The nice folk that appear to be running things are really in no sense stemming the current of actualities which is leaping swiftly onward in the red blood of youth—the unbridled passions of manhood and the frivolities and immoralities of women, who call themselves good, because, while hourly trampling the spirit, they obey the letter of the law.

In this world the burden of righteousness rests on the sinner, as the burden of taxation rests upon the poor man. It is not your virtue, madam, which shivers as an inspiration to the girl who must live alone in a hall bedroom on a pittance of pay. Your being "good" cannot help her. If you worked beside her and went home with her at night, helped her to the fun that all girls need and to the watchfulness that they need, too, you would be doing something. You can "deplete," you can draw up resolutions, but none of these things gets you anywhere.

We have many a "moral" man who does not pay his taxes. This would be bad if he was only cheating some rich monarch or landlord, but he is robbing everyone of his poor neighbors—you and The Spectator—and laughing in his sleeve over it. Do you think he will not be called to account for this? Can he imagine that he is "moral" when he steals? The burden of religious life always rests upon the unbelievers. He is required to give ten times the account for his conduct required of the church member. If he does wrong, the hue and cry is raised and the triumph of the saved is most jubilant.

The Spectator.

HEBREWS OBSERVE SLICHUS.

The observance of Sllichus, or the midnight prayers will be held by the Hebrews of Greater Boston with impressive services in synagogues and temples this Saturday night. The holy days' services began Thursday and are continued through the week.

In accordance with the Jewish custom hundreds of thousands of Hebrews of Boston and other places are visiting the graves of relatives and those of departed Jews who have been noted for their piety, the big day of their pilgrimage being this coming Sunday, when thousands of Hebrews will pass through Winchester on their way to the Jewish cemetery at Mt. Airy.

The pilgrimage is witnessed by residents of Winchester each year, and usually makes the biggest Sunday in point of traffic for the electric roads of the whole year. Special electric lines will be run during the entire day, and on former years even this has not sufficed to care for the immense crowds.

To the Editor of the Star:
I am pleased to note in a recent issue of your paper that William A. Kneeland, Esq., is a candidate for representative in the Republican Primaries, whom I have known both personally and professionally for many years.

Mr. Kneeland, in my opinion, is of the type of man having the high ability and courage which should be required of the office, and is sufficiently progressive and independent in character to warrant, above all other candidates, the support of all thinking Progressives in the district. In fact, I know of no one in Winchester to whom could be entrusted more confidently the duties of representative, and the safeguarding of the public interests, with the assurance of complete independence of action and fairness of judgment.

Very truly yours,
Everett N. Curtis.

THIRD CASE OF INFANTILE PARALYSIS.

Although not officially reported, Winchester has had another case of infantile paralysis which developed last week. The afflicted child is Alice V. Quigley, 2 1/2 years old, of the family of Patrick Quigley of 17 Loring avenue.

It appears that last week Wednesday afternoon the child complained of a lame foot and on Thursday, as it was limping, its grandmother took it to the Mass. General Hospital. Suspecting that the case might develop into infantile paralysis, the doctors there detained the child and held several examinations and consultations, resulting in its being sent to the contagious ward at the Evans Memorial Hospital at Brighton. At the latter place further investigation resulted in the announcement that the case was probably infantile paralysis.

The child is still at the hospital, although up and around, and evidently has a very light case.

The local Board of Health learned of the case the latter part of the week and immediately quarantined three families in the Quigley family, five in another family living in the same house and two in still another family.

The case will, or has been, reported not from Winchester, but from Boston, as cases are always reported from the place where the diagnosis is made, and in this instance it was at Brighton that it was finally decided that the trouble was probably infantile paralysis.

SIX CENT FARES IN WINCHESTER.

The new fare schedule which the Bay State Street Railway recently filed with the Public Service Commission will be allowed to go into effect October 9, and there will be no further hearings in regard to the six-cent fares established by the company, according to Chairman Frederick J. Macleod of the commission.

The six-cent fares case of the Bay State is now officially closed and there can be no further hearings on the matter. Swampscott recently filed a protest against the proposed new schedule, objecting to the six-cent fares between that town and Marblehead and between those towns and Boston. Wakefield has also been preparing to fight the fare raise further.

BICYCLE RECOVERED.

While at work erecting the tackling dummy for the High School football squad on Manchester Field Tuesday, Paul Kirk of Loring avenue, the school department carpenter, had his bicycle stolen. Kirk was obliged to leave the field for a short time and before going covered the wheel with lumber. When he returned it was gone.

Shortly before six o'clock on the same evening the agent of the Wedgemere station found the wheel in the shrubbery on the station grounds near Bacon street, where it had been thrown by the thief. The police were notified and the wheel was returned to Mr. Kirk.

PARALYSIS CASES IMPROVING.

Winchester's three infantile paralysis cases at the Evans Memorial Hospital, Brighton, are reported as all "getting along nicely." The cases now at the hospital are Walter Dempsey, Catherine Flowers and Alice Quigley. Of the three cases, that of the Flowers child is said to be the most serious.

TEAM MATCH A TIE.

Tuesday's ladies' play at the Winchester Country Club was a team match, it being participated in by 20 ladies. The teams were captained by Mrs. G. W. Fitch and Mrs. A. R. Pike, the match resulting in a tie, each team totalling 14 points.

OPENING FOR LADIES.

New Calumet Alleys Greatly Enjoyed by Many.

The formal opening of the newly constructed bowling alleys at the Calumet Club for the ladies was held on Tuesday evening with a record attendance. All of the six alleys were taxed to their capacity by an attendance of over 100 ladies and gentlemen and the evening furnished the largest bowling tournament in the Club's history. The ladies' new locker and dressing room was used on this evening for the first time.

The bowling opened at 7.30 and was continued until after 10.30, many high strings being rolled by the ladies. The five prizes which were awarded were all for blind rolling, a selection being made of a number of events at the close of the tournament.

The winners for the evening were as follows:

Highest 3 string total—Miss Louise Giles, 281.

Highest single string—Mrs. Philips C. Simonds, 104.

Fifth highest 3 string total—Mrs. E. R. Butterworth, 265.

Lowest 3 string total—Mrs. George Heintz, 184.

Lowest single string—Mrs. F. A. Parsley, 59.

All of the prizes were awarded on a handicap, taken from previous rolling or given by the bowling committee. The prizes were all alike and consisted of handsome silk umbrellas.

It is anticipated from the enthusiasm shown on the opening night that the Mixed tournament this winter will be the largest ever held at the Club. The alleys are now open to the ladies each Tuesday and Friday afternoon and Tuesday evenings.

He enters Harvard University this fall for a post graduate year and intends to make teaching his profession.

Miss Dresser spent three months in Brunswick last Spring and after attending commencement at Bowdoin she was the guest of Mr. Winter's parents in Kingfield.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Allan Wilde will entertain a small house party for the week-end. Mr. Winter will be their guest and a birthday dinner will be given on Saturday night in honor of Miss Phoebe's birthday.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Allan Wilde, who will have just returned from the wedding journey, are expected to join the home circle for the occasion. Miss Ruth Junkins of Malden will also be a guest.

W. C. T. U. NOTES.

The County Secretary sends the following announcement to the Union:

The annual Convention and election of Officers of Middlesex County W. C. T. U., will be in the Y. M. C. A. Building, Temple street, Cambridge, on September 27, opening at 10 a. m.

Luncheon will be served at 25 cents each.

A prizes of one year's subscription to the Union Signal will be given to the Union having the largest number of delegates to the Convention, and the Campaign edition to the next largest number.

The Y. W. C. A. is near the subway exit at Central Square, Cambridge.

The Winchester Union is hoping for a large representation at the convention. Members are planning to take the twenty minutes of ten car to Arlington.

A recent message from the State President urges that every effort be put forth to increase the membership of the Winchester Union before the convention. The gain of 25 per cent, decided upon at the beginning of the year would bring the membership of this year up to 137. Let us put forth every effort to reach that goal. Only a few days are left in which to work.

A very pleasant meeting was enjoyed last week at the home of Mrs. Wm. Richardson.

BASE BALL.

Winchester Comes Back at Arlington, 4-0. By "Mack"

We told you we were going to Arlington and hand them a trimming Saturday and we did a most artistic job of it. Here is a team that beat us three times running, but at that we never thought they had anything on us, and Saturday's game must have proved our claim on Arlington that such was the fact. Arlington only had two players of the original team against us Saturday. Wright and McGovern. In every other position O'Neil had a star, or thought he did. At any rate they are classed as stars by the different sporting writers of Boston. The only one on the team who could not be classed as such, was Collins on second base, and he accepted nine chances without an error, although he did not have a hard one in the whole game. If he knew anything about second base playing, Wingate would have had a couple of hits, but this kid stayed in the same place all the afternoon, and hoped to be just where hits would ordinarily go. The whole trouble with Arlington was its inability to hit Trayers, as Currier, the Minute Boys fielder, was the only one to get a hit. As in the previous game we hit Wright hard and at no time was Winchester in danger of being defeated. We had Bangs on third base and Coolidge, the Harvard star, on left, in place of Blowers. Coolidge is some fielder and hitter and on the bases he is a streak. During the summer he stole 25 bases and hit for .385, quite an addition to our team. Everyone on the team played good ball and with the same team playing all summer we would not have met many defeats. Bill Coady umpired the game in his usual good manner. There was also one of the largest crowds of the season on hand, and more than 1-2 were from Winchester.

Notes.

Percentage .610, and against the best teams in the semi-pro ranks.

You cannot beat Winchester for loyalty to their teams. One of the big crowds of the season followed us to Arlington and were well repaid for the trip.

Candidate Prime was one of the interested spectators and rooted for Winchester to win.

Jim Murray from Woburn got there in the sixth inning and saw some nice ball played by Winchester.

This Deleahanty that played on left field for Arlington, is one of the heaviest hitters in the semi-pro ranks, but he was helpless before Trayers, and was removed after he struck out twice.

Reardon at short, is another star, playing at Fordham College and during the summer at Falmouth.

Connors, in right, played down at Oak Bluffs all summer with Dave Morey's team.

McGovern did not do much with Trayers, but nevertheless he is the best player on the Arlington team. He had some awful throws to take from the other fielders.

Dempsey, the catcher, played with Bangs all season down at Hagers-town, Md. He did not have any medals on him from where we sat.

McGovern to Wright, "Say Wright, keep the ball away from that Winchester crowd today, you are up against a bunch of hitters," and McGovern guessed right—no pun intended.

Coolidge is the fastest man we have seen this season going down to first, and this includes some pretty fast base runners.

He made a nice steal of second base but Bill Coady failed to see it and called him out.

The funniest play of the afternoon was when Frye dropped the little fly in short center. Either Wingate or Kelley could have got it. But "Minnie" waved them aside and he was so dead sure of it he dropped it.

But Frye made the prettiest play of the afternoon when he nailed Harkins at third base by a swell throw from the out field.

You fans who witnessed the game at Arlington Saturday and saw how the crowd was handled there, will have to hand it to police here in Winchester when it comes to good work in keeping order on the players' field. The cigar store Indian, could do just as well as the officer they had. He never moved out of one spot, and if one of our officers pulled off the work he was doing, the writer would be panned from one end of the field to the other and asked "what are you paying an officer for." But after witnessing Saturday's game, I guess we will have to hand it to our officers. The same can be said of Woburn, it always handles the crowd well.

PUBLIC LIBRARY.

Bulletins on the uses of concrete issued by the Portland Cement Association, Chicago, have been added to the collection of references on building at the public library.

These bulletins were written by competent engineers experienced in concrete work and contain practical information which will be of assistance to those engaged in concrete construction and others who are contemplating the use of cement in making permanent, economical and fire-proof improvements about their homes.

Among the many subjects that are treated in detail are the following: Tennis Courts of Concrete, Small Concrete Garages, Concrete Fence Posts, Concrete Feeding Floors and Walks, Concrete Foundations.

SAFER IN SCHOOL.

The general postponement of the opening of the public schools because of the infantile paralysis epidemic is a serious mistake, according to Dr. Merrill E. Champion of the state board of health.

"The children would be much safer in school than playing on the streets," said Dr. Champion.

"The schoolroom is a more wholesome place for them than the motion picture theatres. When the children are in school they are in the eye of spectators, teachers and nurses, in addition to the care given them by their parents.

"There is nothing in the present situation, anyway, to cause the public such alarm," declared Dr. Champion.

WINCHESTER MAN FINED.

A sentence of two months in the House of Correction and a fine of $5 was imposed on William J. Preeper this week, on charges of assaulting Mrs. James McAdams of Westley street, Winchester, and her daughter, Agnes McAdams, with a clothes pole. Judge Maguire entered an appeal on the jail sentence.

It was stated that Preeper attempted to chase a McAdams boy out of an apple tree in the yard of the estate owned by Mrs. Preeper and occupied by the McAdams', by prodding a clothes pole at the boy in the tree. Mrs. McAdams interfered, together with her daughter, and Preeper was alleged to have struck Mrs. McAdams on the head three times with the clothes pole. The last time she was knocked down, she became unconscious, witnesses declared, and she sustained a scalp wound. Agnes McAdams testified that she was also struck by Preeper. The lad who was in the tree started to the defense of his mother and sister, but was prevailed upon to call the assistance of the police.

Mrs. McAdams was treated by Dr. Richard Sheehy, Judge Johnson imposed the jail sentence of two months.

Entered at the post-office at Winchester, Massachusetts, as second-class matter.

The primary comes next Tuesday. Reserve ten minutes on that day to cast a vote.

After two attempts to hold a special town meeting, Stoneham has given it for the present because of a lack of a quorum.

Some people are asking why the town does not stop the flow of the discolored water that passes through Winchester. It can be said in this connection that Mr. Davidson, the Chairman of the Board of Selectmen, and Mr. Charles E. Kendall of the Board, have been for some time investigating and ascertaining the sources where this water originates, and a report of their findings and recommendations will be given through the Selectmen to the people in a few days. Mr. Davidson has devoted much time this summer to the matter, and is pretty well convinced where the trouble originates. The report will deal with actual conditions. Unless we are greatly mistaken relief will have to be asked of the Legislature, in an extension of the Metropolitan sewer to North Woburn, where the source of the impurities originate, or else in some method devised by the offending concerns.

MR. KNEELAND'S ANSWER.

Editor of the Star:—In the letter published in last week's STAR and bearing the signature of Mr. Henry Weed, attention is called to my record as a legislative counsel at the State House. The professional services so rendered are stated to have been performed under the "Lobby Act" so-called, although the writer, unless he has been reckless in his terms, the meaning of which he does not comprehend, must know that the act to which he refers has nothing whatsoever to do with lobbying and has never been called the "Lobby Act," but is entitled "An Act Relative to Statements Concerning the Employment of Legislative Counsel and Agents."

If the writer of this letter meant to make insinuations against my professional conduct, either he has deliberately attempted to deceive the voters, or he is so ignorant of the subject on which he writes that he has no right to juggle with the reputation of other men in the public print. He must or should know that it is as honorable and as necessary a part of an attorney's duty to appear in behalf of his clients before the "Great and General Court" of this Commonwealth, our Legislature, as to appear before any other court in the State, whether Supreme or District. He must or should know that every organization, every religious and civic society, every city and town, including our own Winchester, which is interested in seeing good laws enacted and bad laws defeated is represented by counsel before the Legislature since such associations, societies, cities or towns cannot appear in person and plead for good laws and good government.

If, however, the writer intended no insinuations of impropriety, then he has done no more than to set forth facts in his letter which clearly substantiate the statements already made in my behalf by my friends, that I have had a valuable experience in legislative work and procedure, and on that account am the better fitted to serve as Representative.

Although both my friends and I sincerely hope that this letter signed by Mr. Weed was not published in wilful disregard of the spirit of fair play which should characterize a contest of this nature and which I think I have shown throughout towards my opponents, it is difficult to conceive how it was written with any other purpose than to imply covertly what the writer did not dare to state directly, because he knew his implication was false.

Your very truly,

William A. Kneeland.

MR. PRIME WOULD MAKE A GOOD SENATOR.

To the Senatorial Voters:—Mr. Prime is known in the Legislature as an untiring worker, a watchful and careful guardian of public interests, a clear and accurate thinker, and an independent and honest man. His personal acquaintances recognize these elements in him, and rely upon him.

The Massachusetts Senate is a small body, and every member's action has a far-reaching effect. It is for the interest of every upright citizen of the State that we elect a Senator who seeks only the general good, and is proof against inducements of personal gain, in money, association, or subtle advantages which appeal to less experienced and more irresolute men.

This year we should all turn out for Mr. Prime.

CONTAGIOUS DISEASES.

Board of Health report the following cases of contagious diseases for the week ending Sept. 20: Diphtheria 1, Pulmonary tuberculosis 2, Mumps 1.

A FINAL WORD BY MR. HAYWARD.

September 20, 1916.

Editor of the Star:—The only contest of local interest in Winchester at the Primaries September 26th will be in the nomination of a Republican Representative for the 25th District. There has been a great deal of personal work done by all three candidates.

As one of the candidates I wish to state that it is my opinion that the voters of Winchester and Ward 3 of Medford are of a class eminently capable of deciding for themselves what candidate they propose to endorse. It is useless for any of us to argue that by written signature or personal word we have the unqualified endorsement of any one of them.

It is my hope that the voters of the District will attend the polls with an open mind unrestrained by agreement and will decide the issue strictly upon the merits of the respective candidates. Personally I am entirely willing to leave my fortunes in the hands of the voters of the District; and depend upon their good judgment, which has heretofore shown itself in other campaigns to be accurate and discriminating to such a marked degree.

I do not wish to ascribe to myself any personal credit for any act for the benefit of the citizens of Winchester which has in fact been accomplished through the medium of the Board of Selectmen, of which I am proud to have been a member for the past two years. Neither do I wish the citizens to feel that their judgment should be influenced or biased because of my affiliation with, or endorsement by any distinguished member of this community or of Medford.

My intent from the first has been to be entirely independent, progressive, honest and straightforward and untrammelled by political agreement or understanding with any so-called political leader or association. My sole thought was to put to value my experience and insight into the needs and wants of our Town and Ward 3 of Medford, with which I have become somewhat familiar, by presenting the same as best I could in the Legislature provided I become a member.

Yours truly,

Geo. B. Hayward,

29 Crescent road, Winchester.

IS MR. DAVIDSON A DEMOCRAT?

Editor of the Star:—In the STAR of September 8th, I asked Mr. George T. Davidson if it was not a fact that he had been enrolled as a Democrat.

In view of the general comment to that effect, I felt that Mr. Davidson, in fairness both to himself and to the voters, owed them an explanation, as he is now asking them to vote for him as a Republican at the coming primaries.

Mr. Davidson has not answered my letter. In order, however, that the voters may not regard my question as groundless, I deem that I should state to them that on the official voting lists of the town from the fall of 1912, until party enrollments were abolished after the primaries in 1914, Mr. Davidson's name was enrolled as a Democrat. As he was not enrolled with any party prior to the primaries of 1912 so far as I can ascertain, it is evident that he enrolled himself as a Democrat at the primaries in 1912, when there were several spirited contests among the Republicans including that between two fellow townsmen for Representative.

I hoped that Mr. Davidson would tell us when and why he had changed his party affiliations, in view of these facts, but as he has not, we are left without any public announcement of this change, so far as I can learn, previous to his announcement last July that he intended to seek the Republican nomination as Representative, without explaining why he was not seeking the Democratic nomination instead.

Yours very truly,

William J. Stevenson,
29 Hemingway street, Winchester.

NEW INFANTILE PARALYSIS CASE.

Another case of infantile paralysis, making the fourth Winchester child to be afflicted, was found yesterday afternoon. The victim is the three year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur J. Talcott (Mrs. Jessie Talcott) of 23 Eaton street. Mrs. Talcott is the teacher of the open air room at the Wadleigh School. Like two of the three other cases, this is very light and the little girl appears to be not seriously affected. Steps to quarantine the family were at once taken and the child was removed this morning to the Brighton Hospital, where the other cases were taken.

FORMER WINCHESTER GIRL MARRIED.

Rev. Henry E. Hodges of the First Baptist Church officiated at the wedding at Stoneham last Saturday night of Miss Eva Marion Moulton of that town and Mr. Harold Christian Schumann of Everett. The bride, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jeremiah Moulton, was formerly a well known young lady of this town, residing with her parents at the corner of Washington and Bridge streets. The ceremony was performed in the Stoneham Baptist Church and was witnessed by many Winchester friends of the bride. The couple will make their home in Stoneham.

Under the auspices of First Church of Christ, Scientist, Winchester, Mr. Virgil O. Strickler, C. S., of New York City, member of the Board of Lectureship of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist in Boston, Massachusetts, will deliver a free lecture on Christian Science in the Town Hall on Sunday evening, October 1st, at 8 o'clock. An invitation is extended to all.

MOTHERS' ASSOCIATION.

An Interesting Discussion on Infantile Paralysis.

The Winchester Mothers' Association held its regular meeting on Wednesday afternoon in the High School Assembly Hall.

Dr. C. J. Allen of the Winchester Board of Health and Dr. Walter H. Brown, Epidemiologist of the Massachusetts State Department of Health, while not on the regular program, were present and gave some very interesting information on the subject of "Infantile Paralysis."

Dr. Allen, spoke of the fear which seems to be in the minds of so many people in Winchester, just at this time, and of the mental suffering which it has brought about.

Dr. Brown, in his attempt to allay some of the fears of his audience, gave a plain and straight forward talk which was very convincing to many of the mothers present.

Questions were invited and answered by Dr. Brown in a very satisfactory manner.

Mrs. Sarah E. Belt of Melrose gave a particularly interesting talk on "Canning." Mrs. Belt brought a splendid display of fruits and vegetables to testify to the success of her method of doing this work.

The audience were intensely interested in this subject, many taking notes for personal use. Refreshments were served and all enjoyed the social hour.

Dr. Brown's Address

I am, without any flattery, very pleased to come out this afternoon and to say a word to some of the folks of Winchester. Our minds have surely been torn to pieces by the harrowing tales which we have read in the newspapers. Those of us whose business it is to find out the causes of these diseases and put an end to them have truly been just as disturbed as any one can be. The first thought that I want to get to you is this that we do not want to minimize the real dangers that are connected with infantile paralysis. We want you to know the facts. You have had pictured in the papers things that have been entirely untrue. You have been seeing in the newspapers that doctors know nothing about this disease. I have until yesterday kept my peace about this statement. I am going to break my silence. We do know a lot about infantile paralysis. We know the habits of the disease. We know that it comes in summer. We know that it picks a large percentage of victims between the ages of one and fifteen, or one and ten, the greater percentage of them. We know that you can reproduce it. We know that the virus can be grown. We know that it resides in the nose and throat, we know that it resides in the bowel discharges in certain cases and we can handle it very definitely. We know that a large percentage of children between one and ten are immune to it. The degree of contagion is about one per cent.

Now what happens in this disease? What are some of the striking things that I have seen in my study of the cases in Massachusetts. One of the things that has struck us is that we go into a house where there is a case and find one child sick and find a number of other children in intimate contact with the case, but there is rarely another case in that house. In one case a three year old child slept with the child that had infantile paralysis and yet it did not take infantile paralysis. That has been true ever since we have known anything about the disease. It is true that between ninety-five and ninety-seven per cent are single cases in a family. It means that this disease is not so easily and highly communicable or it means further that a large percentage of your little children have been rendered immune to this disease by some influence. Is that true with other diseases? We have heard, of course, a great deal about this dramatic disease. It is dramatic. We find a little child apparently well one day who in a few days is paralyzed. And yet you know, that week in, week out, there are diseases right in Massachusetts that are doing far more damage than this disease. I have been trying for years to raise a panic about measles. In June there were forty children died from measles and in July there were forty-two in Massachusetts. Every year there are six hundred children die from diphtheria, a disease that we can diagnose early, a disease that we can tell by a simple injection whether you are immune, a disease in which we have almost a certain cure in ninety-five per cent of the cases. They have said that infantile paralysis is not like scarlet fever or any of the other diseases, that we cannot tell anything about it. We can tell just as much about many cases as we can about scarlet fever and measles, and these are very much more readily communicable. We know something about infantile paralysis. We know that it belongs to a group of diseases that are passed from one person to another by various methods. We have learned that diseases are not passed from person to person through the air except in very close contact with the case. In other words you do not get it by walking past the house of the patient. That old aerial theory has been laid upon the shelf. We do know now that all of the communicable diseases are passed either by intimate contact or by the intermediation of biting insects, but that most of them are transmitted by the transfer of some of the discharges from the sick person to the well person. Those of us who attempt to study these diseases have found that there are certain definite ways that offer the best opportunities to control the communicable diseases. Necessarily I cannot go into all of them, but the particular thing that you folks are vitally interested in is this question of the schools. I do not know a public health official of any note who has had any experience with handling communicable diseases as a whole, mentioning in that category scarlet fever, diphtheria, and whooping cough, who is not convinced that where you can have your children under supervision that the best way for the whole community is to have your schools remain open. This keeps the larger group of people under supervision. We must go further. I have said we know something about infantile paralysis. We do not mean that we know all about it. We do not know some things about it, but we do know enough about it to classify it where it belongs. Is it not then a reasonable proposition for us to take our knowledge of the diseases of the same group and apply it to infantile paralysis? Among the measures that have been most successful in the control of other communicable diseases is keeping the schools open under proper medical supervision. You need no physician to reason that out for you. It is a plain everyday, common-sense proposition. On this basis our department in accord with all of the public health officials, has given this advice to your board, likewise to other boards all over Massachusetts, that where there is a minimum standard of medical supervision, we believe for the good of the greater number it is better to keep the public schools open. We believe we can thereby more quickly control infantile paralysis in the State of Massachusetts. There are a number of aspects of the question which I should very much like to discuss with you. I am not so busy that I do not have time to stop a moment. I think I might serve you best if I now give you an opportunity to ask questions.

Questions and Answers

Q. Where did your Department go for advice about the school question?

A. We have no higher authority in this country than the individual state boards. The decision was reached by study of our own experience plus the experience of all of the boards who have recorded their experience in the control of communicable diseases in the public schools. We have come to the conclusion that no epidemic was ever stopped by closing the public schools. The places where these communicable diseases have been controlled taught us that the open school with medical supervision is the safest and best thing.

Q. Do you classify infantile paralysis with other contagious diseases?

A. The disease has been classified since 1905 with other contagious diseases. All public health officials all over the world have classified it with the other diseases.

Q. In New York do the public health authorities and the Board of Health advise the opening of schools?

A. The Health Authorities in New York are maintaining this position even in the face of legal procedure. Boston has postponed the opening of the schools with the idea that it would stop the disease, but it has not done so.

Q. Then in every case where the schools have not been opened, it is against the advice of the health authorities?

A. Yes, except where there is not adequate medical supervision.

Q. Is there not a law compelling every city and town to furnish such supervision?

A. We made a survey of the medical inspection and you would be startled if you could look over the papers. One of the district health officers gave an account of the medical inspection in a certain town, among other statements saying how much the school physician was paid, etc. The school physician got $25 a year and down at the bottom it said, "He was overpaid." Medical inspection as a whole is a patch-work. Medical inspection here in Winchester is real medical inspection, and it is worth while. It is the best investment any community ever made in its life. If you cannot go the whole distance and do the work thoroughly, then the question is an open one, whether the schools should be open. Then it resolves itself into a question whether the mothers and fathers will really safe-guard the health of the community better by having their children at home. We are charged with dealing with the whole group of children in Winchester and to do the best for the whole group. And we are certainly convinced on this

PROCTOR-COX.

Brilliant September Wedding Largely Attended.

A brilliant September wedding, drawing the largest attendance of any similar event in Winchester in a long time, was that of Tuesday evening when Miss Celina E. Cox, daughter of President Harry Cox of the Beggs & Cobb Tanning Co., was married to Mr. Howard C. Proctor, son of Mrs. Charles H. Hall of 6 Calumet road. Both of the young people numbered hosts of friends, not only in Winchester, where they have resided since childhood, but in most of the surrounding towns, and the wedding was attended by a gathering of over three hundred guests, many distant places, including Chicago, New York, New Haven, Springfield and other cities being represented. The wedding was the most prominent social event thus far of the fall.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Hugh Maguire at the Rectory of St. Mary's Church at seven o'clock. Miss Marian H. Elston of Roxbury was maid of honor, and Mr. George C. Proctor, brother of the groom, was groomsmen. Master Ulric Cox, brother of the bride, acted as ring bearer.

The bride wore a magnificent wedding gown of white satin with hand embroidered flowers in silver and trimmed with silver lace. She wore a veil of tulle and carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley. The maid of honor was dressed completely in pink, her dress being of pink satin with an over-dress of tulle. Her bouquet was pink roses.

A reception followed the ceremony at the home of the bride's parents, No. 21 Washington street, the newly married couple being assisted in receiving by the bride's mother, her brother, Mr. Harry E. Cox, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Hall. Owing to the serious illness of the bride's father, who has been threatened with pneumonia, he was not able to take part in the reception.

The residence was elaborately decorated for the affair, garlands of laurel, palms and fern forming an effective background for many great bunches of red roses and gladioli. The receiving party stood inside a bower of asparagus fern and roses arched with laurel and gladioli. Mrs. Cox was crowned in old rose satin with silver trimmings and Mrs. Hall wore lavender and georgette crepe.

During the evening selections were rendered by a stringed orchestra and refreshments were served by a caterer in a marquee erected on the lawn.

The ushers for the reception included Messrs. F. Raymond Cottle, Harry E. Cox, Loring P. Gleason, George H. Hazeltine, Curtis S. Olmsted, Chesley Whitten, C. Crosby Rogers, John L. Souttr, Leslie Cox, and Warren Cox of this town, and Norman Small of Cambridge.

The couple were most generously remembered with many handsome gifts of silver, cut glass and various articles of furniture. A completely furnished house at No. 426 Main street, where Mr. and Mrs. Proctor will make their future home, was the gift of the groom's mother and a handsome mahogany chair was presented them by the groom's associates, besides several checks for substantial amounts.

SCHOOL NOTES.

The registration increased this week as follows:

High School 368 to 371

Grades 1042 to 1096

These figures are about eighty-two percent of normal.

A petition signed by two hundred and twelve persons representing one hundred and sixty-two families was presented to the School Committee last Friday. It asked that the schools be closed during the epidemic of infantile paralysis. After careful consideration and conference with the State Department of Health, it was decided to keep the schools open.

MISS BORDEN VICTIM OF AUTO.

Miss L. Mabel Borden of 29 Prince avenue, while going from the sidewalk to board a car for home, at Watertown, this week, was struck and run over by an automobile. Her right arm and left ankle and several ribs were broken and she was generally badly bruised. She is at the Newton Hospital, Newton.

question that what we have said is correct. If the time comes when a better method of controlling infantile paralysis is found, we are going to be just as frank to you and tell you just as quickly as we know. We do not believe that it now exists.

Q. Your State Board acted as advisers to our School Committee and that is some advice you would give to any place where they have such inspection?

A. Without a doubt. That has been put out to all.

Q. Where do you get the facts about our medical inspection?

A. We made our survey. We have eight district health officers who do nothing but investigate conditions in a given district and man came here and spent two or three days going over reports and those reports are on file in our office. We were asked to study medical inspection in schools for the information of the Legislature.

Q. Weren't the laws made a little more stringent a few years ago?

A. I do not know further back than last year.

Q. Some have felt that the danger is greater in schools than in the open air.

A. That depends upon whom your children come in contact with.

Q. If children come to school from a neighborhood where there is a case of paralysis, would there be danger of contagion?

A. We cannot say any more than if they came from Boston. As a matter of fact the history of it in the town itself will be that you will find a group of cases in one part of town and another group away off. It seems to have no great relationship to cleanliness. The victims number themselves among some of the very nicest households in Massachusetts.

Q. There is no test to find out whether your child is one of the immune?

A. Not at present.

Q. What are the first symptoms?

A. There are no characteristic first symptoms. We are on the same ground as with the other diseases. The majority of cases started with fever, with perhaps a little vomiting, and a large percentage of the cases have been constipated. There is no very clear picture. Any infection taken into the body disturbs our whole equilibrium.

Q. Would you send children to school who are kept at home where they are not in contact with others, who would be in contact with children from infected districts if sent to schools?

A. If mothers and fathers decide that they are going to keep their children from school and then actually keep them away from other children, no one who has sense will criticize you.

Q. If they stay at home they miss work.

A. If you decide that your public health officials are not giving you the best advice then you must weigh education with life and death. We do not think that we are infallible. We can only give you information as to what we believe to be the best for the whole group.

Editor of the Star:

As an extra precaution on the part of the school authorities of Winchester, after the close of the schools last week, a special conference with the State Board of Health was held at the State House in Boston, at which time there were present Dr. Allan J. McLaughlin, Commissioner of Health, Dr. Walter H. Brown, State Epidemiologist, and Dr. Lyman A. Jones, Director of Hygiene of the State Health Department. Dr. Allen of the local Board, and the Chairman of the School Committee. A citizen of Winchester who advocated the closing of the schools was present by invitation. The situation in reference to the Winchester schools was there discussed at length and the physicians of the State Board then stated that they were satisfied that the occurrence of cases in Winchester did not alter the situation in any particular, and that they adhered to their opinion previously given; i. e., that with the system of medical examination in force here it is better and safer for the town of Winchester to have its schools open than to have them closed.

George Chandler Coit, Chairman of School Committee.

PRESENTED WITH CHAIR.

Former Fireman Remembered by Members of His Company.

Mr. Michael C. Ambrose of Vine street, formerly Captain of the Hook & Ladder truck of the Winchester Fire Department, who resigned his position last July, was most pleasantly surprised last Thursday night at his home by the members of his former company. The members, together with a large number of Mr. Ambrose's friends, called at the house in a body, and after congratulating him on his long and efficient service presented him with a handsome oak morris chair.

The presentation speech was made by Captain Edward Fitzgerald of the Hook & Ladder Company, and although somewhat embarrassed by the unexpected testimonial of the esteem of his friends, Mr. Ambrose accepted it with thanks. A social evening with music and refreshments followed. Mr. Ambrose was a member of the Fire Department for a period of 22 years, being Captain of the Ladder Company at the time of leaving the service.

TOO MUCH NOISE.

Editor of the Star:—Much credit is due to the citizens of the town who were responsible for the celebration. A really fine program was carried out to the enjoyment of our citizens. There was one incident in connection with the evening display on Manchester Field, however, which did not give enjoyment to many in the town; namely the unprecedented noise from the bomb explosions. There is no reason for repeating this noise feature in future celebrations. It is possible to get fireworks as beautiful as the ones shown last week, which explode with very much less noise. The echoes of the exploding bombs were heard with distinctness far beyond the town lines and to a great many in the town—but not right at the field—they were most distressing. The effect on the sick in the Hospital and throughout the town must have been bad—especially on old people and little children.

Our daily lives are lived in such a round of noise that every care should be observed by us as individuals and communities not to make unnecessary noise. The same Fourth movement, as it has developed in some cities over the country, has as a matter of course, eliminated the making of anything like the disturbance referred to above in connection with important community celebrations.

The following clipping taken from Sunday's Herald has a direct application to the point in question.

Very respectfully,
J. Prentice Murphy.

For the Nerves.

Whistling for cabs between 10 p. m. and 7 a. m. has been prohibited in London, and not only on account of the hospitals and nursing-houses for wounded soldiers. Now that the Home Office has acted, London journals declare that the whistling was a petty social ill which a wise community would not have tolerated for a moment. Schopenhauer in an essay on noise inveighed bitterly against the cracking of whips in Frankfurt. He was spared the torment of taxi-cab whistles and wails and blasts and screeches of automobiles.

There was a time when Boston was a quiet city, not like the town of the sybarites where no hammer was heard, where no sound of a handi-craftsman broke the stillness, but a city reasonably peaceful. Today it is noisy, unnecessarily, hideously noisy. In the Back Bay there are roaring railway trains and the crash of freight cars shunted. The subway gives some relief from surface tumult, yet there are the huge street cars pounding their way over lightly constructed road beds. In the West end the once restful Charles street reminds one of a boiler factory. In the South end there is the elevated railway, in the North end there are the cries of hucksters. Everywhere is the tooting of the automobile horn. Citizens of Boston visiting New York above Washington square are struck by the comparative quietness. Only on the extreme west is there a reminder of railways.

In dreams the Bostonian sees cars from the South station drawn by electric locomotives through Back Bay. He no longer hears the terrible approach and thunderous passing of the surface cars. He is able to talk and listen, as he walks on noisily awakened, not by the sound of a musical instrument, as the young Montaigne at the command of his educated father.

It is not easy now to find absolute quiet in remote hillside villages or along rough seashore roads. The prying automobile sounds its warning, or its joy as an adventurer. When a wanderer at last is at rest, when his ear is not stabbed, his nerves rasped, the stillness is disconcerting, overpowering. He misses noise as the drunkard misses his accustomed draughts. M. Adolphe Rette once dreamed that Mr. Noise was dead and there were invitations to the funeral. It was a pleasing fancy, wittily elaborated. They read it laughed and went out to join in the din, to add to it.

FOR REGISTER OR PROBATE.

Frederick M. Esty of Framingham, the Present Incumbent is Leading Candidate for Nomination at Primaries.

Republicans of Middlesex County will have the opportunity at the primaries next Tuesday, September 26, to vote for the nomination of Frederick M. Esty of Framingham, as register of probate and insolvency. Mr. Esty ably fills the office at present, having been appointed last May by the governor to fill the vacancy caused by the death of the late W. E. Rogers. For eighteen years Mr. Esty has been connected with the office and for the last twelve years has been assistant register. He is a lawyer by profession having been admitted to the Massachusetts Bar in 1882, and he brings to the office of register a thorough legal training and the valuable experience of eighteen years of practical service in the office. His ability and courtesy are well known to all who have occasion to visit the probate office.

Mr. Esty was born in Framingham and has lived there all his life. He is a member of Plymouth Congregational Church, and has been frequently honored by the Masonic fraternity, of which he is an enthusiastic member. He is past master of Alpha Lodge of Framingham, past district deputy grand master, past high priest of Concord Royal Arch Chapter, past district deputy grand high priest and a member of Natick Commandery, Knights Templar. He has risen to his present position through ability and faithful service and his nomination by the Republicans of Middlesex will mean a continued record of economy and efficiency in the probate office.

Now is the time to have your car overhauled by competent mechanics. Prices reasonable. Mystic Valley Garage Co. jan9,16

CANOE ILLUMINATION.

Band Concert and Parade Next Saturday Night.

The Medford Boat Club has issued notices to members of both the Medford and Winchester Clubs announcing an illumination and canoe parade to be held at Mystic Lake this Saturday night. The event will be held at the Medford Boat Club house, commencing at eight o'clock.

Captain Miller F. Dartt of the Medford Club is making extensive preparations for the affair and will have a full band at the Club to furnish the music. Handsome prizes are to be awarded the winners in the parade and a dance will follow the illumination. This will be the last important event on the Lake for this season.

At the recent illumination at Winchester on the river, there was a fine showing of boats, Medford being represented by a half dozen boats and Winchester by an equal number. It is said that there were four other boats which were elaborately decorated and which did not take part in that parade owing to the difficulty of getting under the sewer pipe and the Bacon street bridge.

It is said that all of these boats will take part in Saturday night's event and in addition a number of new boats will be entered. All members of both Clubs have been invited to enter and the parade will doubtless be witnessed by one of the largest crowds of the season.

98th BIRTHDAY.

Mrs. Jane E. Taylor of Methuen street, Lowell, observed her 98th birthday last Sunday afternoon. She is the mother of Mrs. William P. Dotten of Reservoir street, Winchester. Mrs. Dotten is the wife of Winchester's veteran police officer, now retired. The following is taken from the Lowell-Courier Citizen:

"Still possessing a keen mind and active mentality and enjoying remarkably good health, Mrs. Jane E. Taylor of 151 Methuen street has but two more milestones to pass before she attains the century mark in age, for yesterday she celebrated her 98th birthday anniversary. Mrs. Taylor makes her home with her daughter, Mrs. E. A. Robinson, and every year for the past several years her birthday anniversaries have been marked by pleasant calls and remembrances. Yesterday, fully 50 friends called in the afternoon and she received many gifts of flowers and candy as well as cards and letters of congratulation.

"Although Mrs. Taylor has come down to the sunset of life and has passed the four-score-and-ten mark, her years are neither labor nor sorrow. Although as a rule she does not venture from her room, she came downstairs yesterday to receive callers and her pleasure in welcoming them was evident. Mrs. Taylor's mind is keen and clear and she reads the daily paper diligently. To many people her beautiful fancy needlework is well known and she sews on it daily.

"Mrs. Taylor was born on Sept. 17, 1818, in New Portland, Me., and for 86 years lived in the farmhouse in which she was born. She came to Lowell 12 years ago to make her home with her daughter, Mrs. Robinson. Mrs. Taylor is the oldest of four generations. Besides Mrs. Robinson, she has another daughter, Mrs. Thomas P. Dotten of Winchester, and a grandson, Charles E. Robinson, and a great grandson, Howard E. Robinson, both of Hamilton, Ont."

FOR GOOD LIGHTING.

Now that the long evenings are coming and the need of good lighting essential, it will be to our advantage to select the light which is most economical and is easiest on the eyes.

There are no ultra-violet rays in the good gas mantle light and it is admitted to be an easy light on the eyes, in fact one of the easiest of the artificial lights. From a hygienic standpoint, the small amount of heat given off by a gas light creates a circulation of air and experiments have proven that the air in a room lighted by gas is far better than when lighted by any other artificial illuminant.

The modern fixtures and lamps of today are a great improvement over the old styles. The mere fact that there is more gas lighting today than ever is a proof that the sound judgment of the people prevails after they put away their whim.

LOCAL BOARDS UPHOLD.

At a conference with the State Board of Health last Saturday at the State House, the local Board of Health and the School Committee were upheld in their decision to continue the schools during the infantile paralysis scare. The conference was held as the outcome of a visit to the State Board by Winchester residents opposing the continuance of the schools. At the conference both of the local boards and the dissatisfied residents were represented.

As a result, the local boards were advised by the State Board that it was both safer and better that the schools be kept open.

The schools were opened this fall in full concordance and with the approval of the State Board of Health, with which body the local boards have been in constant touch.

GOOD REASON TO CELEBRATE.

Yes, Winchester has good reason to celebrate the completion of a $200,000 campaign for improvement, including the new $10,000 playground. Some of our neighbors are progressing finely in their civic improvements; and those are the towns that succeed in attracting new residents. A town that doesn't lay out some in the way of "advertising," whether it may be a school, park or library, cannot expect to gain new people, as a residential town. In the competition among towns, the town that can "show the goods" attracts people seeking new homes. The other towns get left as a rule.—[Wakefield Item.]

NEW VOTERS.

The following additional names have been added to the voting list. The time for new names for the primary expired Tuesday evening. There will, however, be another opportunity later to register for the election.

A total of 96 was added during the sessions of last week and this by the Registrars of Voters. As about 100 were crossed off by deaths and removals, the list is practically the same as it was last November. The October registration will probably put on the list many new names, so that the total registration will show a substantial increase over last year. Andrews, Ross, Jr., 29 Harvard st. Peterson is a cement finisher by trade and has previously worked for the town Highway Department. He recently went into business for himself. He has left a wife and six children. So far as is known he was a man of steady habits and no reason for his unexplained disappearance is given unless he met with an accident.

Give Numbers Clearly

"SEV-NATE-FISIX."

Everyone realizes the possibilities of error in telephoning when 7856 is asked for in that way.

When numbers are given to our operators in that disconnected, hurried or otherwise indistinct fashion, it is likely that there will be an error and a wrong connection made.

THERE IS AN ABSOLUTE NECESSITY FOR THE CLEAR ENUNCIATION OF ALL TELEPHONE NUMBERS: the operation of our switchboards is directed wholly by numbers. A wrong number or a misunderstood number invariably means an error call, for which our operators should not be held responsible.

"SEV-EN EIGHT FI-VE SIX" is the better way to give the above number. Clearly pronounced numbers uttered directly into the telephone transmitter will obviate a majority of error calls.

When you have given a number to our operator, she repeats it. You should listen for that repetition, for then you may correct her if she has misunderstood you. That will save a great deal of delay and trouble; and, if you also say "Yes" or "That's right," if she repeats properly, she will have your assurance that she is doing her work correctly.

MASSACHUSETTS ARTILLERY MAKING MOST OF IT.

Interested in Their Work, Which is of the Most Varied Kind—Accustomed and Contented to Wait Orders From Those Above Them.

At least one organization in Texas is not complaining of its lot, judging from a letter recently received from a member of the 1st Regiment of Field Artillery, Massachusetts National Guard. The going home today, lack of sleeping cots, heat and storms, have had no effect on the high spirits of this organization. He writes:

"Don't believe all you read in the reports from down here about complaints. There was naturally some confusion for awhile after we arrived, but we soon got regulated and everything works smoothly. As far as I know everybody in our regiment is satisfied. We are now having regular battery drills and expect soon to do regimental work with the probabilities of large maneuvers by October. Our work is very interesting and we naturally get a lot of satisfaction out of our growing proficiency."

"One big reason for our regiment not complaining is that there is a very strong feeling of loyalty and pride in the organization. It is that intangible element called 'esprit de corps.' It certainly is very strong, even though we are a new regiment (you remember we were never assembled together until we were ordered to Framingham just before coming down here). I suppose the men pick up the feeling unconsciously from watching the officers, and ours are certainly keen. The two majors, Hale of Boston and Howe of Lawrence, are wonders, and easily rank with the regular in their knowledge and skill. Our colonel, Harry Sherburne, 'knows the game' thoroughly, and he keeps everyone right up to scratch, yet he has a fatherly interest in our welfare which the men have quickly recognized and appreciated."

This is the regiment which was created only last spring and consists of six batteries, one each from Boston, Worcester and Lawrence and three from Salem and the vicinity, the nucleus for which was the old 2d Corps Cadets of Salem. The field artillery is the highest branch in the service among the Massachusetts troops and its work is most varied as it includes the service of the big field guns, with their various kinds of ammunition, and the use and care of horses, besides the regular work of any military organization.

In his letter this member of the regiment wrote of the need of recruits, the one thing that was worrying the officers. He believes many young men would get much benefit from joining them if these benefits could only be brought to their attention. He told of how it opened the eyes of so many in seeing so much of the country, both on the trip down and on the border, an education in itself. There is a training and discipline, too, in this service of lasting value to a young man's future. In connection with this Major General O'Ryan, head of the New York National Guard says:

"From what I have observed of the development of young men after two or three years of service in the Regular Army and the National Guard I know that in the vast majority of cases the training has made of them better men physically, more alert mentally, has promoted punctuality, thoroughness and attention to detail. It has infused into them a greater respect for law and order, and a realization and appreciation of the greater measure of accomplishment that flows from cooperative and disciplined effort under leadership. These are qualities needed by men in the every-day struggle for existence, and any system which will promote such qualities will make us a more efficient people."

For the limited period during which the troops will be at the border young men who have only recently gone to work or who are not at present working might well gain much by joining this regiment.

The friends of this regiment at home have taken a great deal of interest in its welfare, and have kept in constant touch with it since its departure. A committee on supplies and communication was formed among them, and has offices in Boston at 687 Boylston street, with Col. J. C. R. Peabody as secretary. It maintains communication with all the officers and men of the regiment, and aids as it can to keep efficiency of the regiment up to top notch by sending articles useful and suitable to the men, recruiting, etc.

MY TOWN.

(Lunenburg (NS) Progress Enterprise.)
I know my town, and I love my town
And I want to help it be
As great a town to every one
As it seems to be to me.
I praise my town and I cheer my town,
And I try to spread its fame;
And I know what a splendid thing 'twould be
If you would do the same.

I trust my town and I boast my town
And I want to do my part
To make it a town that all may praise
From the depths of every heart!

I like my town and I sing my town,
And I want my town to grow;
If I knocked my town or blocked my town

That wouldn't be fair, you know.
I think my town is the very best town

In all the world—to me;
Or if it's not, I want to get out
And try to make it be!

I talk my town and I preach my town,
As I think a fellow should
Who has more at stake than to win or make

For the love of the common good!
I bet on my town, and I bank on my town

And I think it fine to feel—
When you know your town and you love your town—

That it's part of your honest zeal!
I'm proud of my town, I love my town

And I want to help it rise—
And that's the way to help a town—
Not curse it and despise!

MAKESNIE VIOLIN SCHOOL.

With prospects favorable to surpassing the record attendance of the last school year the Makesnie Violin school is entering upon its fourteenth season. The only change in the personnel of the faculty is noted in the violoncello department, where Miss Helen I. Moorhouse is now in charge. Miss Moorhouse is a former pupil of Mr. Makesnie's. She is a well trained and experienced instructor, who is expected further to build up the fello instruction that was added several years ago as a logical compliment to the violin courses. The viola is also included in the possibilities of instruction.

Those people who heard the fine concert given by the Makesnie school in Franklin Union Hall last June will be interested to know that the senior orchestra, which then made a remarkably favorable impression, will shortly undertake a study of the Schubert Unfinished Symphony and one of the Haydn symphonies with a view to public performance later this season. Both junior and senior orchestras will rehearse regularly, as heretofore, and occasional engagements will be accepted in order to give the pupils experience in public performing. In connection with the school a personal service bureau has been formed to supply singers, readers and instrumentalists to entertainment committees. It will be remembered that the senior orchestra has already filled engagements with the Ford Hall Forum and the Old South Lecture Course.

For individual pupils the school combines class lessons and private lessons in such way as to secure the stimulus of the one and the personal attention that is possible in the other. This system, the outcome of the director's studies in musical pedagogy, has been proved to advance pupils with marked rapidity and thoroughness.

Office hours, at which Ernst Makesnie will be glad to consult with prospective pupils or their parents, have been arranged as follows: Boston studio, 30 Huntington avenue, Thursday afternoon, from two to three o'clock; West Somerville studio, 238 Elm street, every evening at seven o'clock. The school opens on the third Monday in September and continues for forty weeks. It hardly need be said that Mr. Makesnie has trained more young violinists of this city than, probably, any other teacher in its history.

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE.

Joe Welch will appear at the Castle Square next week in Hal Reid's four act comedy drama entitled "The Peddler." In this play Mr. Welch scored one of his biggest successes some years ago. The play this season has been revived and brought up-to-date by Maurice Jacobs, who has equipped the company with new scenery, costumes and electrical effects, and who has spared no expense in securing the very best talent obtainable to support the famous star in his role of Abraham Jacobson, "The Peddler."

Joe Welch is not a caricaturist of the Hebrew; but he is a highly finished actor whom many have tried to imitate, and failed. He portrays, faithfully and naturally a certain type of Hebrew whose various traits and eccentricities have been known for decades past, the East Side Jew of New York.

Prominent in Mr. Welch's support are Jane Moro, Vera Barrett, Lucella Pullen, Anna Smith and Percy Bollinger.

PARK SQUARE THEATRE.

"Hit-the-Trail-Holiday." George M. Cohan's greatest comedy, is now in the last weeks of its engagement at the Park Square Theatre, Boston. If out-of-town playgoers anticipate the pleasure of seeing this irresistible, laugh-provoking and American play they had better make up their minds right now. There are only a few more performances left for the Boston engagement and for this reason it would be wise to make immediate application for seats. There is no likelihood of engagement being extended as the prearranged bookings make this impossible. The usual Wednesday and Saturday matinees are given.

The success of "Hit-the-Trail-Holiday" has been due to no sensational element. A very happy comedy, extremely gay in mood, but made gentle and beautiful by a rich vein of sentiment. This play has been acted with earnest regard for its quality. That is the explanation of its firm hold upon the public interest.

TREMONT THEATRE.

Next Monday begins the fourth week of the mammoth photo spectacle, "Civilization" at the Tremont Theatre, Boston. Never before in the history of dramatic presentations in New England has there appeared a production that has awakened such a stirring interest.

Since the first performance on Labor Day the producers have been assured with the best of testimony, crowded houses at every performance. The audiences have seen in the mighty drama a sterling worth and goodness that was passed over by the more flighty spectators of the metropolis, who saw the mighty clashes of conflicting forces and the spectacular picturing of the immense panoramas peopled with thousands of actors. But it remained for thoughtful Boston folk to perceive the producers' real purpose in the super drama—the lofty theme which invests the spectacle.

The empty engagement of "Civilization" positively is a limited one, and for this reason it is urged that seats be procured in advance. For the convenience of out of town theatre goers a special mail order system is in force that assures as perfect a choice as if bought at the box-office.

COUNTY POLITICS.

Clerk of Courts William C. Dillingham of Malden and Register of Deeds Thomas Leighton, Jr., of Cambridge, have neither Democratic nor Republican opposition. Register of Probate Frederick M. Esty of Framingham has two Republican opponents and one Democratic opponent, all of whom are from Cambridge. William H. Andrew and Roland E. Brown are the Republican candidates. Timothy E. Quinn is the Democratic aspirant.

For County Commissioner, Erson B. Barlow, who is seeking a second term, has no Democratic opposition. Barlow has a small fight on his hands, however, for the nomination as attorney Charles H. McIntire of Lowell, formerly a leader in Bull Moose Circles and Smith J. Adams, also of Lowell, are after the place.

Rev. and Mrs. Metcalf Hold Largely Attended Reception.

Rev. and Mrs. Joel H. Metcalf of the Unitarian Church, together with their daughter, Miss Rachel F. Metcalf, held a largely attended reception at their home on Lawson road Friday afternoon and evening. The day observed was the twenty-fifth anniversary of their marriage and nineteenth birthday of Miss Metcalf.

The residence was most attractive with a profuse decoration of autumn garden flowers and green, the rooms being filled with hydrangeas, salvia and autumn leaves, and by the evening hours the many gifts of house flowers filled every available space to overflowing.

Some 700 invitations were issued for the affair and Rev. and Mrs. Metcalf and their daughter were greeted by the well wishes of a veritable host of friends, both of Winchester and many surrounding towns and cities. In addition to a profusion of flowers they were most generously remembered by numerous handsome gifts, including a purse of gold from the Unitarian Parish for the Minister and his wife and a gold wrist watch for Miss Rachel.

Mrs. Metcalf was assisted in serving by her sisters and her brothers-in-law, the ladies including Mrs. M. A. Lochman of Huntington, L. I., Mrs. George D. Lyford of Torrington, Conn., Mrs. Henry A. Frost of Cambridge, Mrs. Dean E. Lochman of Salem, Mrs. George H. Lochman of this town and Miss Harriet Lochman of Cambridge. The rooms were in charge of Mrs. Richard Metcalf, Mrs. Oren C. Sanborn, Mrs. George H. Root, Miss M. Alice Mason and Mrs. H. L. Larrabee.

The following young ladies also assisted: Misses Edith Fennel, Dorothy Kerrison, Helen Ayer, Marion Kendall, Irene Lord, Marion Symmes, Marjorie Waldmyer, Shirley Newell and Margery Southack of Dorchester, Elizabeth Symmes, Elizabeth Garland, Virginia Mosman, Helen Sanborn, Marjorie Root, Annie Wyman and Miriam Foster.

Rev. and Mrs. Metcalf were married in 1891 at the Unitarian Church at West Somerville, Mass. Metcalf before her marriage being Miss Elizabeth Lochman of Cambridge. Rev. Mr. Metcalf has held pastorates at Burlington, Vt., Taunton and Winchester, having been the minister of the local church for the past six years. He is a Mason and a member of the Calumet Club.

Rev. and Mrs. Metcalf have two children, Herbert E. Metcalf, professor of Biology at the University of North Dakota, and Miss Rachel Frances Metcalf, a student at Radcliffe College.

BASE BALL.

Woburn Won Final Game—4 to 0.

By "Mack"

We went to Woburn Saturday for the final game of the year with that team and we were handed a nice beating by the team there. Woburn went to extremes to beat us, and at last succeeded. We were supposed to play only well known semi-pro players or college players, but Woburn went after Bailey, the American League twirler, and we never had a look in. Now before we go any further on the subject, we want to state for the benefit of the fans in Winchester that this final game would never have been played had Woburn been allowed to have their say. But the Management there was actually forced into the game by the fans of that town. They would not play us under any consideration with McMahon pitching. And LeDuc was obliged to consent to the use of Bailey to get the teams together. Woburn never saw the day they could beat Winchester with their regular team and they knew it. Therefore to make sure of a killing they had to import talent to do it. Bailey is not, and has never been a Woburn pitcher, neither will he pitch for them next year, therefore we deserve all the credit in the world for going against a crowd when we knew the chances were ten to one against us winning. The Woburn team's share of the receipt for the game was over $100.00, and it cost that and more to beat Winchester. The victory may be worth it, but we fail to see the sportmanship of it.

The score:

Notes.

The largest Saturday crowd of the season witnessed the game, and over two-thirds were from Winchester.

Bailey had sixteen strike outs to his credit and could have beaten the Red Sox Saturday the way he was going.

Meehan's hands were swelled twice their size after the game on account of the terrific speed of Bailey.

Ford, at short, put up a grand game for Woburn and saved a few hits for Bailey.

Krepps, the Tufts' Southpaw, played in center field. Woburn was well supplied with pitchers at any rate.

McMahon looked strange in right field, but he did not seem to mind it. The Woburn management had to pay him the same price as if he pitched the game. Some salve!

Reardon, at second, filled in to good form for Woburn. I had him wrong last week, he is a Harvard player instead of Fordham.

We had our old friend, Johnny Doherty, on third base and he showed some of his old time class there. If Doherty could hit as well as he can field the big leagues would soon have him.

We also had Billy Phoenix on the bench. This player, managed and played second base for some team in the South all season. He went to the bat in the 9th in place of Leland.

Charles Flaherty was also in uniform, but did not get a chance to face Bailey.

We had the best team on the field we had all the year, but we were helpless before the pitching of Bailey. Our players did entirely too much swinging at that speedy pitching to get results.

PRIMARY VOTE.

Kneeland and Prime Winners in Winchester.

The State primaries, held Tuesday, resulted in a turn out of a large vote, not only in Winchester, but throughout the State, the very fine fall weather lending every inducement to bring everyone to the polls.

The chief interest in Winchester was the contest for Representative nomination on the Republican ticket between three local candidates and the Republican Senatorial nomination between Winfield F. Prime of this town and Edwin T. McKnight of Medford. Of minor interest was the contest for Councilor, County Commissioners, District Attorney and Register of Probate on the same ticket. The Democratic slate furnished State interest only in the contest for Governor between Charles H. Cole and Frederick W. Mansfield, the latter winning the nomination by a big majority.

WILLIAM A. KNEELAND.
Elected Representative.

In the Republican Representative nomination Mr. William A. Kneeland won out by a large margin, carrying both Winchester and West Medford, which comprise the 25th District. George T. Davidson ran second in Winchester and third in West Medford, and George B. Hayward third in Winchester, second in West Medford and second in the District. In the District Kneeland beat Hayward by 162 votes and Davidson by 211.

Mr. Prime lost the nomination for Senator by a scant 208 votes, his defeat by Edw. T. McKnight of Medford being undoubtedly due to the votes taken by Newhall of Stoneham, who although running a poor third, nevertheless polled a large Stoneham vote and considerable in Winchester, Arlington, Woburn and Wakefield. McKnight led in Medford, the largest city in the District, and Newhall in Stoneham.

The total vote cast in Winchester was 1015. Of these 42 ballots were thrown out as defective and the Republicans polled a total of 859 to the Democrats 114. Governor Samuel W. McCall led the Winchester ballot with a total of 764 votes, and the largest vote accorded any other local candidate was the 577 going to Mr. Prime. Mr. Winfield L. Tuck, Democratic candidate for Senator, received 88 votes in Winchester.

The results were as follows:

The fall schedule of time on the steam road will go into effect on Monday morning. Very few changes have been made this season, practically every train running on the old time with the exception of a few minutes change in five inward and two outward trains.

Probably the most important change is the omission of the Wedgemere stop on the 9.05 a. m. outward train. The present 11.25 a. m. inward train from Winchester will leave at 11.15 and the 10.17 at 10.12.

New timetables convenient for carrying may be obtained of the following firms: F. E. Barnes & Co., Geo. A. Barron, the Edward T. Harrington Co., Kelley & Hawes Co., and the Winchester Trust Co.

NEW BUSINESS FIRM IN WINCHESTER.

With the sale of the paper store of the C. M. Richardson Company a new business firm will enter Winchester, this being the E. H. Faunce Co. The transfer was effected this week and the E. H. Faunce Co. will assume charge of the business Oct. 1st. During their stay in Winchester the members of the Richardson firm have made many warm friends and they leave their business accompanied by the good wishes of many residents and business firms. The new firm will doubtless receive a warm welcome in Winchester.

Mr. E. H. Faunce comes to Winchester from Lynn, where for the past 20 years he has been in business with the Faunce & Spiny Co. He will make his home in this town.

The present store of the firm is to be moved across the street to the Langley Building and will occupy that portion previously occupied by the Hatch candy store.

The Edison Electric Illuminating Co. has taken the store previously occupied by the news company, it having been found necessary to open a Winchester office to care for its largely increased business here.

Mrs. C. M. Richardson and her family will continue to make their home in Winchester for the present.

SURPRISE PARTY.

On Tuesday evening about fifty friends of Mrs. Josephine Kane took possession of her home on Washington street. Mrs. Kane was busily packing, preparatory to moving to her new home in Cambridge, when the party took her by storm and forced her into a most comfortable and attractive room, which she had never seen before. The chair was the gift of her friends, the presentation being made by Miss Lillian McCarthy.

When the excitement subsided somewhat, Mrs. Kane, and her daughters, Misses Lillian and Rose, became hostesses to a very merry party. Many of the guests were costumed, which added greatly to the festive spirit of the evening. Refreshments were served and an impromptu program arranged with the following ladies taking part:

Miss Mabel Coty, pianist and soloist—Miss Gabrielle McCarthy, soloist—Miss Annie Glendon, pianist—Mrs. Anne Kennedy and Mrs. Johanna Glendon, step-dancing—Mrs. Frances Sullivan and Miss Nellie McNally, solo dancing and Miss Frances Noonan, readings.

Time for departure came all too soon for the guests, who left with earnest good wishes to Mrs. Kane and her family for success and happiness in their new home.

ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCED.

Last Thursday afternoon at her home on Pine street, Miss Louise F. Lord announced her engagement to Mr. C. Frederic Eberle of Maxwell road, formerly of Malden. The secret was made known to Miss Lord's friends in rather a unique manner. In the center of the table was a large cupid and at each of the eleven places, smaller cupids were found holding small engagement rings. The cupid at Miss Lord's place held the real ring. Sweet heart roses were used as table decorations.

LADIES' SINGLES AT COUNTRY CLUB.

A ladies' singles tennis tournament is to be held at the Winchester Country Club on Thursday, Oct. 5, opening at 10 a. m. for the Club championship. Entries are desired before Wednesday at 6 p. m. by George G. Tarbell.

BASE BALL TOMORROW.

Tomorrow we play the final game of the year and it will be for the benefit of the Winchester Hospital. We expect to face a strong squad from Tufts, and will try our best to close the season with a final victory, although we are going against a pretty strong team. It is hoped a big crowd will turn out and swell the funds for the Hospital. It is a Winchester institution and deserves the support of all Winchester. We will furnish you with a first class game of ball and it is up to you fans and lovers of baseball to turn right around and help us out by attending the game. If you have not seen a game before this season, come to this one anyway. Remember what it is for and do the right thing. Buy a ticket if you do not come to see the game. The tickets will be 25c and that sum never kept anyone out of the porchouse. If you cannot come yourself, give your boy or girl a ticket and let them come down to the Hospital needs the money and the ladies in charge of this game are going to do their part in getting it. Game at 3.15. Coady will umpire. And get down early if you want a seat as there will be a crowd from some of the other towns, there being no baseball in Woburn or Arlington.

NOTICE TO PARENTS.

Editor of the Star:
The attention of parents is called to the fact that on Monday, October 2, the schools will begin the fifth week of the present school year. The work of the various classes is progressing at such a rate that it is becoming increasingly difficult for pupils entering late to make up for lost time. The arrangements that have been made for giving extra assistance to individuals and groups of pupils who come in late will provide for those who have been kept out of school for three or four weeks. It is obvious that in justice to pupils now in school it will be impossible to provide adequately for those who are to stay away for an indefinite period and that it is imperative that all pupils who have not returned by Monday next should arrange to do definite and regular work at home so that they will not fall behind their classes. Those who have not done so should apply at once to the office of the Superintendent of Schools for the necessary books and instructions with reference to this matter. George Chandler Coit.
Chairman of the School Committee.

YOUR AFFAIRS AND MINE.

"We were with them four weeks of every summer for ten years, those dear, delightful, kind, courteous folk, and how we enjoyed neighboring with such people!" said a Winchester clubwoman to The Spectator recently. "We found ourselves wishing we could locate in a town where we could have such neighbors all the time. They were so different from the neighbors here in Winchester—the all-the-year-round neighbors, who have peculiarities, and even disagreeable ways. For the ten years we had wondered why we couldn't have such fine, interesting neighbors at home, and then, all of a sudden a thought hit us right between the eyes—maybe we weren't good all-the-year-round neighbors ourselves. We had known our summer neighbors for four weeks out of each year, and, compared with the stay-at-home weeks of eighteen years, coming to count it up, it wasn't very long. Small wonder that we had found out all the faults and failings of the home town folks! We had known them so long and so intimately, our summer neighbors, like ourselves, always relax from the trying, work-a-day part of life, and are on their best behavior. Almost anybody can be good for four weeks. While we are away from home we wear a freshly combed head of hair, a smile, and pretty clothes, even of mornings. We are bright, vivacious, witty, always putting our best foot forward, and, naturally, the other women are all doing the same thing. No wonder we find them congenial company. We are hearing beautiful music, breathing pure air. We stop our worrying and feel like new creatures. We feel sure each year that the up-lift will last long after we get home—but it doesn't. The house is dusty, the refrigerator is musty, our clothes are all mussed, the red ants have found the lard, and the black ants are in the jelly. And we slump! Our neighbors run in for a minute, and we start in telling them how tired we are—and all about the ants. We needn't resent it if our neighbor tells us what lovely people live in the summer cottages where she goes for her outing, for we turn right round and tell her the same kind of story. What a pity it is that neighborhoods can't be transplanted to pleasant places all together for their summer outings! Just to see how lovely home folk can be when they relax and get rested up a bit! It would be a good time to get acquainted all over again, and really know the folks who live near us. Maybe we can't be kind, and courteous, and altogether charming the year round. Maybe we put on these things with our vacation clothes, but my! Wouldn't it be fine if we could hold out the rest of the year? It won't hurt us to try it, for, after all, when sickness and sorrow come to us, it's the faithful Winchester folks, the all-the-year-round neighbors, to whom we turn for help and comfort."

With the thunders of war all around us, The Spectator might name women here in Winchester who long to go out on some far away battlefield and there, amid the wounded and dying, suffer for and with them. They read of this woman and that woman, who is doing heroic work on the firing lines, and wish—O, so fondly, that they, too, were free to take their place beside her—to render what aid these Winchester women could to the war victims. Writing under the caption "Begin good work in your own home," A writer in an exchange reaching The Spectator's desk has finely said:—

"Do not waste precious time idly day-dreaming. The blood drenched battle-grounds of Europe or any other country do not need to want you, but you are wanted and needed in your own home, whether that home is a costly house or a humble tenement flat. Perhaps in that home there may be a wayward brother—probably a delicate sister, or an aged parent, to whom you can, if you only will, be a veritable beacon light of hope."

"Remember self-sacrifice (like charity and all other virtues), begins at home, and if the woman who longs to go out and suffer—yes, almost give her life for the war victims—will put such thoughts out of her mind and immediately begin her 'self-sacrifice' for the members of her own family, she will find her time so fully occupied she will have absolutely none to spare for those on the outside. Inside is where we belong—not outside. The outside will, of course, accept us if we force ourselves upon it, but the woman who is really in earnest about doing a good work will begin right in her own living room, or kitchen, whichever you may wish to call it."

"If, perhaps, there is a wayward brother in the family, begin with him. By loving tact and kindness try to influence him. Ask him to be your escort here and there. Tell him of the things you are interested in and ask his advice and opinion. If you really are sincere, your good work will soon bear fruit and in later years, probably when you have passed to your reward, his memory will revert to you and he'll thank Heaven for the blessing of your sweet, womanly influence."

"Spend more time with the little, delicate sister who is alone during the day. Hers is a very narrow, a very one-sided world. Bring your smart friends to chat with her occasionally and make her feel that she, too, is popular. And then the dear old mother! Perhaps she isn't in your class, but you go into her class. Spend some of the time you waste with her. She longs to have you confide in her—to tell her of the things that interest you; yes, and of the hopes that are very dear to you."

"No, war is not calling you. Wars will thunder and pass and come again, but as long as the human family exists woman's best, most exalted place, is at her own fireside. There she can do her greatest work and, after all, it is the only work that will bring her a lasting satisfaction."

OPEN TOURNAMENT AT COUNTRY CLUB.

Dempsey of Hatherly the Winner of Three Day Events.

A field of 107 golfers from various clubs in this vicinity took part in the qualifying round in the open tournament at the Winchester Country Club held from Thursday to Saturday.

Although the list included some very fine golfers, not one was able to turn in a card under 80. The best gross score was an 81 by J. N. Manning of the Brae-Burn, who was closely pressed by G. H. Pushee of Weston, who was 82, and F. J. Wright, Jr., the junior golf champion, who was 83.

The low net went to E. O. Holmes of Bellevue, who easily distanced the rest of the field with handicaps, as he totaled 88-18-70. In addition to the low gross and net prizes offered, the players had an opportunity to try and qualify in one of three flights of 16 for match play on the remaining days.

The first 16 gross scores qualified for the first cup, and will start a match play without handicap. Two more sixteens were also drawn for match play and they used their state handicap allowances. The cards of the leaders and the summary of the round follows with the drawings for the first round of match play. The best cards: J. N. N. Dempsey of the Hatherly Golf Club was the winner of the tournament, defeating H. T. Bond of the home club in the final of 18 holes by 1 up. It was nip and tuck throughout, but thanks to a putt on the home green Dempsey took the hole and the match.

In the forenoon, Dempsey won from P. L. Lewis of the local club, by 1 up. In the other semi-finals, Bond beat his clubmate, R. L. Smith, by 2 and 1.

G. A. Whittemore, Hatherly, took the honors in the second division, beating L. W. Barta, by 1 up. F. M. Smith was the only home club player to come through, defeating H. W. Porter of the Wollaston G. C., in the final in the third division, by 1 up, three extra holes being required. The summary:

15,000 IN WINCHESTER SUNDAY.

Estimates made by the Police Department placed the number of Jews who passed through Winchester Sunday in the vicinity of 15,000. It was by far the biggest of the many big Sundays of the past when the Hebrews of Greater Boston visit their cemetery at East Woburn.

As on former years the crowds reached Winchester early Sunday morning, coming by trains, electric, autos and carriages, and in fact by any means of travel they could command. The electric roads were ready for them and ran cars between Arlington and Winchester Highlands in relays of fours as fast as they could send them over the tracks. Superintendent Meyers of the Reading Division and Donahue of the Woburn Division were in Winchester centre during the entire day directing the traffic, and it is said that the crowd was never before handled so well. The Winchester police had special officers in the square all day to handle the crowds.

As was instituted last year by the electric lines, the bulk of the travel was carried so far as possible by way of Arlington, thus passing a big portion through the town direct. Nevertheless there was a large number who used the Sullivan Square route, and the Medford cars were well crowded during the day, many specials being kept on the route between Winchester and Winthrop Square. The electric roads handled about 7,000 going to the cemetery.

Notwithstanding the big crowds there were no accidents except two minor automobile collisions.

HOSPITAL GAME TOMORROW.

The base ball game for the benefit of the Winchester Hospital will be played on Manchester Field tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock. This is the last game of the season for the Winchester team and in view of the worthy object to which the proceeds will be donated, everyone should make an especial effort to attend and contribute. The game will be a good one, Winchester having as its opponent the strong Tufts College nine.

A little later an odor of gas was noticed, it being thought that the leak was at the cock in the fixture. When the fixture was turned on it automatically lit, the flame immediately travelling up to the ceiling. A hand chemical quickly extinguished the blaze with slight damage.

QUICK WORK BY POLICE.

The Winchester Police performed a quick piece of work on Monday night, when within one hour and ten minutes after notification an Italian accused with attempted felonious assault on a West Side woman had been arrested, and fifteen minutes later had been identified by the woman as her assailant.

On Sunday night as Miss Gladys Matthews, employed in the household of Mr. Charles A. Lane on Glen road, was coming to Winchester on the 10 o'clock car from Arlington she was accosted by an Italian who sat beside her. The man attempted to make conversation and when she left the car at Glen road and Cambridge street he also got off and followed her.

When a dark stretch of road was reached he attempted to assault her. Her screams were heard by Stanwood Henderson, who was waiting on his piazza for the Arlington car, and he ran to her assistance, frightening the Italian away. Mr. Henderson chased the man to Church street, where he got away.

The woman did not report the matter to the police, but on Monday Mr. Henderson, feeling that they should know the facts, and learning that the woman had been so frightened that she was leaving town, wrote to Chief McIntosh, the letter being received by the Chief at 5.50 p. m.

Investigation revealed the fact that the Italian had been seen running by Officer William Rogers, who stopped him and questioned him. The man said he had been at a wedding in Arlington and was running to catch a car. As officer Rogers recognized the man he allowed him to continue on his way. Chief McIntosh and officer Rogers immediately went to the Italian's residence at 41 Chester street and arrested him. The man was Giovanni Larpa, single, 21 years of age.

The arrest was made at 7 o'clock, and at 7.15 the man had been positively identified by Miss Matthews. In the Woburn court on Tuesday morning he was held in $1,000 bonds for a continuance on Wednesday. On Wednesday morning the Italian was held in $1,000 bonds for the grand jury.

SMALL BOY HELD UP.

A young son of Mr. Edward R. Waite of Symmes road was held up on Highland avenue Monday afternoon by two Medford youths, aged 12 years each. The two boys took young Waite's tool box from his bicycle and made off with it, the small boy having nothing else of value about him.

Word was telephoned to the police and Chief McIntosh captured the boys on Main street near Symmes corner, the theft having occurred at that end of the avenue. Both boys were riding bicycles and lived in Medford, being Carlisle Lakeman of Lawrence street and Harold Bresendon of Spring street.

They told the Chief they had taken the tools in fun. They have each had considerable to think about since the incident and it is doubtful if anything further is done in the matter.

Don't miss the ball game this Saturday afternoon. The proceeds will go to the Winchester Hospital.

A LARGE BUILDING.

The new garage of the Kelley & Hawes Co., now well under construction on Winchester place and Railroad avenue, will be one of the largest business buildings ever erected in this town. The work is progressing rapidly under the direction of contractor Fred C. Alexander of Lakeview road, and already the brick work on each of the long side walls is well up to the top of the second story and the cement flooring is being flowed in. A steam hoisting engine was set up at the work this week to aid in placing some of the massive steel work in place and to hoist the material to the top. A view of the work from Winchester place gives a good impression of the size of the new garage.

MRS. CHARLES F. BROWN INJURED.

Mrs. Charles F. Brown of 1 Eaton street, while standing on Washington street near her home Saturday evening was struck and knocked down by an automobile. She was taken to her home suffering from numerous minor bruises and cuts.

According to reports of the accident the auto was obliged to make a quick turn to avoid a collision with a motorcycle coming down the Eaton street hill onto Washington street. The auto struck a sign post, breaking it off, and ran into Mrs. Brown, who was standing with Mr. George A. Ambler on the corner. She was taken to her home.

SCHOOLS OPEN—NO DANGER.

To open the public schools Monday, as planned, is the course dictated by common sense and advised by the best medical opinion.

There was no reason, as it turns out, why the schools should not have opened on time. Yet perhaps there was enough danger of a September hot wave and a temporary increase of paralysis to justify the board in taking extreme precautions. To delay longer would be unwarranted.

The average paralysis death-rate for a week past, nine a day, would be one child daily in Liverpool or Brussels, Cleveland or Pittsburgh; one a year in a large village. Even these few deaths have been mainly of children under six. As President Willcox points out, children of school age are all in town, meeting their playmates in the street. They might better be in school.

Paralysis cases will continue to occur in small numbers as they have for ten years past. There has at no time in New York been anything like an epidemic. At its height, paralysis claimed no more victims than measles had done, unnoticed, a few months earlier. Health Boards must fight the disease. Laymen should forget it; or better, perhaps, prepare to suppress hereafter sensational talk and the hysteria which raged during the summer at such unnecessary cost to the health and pockets of the community.—[N. WINCHESTER AUTOIST STRUCK WOMAN.

Harold Meyer of Sheffield road, while driving an auto in Woburn on Monday night struck and ran over Mrs. Maria Bartola of 21 Chestnut street, Boston. The woman was carrying a baby at the time of the accident, which she tossed to one side as she was struck.

Mr. Meyer immediately stopped and took the woman into his car, carrying her to the Choate Hospital, where it was found that she had suffered a broken right arm and severe lacerations about her head and face. Meyer then reported the accident to the police and was allowed to go to his home after it was ascertained that the woman was not dangerously injured. The baby escaped unharmed.

BOWLING OPENS WEDNESDAY.

Big Calumet Tournament Starts With Seventeen Teams.

The annual Winter Bowling Tournament of the Calumet Club will open next Wednesday evening with a list of 17 teams. This makes the largest tournament in the Club's history, the largest previous entry being last fall, when the tournament had 16 teams and the Club was hard pressed to provide the alley space sufficient for active rolling. This season the Club has six alleys in place of last year's four.

The teams this fall are made up largely in previous formation, many groups bowling together in past years. In addition there are several teams, a number of which promise to make things interesting for some of the old-timers. The teams are of the usual five men each and three strings of Boston pins will constitute a match.

The tournament will continue until January 25, ample provision being made in the alley allotment to provide for special bowling by both the ladies and gentlemen. Six regular and one special prize will be awarded the winners in the tournament.

The composition of teams, schedule of games and prizes will be as follows:

MEMORIAL TO FORMER RESIDENT.

The many friends of the late Hiram N. Turner, for many years a resident of Winchester, will, we feel confident, be interested in the following clipping, taken from a St. Johnsbury, Vermont, paper. Mr. and Mrs. Turner moved from Winchester to St. Johnsbury in 1890.

An impressive service took place at Grace Methodist Episcopal Church Sunday morning when the large gothic memorial window in memory of Hiram Newton Turner was presented to the church trustees by Mrs. Turner. The audience which crowded the auditorium heard a sublime dedicatory service balanced with beautiful musical numbers.

The Turner Memorial window is a fine work of art and is the product of the Tiffany Studios of New York, where it was designed and executed under the personal supervision of Louis G. Tiffany. It is a large gothic window of five openings and represents "The Annunciation to the Shepherds." Out of the deep blue sky the Star of Bethlehem shines forth over the City of the Nativity and breaks with effulgence on the Shepherds who are watching over their sheep on the Judean Hills.

Rev. George A. Martin in his address spoke of the fine Christian character of Mr. Turner and of the fitting memorial dedicated.

Mrs. Ellen B. Turner presented the window for dedication with a few well chosen words, as follows:

From time immemorial it has been the custom among the nations of the world to mark with appropriate symbols those sacred places where deeds of valor have been wrought; that succeeding generations as they come and go might read the record.

Of noble lives well lived;

Of noble work well done;

Of battles nobly fought

And bravely won.

We rear today no granite shaft to mark an epoch in the march of time; we place no monumental bronze nor sculptured urn, but in this sacred place consecrated to divine worship we dedicate this window in loving memory of one who walked with us awhile. In memory of one whose heart overflowed with loving kindness towards his fellow men; whose life was consecrated to Christian service, and whose influence remains a perpetual benediction.

To the trustees of Grace Methodist Episcopal church I now present this window, to be dedicated for the service and worship of Almighty God.

Mr. Turner early revealed an aptitude for railroading, and until his fiftieth year followed this career with ever increasing success. He rose rapidly from subordinate positions to the office of general traffic manager of the Boston and Maine railroad. From this position he was called to St. Johnsbury to become the assistant manager of the E. & T. Fairbanks Co. Soon after his coming he was elected manager and later president. This last office he retained until the day of his death.

PROBATE AND OTHER COURT NEWS.

Mr. Richardson has also filed a petition asking to be appointed as administrator of the estate of Mrs. Sarah J. Richardson of Winchester, who died April 16, 1907. No valuation of the estate was filed.

The Merrimac Chemical Co., of Woburn and the New England Manufacturing Co., of Woburn, have each been attached for $5000 in actions of tort by J. H. Wynn's Sons. The papers have been filed by attorneys Littlefield & Tilden, 294 Washington street, Boston.

William A. Bennett of Winchester has filed a petition asking to be appointed as administrator of the estate of his son, Carleton E. Bennett of Winchester, who died March 26, 1916. The estate is valued at $450, all in personal property.

WE WANT JUSTICE.

Editor of the Star:

Please allow me through your paper to express my feeling in regards to the unfair treatment which has been forced upon us in the last two years.

Just two years since Mr. A. S. Hall made a motion in our Town

Entered at the post-office at Winchester, Massachusetts, as second-class matter.

After Oct. 9 you will be obliged to pay six cent fares on the Bay State Railroad.

"Mack" writes stuff that make fans of other places hot under the collar—but they look for it first when they see a copy of the Winchester STAR. It puts verve into local baseball, helps attendance, and "Mack" knows, and so does it. And is the other fellow offended—HE IS. NOT! [Reading Chronicle.] "Mack's" base ball articles in the STAR during the past two years has served to put a keen edge on the game in this vicinity, and but for him interest would not have been half as great as it was during this season. "Mack" can give a knock and take a good hard one in return, and yet not be offended. He rather enjoys it, as he knows full well it means more rivalry, better ball and more public interest. "Mack" is a thorough base ball "fan."

INFANTILE PARALYSIS.

It appears that another case of infantile paralysis has developed since last Friday, although official confirmation is still lacking. If this case is confirmed it will make the fifth Winchester child to be afflicted. The child is the three year old son of Mr. and Mrs. James H. Kelley of 75 Harvard street.

Reports of the case are to the effect that the case was brought to the attention of the local board of health last Friday. Dr. Simpson of the State Board was called and the exact nature of the child's illness appeared to be tubercular meningitis, it being sent to the Homeopathic Hospital, Boston.

At that institution the case still appeared questionable and further consultation was held with the result that the child was removed to the contagious hospital at Brighton. Dr. Allen of the local board was informed that he would receive notice if the case was diagnosed as infantile paralysis at that place, but up to yesterday afternoon had not received such word. The Doctor expresses it as his opinion that the child is afflicted with the disease.

Reports of other cases in town which have been circulated during the week appear without foundation.

MR. KNEELAND THANKS REPUBLICANS.

Editor of the Star: Dear Sir: I wish to express through the STAR my deep appreciation and thanks to my many friends in Winchester and Medford, who by their untiring efforts and by their votes brought about my nomination as Representative last Tuesday.

The result is exceedingly gratifying to me, especially because the overwhelming vote given me in my home town showed the confidence and esteem of my neighbors and friends with whom I had been associated so many years. But my obligation to the citizens of Winchester, Medford and the State in general is made correspondingly great, and if I am successful at the election in November, I will be all the more inspired with the determination to merit the confidence bestowed upon me, by the character of the service that I render at the State House.

Yours very truly,
William A. Kneeland.

MR. PRIME'S APPRECIATION.
Dear Mr. Wilson: Kindly give me the opportunity to say to the people of Winchester, through the STAR, that I am very grateful for the support accorded me by my fellowtownsmen of Winchester in the recent primary for the senatorial nomination.

In view of the fact that I expended no money and solicited no votes in Winchester, I am doubly pleased at this renewed manifestation of confidence on the part of people who know me.

Winfield F. Prime.
September 28, 1916.

Miss Georgiana Crawford of Wildwood street left today for Walnut Hill School, Natick.

SELECTMEN'S MEETING.

Sept. 25, 1916.

The Board met at 7.30 p. m., all present.

Harry C. Sanborn was appointed Clerk pro tem.

State Aid: The Committee on State Aid reported that Lorenzo P. Whitney had removed from Winchester and was now receiving State Aid from the City of Boston. Voted, that State Aid from the Town of Winchester be withdrawn, same to take effect as of September 1st.

Licenses 1916 Explosives and Inflammables: Petition was received from Kelley & Hawes Co., asking permission to install two 500-gallon gasoline tanks in their new building on Railroad avenue and Winchester place. A public hearing was set for October 9.

Dog Warrant: William R. McIntosh, Constable, made certification that all the dogs in the town have been duly licensed and collared according to law.

Licenses 1916 Hawkers and Peddlers: Mr. A. F. DeRosa appeared regarding his petition for a license to peddle fruit and vegetables. After discussion it was left to Mr. DeRosa to submit letters of recommendations.

Legacies: Mr. Harris N. Richmond appeared in connection with the Nickerson Legacy of $1000, asking that in case a Town Meeting should be held before the March Town Meeting that the matter of accepting this legacy be placed in the warrant.

Street Lights 1916 Russell Road: Petition was received from Carl Larson and others of Russell road, asking for one or more additional lights. Referred to Committee on Street Lights.

Water Street: Letter was received from Miss Elizabeth Conway confirming verbal complaint made before the Board on September 18, and it was referred to the Committee on Police for investigation.

Sidewalks 1916 Highland Avenue: Mr. Barrows appeared in further reference to his position for a sidewalk in front of his residence on Highland avenue. Letter was received from the Town Engineer giving estimate of the cost of moving back the hedge in front of the Blank property next to Mr. Barrows and the rebuilding of three cement steps and the rebuilding of the bank as approximately $77. No action was taken in the matter.

Street Light 1916 Grove Street: Mr. Harris M. Richmond appeared to call attention to the condition of the electric light poles on Grove street, and the matter was referred to the Inspector of Wires. He also brought up the matter of placing the wires on Grove street underground at such time as the street should be rebuilt, but it was explained to Mr. Richmond that the Edison Co. absolutely refuse to consider at the present time, underground construction on the outskirts of the town.

Mystic Avenue and Mystic Parkway: Mr. William E. Belcher of Prospect street appeared to call attention to the danger of collision at the corner of Mystic avenue and the Parkway. While there is a warning sign at present some little distance to the south of the entrance to Mystic avenue, it is so small and in such a position that it is seldom seen. The Clerk was requested to take the matter up with the Superintendent of the Middlesex Fells Division asking that a larger sign be placed in a more conspicuous position.

VESPER SERVICE.

Lambert Murphy to Sing at First Congregational Church.

Owing to the illness of Miss Hildgarde Nash, violinist, who was to have played at the vesper service Sunday, October 1st, at 5 o'clock, the music committee have been extremely fortunate in securing the services of Lambert Murphy, the well known tenor, and member of the Metropolitan Opera Company of New York.

Lambert Murphy is an American, and was born in the city of Springfield, Mass. During his senior year at Harvard he commenced his concert career, continuing it for two seasons after, his graduation, and filling many important engagements, including concerts of the Boston Festival Orchestra (three successive seasons) and the Handel and Haydn Society. He was soloist at St. Bartholomew's Church, New York, but resigned his position there when he went to the Metropolitan in 1911, in order to devote his time entirely to operatic work. Mr. Murphy is naturally endowed with a voice of unusually pure quality, which, during his professional career, has developed in richness, warmth, and color.

During the present week Mr. Murphy is singing at the Worcester Music Festival, where he has been a favorite for several years.

The service will be preceded by a fifteen minute recital by the organist, Mrs. Irene Osborne Grant. The doors of the church will be open at 4.15 o'clock. The public is cordially invited.

The following is the program:

THE CASE FOR THE RAILROADS

Significance of the Surrender of Congress to the Brotherhoods as Seen by a Railway President.

By HOWARD ELLIOTT,
President of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad, and Chairman of the Board of Directors.

From the New York Times.

THE recent conference in Washington between the representatives of the railways of the United States and of the four most powerful labor organizations in the railway world should arouse the public to a realization of the difficult and dangerous conditions surrounding the safety and efficiency of the railways that must be kept adequate for their use.

Stripped of phrases and the complications of figures, the issue finally resolved itself into one of obtaining more pay for the same work—an increase of at least $90,000,000 a year for these four classes of men only. The issue was a clear-cut one for higher pay with no change in hours of service, and the men won, and some one must pay the $90,000,000 each year.

Since the passage of the new law the leaders of the brotherhoods and others have indicated that it means that all the employees in the railways will ultimately receive a similar increase in pay. If this should prove to be true, the added burden upon the railways and the people will be nearer $300,000,000 a year instead of $90,000,000.

By rejecting the proposition of the railways for an impartial investigation of the trainmen's demands, and believes in recent times on the part of a labor organization have so startled and perhaps grieved the people—it has even led to resentful comment—as those declarations which demonstrated the attitude of the four big railway brotherhoods.

The President and the labor leaders say you cannot arbitrate a question like the eight-hour day and that "society has settled the question." As to the settlement of the eight-hour principle, it is interesting to remember that California voted on the subject only two years ago. The vote in California was an actual test of American public opinion on the question. The California voters passed on the eight-hour day in an election held Nov. 3, 1914. The result was 590,881 against and 282,696 for the eight-hour day. Of the fifty-eight counties in California the eight-hour day failed to carry one. In San Francisco the adverse majority was smallest, being 70,909 against to 45,629 for. In Los Angeles the vote was 133,704 against to 74,583 for.

This is the only official expression of the popular will on record that I know of and the result was (as naturally to be expected) because most people in the world have to work more than eight hours a day—the farmer, the clerk, the storekeeper, the teacher, the minister, the doctor, thousands of good wives, mothers, daughters, and sisters in caring for their homes, the man of business, even the President of the United States. And every one of the railroad presidents who signed the declaration of principles to the President have all their lives worked more than eight hours a day. Nearly all of them rose from the ranks—trainman, locomotive engineer, locomotive fireman, clerk, telegraph operator, level rodman—and they have a very deep and human sympathy with the men in the service. And we may without disrespect to the President take issue with him as to whether or not the United States is far enough along in its history and development to adopt definitely the eight-hour day.

Those who made the American Nation what it is today worked long and hard. We hear that eight hours or less work a day is all that a strong, healthy man should do. Where would the United States now be if our forefathers had been content with eight hours work a day? Where will the United States be in the race for future commercial supremacy among the nations if this spirit continues? We have ships to build, railways to develop, an army and navy to be manned, and countless tasks to perform. Every patriotic man should give the best that is in him, not the least, if we are to avoid serious difficulties at home and abroad.

The American people are a just and generous people and they wish to reduce want and hardship to a minimum; but they do not like to be taken by the throat by any body of 400,000 men and made to do something before they understand its present and future effects.

Some are speaking of the present prosperity of the railways. It is true that they are enjoying large gains compared with a year ago in both gross and net earnings, but no one can tell what conditions will be when the dreadful European war ends. Costs of operation are increasing in all directions. The cost of materials used by railways has advanced from 100 to 700 per cent. Necessary improvements have been deferred; and in spite of the present prosperity the railways have serious problems ahead. The question of meeting the growing cost of operation is a serious one. When we speak of the present prosperity of the railways we should also recall the losses in the lean years. A good business concern always looks out in prosperous years for the poor years that are bound to come.

In a time of profound peace in this country the railways are congested and cannot carry satisfactorily the total load. What could they do in their present condition if the added burden of war were thrown upon them? Many industries would have to stop because the railways' first duty would be to handle the men and material incident to war.

The President and Congress have placed a heavy burden upon the railways and the people of the country in their surrender to the demands of the brotherhoods before the effect of those demands upon the organization and efficiency of the railways could be accurately determined. The owners and managers, as loyal citizens of the country, will do their best to carry that burden and furnish to the people the needed service if, after ample thought, it is proved that the new law is right. If, however, the hasty action just taken results in industrial disturbance, poorer service, underdeveloped railways, higher rates, demoralized business, and higher cost of living, the owners, the employees, and the public will all suffer. It is most earnestly to be hoped that the people will insist that Congress take up promptly the whole subject and adjust it fairly to all, and show the moral courage and force to correct the mistake that has been made.

The action taken in Washington does not seem to breathe a spirit of justice to the railway owners and others vitally interested in the integrity of the investments and to other wage earners in the railway service, or to the public dependent upon their work. I have from the time this question began to be discussed seriously felt that it ought not to be settled without giving the public, the real party in interest, time to understand it, and an opportunity to express its opinion before the Congress, or an impartial tribunal created by the President or by Congress.

TWO AUTO ACCIDENTS SUNDAY

Minor Collisions With One Winchester Man Involved.

Notwithstanding the immense amount of traffic which passed through this town on Sunday, probably the greatest of any day of the year, but two accidents were reported; both were automobiles and neither was serious.

The first accident occurred at noon at the corner of Main and Washington streets when two cars approaching in opposite directions, did not allow proper judgment in crossing. They came together with the result that the car owned and driven by Santo Privitera of Charter street, Boston, received a broken front wheel and a broken spring. The other car, driven by George E. Cummings of Elmwood avenue, was not injured. Privitera was accompanied by another man, a woman and three children. None of the occupants were injured.

The second accident occurred at the corner of Forest and Washington street late in the afternoon when a car attempted to turn up Forest street from Washington, and collided with a car approaching in the opposite direction. This accident was similar to the earlier one, but neither car was damaged. The cars were owned by Harry M. Litmen of Park street, Boston, and George B. Young of Irving street, Somerville.

FOR EFFICIENCY AND ECONOMY.

In the finding of the Public Service Commission in the Bay State Rate Case, referring to efficiency of operation and co-operation of the public, the Commission said:—

"The co-operation necessary to secure greater efficiency in operation must come indirectly from the public, taking for example the question of stopping places. The reduction in the present number of white pole stops will inconvenience many patrons and in many cases will mean a somewhat longer walk to the car than is now necessary. On the other hand it will increase schedule speed, lower expense and on the whole prove a benefit to the community, a fact which has been abundantly demonstrated in other parts of the country."

and along with this much advanced thought at the hearings, Superintendent Myers of the Reading Division is making a thorough study of the situation and it is expected shortly that steps will be taken towards accomplishing this result. However, before anything further is done in carrying the matter out, the public will be advised through the press.

MAN'S CLOTHES FOUND.

The finding of a bundle of clothing in the water in the cellar of the new block under construction on Main street near the river Saturday morning aroused fears that some man had committed suicide by drowning himself in the cellar. Work has been stopped on the building for the past two weeks, and as the pumps used to keep the cellar clear of water were shut down, it has filled in some places to a depth of six feet.

Saturday morning a bundle of clothes were noticed in the water at the corner next to Dupee's Market and the Police were notified. They recovered a man's shirt with studs in it, a derby hat, collar and necktie and a jacket, besides a cap hanging on a beam nearby.

The cellar was searched as thoroughly as was possible without using a boat and no body was found, and as no man has been reported missing who would be able to wear the clothes, the history of the clothing still remains a mystery.

CANOE PARADE ON MYSTIC.

The canoe parade and illumination at the Medford Boat Club on Mystic Lake Saturday night drew a large crowd from this town and surrounding places. The Club House on the dam was illuminated by colored Japanese lanterns and colored fire, and a full band gave a program of selections during the evening.

The night was ideal for the affair at this season, a gentle southerly breeze carrying the music up across the pond to the delight of hundreds of automobiles parked along the boulevard. The illuminated canoe parade had an entry of fourteen boats, all attractive with lanterns and colored lights. The first prize was awarded to Mr. Norman Mitchell of this town for the same entry with which he took third prize at the Winchester celebration two weeks previous. He had his canoe decorated to represent an Indian wigwam and paddled it with a young lady companion in Indian costume. Mr. Waldo S. Manson took second prize with his big red umbrella and Mr. Arthur C. Smith took third with another decoration in red.

Winchester had two other canoes in the parade besides that of Mr. Mitchell, "Jack" Sheridan and E. C. Bartlett having an attractive float representing a steamboat, and Steward Benjamin H. Newlands of the Winchester Boat Club entering with a war ship.

Give Numbers Clearly

"SEVNATEFISIX."

Everyone realizes the possibilities of error in telephoning when 7856 is asked for in that way.

When numbers are given to our operators in that disconnected, hurried or otherwise indistinct fashion, it is likely that there will be an error and a wrong connection made.

THERE IS AN ABSOLUTE NECESSITY FOR THE CLEAR ENUNCIATION OF ALL TELEPHONE NUMBERS: the operation of our switchboards is directed wholly by numbers. A wrong number or a misunderstood number invariably means an error call, for which our operators should not be held responsible.

"SEV-EN EIGHT FIVE SIX" is the better way to give the above number. Clearly pronounced numbers uttered directly into the telephone transmitter will obviate a majority or error calls.

When you have given a number to our operator, she repeats it. You should listen for that repetition, for then you may correct her if she has misunderstood you. That will save a great deal of delay and trouble; and, if you also say "Yes" or "That's right," if she repeats properly, she will have your assurance that she is doing her work correctly.

FEAR, FOLISHNESS AND QUARANTINE.

Someone has written to this journal asking it to advocate a quarantine by Atlantic City against children coming from New York.

We refuse to enter any such brutal scheme.

The quarantining against New York by all sorts of communities because a few hundred children of that city have been attacked by what the doctors call infantile paralysis is the product of ignorance, foolishness and contemptible fear. There is no sense in it. There is no reason in it. There is nothing in it but abject cowardice.

There are tens of thousands of children in New York who are perfectly well. What would these panic-stricken, save-themselves-at-all-price town authorities do? Condemn every child of New York city to remain cooped up in a hot city? Prevent the charities from giving their summer outings to weary mothers and suffering children? Shall there be no day by the sea or a week in the country for the little ones?

The senselessness of this quarantine movement is beyond all intelligent belief.

The word fear is without doubt the most detestable one in language. Or rather it defines a quality of the human mind that is responsible for about every evil that exists. Petty town officials and so-called boards of health have succumbed to fear. Perhaps it is not strange when we read in the New York Sun:

"To the health authorities of New York themselves these reflexes of their own blundering conduct are directly attributable. They started the panic; they filled the minds of dwellers within the city, and then of the population outside, with fear; they are responsible for the exaggerated idea of danger from infantile paralysis that obtains today over so wide a territory."

We do not doubt it. The New York authorities have but followed the modern method of trying to build up health by scaring everybody to death. It is a happy individual indeed who can escape from the clutches of this scheme of preaching disease from the cradle, through the schools and into manhood. The New York authorities have given an overdose of the new-fangled remedy with the result described by the Sun.

What is this infantile paralysis? Nobody knows. Like every other ill that afflicts mankind, its cause is said to be some sort of a germ. But it is such a tiny little germ as to escape the doctors. Because they are not acquainted with it they are at sea. And because they are at sea and cannot account for the growing number of cases, they have talked of contagion or infection or both.

Yet one of their number the other day reported that it was rare that more than a single case occurred in one family, which would seem to knock the contagious theory in the head, while the United States Health Service has found that out of 2070 persons exposed by residence in the same houses and in the same families with patients, only fourteen "developed" the disease in frank paralytic form.

But because of the Campaign of Frightfulness inaugurated by the health authorities of New York, fear has taken possession of the parents of New York, of Brooklyn and of cities and towns too numerous to record. These New York health people have done far more harm than they have done good.

It is to be hoped that none of this cowardly foolishness will find its way into Philadelphia. Sanity has prevailed here thus far. Indeed, the best comment on the situation that we have yet seen from a medical source was that of this city's Chief Medical Director, Dr. A. A. Cairns, who said:

"I can call to mind only three rules, and they are applicable to the fight against all other diseases as well as infantile paralysis. They are: Cleanliness, fresh air and good food."

Excellent, worthy doctor, excellent. And if you had added a word about the eradication of fear, you would have strengthened your good advice.—[The Philadelphia Inquirer.]

TREMONT THEATRE.

The final week of "Civilization" begins at the Tremont Theatre, Boston, next Monday. This announcement undoubtedly comes as a surprise to the hosts of those who had in prospect attending the mammoth photo spectacle.

Certainly no attraction in years has caused so much enthusiastic commendation from all sorts and conditions of people because of the universality of appeal of the drama. The subject is alive to the day, and the most profound of the foreseeing pronouncement that it will be equally as timely for years to come.

But the conditions of the theatrical field is such that no further prolonging of the engagement could be obtained and the management have to make the best of opportunities. And because of this, all that they can do is to urge those who have in prospect attending the Tremont to engage their seats as soon as possible. In this regard it is announced that seats are procurable for the entire engagement.

There will be two performances daily at 2.10 and 8.10 p. m.

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE.

One of the strongest dramatic stories ever put upon the stage is found in "The Devil's Harvest" which will be brought to the Castle Square Theatre next week. This latest output of the pen of Edward E. Rose, author of "The Rosary" and other successes, has taken a grip on the popular sentiment of the day. In "The Devil's Harvest" is shown the birth, growth and horrible development of the drink habit, related in a series of stirring situations. It is a play of action, that is so fair in its interpretation of a nation wide problem as to make of it a thing apart from the usual attempt to handle great questions on the stage. It will be acted by a capable company for one week only at the Castle Square.

MOTHER AND PARENT-TEACHER ASSOCIATION.

Holyoke, Mass., Oct. 4-7, at Hotel Nonotuck.

The program for the Seventh Annual State Convention of the Massachusetts Branch of the National Congress of Mother and Parent-Teacher Associations has just been issued. Its speakers are of National reputation including the head of the National Educational Bureau Dr. P. P. Claxton, a great favorite in Massachusetts in addition to being the highest representative of education in the public schools of the United States.

The Convention will open Wednesday afternoon, which will be essentially a session for the review of what has been accomplished by the State during this past year and a looking forward to the practical work to be accomplished during the year to come. On Wednesday evening a reception will be given the visiting delegates in the Ballroom of the Nonotuck hotel after which the delegates and friends will be welcomed by Hon. John J. White, the Mayor of Holyoke and Mr. Francis McSherry, the Superintendent of Schools in response to whose endorsement of the cordial invitation of the Associations of Holyoke, this city has been chosen for this year's convention.

Mrs. E. W. Kroepel, President of the Central Council, will give a welcome and Mr. James Van Sickle, the Superintendent of the Springfield Schools, will bring a greeting from that city. The response will be by the State President, Mrs. Milton P. Higgins. The first address of the evening will be given by the National President, Mrs. Frederic Schoff and will present the practical idea of the scope of the work of the Congress and its ideals.

The next address will be an illustrated lecture by Mr. C. T. C. Whitcomb, the Director of the Massachusetts Educational Exhibit at the Panama-Pacific Exposition and will be a surprise to the many who do not realize how great has been the advance in vocational education during the last few years.

On Thursday morning there will be greetings from the Presidents of the other New England States and from co-operating associations. Reports from the State Officers will give a clear condensed idea of the progress of the work. In the afternoon of Thursday our National Vice President, Mrs. D. O. Mears, will tell of the importance of Child Welfare Day and its successful results. Also shall listen to the success of the various local associations and to the new suggestions for the future welfare of the Massachusetts circles.

On Thursday evening, Miss Mary J. Woolley, President of Mount Holyoke College, will give an address on "The Value of the Constructive," and Dr. P. P. Claxton, the United States Commissioner of Education will follow in a practical talk.

Friday morning will be devoted especially to the consideration of parents' obligations to their children in moral and religious training and will be led by Mrs. E. M. Barney, Chairman of the Committee of Parents Association in Churches. Friday afternoon there will be an opportunity given for pleasure trips to the various colleges, Holyoke, Smith and Amherst or for a trip to Mt. Tom.

On Friday evening the session will be held in the Ballroom of Hotel Nonotuck, and Miss Lucy Wheelock of the Wheelock Kindergarten Training School of Boston, will give an address to be followed by Dr. Kate Waller Barrett, former President of the National Council of Women, who will speak on "Immigration and our Duty to Those Who Come as Strangers to Our Shores." Prof. O. A. Morton of the Massachusetts Agricultural College will tell "What Garden Work is Doing for the Massachusetts Boys and Girls and How the Parent-Teachers Associations may Cooperate."

On Saturday morning, October 7th, Mrs. Elmer Carlisle Ripley, Assistant Superintendent of Schools in Boston, will give an address on "The Value of the Parent-Teacher Association to the Individual." Miss Bertha McConkey, Assistant Superintendent of Schools in Springfield, will speak on "Recreation in its Relation to Home and School," and Mr. Payson Smith, the Commissioner of Education in Massachusetts, who has recently been elected to fill the vacancy caused by Dr. David Snedden's resignation, will give the closing address.

Resolutions and closing exercises conclude the convention. The social features of luncheons interspersed with speaking, of music and of recreation and demonstration and the pleasure trips will be a unique feature of this seventh convention.

GROWTH OF SAVINGS BANK INSURANCE.

For ten months of the present fiscal year the Savings Insurance Banks have issued 2,900 policies for a total of $1,565,292.00 insurance.

This represents a gain of more than 100 per cent over the amount written during the same period last year. This gain of more than 100 per cent in business has come from all parts of the State. Applications have been received from 114 different towns and cities.

In many of the towns the postmasters are aiding in the State's educational work by displaying the State bulletins.

The low cost of this insurance, the large dividends, and the security afforded by the management of the Commonwealth are among its advantages.

overflowing patronage at every performance.

People like the entertainment so well that they come again and again. Manager Fred Wright says that never in his long experience in theatricals has he known so many patrons to visit the same performance over and over again. Mr. Cohan gave the comedian a great big hit and then let the star interpolate his own favorite brand of humor. A personal hit has been scored by Joseph Allen, a Boston boy; Fred Maynard, Mac M. Barnes, Purnell Pratt, Harold Grau, John D. O'Hara, Laura Bennett, Lorena Atwood and Hazel Lowry.

But one more week remains of the engagement, and then Niblo and "Hit the Trail Holliday" will say good bye for the season. It is a good tip to order your seats in advance for the last eight performances.

"RIO GRANDE" AT HOLLIS STREET THEATRE.

Since Augustus Thomas wrote "Rio Grande" and the Charles Frohman company produced it at the Empire Theatre, New York, in the spring, the United States government has sent the greater part of the National Guard to the Mexican border, presumably to verify the military setting and atmosphere of Mr. Thomas' latest play, which comes to the Hollis Street Theatre for a limited engagement beginning Monday night. For "Rio Grande" is a drama of army life at Laredo, Texas, and has a touch of real war in it in the repulse of a band of Mexican raiders and the protection of the bridge over the Rio Grande.

The army post color is all there, from the proper and officially inspected buttons, uniforms and spurs to the clouds of dust coming in through the vine-hung windows, when to the sound of bugles and a fine shuffle of innumerable hoofs, the horses are led riderless past the Colonel's house.

The Charles Frohman company is a carefully selected and well rounded dramatic organization. Frank Campeau, best beloved of all stage villains, is provided with another of those sinister roles in which he seems to delight, and Amelia Gardner has created a most attractive and admirably human character of a whole hearted army woman. Elise Rizer is the love lorn lady of the story, and William Corbett, Francis Verdi and a dozen others have important roles. The scenery reproduces the environment of Fort Macintosh at Laredo, Texas.

G. Bryant Woods, son of George Adams Woods of Sheffield road, was advanced from the second team to the varsity squad on the Harvard football team this week. Woods is a Sophomore and has had considerable football experience. He has shown up remarkably well in scrimmage work and his ability to get through the interference brought him to the attention of Coach Leo Leary early in the season. It is anticipated that he will show up strong on the Harvard team this fall.

When looking over your clothes this fall do not forget that the Overseers of the Poor can use anything that is wearable, children's clothes particularly. Don't send them out of town, plenty of use for them here, comforters, quilts also needed. Bundles will be sent for if they cannot be delivered at Town Hall.
